Four Hundred Hungry, Crying Men and Women March up Fifth Avenue In New York City

(Intelligencer Special)

5 New York, Sept. 1. — Fashionable Fifth Avenue, with its array of clubs and mansions, was awakened early this morning by the intrusion of four hundred hungry, crying men and women members of the striking coat and skirt makers organization. Under the leadership of two men named Rosenthal and Levy, they marched up the street singing Socialistic songs and demanding assistance. Police Inspector McCusky, with a posse of police stopped their progress and called for a battery of patrol wagons into which sixty-three men and eleven women ringleaders were put and taken to a station, charged with disorderly conduct. In reply their spokesman said, "Lazurus fed on the crumbs from the rick man's table, why can't we." Several of the defendants were released but many are still held.

LATER.

Sixty-three men and eleven women garment workers who were arrested while parading on Fifth Avenue to day were each fined $3 by the Magistrate. The majority couldn't pay and were returned to confinement.

PUBLIC IS APATHETIC

Does Not Take Sufficient Interest in Municipal Affairs.

Mayor Geary of Toronto In Welcoming the Delegates to the Union of Canadian Municipalities Refers to the Lack of Interest In Civic Matters—Municipal Finance Is Another Thing That Is Overlooked.

Toronto, Sept. 1.—Apathy by the general public in the administration of municipal government and in solving its great problems was freely referred to at the tenth annual convention of the Union of Canadian Municipalities, which opened in the City Hall yesterday.

"I do not believe our people take an intelligent, lively and active enough interest in municipal affairs," was the way Mayor Geary put it when tendering the civic welcome.

"The indifference of the public in municipal administration gives evidence that the problem of self-government has not yet been fully solved," was the view of President W. Sandford Evans, mayor of Winnipeg.

"This country," said Mayor Geary, "is not getting the service from the railway companies which it is entitled to. We all feel that it is a matter of interest to everyone that freight and passenger traffic should receive more attention. It is a state of things that should not exist in a growing country."

The address of welcome was replied to by Ald. Delian of Montreal, representing Mayor Guerin.

"Municipal finance," said President Evans, "as a distinct problem in municipal administration, has not, I believe, received the attention its importance deserves. Municipal accounting, which is the science of keeping the record of the money raised and expended by a municipality, is very properly receiving careful consideration, but before monetary transactions can be recorded, money must be obtained, and this primary problem of raising the money, of which the account is to be kept, is not sufficiently studied or discussed.

"What principles or conditions govern the amount of money a municipality is justified in borrowing or in collecting through the rates? What is the best form of municipal securities? What are the best methods of marketing these securities? How can municipal credit best be maintained and improved? In other words, how much money should we raise and how can we most successfully raise it? No questions can be more important to a municipality, and yet there are no aspects of municipal work less clearly understood.

"Publications to which reference can be made are very few. Each succeeding administration is left to find out something by experience, or in a blind traditional way to continue to offer occasional series of securities to a market that somehow absorbs them."

He considered London the market where best terms could be obtained for issues exceeding $500,000. Issues of smaller amounts, he thought, should be absorbed in Canada.

"If smaller municipalities wish to reach London it would be better for them to accumulate securities until they can issue at least the minimum of $500,000.

Secretary W. D. Lighthall, in reporting on the work of the union, said:

"We have found specially troublesome certain large combinations. One was the Bell Telephone Co., which, as regards us, is an essentially United States corporation. After years of contestation we obtained our points and it is now quiet. Another, of Canadian origin, and which has proved the most serious and deftly managed organization the municipalities have thus far had to fight is the Mackenzie-Mann combination, which has pulled Ottawa political wires on a large scale against our cities for many years, and has been said to 'own the house.' Their enterprise is admirable, but some of their methods regrettable; perhaps we may expect more agreement with them in the future. But both are now overshadowed by a new combination to which the attention of every Canadian citizen ought to be directed. I refer to the Pierpont Morgan influence. We have it on good authority that this financial organization is so complete that all the principal city franchises, water powers and great resources generally of Canada are mapped out in New York for systematic invasion, on the same lines as those of the United States."

Hudson Bay Railway.

Because the Hudson Bay affords the shortest geographical route from Western Canada to Europe and because it has been used for a couple of hundred years is all the evidence required, in the opinion of some western newspapers, to justify the construction of the Hudson Bay Railway. No one can deny either of these assertions. The fact, however, that the bay has been navigated is a slim peg upon which to hang an argument in favor of the expenditure of as such money as it will require to build the railway, provide the necessary terminals, deepen the shallow harbors and buoy and light the route, for at the best the route would only be available for traffic during the light traffic months of the Northwest shipping season. It could not handle much, if any, of the grain of the West in the year in which it was grown. The crop would have to be carried nine months before it could be shipped. In fact, by the time the route would be ready to handle it a new crop would be almost in sight. Then it is doubtful if the establishing of the route would mean any saving in shipping costs. The Winnipeg Free Press, a strenuous champion of the scheme, admits that "the vessels "which ply in such waters should be "as powerful as modern shipbuilding "can make them. Such, of course "will be the vessels on the Hudson "Bay route—strong ships, powerfully "engined." Now "strong ships, powerfully engined," mean poor cargo carriers, a smaller cargo load per ton of displacement than is the practice nowadays on other routes In fact, so keen is the shipping competition now that none but the most modern and best equipped of freighters are able to make money. The old boats are going to the scrap heaps because it is less expensive to sell them for old iron than it is to operate them. Consequently these specially built Hudson Bay ships would only be available for the purpose for which they were built. The remainder of the year they would have to be tied up in Great Britain. Three trips a year would represent their earning capacity. Consequently to carry grain in them would be three times as expensive as by ships plying on other routes. Then grain men like to have the stuff in which they deal available for shipment whenever the market makes a sale advantageous. Would they ship to the Hudson Bay port knowing that it must be held there for months? Buffalo gets a good deal of Canadian grain because it can be held there in storage for shipment by a number of routes. As a matter of fact the reasons which may be cited against the value of the Hudson Bay route are as the auction bills would put it, "too numerous to mention." It is not a natural trade route in any way except geographically, and it cannot be made one by the present limitations of engineering science. Nevertheless the Laurier Government will probably construct the road for its political advantages. It has never lost an opportunity yet of wasting money. —Montreal Gazette.

May Reduce the Size of Bank Notes.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—If bankers and business men throught the United States give their approval, treasury notes of all denominations will be reduced in size by one-third, at a saving at about $1,000,000 a year to Uncle Sam, and the change will be made within so short a time as to be considered sudden.

It is the Belief of Lee McClung, assistant treasurer of the United States, that the idea of reducing the size of the notes will meet with the approbation of the banking world. The banks will not only be able to place more of the currency in their vaults but the fact that money will be kept flat by the public will make it many times easier to handle and count when it comes into banks.

The plan is to make the new bills just large enough to fit ordinary pocketbooks without folding. It is the folding that destroys their texture. Bills are said to last no more than six months with constant use. They can be made to last longer if made smaller and the saving of ink, etc., in addition will combine to make an inestimable economy.

Business men and bankers of the country are to be solicited for expressions of opinions as to the feasibility of reducing the size of treasury notes.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

BASEBALL.

A league baseball match took place place yesterday afternoon on the Coleman Flats diamond between the Park Nine and Coleman Flats teams. There was a goodly number of spectators present to witness the game, which was rather uninteresting. Owing to some members of the Coleman Flats team being out of the city, that team was handicapped to a considerable extent, being compelled at the last moment to select players from off the field. As was generally anticipated, the Park Nine were victors, securing 7 runs, whilst but two of the Coleman Flats team were able to cross the home plate. As a result of the game the Park Nine and Grand Trunk teams are tied for first place. It is expected that the deciding game for the championship of the League will be played off on Labor Day, and it will no doubt be the game of the series.

Mr. Wm. Cochrane was umpire and as usual filled that position most acceptably.

The line up of the teams were as follows—

Park Nine.

Followers Threat Corners Sir Wilfrid.

IS OBLIGED TO PROMISE CONSERVATIVE CITY OF LETHBRIDGE A NEW PUBLIC BUILDING—"YOU WILL NEVER GET POST-OFFICE WHILE YOU VOTE CONSERVATIVE," SAID E. M. MACDONOLD, M. P.

Lethbridge, Alta., Aug. 31.— E. M. Macdonald, the Liberal M. P. for Picton, N. S. secured a new post-office building for Lethbridge this afternoon. The gift came as a surprise no less to Mr. Macdonald than it did to the citizens of Lethbridge.

In addressing a large Liberal meeting this afternoon, Mr. Macdonald said, "you want a post-office here and you certainly need one badly, but you will never get it so long as you vote Conservative. This remarkable statement elicited a storm of disapproval from the audience, in which even prominent Liberals on the platform joined.

Mr. Macdonald was somewhat taken aback and tried to smooth over matters by saying that Conservatives were always complaining of the Laurier Government spending too much money and that, therefore, the Government in order to please the Opposition should refuse to build any new post-offices even though they were badly needed.

The explanation was received in silence and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, as soon as he rose to speak, promised to write to Mr. Pugsley at once, recommending the immediate erection of a suitable post-office and added, my friend, Mr. Mcdonald, intended to say that you did not deserve a post-office. Well, that may be true, but the Government is a generous Government. If I refuse the post-office you will say I am stingy. If I give you the post-office the Tories will say I am extravagant."

The Laurier special train arrived here this afternoon, the party including Hon. Frank Oliver and Premier Sifton. The train had stopped for an hour or two at McLeod where a post-office building was also requested, but no definite answere was received from the Premier.

Ask Better Trade Relations..

A large crowd assembled here to greet Sir Wilfrid and addresses were presented from the City Council, Board of Trade and American settlers. These addresses alluded to the large amount of Lethbridge coal shipping to and from the Western States and asked for better trade relations between Canada and the United States.

At the meeting this afternoon the premier devoted a considerable portion of his time to discussing reciprocity. He said that better trade arrangements between the two countries might be agreed upon before the close of the present year. Personally, he had always favored better trade relations with the United States, but had been discouraged by the attitude of that country in 1897. He said that Conservatives were opposing reciprocity upon the ground that it would interfere with the British preference. This, he said, was a most preposterous position for the Opposition to assume, because under Sir Charles Tupper and Mr. Borden alike, the conservative party had opposed the preference.

Knives and Forks.

When the rest of the world were still eating with their fingers, the Italians, always leaders in the advancement of civilization, invented the fork. It was said that the very ingenious device was introduced as a part of the table service to save the diner the irksomeness of washing his hands after a meal. Anyway, full credit goes to Italy for the fork; and the first one was used in the thirteenth century.

Those who think that there was no way of handling your food before the fork was invented except with your fingers, are mistaken. There was; and a way so efficacious that it has persisted for the benefit of the antiquarian student until this very day. Knives have been in use ever since man learned how to hunt. For ages he had used a knife at table in preparing his food for mastication; although it is only recently that he has accomplished the feat of handling green peas with that implement.

Even up to the reign of Elizabeth forks were unheard of in England. Shakespeare, Ben Johnson, and Sir Walter Raleigh were what would be vulgarly known in this day as "sword swallowers. An English traveler who visited Italy at this time, writes:

"At Venice each person was served besides his knife and spoon with a fork to hold the meat while he cuts it, for there they deem it ill-manners that one should touch it with his hand."

In 1608 another gives his opinion:

"I myself had thought it good to imitate the Italian fashion of eating with a fork, since I came came home to England."

These early forks were made with two prongs, and it was not until much later that three were used, then four, as now. But like everything else that has been of great use to man and to his comfort, the fork at first had its own troubles to get recognition, and to be adopted as a more practical instrument for its purposes than the knife.

Four adjoining governments of European Russia, of a combined area about 17 times the state of Ohio, are almost completely covered with timber, the greatest portion of which has never been explored by civilized man

WM. McGIE, Belleville.

A COLD STORAGE ROMANCE.

Bill Bailey was a bachelor, forsaken and forlorn.
He used to eat a single egg for breakfast every morn.

He bought his egg one morning from the shop across the way.
The sign above them read, "These Eggs Are Strictly Fresh Today."

Bill Bailey's wonder and surprise were more than we can tell
When he discovered some one had been writing on the shell.

In fact, it seemed a woman had inscribed upon the egg
Her autograph. The name he found was Clementina Clegg.

He wrote to the address she gave and registered a vow:
"This is the woman of my choice. I'll find a partner now."

For weary weeks he waited, though the maiden had forgot,
And then his hopes were shattered by the answer that he got:

"Dear sir, your letter is at hand, and in reply would beg
To state that there is no one here named Clementina Clegg.

"Some of the oldest people here admit they used to know
A bunch of Cleggs who peddled eggs, but that was years ago.

"They tried to run a poultry ranch, but couldn't make it pay,
So sold to a cold storage plant, and then they went away."

—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

A Shaded Story.

Joseph Alexander is a pickaninny of many virtues, but sadly given to exaggeration. One day when I had him pulling weeds in the front yard he ran into the house with eyes big as moons and cried:

"Law, Miss Minnie, what you think! I dun kilt three big rattlesnakes out in the yard."

"Now, Joseph," I replied, "you know that is not so."

"Well, now, Miss Minnie," he insisted insinuatingly, "it wuz two turrible big snakes, an' I killed 'em fo' sho'!"

Determined to convict him, I insisted, "You know you did not kill two snakes, Joseph."

He thought a moment, then said impressively, "Well, now, I did kill one powerful big snake in dat very front yard."

"Go away, boy! You are an outrageous story teller!" I cried indignantly. He was not one whit abashed by my vehemence, but cheerfully replied:

"Well, 'clare for goodness, Miss Minnie, hit was a powerful big worm!"—Delineator.

Tuesday. He—Most certainly we will not. It is ridiculous, preposterous.

Wednesday. He—Why, you must be crazy. It's the most unreasonable thing I ever heard of. It would bankrupt us, I tell you. It is not to be thought of.

"— —— —— — —— —."

Thursday. He—Haven't I told you we cannot afford it? What is the use of talking about a thing that is already settled? Of course I would like to please you, but it is simply out of the question.

"—— —— — —— —— —— —."

Friday. He—How much did you say that thing would cost?

Saturday. He—Well, go ahead then. —Pearson's Weekly.

On the Installment Plan.

Accosted by a beggar while coming out of a theater on Chestnut street a few evenings ago, a prominent member of the bar was asked for a nickel.

"That's all I want, boss, just a nickel," said the beggar in a whining tone of voice.

"No!" answered the lawyer, rather sternly. "I am saving up my nickels to give away a million dollars at one time. I'm not a philanthropist on the installment plan."—Philadelphia Times.

GOURLAY, WINTER & LEEMING.

As usual the firm of Gourlay, Winter and Leeming have one of the finest exhibits of pianos ever shown in Toronto. Their exhibit is situated in the south west corner of the Manufacturers Building and contains a beautiful showing of the famed Gourlay Pianos and the Gourlay-Angelus Player Pianos. Gourlay Pianos continue to show year by year, a steady advance in piano standards and are recognized by leading musicians as being of the highest possible quality in tone, style and durability. A special feature is being made this year of the new "Puritan" style of small pianos, suitable to the modern small drawing room. These small pianos are known, nothing having been sacrificed, and the quality not exceeded by the $750 Louis instrument. Only in size and simplicity of construction do they differ.

There are also several handsome styles of the Gourlay-Angelus Player Pianos being shown here, and they are attracting a great deal of favorable comment. Prospective purchasers are invited to call at the exhibit of Gourlay, Winter and Leeming, or at their handsome warehroms, 188 Yonge street while in Toronto.

JOHNS GLASSBLOWERS.

One of the most interesting and instructive shows on Midway is Johns Glass Blowers, where this fine art is exemplified by experts. For a number of years Johns Glass Blowers have been recognized and welcome feature of the Exhibition and their old friends will be glad to see them back again.

NEW INVENTION FOR HOUSEWIVES.

A most interesting process is being demonstrated in the extreme southeast corner of the Process Building where the manufacturers of "Wonder-Shine" are cleaning the most terribly tarnished silver in a few seconds by simply dipping the tarnished articles in Wonder-Shine. Every lady should obtain a package of Wonder-Shine when at the Exhibition.

AN IDEAL POLISH.

In a tent just east of the north end of the Process Building the J. A. French and Co., Limited, have an interesting display of Ruby Red Metal Polish. This polish contains no grit or acids. It can be used with equally good results on silver or steel. The Company are manufacturing the polish on the grounds and sell through dealers everywhere.

STILL COMING TO CANADA.

Grand Trunk Pacific Train No. 1 had four extra cars went out of Winnipeg Aug. 18th, with 150 American farmers from different points along the line in the Prairie Provinces. These house-seekers laugh at the fake back to Uncle Sam stories. Many of them have already visited the West and have located their homesteads or bought land. They argue that a new country which has never had a total crop failure in a quarter of a century is a good gamble.

DIGGING THE BIG DITCH.

The steam shovels stand on terraced levels and in fifty minutes load a train of eighteen flat cars, which are unloaded in fifteen minutes more amid a shower of dust. The line of cars is followed by "spreaders." All through the cut puffs of steam here and there indicate where the shovels are burrowing their way and pushing the work forward. Watching shovel 221, I stood on engine No. 298 when she was at work. Engineer Harrison, his hand on the lever, was pushing the cars up in due course as the steam shovels filled them, while the conductor, raising and lowering a flag, directed a "shove-up," so that even while loading it is sometimes necessary for an engineer to keep his hand on the throttle. One shovel accomplished probably as much work in a day as could be done by 600 men, and there is a great deal of rivalry among the operators to make the best record.

The record of steam shovel 223 for one hot day shows how the dirt flies on the isthmus. Three hundred and thirteen cars were loaded in 470 minutes. In the language of Larry O'Grady, this was "going some," almost an average of a car a minute, with eleven seconds grace, or a rate of a cubic yard of earth every seven seconds. A remark was made by a sad eyed man of unknown nationality, "It looks as though the dirt had wings, doesn't it?" Over 50,933 cubic yards of rock have been taken out in twenty-five working days by one shovel, and a completed tunnel through the cut is excavated within every month.—Joe Mitchell Chapple in National Magazine.

A FOREST GIANT.

Monster Tree Trunk That Rivals the Famous Fallen Monarch.

A rival of the giant tree, the Fallen Monarch, familiar in pictures with a stagecoach on top of its trunk, has been found on the slopes of Bald mountain, in northern Tulare county.

It is in a region little visited and was first noted by R. H. Gallagher, an old Yosemite stage driver, two years ago. When Gallagher tried to return to it he lost the trail and did not find the great tree again for months.

The great trunk lies in the forest, the lower two or three feet of it buried in the soil which has been accumulating for ages. It is believed that hundreds of years have passed since the great tree fell, and the fires of ages have rolled over it through the forest. Much of the bark has been burned away, yet originally it was from twenty to forty inches thick. The trunk now is more than 100 feet in circumference, and it is a hard climb to get on top of it.

Bald peak is midway between the Sequoia National park and the General Grant National park. Near by is Redwood mountain, on which there are said to be 10,000 giant trees. The region, which is northeast of Visalia, is reached by stage to Eshom valley, twenty-one miles, where Gallagher has a camp called Juanita camp.—Los Angeles Express.

German Acuteness.

The egg cups imported into India at one time all came from Great Britain. The Indian eggs are, however, very small, and the egg cups did not fit. A German traveler noticed this small item and got his firm to make smaller egg cups and export them there. All the trade is now in German hands. In Africa the scissors imported from Sheffield were found to be rather dangerous weapons to place in the hands of the natives, owing to their sharp points. The Solingen Steel works sent a lot of round pointed scissors out, which found favor, and now Germany has captured the whole market.—From "Germany of the Germans."

Saving the Edelweiss.

The edelweiss, responsible for so many deaths, is becoming rare. The plant when it is culled is not of particular beauty, but the fascination of picking it is in an inverse ratio. Natives of the poorer class gather the flower, and tourists buy it for the same reason as certain anglers buy trout. The Bavarian government is so alarmed at the threatened destruction of the mountain "orchid" that a law has been passed to penalize the gathering without a permit. The measure is somewhat drastic, for even a proprietor who wishes to gather the flower must first obtain a permit.—London Globe.

Bacteria.

Modern investigations as to the origin of diseases have brought the little organisms called bacteria into so much prominence that search has been made to ascertain whether they existed during the early geological periods. Not long since the fact was announced that Regnault had discovered bacteria in coal. Continuing his researches, he found evidence that bacteria were probably coeval with the first appearance of organic life on the earth. They attacked vegetable tissues as well as the bones and teeth of animals; but, as a rule, they belonged to species distinct from those of today.

A Romantic Career.

Caid Belton, the young English officer who, at the age of twenty-six, became commander in chief to Mulai Hafid and helped him win the throne of Morocco, has had a stranger than fiction career. At nineteen he received his commission for bravery in South Africa, soon after achieved his captaincy in Somaliland, entered Mulai Hafid's service in 1908, and now everybody in Morocco calls him "the kingmaker."

After a long series of tests German scientists seem to have disproved an old theory that resin is a beneficial ingredient in soaps, their decision being that the washing power of a soap decreases as the resin content increases.

Points For Mothers

What becomes of precocious children when they grow up? Nobody knows. It is a good thing that average gets hold of them or we would be a land overflowing with geniuses. There would be so many of them that common people would not be missed from the directory, says an exchange.

As a matter of fact, the men and women who are doing things when they are fifty years old are not the ones who were pointed out on children's day. Very often precocity is a flower that blooms early and withers early. Even the big men and women who stand out in history were commonplace children, while their precocious companions sleep in obscure graves. The most precocious thing George Washington did was to lay low the historic cherry tree, and this is more than duplicated each day by boys who never rise to dizzier pinnacles than school directors.

Too often the boy who stood at the head of the spelling class comes when he is forty years old to the boy who stood next to the end for a job. Congress has within its halls today men who didn't learn to read until twelve years of age. Life is not a dash and sprint, with the prize to the child who gets away from the starting line first, but is a day in day out Marathon, with the laurel to the one who keeps plugging along. More life meets are won by plugging than by sprinting.

So let the mother of the ordinary child up and clear her looks. Do not envy the precocious child of your neighbor. Rest secure in the knowledge that the precocious child across the street may be only a morning glory to dazzle for an hour, while your own child, with its glories yet unrevealed, may be a lily of the valley to gladden hearts for many days.

Overattention to Children.

Few mothers realize the risk of overcaution and overattention to their children after they are old enough to play and romp about. A child is happier with few and simple playthings than with a multitude of complicated toys. There is no such good fun or good training as making oneself useful in doing little things like work, and it is cruelty to deprive the child of this pleasure and stimulus. Let the brain and body be trained through hand, foot and eye. Give the boy a carpenter's bench; encourage the girls to do housework. Where possible let both boy and girl have a little garden patch, if only a few feet square, and the care of a few plants. A woman in her home, a man in his garden—this seems to be a fundamental type from which we cannot entirely depart without risk to body and mind. Cheerfulness, sincerity, industry, perseverance and unselfishness may be acquired by practice and constant repetition as much as the art of correct speaking or of playing the piano and are far more necessary to health.

In the Nursery.

Better than chairs are low, broad seats built in all around the wall of the room. The seat should be eight or nine inches high and from one to two feet broad and may be put up by a carpenter at slight expense. The children may slide all along these and draw their toys up beside them, and there will be less danger of bumped noses and bruised elbows from tipping over of the chairs. Little pillows with durable covers may be strewn about for small, sleepy heads or to make the seat less hard. Such a seat is best made of hard wood if the floor is hard wood; if not it should be made very smooth and varnished, so that there may be no danger of splinters.

The Value of Laughter.

A famous doctor once said: "Encourage your child to be merry and to laugh aloud. A good, hearty laugh expands the chest and makes the blood bound merrily along. Commend me to a good laugh—not to a little, sniggling laugh, but to one that will sound right through the house. It will not only do your child good, but will be a benefit to all who hear and be an important means of driving the blues away from a dwelling. Merriment is very catching and spreads in a remarkable manner, few being able to resist the contagion. A hearty laugh is delightful harmony—indeed, it is the best of all music."

Here's Good Advice.

Never give medicine to a baby without a doctor's orders.

Do not use devices for keeping baby's food warm.

Keep the food on ice until feeding time, then warm it and give immediately.

When the Baby Sleeps.

Do not permit a baby to sleep with its head under the bedclothes. Trained nurses who are supposed to know better are often responsible for this habit. They keep the head of an infant so carefully wrapped for fear of draft that the child becomes accustomed to muffling.

To facilitate the seating of patrons of moving picture theatres where there are no reserved seats without the use of ushers, a New York man has patented a system whereby an incandescent lamp remains lighted on the back of each seat as long as it remains unoccupied.

Milady's Mirror

Engraved faces are more often the result of habit than the marks of Time, that professional etcher that usually receives all the credit for feminine ugliness. Woman is not content with expressing herself in words. She must needs make little noses and funny faces to give completion to her ideas. If you wail about your lack of beauty—watch yourself for one short day. You will be surprised to find what wonderful things you will do with your own face. If countenances were not so substantially built they would sooner show the wear and tear imposed upon them.

Wrinkles and lines are indexes to one's life book. The fretter has a signboard on her forehead, and she advertises her profession of official worrier by growing box plaits between her eyes, by allowing her mouth to droop at the corners and by taking on the plaintive portrait of misery in which she really rejoices.

But the optimist, the individual of good cheer and laughter, sails serenely along the high seas of existence with a smooth, nicely ironed face which makes her remain so young that she never really outgrows her happy days of mud pies and pinafores.

Baldheads Will be Scarce When Parisian Sage is Better Known

It Keeps Women's Hair Soft and Glossy Says Elizabeth House

No man likes to look older than he is. Every woman on earth absolutely abhors such a condition.

You may be 30 in years, but if you are baldheaded or grey, people will surely take you to be many years older, and you will be helpless to prevent.

Dandruff is the root of all hair evils. If it were not for the little destructive germs working with a persistency worthy of a better cause, there would be no baldness.

It is guaranteed by J. V. Doyle to make hair grow and stop falling hair; to cure dandruff in two weeks; to stop itching of the scalp almost instantly.

Parisian Sage is the most invigorating, satisfying and pleasant hair dressing made; it makes the hair soft, luxuriant and handsome; it is especially praised by women who have beautiful hair. Parisian Sage is for sale by J. V. Doyle, at 50 cents a large bottle, or makers, Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, charges prepaid, from the Canadian Ont. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle.

"I have only used one bottle of Parisian Sage, and, of course, I cannot praise it as much as if I had used more, but I find it a good tonic for the hair.

"It keeps the hair soft and glossy, the scalp clean, and makes the hair grow long, and stops falling hair.

"I recommend it to any one as a good tonic."—Elizabeth House, Manchester, Conn.

The ...Veiled Lady...

this only go on forever!" Quietly bringing out the three old letters, and Jenks' mysterious missive, he laid them on the table before the dark-eyed beauty, who merrily asked for more work. "Miss Irene," the young soldier said, gravely, "I am going to take you now into my closest confidence." They were alone. The Doctor was on his afternoon round, and Mrs. Selfridge was busied with some errands of mercy. "Here are four short leters. I must have copies to send to my man at Detroit. No one must ever know they are in existence. Can I trust you? The lovely woman frankly met his gaze.

"Certainly, Mr. Gordon! I will do as you wish. You can trust me."

Gordon's face brightened. "They are the very keynote of this murder mystery. If you will kindly make the copies, I will take Jackson and send them on by express to Orton. He can get me a carriage. The papers are not long." He walked up and down the room in deep thought. His fair secretary unfolded the letters to arrange them for copying.

"Did you see poor Neill the day he called here?" he said, carelessly gazing out of the window. "It was his last on earth!" A deep sigh aroused him. Turning quickly, he sprang to Irene Hope's side. She had swooned, and in her hand was clutched the last fatal message of vengeance.

"My God! Irene!" Gordon called, and knelt beside her in alarm. Her eyes slowly opened! Gordon sprang to the bell.

"Don't please!" she feebly said. Don't call, or ring." She leaned her head back wearily. "Only a moment's dizziness I was startled I did not see that poor man as he went away! I am not very strong in my nerves."

"You must cease writing, then. You are very tired." Thus pleaded the anxious officer!—Irene Hope's answer was only to resolutely ebgin the transcribing of the papers.

"You can soon take away the copies and have your drive! It will do you good; I will then rest!" And bowing her head over the table Irene Hope knew, from Jack Gordon's ardent gaze, that an impetuous love was surging in his veins. He was silent and spellbound by her side.

"There!" said Irene simply. "Your copies are done. Will you compare them! Here are mine."

"Pray read the originals," said Jack burning to get away, and mail the documents. He was on the dangerline of rashness. Without a tremor, Irene Hope read the three letters!—A woman's love, despair, and shame breathed in every line of the old missives and a deadly hate in the last.

"Perfectly correct!" said Jack. "Now, we'll seal these copies, and if you will address them to Orton, I will thank you and now release you!—I fear I have tired you, Irene!" The familiar word dropped unconsciously from his lips. Their eyes met! The confidants were strangely silent. Gordon, rising hastily, laid the four original documents on his dressing table!—As Jackson announced the carriage, he said: "I shall now send these away, and, if I can, take a turn in the Park. But a cavalryman on wheels is a very strange sight!" He went away laughing.

Irene Hope sat quietly listening to his footfalls on the stair. A clang of the front door and a rattle of wheels announced his departure. The girl sprang to the window, and threw it up.

"Alone, at last!" she cried. "My God! I must hasten! It must be done. Yet how? how? I must think; think of all!" The cold air revived her! She gazed around the room. Doctor Selfridge's varied experimental curiosities occupied a curtained alcove near Gordon's desk. The old southern furniture was richly draped. Five minutes ticked away on the great Hall clock, while Irene Hope peered in every nook and corner of the room. Even Selfridge's mysterious gallipots and chemicals did not escape her scrutiny. Suddenly she rose and left the room with a triumphant smile. Her face was ashen pale, but her step was as measured as that of the duellist a la barriere.

When Jack Gordon returned from his hour's ride in Forest Park, he rubbed his eyes in amazement. Fire engines were clustered around the house, and snaky lines of rubber hose wound over the lawns. Two stalwart policemen, at the front door, were driving away a motley crowd. The smell of smoke and general confusion announced an interrupted conflagration. Forcing his way in the house, despite the officer's protest, Gordon ran against Doctor Selfridge, who was bustling about, helping to clear out the throng of volunteers and idlers.

"What's the matter!" Jack cried, anxiously.

"All right now, Gordon! We've been nearly burned out. Go upstairs in the front rooms; we will be quieted soon. I'll come and see you. Don't stay here and get wet! It will lay you up for a month, if you do!" Jackson aided his master upstairs. A bevy of curious servants was peering into Gordon's room. It was only a blackened ruin. Mechanically he strode to the front rooms where Mrs. Selfridge, fluttered and excited, was being tenderly cared for by several neighborly friends.

After a word, Gordon, with a sudden pang, called, "Where's Irene?" His eager voice betrayed a new-found interest in the beautiful orphan.

"She is in her room with a nurse!" She risked her life trying to extinguish this awful fire," Mrs. Selfridge feebly rejoined.

"Is she badly injured?" Jack was excited beyond reason.

"No! Lieutenant! only frightened and bewildered. She was alone in the house when this dreadful thing happened. Gordon was in a dream. "Thank God! she is safe!" he said.

In ten minutes Dr. Selfridge gave Gordon the simple story. Miss Irene, resting in her room, was awakened by clouds of smoke, and rushing to Gordon's room, found the interior blazing. The servants, attracted by her screams, found her half-fainting at the door.

"What caused it?" Gordon demanded.

"The Chief thinks it was caused by my chemicals bursting, or some such matters falling from the shelves. It may have been the furnace heat; or some defect of flue. We'll be all right to-morrow, Gordon! I am insured. But your loss I deeply regret. No more laboratory stores will endanger my residence! It's a lesson to me!"

A sudden thought struck Gordon. "Were any of my papers and things saved?" he anxiously questioned.

"Very little," the Doctor replied, with great concern. "The curtains burned and fell on your desk and tables, and I fear most of your belongings are ruined."

The soldier strode silently to his room. A ladder still rested on the open window, whose shattered sash had yielded to the firemen's axes. A mass of quenched cinders and debris covered the floor. In a corner were heaped the remains of his trunks and kit. He gazed blankly at the scene of devastation. Looking out of the window he saw, scattered on the lawn, the burned fragments of tables, chairs and desk. A sudden thought caused him to exclaim in bitterness: "Fool! Fool that I am! Those letters are gone forever! It is the hand of fate! Why did I not take them? I left them on that table. Fool and blind!"

Three days later, Jack, still cursing his carelessness, learned from Irene Hope the whole story. Lying pale and wearied on a divan in the drawing-room, she strove to comfort him.

"When I reached the room, the heat had burst the door open. The table, hangings and loose articles were in a blaze. I was paralyzed with fear."

"Thank God! you were not hurt Irene!" the soldier cried. "I don't mind my own loss," Gordon moaned, "but those fatal papers are gone forever! I have the copies! Alas! they are almost useless now. We must be silent in the matter! It is our secret is it not?" Gordon, taking the girl's slender hand in his, gazed tenderly in her eyes, as she softly said:

"Yes! it is a sad story. I am so sorry for your loss! If you had only taken them with you!"

Gordon dared not write to Orton the facts of the untimely accident. "He may yet get on the right trail. I won't discourage him. But how would he face Jenks, the watchful? All the valuable clues were gone forever!" Gordon was irritated almost to madness. "I care not for anything but the lost letetrs, Irene!" he said, unfolding to her his sorrows. "I shall feel that my carelessness has made the impossible Poor Neill shall not, must not go unavenged."

They were alone. His bitter words startled the girl. She laid her hand softly on his arm. "Dismiss this brooding over your loss! Let the dead rest." Her eyes were filled with a strange fire. "This awful thing comes between us always!" she murmured. "You will soon go away; I am not willing to share these gloomy secrets further."

"I will let the dead rest, but I swear to follow the living, to the death, but I must not speak of this to you again, Irene!" cried the officer in remorse for his thoughtlessness.

In vain he spoke, for the girl, here eyes filling with sudden tears, had hastily left the room. When Jack saw his idol again, it was at the family table. He demeanor was unruffled, but in her eyes was an unspoken reproach which haunted Gordon. "I will try and bring her happiness, please God! I will make her mine yet!" he thought. And so on towards the unread future these two hearts drifted, side by side, on the stream of life.

"Mr. Horace Jenks! Sah!" Jackson announced, as Gordon finished his now somewhat decorative toilet, next day. The soldier was in high good humor. He airily waved a kiss to the picture of Irene which, by her generosity, replaced the one burned in him room. Gordon's den was necessarily changed while the rehabilitation of the mansion went slowly on. A ground-floor suite was the present "New Headquarters of the Army of Occupation." Jack was delighted with the move. Irene Hope's adjoining music-rooms not only enabled him to hear her voice, now so dear to him, lifted in soaring melody, but he heard even the faintest rustle of her robes as she moved, a resultant Diana and Venus, mind and matter most charmingly combined.

There was the light of trimph in the gambler's eye!—In deference to Gordon he affected a cheerfully sombre toi'et, giving him an air of unusual elegance. "Pretty girl, by Jove!" he murmured, as he noted Irene's picture. "Is she singing now?" The politeness of Jenks' profession forbade query on his part. "Lieutenant!" said Jenks, "I am on the eve of departure. I have something for you, which is an unexpected treasure is this case. Look at that!" He laid on the table a woman's glove; black kid and and of a cut and delicacy inviting an ideal sentiment.

Jack twirled it in his fingers. There was a gaint suggestion of a recondite perfume. "Well, Mr. Jenks!" he said with some impatience, throwing down the glove. He felt a certain uneasy resistance to the inexorable "Horace Jenks."

The gambler calmly proceeded: "You see that glove?" Gordon nodded. "Well! the woman who wore that glove killed Neill!" There was a crash in the adjoining room, where Miss Irene was closing her vocal exercises! "What a face," said Jenks, gazing at the picture. "It is the singer, surely."

"Excuse me for a moment!" said Jack. Gordon's tete-a-tete was limited to a peep at a smiling face!

"All my music fell down! Don't mind, Mr. Gordon; I will pick it up! Nay, I insist!" And Jack returned to his energetic colleague.

"Now, Lieutenant!" said Jenks resolutely, "I have found the person who ran the elevator the night when Neill

WILFULLY MURDERED

An Unknown Man Had Wire Wrapped About Body.

Coroner Pickering, After Verdict Was Found by His Jury In Toronto, Said Renewed Efforts Should Be Made by Police to Secure Further Evidence—Man Could Never Have Tied the Wire on Himself.

Toronto, Sept. 1.—That the man whose body was found in the bay at the foot of Bathurst street on August 20 was wilfully murdered was the conclusion arrived at by the coroner's jury which investigated the circumstances at an adjourned hearing last night. Constable Young, who found the body, repeated his evidence submitted at the first hearing, to the effect that a wire had been found wrapped about the body in such a manner that it could not possibly have been tied by the deceased himself. The wire was looped in front and at the back, and might, he said, have held two stones. One of the loops was scratched as if it had been drawn against a stone.

Dr. Silverthorne, who performed the post-mortem, said there were no marks on the body of any kind, and all the organs were in a healthy condition. The lungs were of normal size, while if the man had drowned they would in all probability have been bloated. In the doctor's opinion the body had been in the water from one to two weeks.

Coroner Pickering intimated that he agreed with the verdict, and suggested that renewed effort should be made to secure further evidence.

Two Children Burned to Death.

Byng Inlet, Sept. 1.—North Byng Inlet, a French settlement, was the scene of a shocking fatality yesterday afternoon, when two children, six and four years old, the former the son of John Longlade, and the latter the daughter of George Woods, were burned to death. The youngsters were playing in an old, unused cowshed, and set fire to the building in some way unknown. Their presence in the burning shed was not known until after thee fire had spent itself and their charred remains were discovered. The father of one victim watched the fire with his neighbors, unaware that his child was being incinerated. The others were off berry-picking.

Bright Day for Church.

Montreal, Sept. 1.—Manager Rumeau, the famous Bishop of Angers, France, who arrived here yesterday, has completely upset all previous theories as regards the position of the church since the abolition of the concordat. His lordship says that the Catholic Church has made more real progress in France since the separation than she had done for a hundred years before and the clergy and people have been put upon their mettle. Everything goes to show that it was a bright day for Rome when the French Government gave back what the Bishop of Angers calls their liberty and drove them to self-support.

An Echo of the Big Strike.

Brockville, Sept. 1.—Yesterday Detective J. J. Letoyle of the Thiel Agency placed under arrest Wesley Place, a young man, who is charged with impeding an officer in the discharge of his duty at the G.T.R. station on the night of July 22, when the strike riots took place at the G.T.R. station.

The detective is also investigating the derailment of the Mocassin Express on Saturday, July 23. More arrests are likely to take place.

Struck a Gusher.

St. Thomas, Sept. 1.—The Dominion Gas Co. of Hamilton, which has been drilling for oil and gas at Vienna, near Port Burwell, all summer, struck a tremendous gusher of gas at nine a.m. yesterday. From the six-inch hole it is estimated that a flow of three million feet of gas per hour is issuing. The flow is under control. The well is 1,320 feet deep. It will be piped to Tillsonburg and surrounding points.

Is Your Loaf Like This?

IF your flour is of the right quality, it ought to produce uniformly good bread. When the loaf comes out of the oven it ought to be appetizing and inviting in appearance. The crust should be crisp, tender and sweet as a nut. The pores of the bread should be regular showing uniform expansion by the yeast and every loaf should be light, plump and should expand over the top of the pan. Bread made from Ogilvie's always comes up to the highest standard of excellence when made right. It is always uniform and good to look at as well as good to eat.

Summer and winter, day after day, month after month, "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" is milled by exactly the same process from exactly the same standard uniform grade of the best Red Fyfe wheat. And this uniformity is guaranteed by rigid safeguarding tests at the mills before the flour is shipped out.

BOXES FOR BRIDE'S CAKE.

The Heart Shape Design a Popular Selection.

The statement that it is not what is done, but how it is done, that counts verges on the trite, but it is particularly applicable in the little things that contribute toward a pleasant time for wedding guests.

A wedding cake is no longer kept for weeks and weeks. It is cut into little pieces and sent or presented to the guests and friends of the happy pair. Just how to give this in an attractive form is sometimes a question that clamors for its answer in the rush of the last few days.

Boxes can now be purchased at stationery departments of any large store, and the accessories are within the reach of the majority of brides.

There is a charming little circular box that looks like a miniature wedding cake. When tied with white ribbon or with silken cords that reflect the color scheme of the decorations it is well worth having. The ends of the bow are gathered into the tops of tiny silver bells.

Perhaps the heart shaped box of white is more appropriate. This should hold a heart shaped piece of cake, and the top of the box should be tied down with broad ribbon, fastened under a rosette.

Square forms are always good. The addition of a card with the best wishes of the bride and bridegroom is a little personal touch that is well worth while. Through the knot of ribbon a spray of asparagus fern can be slipped. It lasts for weeks and gives the freshness that is desirable, especially for boxes that are to be sent away through the mail.

To the friends who are present there can easily be given a spray of leaves with a blossom from the decoration of the table or rooms. Tied with a gold or silver cord, a long, narrow box will hold a fresh sprig of flowers. People like to carry with them some part of the festivities. The mania for souvenirs still prevails.

Of course the custom of having the cake cut by the bride herself can easily be observed, for during the reception following the small pieces can be boxed and tied by a special committee of friends and distributed to the guests before their departure.

As to the dreams that may come when the fair recipients sleep with the bride's cake beneath their pillows, who can tell whether they can vie with the pleasure of receiving it in so charming a form?

Tasty Summer Dishes.

It is difficult to find a more tasty entree for a summer dinner than baked tomatoes served on the plate with the meat or in individual ramekins. A little cold boiled tongue or ham mixed with the breadcrumbs filling the tomatoes is a tasty addition. Plenty of butter should be used in seasoning cooked tomatoes of any kind, the butter neutralizing the acid of the vegetable. For the benefit of persons who have never stuffed and baked tomatoes it might be said that a slice is taken from the top of round, apple shaped tomatoes and the pulp is removed and mixed with breadcrumbs, rice or macaroni with or without a little minced meat and with or without onion juice and minced parsley. Melted butter should be used to moisten the crumbs, rice or macaroni. The tomatoes should be put into a baking dish and be baked in a hot oven about fifteen minutes or until they are tender and thoroughly heated through.

Electricity For Stains.

There seems to be no limit to the uses to which electricity can be put in the household.

The scientists are learning to harness it up into a first rate maid of all work and making it do everything, from washing the clothes to rocking the cradle, or they would if they had cradles in these up to date households.

But one of the newest uses to which electricity has been put is that of a speedy spot remover.

A technical magazine says that a new electrolytic bleaching apparatus has been invented which enables a woman to remove within two or three minutes any accidental stains from articles such as tablecloths, lace, embroidery work, etc. Tea, coffee, wine, fruit, ink of any color, may all be effectively and inexpensively removed within a few minutes, and above all, the electrolytic method does not destroy the fabric of the article treated.

Engineer's Mistake But Not His Fault.

ENGINEER OF THE SPECIAL WAS NOT FAMILIAR WITH THE SEMAPHORES — ESCAPING STEAM OBSTRUCTER HIS VIEW — INNOCENT OF ANY CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE.

— We, the jury empanelled to enquire into and touching the death of Peter Young, engineer, and Edward Stanley Brewer, car inspector, in employ of Grand Trunk Railway, came to their deaths in yards of G. T. R. at Belleville on August 27, 1910, due to a collision between a light engine in charge of Engineer Peter Young, and an emigrant special, in charge of Engineer R. Weir.

We also find from the evidence and plans submitted to us that the accident was caused by Engineer R. Weir, of emigrant special not being as familiar with the location of semaphores at the point where accident occurred, as he should have been. Also that his view of said semaphores was pracally obscured by escaping steam from passing locomotives, said steam misleading him in his judgment of the distance, and we exonerate Engineer R. Weir from any criminal negligence.

Such was the verdict rendered by the jury at the adjourned inquest held and concluded last evening to enquire into the circumstances whereby Peter Young and Edward S Brewer met their death at the G. T. R. station on Saturday morning last. During the proceedings the police court room was filled with interested spectators and witnesses. Dr. Yeomans, Coroner presided.

James Hatton, yardmaster, being sworn said:—A plan produced was approximately correct showing the spot where the collision occurred. The east semaphore was for a day out of order but it had been reported O. K on Saturday, the day the accident occurred. The east semaphore, which was out of order on Friday, was about three quarters of a mile east of where the collision occurred. He was home when the accident took place. If a danger signal is set it would be the duty of the engineer to stop his train or at least proceed very slowly. From the place where the collision occurred to the semaphore it was about 20 feet. On Friday evening, the 26th inst., the order that the east semaphore was out of repair was lifted which indicated that the semaphore was in a proper state of repairs. On Friday notices were sent to all westbound trains that the semaphore was out of order.

In answer to a question from Dr. Yeomans, Mr. Hatton said that he had been informed that at least two men had been discharged here for looseness in giving signals from the semaphores.

Wm. Haslip, night watchman, sworn said his duties were to oversee all workings in the yard, in regard to the moving of freight. It was the switchman's duty to attend to the signals. He was in the yard the morning the accident happened, about a quarter mile east. When the special train passed witness he would judge that it was travelling about 20 miles an hour. The train did not slow up as far as he could see. He had seen trains run by the semaphore when they should not have done so and he had reported same.

In answer to a question Haslip said the home semaphore was set against the train. He (witness) could not see the semaphore about half a mile away He thought the engineer should have seen the semaphore. The duty of an engineer would be to stop in the yard if he could not see the semaphores

When Engineer R. Weir was called Mr. E. G. Porter, K. C., M. P., arose on his behalf and, addressing the Coroner, claimed the benefit of the statutes which govern such cases. Whilst Mr. Weir was perfectly willing to give his evidence he (Mr. Porter) wanted that protection for him which was granted by law, namely, that anything he might say would not be evidence against him.

Dr. Yeomans, coroner, said such would be granted and Mr. Weir might not, if he so desired, give evidence.

Mr. Weir said he was willing to testify and did so, giving details in a clear and straightforward manner. After being sworn he said he was a G T. R. engineer residing at Brockville. He had been an engineer since November 4th, 1907. He had run into Belleville quite often during the past year. On Saturday last he was engineer on a special westbound train. The train came from Napanee to Belleville in about 25 minutes. The eastern semaphore was set about half way. When the train entered the yard it had slowed down considerably, running about 9 or 10 miles an hour. He passed that semaphore on Saturday morning because he received a hand signal to proceed. He did not stop at the home semaphore, but was stopped when he collided with the light engine. Witness knew that there were two semaphores he had to look out for. He did not stop at the home semaphore because he was deceived by two causes, one was that there are two semaphores in close proximity to each other, and the other cause was escaping steam from an engine. When he struck the light engine his train was running about 6 to 8 miles an hour. The rails were wet that morning, but that did not effect the train. When he saw that he was on the wrong track and a collision was liable to occur he applied the brakes. His regular run was in the 5th district, from Brockville to Montreal. He had once before brought a passenger train through to Belleville.

To Mr. Porter — The steam from an engine on the east track was such as to obstruct his view of the semaphore. He was about 15 or 20 yards away from the light engine when he saw it. He immediately applied the emergency brake but it did not stop the train. This was the first accident that he ever had. The engine he was driving was one of the largest in use on the Grand Trunk Railway System. The engine struck was of a small type. Young's engine was struck on the cross over switch. The run from Napanee to Belleville in 25 minutes witness thought was not an unusually fast run

This concluded the evidence and the Coroner briefly addressed the jury reviewing some of the evidence which had been submitted in the case.

The jury were deliberating upon their verdict for over an hour before presenting the same, which was as recorded above.

Greaves Objected to Being Locked Up.

Albert Greaves, a well known character about the city was last evening arrested for being drunk and evidently did not relish the idea of being locked up as he made an attempt to escape. He was somewhat under the influence of liquor when he was brought into the police station at about six o'clock, and was searched before being placed in the cells. The front door of the police station was open, and as the officer stepped into the Chief's office to procure the cell keys, Greaves made a break for liberty. He had not proceeded far when he was again apprehended and placed behind the bars. In addition to the charge of drunkenness he was also charged with attempting to escape after being placed under arrest.

Magistrate Masson this morning felt inclined to give Greaves a term in jail, but as the accused pleaded for liberty a fine of $5 or in default 10 days in jail was imposed. The accused was given 10 days in which to pay the fine.

It is confidently expected that some very pretty displays will be made. The B. H. C. will give prizes.

Russians For Canada.

PROPOSED TO HAVE THEM SETTLE ON THE WESTERN PRAIRES.

With a scheme for immigration of Russians, who will settle on the prairie land of Canada after giving a guarantee that they will farm and not drift into cities to flood the labor market, Mr. Perelstreus arriveed in Vancouver from Honolulu via Mexico. He will interview government and railroad officials before returning to Honolulu on the Secalaidia. Mr. Perelstreus comes with letters of recommendation from Government Frere, of the territory of Hawaii, and other officials.

He has been a resident of Hawaii for the past year, having been in charge of the immigration of Russia settlers and laborers. He arranged for 2,500 Russians to go to the Hawaii Islands. He says: "The people I am prepared to bring to Canada are good farmers, very quickly accept new ideas and methods, and will spend their money here, for it is in Canada they make their homes. In this respect they differ from Asiatics, who will send the money they earn out of the country. I want to emphasize the fact that my people will not crowd the labor market and we don't want them to be in the cities, and there is little fear that they will."

PREMIER AT LETHBRIDGE.

He Receives Congratulations From American Farmers.

Lethbridge, Sept. 1.—Leaving the Pacific coast province, Sir Wilfrid Laurier emerged yesterday morning through the Crow's Nest Pass into the fields of Southern Alberta, passing by the way the town of Frank, made famous by the rock slide of two years ago and rich coal deposits contiguous to the Crow's Nest district. Night was spent at the summit of the pass, and the first stop in the morning was at MacLeod, where a reception was tendered the Premier, who spoke briefly. Hon. F. Oliver, Minister of the Interior, stated that satisfactory progress was being made towards the settlement of the Indian reserve question, in which MacLeod is interested.

Arriving at Lethbridge at 2 o'clock, Sir Wilfrid and party were received by a large crowd and an escort of mounted police. Two thousand people attending the open air meeting in the afternoon.

In an address presented to Sir Wilfrid by the "American residents of Southern Alberta," they were gratified to observe that the Liberal Government "has anticipated the need of the future. We wish to congratulate you upon your safeguarding the future, by the foundations of a Canadian navy."

The Premier thought that, if Lethbridge shipped coal to Montana, that it would be a good argument for reciprocity. At the time the reciprocity treaty was abrogated, the claim was that it was solely of advantage to Canada. "I am not prepared to agree with that," added the Premier.

Sir Wilfrid discussed the preference at length, stating that it would remain a fixed part of Canada's fiscal policy, and answered criticisms that Canada should enact something in return, by observing "the only way in which the British Empire can be maintained in the lead is for each part to develop according to its own necessities."

Replying to the address from the Americans, Sir Wilfrid told his hearers that Canada was establishing a navy because "We think it is the duty of Canada to undertake her own share of the defence of the British Empire."

E. F. Pardee spoke in place of Hon. G. P. Graham, who has lost his voice.

Children's Day at the Fair.

Toronto, Sept. 1.—Attendance returns were not complete last night, but it was estimated that from 50,000 to 55,000 children and their elders, but mostly kiddies, passed through the gates, comparing with 45,000 last year, and this despite the heavy rain of the morning and the soggy, muddy condition of the grounds all day. The attendance for the grandstand show at night appeared to be considerably larger also. Not only was the stand with its 17,000 chairs filled, but the lawn in front held probably 8,000 more. However, there will be another children's day—five cents admission —the closing Saturday.

It was a busy day at the police station, as is usual on Children's Day. When 50,000 children are wandering over the grounds, some are bound to get lost. All afternoon and evening little strayaways were gathered in by bluecoats and found a haven at headquarters until anxious parents arrived. All told, about fifty were cared for.

There were but three arrests. One offender had imbibed freely of potent beverages and a brace of vagrants were gathered into the net.

Queen's Own Doing Good Work.

London, Sept. 1.—The criticism of the Queen's Own Rifles is all cordial, and the critics say they compare favorably with the regulars in physique and drill. Although they are not perfect, they are very good, they say, and individual appreciation of the work and the initiative displayed by the section commanders promises well for the manoeuvering with the British troops. Gen. Lawson at the conclusion of yesterday morning's drill was quite satisfied with both. The promised performance of the Canadians in the eight-mile march was performed in crisp style.

Londoners want the regiment to march through the city, to be followed by the Lord Mayor's reception.

Dredge at Fort William.

Ottawa, Sept. 1.—James Whalen, director of the Great Lakes Dredging Co., who has been here in connection with the supervision of dredging operations at Fort William, the appropriation having been exhausted, says it has been arranged that work will continue until the Cabinet Council has had an opportunity to meet and consider the matter. It is claimed that the dredging is of such urgency that the Government would be justified in continuing the work for the rest of the season. Hon. Mr. Pugsley will not do this, however, without the consent of the other members of the Cabinet.

Government Will Control Telegraphs.

Albany, N.Y., Sept. 1—Under an act passed by the last Legislature, the public service commission, second district, to-day will assume jurisdiction over the operations of telephone and telegraph companies operating in New York State. All telephone companies, corporations, associations, partnerships or persons, owning or operating any telephone line in the state for profit, whose property is valued at over $10,000, will come under the supervision of the commission. All telegraph companies, however, are within the jurisdiction of the commission.

Longest Over-Water Flight

Cleveland, Sept. 1.—Glenn H. Curtiss yesterday established a new world's record for aeroplane flying, when he flew from Euclid Beach, nine miles east of Cleveland, to Cedar Point, 60 miles, airline, in one hour, 19 minutes. It is reported as the longest over-water flight on record.

Divided In the Grave.

Toronto, Sept. 1.—The funeral of Gustav Merkt, who killed himself after murdering his wife, took place yesterday to Buffalo. The remains of Mrs. Merkt were taken to New York City, the family accompany them.

A new machine separates the whites and yolks of opened eggs by allowing the former to pass through a sieve and automatically ejects bad eggs, which will not separate, their weight tripping a tray.

TO HAVE SEA SCOUTS

Baden-Powell Is Looking For a Ship as Training School.

In Speech at Canadian Club, Toronto, He Says He Has Had One Offered in Vancouver and One In Victoria —Now He Wants Quarters Afloat For Lads on Great Lakes—Tells of System of Training Boys.

Toronto, Sept. 1.—That Canada, with its lakes and waterways, is well adapted for the launching of a sea scouts organization, was a statement by Gen. Baden-Powell at the Canadian Club yesterday who drew attention to the start made on the Pacific coast and to the establishing of the Canadian navy as giving a special incentive.

It was, as J. F. McKay, president of the Canadian Club, remarked, a memorable event. The guest of honor sat between Mr. McKay and President J. Castell Hopkins of the Empire Club, and the 600 persons who crowded the banquet hall were well representative of the two organizations.

"B.-P." was greeted with a great volume of cheers. He had come to Canada, he said, with a fad and had found that it was received as something of value. From the way in which the movement was extending, he hoped it would be of value to the whole Empire. He was merely offering a suggestion as to training boys. It all depended on how it was taken up in each centre.

He looked at it from a peace point of view. The aim was to cultivate the principles which actuated the frontiersman, who had promoted civilization under exceptionally difficult circumstances. These men were full of resource, hope and pluck. Men who did this work because it was their duty were the very best type of the race, and it was this type which was held up to the lads as an ideal, whatever their religion or nationality.

In the old country, with its great cities teeming with lads, such a work seemed very desirable. The boys could learn the "three R's," but not character in the schools. A man did not succeed from what he learned at school, but from the character he developed in himself. A school for character seemed needed in the old country. In Canada it was different. This country was not suffering from the same disease of unemployedness and unemployableness. The Canadian boys were fine, independent lads.

"B.-P." drew applause when he explained how the plan of offering badges for proficiency in various branches of handicraft stimulated boyish ambition. There were 33 different kinds of badges covering useful trades. The boys were not taught, but given incentive to secure training elsewhere, so that they could pass the examinations. Probably the boy would find one or other occupation most suitable and make that his life's work, "and not be absolutely helpless and hopeless like so many wasters at home to-day." One qualification was a bank account. While only a shilling was required, the boy had broken the ice and had his bank book.

Speaking of the latitude given scoutmasters resulting in varied activities, including sea scouting and mission work, "B.-P." declared:

"With Canada's great lakes and rivers it is quite possible to raise a large force of sea scouts, and, in view of the navy, it may be useful in time to come." All that was needed was a few ships or hulks to serve as training quarters or clubs. In Vancouver a gentleman had offered a ship, and he understood it was the same in Victoria. A few more only were needed to start the sea scouts movement, and he hoped his hearers would give encouragement where they found it possible and that "the whole boyhood of Canada would be made into a solid block of good citizens."

Accompanied to the depot by prominent citizens and a body of boy scouts, the scoutmaster took the train in the evening for Ottawa.

Farmer Testifies to Distance Torpedo Was From G.T.R. Wreck.

Durand, Mich., Sept. 1.—The inquest into the recent Grand Trunk wreck here, in which eight lives were lost, was nearly two hours late beginning, owing to a conference between the members of the Michigan State Railroad Commission and Attorneys representing the Grand Trunk.

When the jurors finally got together in the diminutive town hall there was little room left for spectators, but fifty of these managed to squeeze in.

Coroner Hatchell announced that thirty witnesses were on hand to testify, but less than half of these had been heard when adjournment was taken last night until Sept. 7.

The most important witness was Alexander McAfee, a farmer of Vernon Township, whose home is less than one mile from where the wreck occurred. He had heard the torpedo explode as train No. 4 rushed down towards No. 14, the train ahead, and almost the same instant came the crush of the collisions. There could not have been more than a couple of seconds' time elapse between the two he declared.

This evidence is considered most important, fixing, as it does beyond all doubt, the fact that the track torpedo had not been placed half a mile in rear of No. 14, as the railway company has all along declared was the case.

Twenty minutes after the trains came together, McAfee swore, he had dressed and reached the scene in his automobile. By this time the Pullman, a mass of flames, and although the bodies of several of the victims could be distinctly seen inside, McAfee asserts the trainmen then near by made no attempt to rescue them.

From the line of action being pursued by the railway company, it is apparent they will endeavor to show Engineer Spencer of No. 4 is to blame for the collision, and already they are offering the press access to what are declared to be the findings of the secret railway investigation held at Battle Creek last week.

The argument advanced in favor of a new phonograph which has its records in the form of endless belts is that it is possible to provide much longer selections than by the older methods.

FRIEND OF THE HORSES

LONDON POLICEMAN HAS CONVICTED 700 CRUEL DRIVERS.

Constable Valentine Perry, Who Has Just Retired After Twenty-Two Years of Work in Behalf of Ill-Treated Animals, Tells Interviewer of Some of the Clever Ruses He He Met In His Career on Force.

When Police-constable Valentine Perry, a short time ago, retired on a pension from the City of London force after twenty-two years' service, he possessed a record of which any man might be proud.

Since 1888, when he came to London from Great Malvern, aged, decrepit, and ill-treated horses have been Constable Perry's special care. His lynx eye spotted no fewer than 700 cruel drivers and owners, whom he promptly marched to the police-station or proceeded against by summons.

And between them, these 700 torturers of dumb beasts paid over $30,000 in fines and costs, whilst others languished in prison cells.

Meanwhile Constable Perry went on, looking for more offenders. His bag grew, and his fame spread far beyond the seas. From several of our colonies he received congratulatory messages on the relentless campaign he was waging, and frequently these epistles were accompanied by something more substantial than a mere compliment. In the course of time, one section of the community knew him as "The Horses' Friend," and another as "Val, the Terror!" It was this latter section, composed of habitually cruel drivers and carmen, who used to make a detour of two or three miles to avoid the spot where Perry was on duty.

So much the retired officer told a reporter whom he regaled with some excellent stories of twenty-two years' prevention and punishment to the friend of man. Here are a few, taken at random from Constable Perry's apparently inexhaustible stock.

It was on Tower Bridge one morning that Perry espied approaching a poor old crock of a horse, whose driver apparently noticed the arm of the law at the same moment. Without appearing to do so the officer kept keen observation, and when stopped tears were coursing down the driver's cheeks. He pleaded he was a poor man, that that was the first morning's work he had done for some years, and that he would rather die than be cruel to a horse. And it was not until Perry broke into loud laughter, and pointed to his pocket that the man discovered his artful ruse of producing tears with an onion had been detected. Despite his protestations of poverty, he was proved to be the joint owner, with his uncle, of a farm in the country.

Another man whom Perry charged tried a piece of bluff, calculated to strike terror into the heart of any officer.

"Don't you go near that there hoss, sir," he begged. "It takes six men to put 'im in the shafts, an' 'e's so smart an' sharp that 'e'll kick a gnat's eye out!"

But even this was hardly so far-fetched as the excuse of another driver Perry stopped. Taking the officer on one side, the man confidentially whispered: "Look 'ere, governor! This 'ere hoss 'as more than enough to eat, but trade 'as bin so brisk lately that 'e ain't 'ad time to eat it. 'E's bin workin' overtime!"

"The most fiendish case of cruelty I remember," went on "The Horses' Friend," "was when I stopped a lame horse, and removed from its hind foot an iron bolt four and a half inches long, and half an inch in circumference. This torture was inflicted so as to counteract in the other hoof the lameness due to a diseased hip-joint. I never more enjoyed seeing the maximum penalty imposed than I did in this case.

"I wonder if any of my readers have seen a horse cry? I have. I saw a man on Tower Bridge strike his horse two terrible blows with his fist on the nose. I rushed up, and found the animal in tears. When the man was heavily fined at the police court, the magistrate regretted that someone was not near enough to punch the man's nose as hard as he had punched his horse's. Perhaps someone had.

"Horses do some very human things. When I was standing at the door of the Minories police station, on the lookout for cases, two poor, overladen animals came along, and on arriving opposite me, they both went down on their knees, and refused to move until I had taken the driver into custody.

"Then, again, some amazingly ingenious excuses have been made by men I have stopped to induce me to let them go. One horse had a bad wound on the nose, but when the driver told me it was caused through the animal poking his nose into his pocket in search of sugar and so rubbing the skin off, I thought it a bit thick.

"Yes," concluded "The Horses' Friend," "cruel drivers are often clever romancers, but I must award the palm to the one whose horse was so weak that it actually staggered, and who told me when I stopped him that the animal was in the habit of having half a gallon of ale with its dinner, but that owing to the hot weather it had had a gallon on this particular day, and got tipsy!"

The Stationer.

"Stationery" has etymologically as much to do with standing as has "stationary." The original stationers, or stationarii, were so called because they sold their books upon stalls or "stations"—in London round about old St. Paul's Cathedral, in some cases against the walls of the cathedral itself. This is one of many trades the names of which have no direct allusion to the commodities sold. "Grocers," for instance, were so called either because they sold "en gros," wholesale, or because they were "engrossers," monopolizers. — London Chronicle.

TALES OF RAZORBACKS.

How Hogs of This Breed Got Down a Steep Hill.

The group on the porch was talking about razorback hogs, and the storekeeper was telling a story.

"There was a feller travelin' through here," he said. "He was a stranger in these parts. One day he come across a bunch o' hawgs that had big slits in their ears. He figgered at them slits. They was too big fer brands. What else could they be? After a bit a native come down the trail. 'Jess lookin' at them hawgs,' said the stranger. 'You was,' says the native. 'D'ye min' tellin' me what them big slits in their ears is fer?' said the stranger. 'Not at all,' says the native. 'Have you noticed these hills?' 'What d'ye mean?' 'Noticed how steep they is?' 'Yes, I have.' 'Waal,' says the native, 'that's it. We have to put them slits in the hawgs' ears so they kin stick their hind legs through 'em an' rough lock themselves down these hills to keep from killin' themselves.'"

There was a salvo of very hearty outdoor laughter at this, and Mr. Antwine stirred behind his newspaper.

"That remin's me of one they use to tell down on the Arkansas line," he said. "There was a feller goin' through there too. He saw a drove o' razorbacks carryin' on mighty queer. There was about twenty o' 'em, an' they acted like they was crazy. They would run fust to one tree an' then to another, tryin' to climb it. Then they would spin aroun' on their noses, crack their tails an' squeal in the most plaintive way you ever heard. The traveler watched them hawgs fer fifteen minutes, an' the more he saw o' 'em the more they fuzzled him. Finally he went on through the woods till he come to a house. There was a man out in front. He was baskin' in the sun. 'Is them your hawgs up there in the hills?' the stranger asked. 'Yep,' says the native. At that the traveler stepped up an' looked his man in the eye. 'Say,' he said, 'what in the Sam Hill's the matter with them hawgs?' The native kin' o' half smiled. 'They does act queer, don't they?' he says. 'I should say they does.' 'Waal, it's this a-way,' said the native. 'We had a hard winter in here this time, an' there was no feed in the hills fer them hawgs. I had to let 'em have corn. Along late in the winter I tuk such a bad col' I couldn't holler pig-ooeey any more. I had to call 'em up by bittin' the corncrib with a ax handle, an' now,' he says, lookin' back up the hill, 'them dern woodpeckers is settin' 'em crazy.'"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Passing It On.

The clerk filled out the marriage license and handed it over.

"Thank you," said the young man.

"Hold on! That's $2."

"Two dollars!"

"Yes. Did you suppose we gave those things away?"

"I certainly did. Charging a man $2 for a sheet of paper that didn't cost the county more than a nickel at the outside is robbery. Have I got to pay it?"

"You'll pay it or you'll hand back that document."

"All right," said the young man, taking a bill out of his pocket, tendering it to the clerk and waiting for his change, "but I can tell you right now you ain't robbin' me. You're robbin' the preacher. He'll get just $2 less than I was goin' to give him."

Pocketing the change and tilting his hat back on his head, he stalked out of the office with the air of a man who had been imposed upon, but who knew how to get even.—Chicago Tribune.

The Cat Came Back.

Bacon—Did you ever try to lose a cat?

Egbert—Oh, yes. I hit upon a plan which I thought would work. I wrote a note, inclosing $10, and tied both about the cat's neck. The note read, "Finder may keep both the cat and the money."

"And how did it work?"

"The cat came back the next day with another note tied to its neck. The note read: 'Don't need the cat, but can use the money. Please send $10 more.'" —Yonkers Statesman.

He did not do a noble deed
Nor lend a helping hand to aid

He never bored his fellow men.

Desperate Attempt to Rob Express-- Engineer Shoots Desperado and Others are Driven Off.

Intelligencer Special.

Colorado Springs, Colo. Sept. 2.—After a desperate struggle, engineer Frank Stewart, of the Colorado Midland Railway, seized a revolver from one of a trio of bandits who attempted to hold up the train and shot the bandit dead, near Leadville at midnight. There was a special consignment of several thousand dollars in the express car, and this is what the robbers were after. The train was flagged and the engineer saw a huge boulder, which had been rolled on the track. While two bandits, one on either side of the track, stayed on guard to prevent interference from the passengers and crew, the other one called on Stewart to tell the express messenger to open the door. Stewart awaited an opportunity, then picked up a rock and with a sudden movement knocked his assailant down with it. Then there was a fearful struggle for life. The engineer finally secured the gun with which he shot the bandit dead. Meantime awaking passengers had frightened off the other bandits, who fled to the mountains, followed by a sheriff's posse.

WANT RECIPROCITY.

Alberta Coal Operators Would Sell Coal In Montana.

Medicine Hat, Alta., Sept. 2.—In the closing hours of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's tour, the tariff question has again become paramount.

This time the City Council and coal operators of Lethbridge pointed out to the Government that reciprocity with the United States would enable the operators to find a market for their surplus supply in Montana. The United Farmers, seizing upon the Premier's presence again, stated that they were satisfied with his utterances with reference to the tariff, but claimed that Hon. Geo. P. Graham's idea of railway liability was not acceptable.

The coal industry around Lethbridge has attained a large growth, and, although the present supply is equal to the demand, new mines which are now opening will require a more widely extended market. Montana imports a considerable quantity of Lethbridge coal in the summer time, but, as the local demand increases in winter, the supply for export falls off. Several members of Sir Wilfrid's party inspected shaft No. 6 of the Alberta Railway & Irrigation Co. yesterday morning, and it was stated that people in Montana regarded the tariff against Lethbridge coal as a hardship, as being so far removed from any other source of fuel supply. Alberta coal enters that state without competition. It is estimated that $9,000,000 is invested in the coal industry around Lethbridge, and about 1,400 or 1,500 men are employed. The output of all mines cannot so closely be estimated, but the one in question has sufficient coal in sight to keep the plant busy producing 1,800 tons per day for 20 years. A farmer may drive up to the pit mouth and receive dusty diamonds for $3.85 per ton. The dealer in Lethbridge gets $4.50 per ton delivered, while Winnipeg is said to pay $8. The railways, however, are the worst sinners, and it virtually costs more to carry coal than to produce it. Local officials told the Premier plainly that exclusive railway charges were killing the industry.

Sir Wilfrid expects to be in Ottawa about the 7th or 8th.

Manufacturers at Fair.

Toronto, Sept. 2.—Dull skies in the morning didn't promise favorable weather at the Exhibition yesterday, but in the early afternoon the sun's rays brightened up the grounds which grew more animated each hour until they took on a "second week" aspect. The attendance was about 55,000, or 5,000 ahead of last year's.

Naturally, much interest centered in the manufacturers' and process buildings. The glimpse behind the scenes industrially was so fascinating that the process building was densely thronged by three o'clock, in fact, almost impassable in places. In the manufacturers' building was a jostling, elbowing, good-natured crowd.

It was a typical manufacturers' gathering at the directors' luncheon, the event having an added interest in the presence of the members of the Chamber of Commerce of Bristol. But while it reflected prosperity and a disposition to look forward to trade expansion, a note of uneasiness was struck by R. S. Gourlay of the Board of Trade. It had its origin in the requests by sections of the western provinces for a lower tariff. Mr. Gourlay made it clear that the manufacturers are keeping a wary eye on Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

TORONTO TUBE REPORT

Perfect System Will Cost That City $23,000,000.

Engineers Appointed to Investigate Big Scheme Report, However, That a Temporary System of Subway Transportation Can Be Installed For $9,375,000—They Favor Municipal Construction.

Toronto, Sept. 2.—To provide Toronto with "an ideal system" of underground railways will cose $23,000,000.

To provide for a temporary system, north and south, will provide a good beginning, will cost $9,375,000.

These are the estimates announced in the $5,000 report of Forgie, Jacobs & Davies, the New York engineers, as handed yesterday to Mayor Geary by Mr. Forgie. The report is quite bulky, and is accompanied by a large number of maps, plans and sketches.

In submitting the report recommending the "shallow" type of subway, it is emphasized that, in their opinion, a tube system of railways cannot be made a financial success unless run in conjunction with the surface street car and radial systems. It also advises in favor of municipal construction of the railway, but against municipal management, declaring that better results are obtainable under private management, and recommending that the Toronto Street Railway Co. be given an opportunity to extend its franchise and take over the subways under an equitable arrangement.

The engineers, while favoring the idea of two main diagonal thoroughfares, with subway lines underneath, says also: "The primary object of subway construction is to afford freedom for expansion and relief to congestion, and it is generally false economy to avoid the busiest thoroughfares with a view to reducing first cost, and thus hamper the usefulness of the subway for all time. It is our belief that any subway projected should not attempt to avoid the main streets, but should follow the main arteries."

The engineers were asked to report on "the necessary arrangements for handling street railway traffic, having in mind the present system and the city's rights to construct tubes in the central part, and surface lines in the outlying districts," and their views "in regard to the likelihood of such an undertaking being self-sustaining," making estimates of cost of construction, equipment and maintenance, and expressing views as to the most feasible location for tubes and surface railways.

New Subways for New York.

New York, Sept. 2.—Preparatory to relieving the daily increasing congestion on present transit lines in Greater New York, bids for new subways with forty-one miles of trackage, were advertised for yesterday by the public service commission. The entire work will cost approximately $125,000,000. and will include new underground connections in Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx, grouped under the general title of the tri-borough subway.

The advertisement specifies two plans of construction; one entirely by private capital, and the other with the city money. If the latter is adopted, the work will be done piecemeal, as only $60,000,000 in municipal funds is available.

Fears For the Crops.

Brandon, Sept. 2.—Heavy rains give rise to fears of damage to the wheat crop. A period of wet weather is promised, and the grain is in danger of bleaching. Fall plowing will be materially helped, however, if the weather clears up in a reasonable time. Reports show that three hundred men are needed for harvesting operations in this district. The shortage is due largely to lack of information regarding the needs of farmers. Circulars distributed on excursion trains stated that only fourteen men were needed here, and consequently the workers have gone west. The same scarcity of workers is reported in the building trade.

Surveyor Drowned.

Edmonton, Alta., Sept. 2.—A telegram received from Athabasca Landing stated that W. H. Selby, Dominion land surveyor, was drowned in the Athabasca River at Grand Rapids ten days ago. He was walking along the river and fell in. It is thought that he had an attack of heart failure. The deceased's wife resides in Toronto.

Attempted to Dynamite Building.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 2.—An attempt to dynamite a new six-storey building under process of construction at Third avenue and James street Wednesday night shattered all the windows within the radius of a block, and led to the report that an attempt had been made to rob the Canadian Bank of Commerce, adjoining.

Incendiarism Suspected.

Winnipeg, Sept. 2.—For the second time since the Canadian Northern carmen's strike, a fire took place in the company's Fort Rouge yards, about one o'clock yesterday morning. Five box cars were burned, but as they were not new, and were empty, the damage is not estimated at over $3,000.

New York, Sept. 2.—Seventy-four men and eleven women were arrested by police reserves, as the latter were breaking up a parade of more than 400 cloak strike sympathizers on Fifth avenue early yesterday.

Ally of British Free Traders.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's promises that the tariff will be reduced and that negotiations for reciprocity will be entered into with the United States give extreme satisfaction to free traders in the United Kingdom and to all parties in the United States. The more the duties are lowered the more will the margin between the general tariff and the preferential tariff contract, and the less will be the benefit of the existing discrimination in favor of the Mother Country. The widening of the circle of reciprocity by the admission of the United States and other nations into it will cause a farther dwindling of Britain's market advantages here. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has already done much to lessen the value of the preference to Britain, and if he carries out his promises to the West it will be all but unfelt as a handicap. Not only is the existing preference being gradually reduced to a nullity, but also it is being made impossible for Canada to reciprocate the substantial favors that Mr. Balfour in office would be prepared to give in a mutual preference arrangement. If our tariff is not somewhat protective, and our reciprocity list is not very exclusive, the range of concession in Britain's behalf must be limited. It pleases the British free traders to see the present margin of preference being cut down by Sir Wilfrid and the power of Canada to give a substantial future preference impaired. That waning and disheartened party are giving the widest publicity to the portions of Sir Wilfrid's speeches that commit him to a lower tariff policy. They adduce these utterances as evidence that Canada is not entertaining the idea of mutual preference. They hope by this means to disgust some of the tariff reformers and to steady some of the waverers in their own ranks. But the tariff reform movement in Britain will go on regardless of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's treacherous dealing with the Canadian tariff question, for, irrespective of what other countries in the Empire may do, the United Kingdom will turn away from the ruinous course of free trade. The Lloyd-George budget is one of the fiscal extremeties to which free trade has driven the nation. The next will be still more thoroughgoing confiscation, if it is not averted by tariff reform. It will be so averted. And it will be the fault of the Canadian people themselves if the Laurier Government is allowed to bar Canada from the benefits the new policy will bring to Britain.—Mail and Empire.

A CANADIAN INSTITUTION.

Toronto Fair Regarded with Pride by Dominion as a Whole.

When Earl Grey on the occasion of his recent visit to England advised British manufacturers to exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto he did a thing which a few short years ago would have gotten him into trouble. The sectional spirit was within the memory of the youngest citizen so strong in Canada that to boost the Toronto Fair would have been regarded as an exhibition of favoritism. Efficient management has made such a change in matters that to-day the Canadian National Exhibition is recognized as an institution in which all Canada takes pride. The best proof of it is that every province exhibits illustrative of its resources to this year's event. The aim of the directors has always been to make it a magnificent demonstration of the resources of this country, and the Exhibition of 1910 will be an education to the Canadian and the foreign visitors alike in the possibilities of this Canada of ours.

JOHNS GLASS BLOWERS.

One of the most popular shows on Midway this year is Johns Glass Blowers, where the art of glass blowing is fully shown. Thousands of people have seen this splendid show year after year and are all delighted. Each visitor is presented with a handsome souvenir of glass articles. Don't miss it.

NERO, THE TRICK HORSE.

Of all the shows on Midway there is none with a wider appeal than "Nero, the trick horse." The peculiarity about him is that he was born without a tail.

Little Nero is the whole show in himself. For 25 minutes he keeps a crowded tent in roars of laughter. He does everything but talk, and he nearly does that. At any rate, he answers all questions which his trainer asks him, he goes to church, and prays there, and is not ashamed to say so. He does a startling teeter act, and rolls around in barrels, and generally has a good time, in addition to giving other people the same. This is one of the best shows of the Fair.

CALIFORNIA FRANK'S WILD WEST

California Frank and his Wild West Show, which created a furore here last year, has returned to Midway with all his old favorites as well as a score of new artists. In the principal cities and hippodromes of the United States, in the interval, he proved to be a banner attraction.

Rich Widows Galore.

HORDES OF FORTUNE-HUNTING NOBLEMEN EXPECTED AT NEWPORT SOON.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 1.—Widows grass and sod, representing an aggregate fortune of about $33,000,000, all eligible for mariage, some anxious for the chance and others merely in a receptive mood, are congregated in Newport.

The town has recently been dubbed "widowville," and the name is likely to stick at least through the present season. Word has been received here that a large delegation of noblemen, mostly impecunious and all improvident, is headed this way with all sails set.

In the job lot are dukes, earls, lords, barons, with a prince or two thrown in for good measure. All are carrying credentials which will be knocked down to the highest bidder. Some of the less desirable, it is understood, will be put under the hammer within a month. The auction sale will continue well into the fall.

Among those who will have an opportunity of buying in desirable titles, second-hand, of course, but only at little used and almost as good as new, are Mrs. Ogden Goelet, Mrs. Robert Goelet, Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, Mrs. Alexander S. Clarke, Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, Mrs. Harold Brown, Mrs. Benjamin F. Clyde, Mrs. W. T. Bull, Mrs. Thomas Emery, of Cincinnati, Mrs. Richard Gambrill, Mrs. Herman Oelrichs, Mrs. French Vanderbilt and Mrs. John Jacob Astor. Mrs. William B. Leeds will return here in December to add to the gaiety of nations. Mrs. Leeds has written to friends here that she will take personal charge of the decorations of Rough Point, formerly the residence of Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt.

Mrs. Leeds' friends have facetiously remarked that she is returning to escape the attention of a regiment of foreigners, who are seeking her hand and fortune. If that is the case she will arrive here in the thick of the battle, and will be among those present at the auction sale.

CHURCH AMUSEMENTS.

Two sensible steps were taken by the Methodist general conference when it decided to replace the footnote defining objectionable amusements by a general admonitory paragraph, and when it refused to permit doctrinal differences to be made the subject of general debate. The footnote belongs to that class of arbitary restrictions which can only be sustained and enforced when generally recognized as reasonable and salutary. But the ban placed on cards, dancing and theatre-going was not in that position. Many Methodists of good church standing openly disregarded the recommendation, and following their own judgment in the choice of their amusements, and the church had either to ignore the contravention or precipitate an unfortunate controversy. In such circumstances alteration in conformity with actual conditions was the only course available. But it is in part of the penalty attaching to unwise interfering with the personal conscience that its withdrawal inevitably leads to the interference that what was previously forbidden is no longer open to censure.

Heresy hunting has always been a popular way of wasting valuable time. Except where the cause of offence was gross and palpable, and such cases, being indefensible, rarely required disciplining, even successful attempts to vindicate the accepted dogmas of the day have never been profitable in the long run to the church. The particular object of attack my be ejected, but as the victim often is a man of parts and in advance of his time his martydom breeds a plentiful crop of young heretics and these in the ordinary course of nature become in time the dominant influence. Instances of this Nemesis that attends efforts to to stereotype religious thought can be found in all ages down to the third quarter of last century. Protestants churches are wiser now and more chary about indulging in the exciting but dangerous pleasures attending a public heresy hunt. Time is the best winner of the true from the false, and altho it is right to exact a measure of consistency there is far less readiness to fetter intellectual liberty.—Toronto World.

FOUR GOOD POINTS.

Dr. Ingram, the Bishop of London, during his all too brief visit to this part of the Dominion, delivered a little speech the other day, in the course of which he outlined the policy we should pursue if we wish to become a great nation. In the first place, he said, "you should perserve 'a pure, happy home life.' This must not be a country of easy divorces and of lax morals. The people must be taught to value the responsibilities and pleasures of family life. No nation can live unless it has at its base the influence which is exercised through the home.

"The next characteristic to cultivate is straight 'forward business.'" The Bishop mentions that when visiting a manufacturing establishment a few days ago he saw certain of the products being destroyed because they were not up to the standard. Rather than to allow the firm's good name to be impaired throught the sending out of poor goods, the output was broken up. On the London Stock Exchange great transactions running into millions are scribled down, and thus the word of the parties to these operations is taken, for the deal is never repudiated. "Let every Canadian see to it that his word is as good as his bond the world over." Good faith in business and national good faith are aids to prosperity. Another characteristic the Bishop suggests is the avoidance of "frills," or of what is termed "bounce." It is not necessary to depreciate the country. Tell the truth about it. But do not make great pretensions. "The nation that is humble holds the greatest power over the world." Canada must develop a sense of humor. Don't take "yourself too seriously, either as individuals or as a nation. You should be quick to see a joke." The sense of humor is an excellent possession. It shields the party who has it from the conceit which precipitates a fall.

Finally, the Bishop says, "Never have a drink bill of 166,000,000 Pounds." This is the British bill, and Canada ought to be careful not to shoulder such a liability. Temperance, modesty, honesty and a good home life constitute the Bishop's prescription for a growing nation. That it is good advice must be admitted. We cannot build up if we adopt the contrary policies.—Mail and Empire.

Swimming as a Fine Art

CANADIANS' SUPERIORITY IS MARKED OVER YANKEE CONTESTANTS.

New York Tribune:—Pride generally comes before a fall, and the recent swimming championships of Canada served to indicate how unwarranted was our vaunted claim of aquatic superiority. With the incomparable Daniel's to rely on in all cases of necessity, we allowed ourselves to be lulled into sense of mistaken security, strong in the belief that he would never fail us, and that, even if he did, we had others good enough to take his place.

The Canadian meets were a severe jolt to devotees of swimming. George South of the New York Athletic Club went up for the sprints, confident of taking both the fifty and one hundred titles, because he had few peers in the country at the letter distance, and none saw Daniels at the former. After he had meet defeat at the hands of Gordon Johnstone of the Ottawa Canoe Club, People said, "Oh, well, he was not our best, and Bud Goodwin will show them what speed means in the 440-yard and one mile events."

But Goodwin didn't. George Hodgson of the Montreal Athletic Association gave him a sound beating in the quarter-mile race, negotiating the course in 5 minutes 59 2-5 seconds, and the Mercury Footer himself admitted that he had been outclassed by his 16-year-old vanquisher, freely predicted that Hodgson would soon have most of the American records unless they were bettered meanwhile. As Daniels' quarter-mile figure stands at 5 minutes 54 1-5 seconds, the prophecy seems likely to come true, for the champion has announced his intention of retiring from the competitive field.

Should Daniels persist in his avowed decision it is easier to realize how our friends across the border will threaten American titles during the indoor season.

While South is not second to Daniels as a hundred-yarder, Johnstone has proved his better, and he will make a formidable rival. And, as to Hodgson, he defeated Godwin by forty yards in 440 yards, and he should be able at this pace to take the measure both at the furlong and quarter-mile of any American except Daniels. Godwin may still be best at the mile, but the longest indoor championship is now 500 yards.

Americans have sought in vain for the reason of the sudden and mysterious leap of Canadian water men into the limelight, but it is more than likely that the presence of Norman Cox, the Australian coach, at the Montreal A. A., may be accounted for it.

English Government Suppresses a Seer

EGYPTIAN ASTROLOGER'S PREDICTIONS PROVED RIGHT IN SEVERAL INSTANCES.

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 31.—For being too accurate a prophet, Sheikh Mahmoud, an Egyptian astrologer, has lost his appeal to the English government against the suppression of his review, Tawaleh El Malouk.

Mahmoud "guessed right" in so many of his prophecies, which were mostly of killings and death, that the local authorities became afraid that his predictions would encourage the natives to make the astrologer's words good, so they surpressed Taweleh El Malouk.

Among Mahmound's forecasting achievements were the month of King Edward's death and the assassination of Premier Boutros Pasha and the appointment of Said Pasha in his place. Now he predicts that the Khedive will die soon, that the Egyptian Nationalists will murder someone of prominence shortly; that King George of Greece will annex three Moslem cities before long and that Sir Eldon Gorst will be made a peer before 1911.

STILL COMING TO CANADA.

Grand Trunk Pacific Train No. 1 had four extra cars went out of Winnipeg Aug. 18th, with 150 American farmers from different points along the line in the Prairie Provinces. These house-seekers laugh at the fake back to Uncle Sam stories. Many of them have already visited the West and have located their homesteads or bought land. They argue that a new country which has never had a total crop failure in a quarter of a century is a good gamble.

Milady's Mirror

To prevent stringiness and the showing of ugly cords in the neck massage the throat every night with a cream made from two gills of spermaceti, two ounces of white wax, ten ounces of almond oil, forty grains of borax powdered and ten drops each of oil essences of bergamot and rosemary. A pinch of powdered camphor should be put with the cream while it is melting, or half a teaspoonful of tincture of benzoin may be added.

Before this or any other cream is applied the throat must be carefully washed at night and the cream rubbed from chin to chest with a rotary motion. This work should last for five minutes at least. At the expiration of that time the cream may be lightly wiped off and a lotion made from a pint of high proof alcohol to an ounce of tincture of benzoin applied.

Following this, the head is to be bent back as far as it will go, which should be enough to stretch the throat cords, and alternating with the backward tilt the head must droop forward until the chin rests upon the chest. Afterward the head must be twisted first to one side and then to the other, the object of these movements being to keep cords and muscles strong and elastic and prevent their sagging and so destroying the throat contour.

The cream described above may also be rubbed into hollows of the chest to fill them out.

A woman who carries her head well—that is, the chin up—is less apt to lose the beauty of her throat than one who permits her head to droop forward. As a matter of fact, the head held up, the chin in place, is a beauty not common, but adds enormously to the effect of presence and distinction. A mistake not unusual to those trying to cultivate the habit is to thrust out the chin.

Head of New College, Oxford, Is Dr. Spooner.

One of the most celebrated men in England to-day is Dr. Spooner, head of New College, Oxford, who has given to the English language the term "Spoonerism."

It is doubtful, perhaps, if the quaint little doctor has perpetrated one of the verbal mixups to which his name has been given, but generations of undergraduates have exercised their ingenuity in fabricating examples. Most people at some time or other have unwittingly made a spoonerism, but the New College don is supposed to make them all day long.

A spoonerism consists of the transposition of the initial letters of two or more words in the same sentence. Some of the best known examples attributed to the head of New College are supposed to have been made at table or in the college chapel.

Once when he wanted some stewed figs he is said to have electrified a luncheon party by asking a lady to pass him the pigs' fleas. Those who know the doctor would understand at once that he was merely asking for "the figs, please."

At the same luncheon he is said to have asked his neighbor to have "some of this stink puff," pointing to an ornamental dish of pink jelly. In chapel it is recorded that he has read out the first line of the well known hymn which starts "From Greenland's icy mountains" as "From Iceland's greasy mountains," and has spoken of the wicked men whose words were "as ears and sparrows."

Once, when he was not officiating in the service, he was surprised to find some one occupying his pew in chapel and addressed him sternly with "Are you aware, sir, that you are occupewing my pie?"

One of the quaintest mixups put down to him is perhaps a phrase he once used in a sermon. Speaking of the vague, half formed wish so often experienced in the mind, he raid, "We all know what it is to have a half warmed fish in us."

Late for dinner one night, he sidled into the room with the explanation that he had been "hatching a pasty snipe." Even an old friend would take a moment or two to translate this into "snatching a hasty pipe."

His poetical description of a gypsy encampment as "a tipsy gent pitched in a pot of grease" was even more complicated. Of course he meant "a gypsy tent pitched in a grot of peace." His description of his baggage to a railway porter as "two rags and a bug" was simpler.

There is something forced perhaps in his definition of a happy evening as reading quietly by the fireside, while his dear wife was "hitting the nose" of his little one.

Dr. Spooner is an albino with the weak sight characteristic of the type.

PATRICK BURNS, 102 YEARS OF AGE, COVERS TEN MILES.

Worchester, Mass., Sept. 1.—Although two years past the century mark, Patrick Burns, the oldest man in Worchester county, made a record ten-mile walk from his home, just this side of Brookfield, to that of his son on the North Brookfield road, in the short time of two hours and fifty-one minutes. The aged man walked with ease, and his long, white white hair and beard, attracted much attention to his tramp, and he was followed by a small army of boys and men

Burns, although 102 years old, has been in the habit of taking a walk each day, but never attempted to cover the distance between his home and that of his son. After the long walk to-day the centenarian said he would endeavor to try it more often.

Mr. Burns has voted for two-thirds of the presidents of the United States, and for his age is far from being helpless, but, on the other hand, asks but few favors, doing most of his farm work himself.

IS McBRIDE THE COMING LEADER?

An unique interest attaches to the September number of Busy Man's Magazine because in it is to be found a striking prophecy about the future of the Hon. Richard McBride, Premier of British Columbia, based on the extraordinary likeness he bears to three great political leaders. These three men are Benjamin D'sraeli, Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir Wilfrid Laurier. This striking likeness is brought out clearly in the portraits of the four men which illustrate the article and which are placed together for the purpose of comparison. Richard McBride is still a young man but even to-day he bears a marked resemblance to all three men referred to and in his mannerisms he is astonishingly like Sir John A. Macdonald. All interested in the political situation in Canada, Conservative and Liberal alike, should not fail to see this convincing prophecy.

Contrary to the general belief that hard woods give more heat in burning than soft, Government experts have found by tests that linden, a very soft wood, has the greatest heating power, with fir, another soft wood, next

COSTLY SIGHT-SEEING.

Big Fees Paid by Sightseers When Pageants Are Under Way.

It's an ill wind that blows nobody good, and the death of a monarch puts money into the pockets of thousands. Those who profit most largely by such an event are the seat-mongers on the line of the funeral procession.

The value put upon seats is always rising. When Edward I. became king a farthing was charged for a seat to see the coronation procession. On the accession of Richard II. the price rose to 1d.; and from Henry V.'s coronation to Henry VII.'s it was 2d. By the time Charles II. was crowned it had gone up to 2s. 6d.; while exactly double as much (5s.) was paid at the coronation of William III. Then the value of seats on such occasions appreciated enormously. To see the procession when George III. was crowned half a guinea was paid; and sightseers on George IV.'s day of days cheerfully paid five and in some cases ten guineas. This was considered the climax, but the value put on seats in later days has been much greater.

Why the enormous rise? The main reason, so far as our own times are concerned, is that wealthy Indians, Americans, and other foreign visitors have been willing to pay anything for a seat to witness a state pageant. Hence the value has been inflated.

The present high scale was set at Queen Victoria's Jubilee, when large sums were paid for rooms from the windows of which the procession could be seen. Few rooms, however small, could be hired for less than 10 guineas, and for many 150 guineas was demanded and paid. A large building on the route, being empty, was secured for the day by an enterprising individual for 1,000 guineas, and he had no reason to repent his outlay.

On the occasion of Queen Victoria's funeral the Jubilee rate for seats was confirmed. In St. James' street £10 had to be paid for a single chair, while seats which a few days before the procession were offered for 3 guineas afterwards fetched 5 guineas. A window which let when Lord Roberts came home for £210 found a hirer at £400 on the occasion of the Queen's funeral. As it will hold only fifty people at the utmost, the hirer must have charged pretty heavily for every seat in it. Again, some rooms in Piccadilly let for as much as 200 guineas.

High as these figures are, however, they were surpassed in several instances. The most remarkable "deal" in connection with the funeral was that of a gentleman who took a mansion near the Marble Arch for the day for the amazing sum of £1,500!

At Edward VII.'s coronation, and again at the royal progress, the price of seats was equally high. In South London some landlords evicted tenants that they might obtain windows for the function, and received more for a single day's occupancy of a part of their premises than they get in normal circumstances for the use of the whole for a year. Others, however, let their tenants make as much as possible on the occasion, with the result that many strenuous workers made handsome sums by letting their humble homes to sightseers.

Perhaps the highest price ever paid for a window was £1,000 secured by a landlord near the Marble Arch to enable some Americans to view the funeral procession of the King on its way to Paddington.

Queen-Mother's Relations.

No royal lady of any time has been so intimately related to such a large number of kings and queens as the Queen-Mother of Great Britain, who has been the recipient of world-wide sympathy in her great grief and sorrow. Her father and mother were king and queen, her husband was a king, her mother-in-law was the late Queen Victoria, her son is now King of Great Britain, her daughter is Queen of Norway, a sister was for some years Czarina of Russia and is now Dowager Empress, one brother is King of Denmark, another brother King of the Hellenes, one of her nephews is Czar of Russia, and another nephew, who is also her son-in-law, is King of Norway, while a third and fourth are destined to be King of Denmark and King of the Hellenes respectively.

"Charlie" Carrington.

Earl Carrington, who was recently appointed Lord Great Chamberlain of England by King George, is one of the largest landowners in England. The late King Edward and "Charlie" Carrington, as he is popularly known to his intimates, grew up together in close intimacy. For five years he was governor of New South Wales, where he studied agriculture. Lord Carrington returned home a convinced and enthusiastic land-reformer. He believes in getting men back to the land, and has established no fewer than 5,000 small holdings on his estates. The new Lord Great Chamberlain has a wide reputation as an excellent administrator.

Toy Spaniel an Old Breed.

The English toy spaniel is undoubtedly one of the oldest and most popular breeds of pet dogs known. As far back as the days of Charles the Martyr this breed was much prized by the ladies of the court. In the narrative of the execution of Mary, Queen of Scots, indorsed in Lord Burghley's hand and forwarded to the court, it was recorded that one of the executioners found her little pet (a spaniel of practically the same type as those afterward known in the reign of Charles II.), which had crept under the folds of her garments to be near her and which would not be taken away.

The Great Cod Banks.

There is just one other great cod bank in the world besides those off Newfoundland. It lies off Cape Agulhas, which is the southern tip of Africa and south of the Cape of Good Hope. The Agulhas plateau is said to be almost a duplicate in size and richness of the north cod banks. But this is too far off, so there is little promise of its appeasing the hungry appetite of the world for cod.

After a long series of tests German scientists seem to have disproved an old theory that resin is a beneficial ingredient in soaps, their decision being that

TALES OF THE FLEET.

Remarkable Achievements That Illuminate the Annals of the Navy.

In the year 1806 occurred the most amazing instance of naval strategy on a small scale ever placed on record. Britain was then at war with a very large part of the world, and privateering was an exceedingly profitable as well as an honorable profession.

The privateer Tamar, in the course of her meanderings, captured the little Bon Voyage, and placed a prize crew of 14 aboard her, under charge of the first-lieutenant, with instructions to make for the first friendly port. Next day the faster sailing Tamar was out of sight, and, to the consternation of the little prize crew, there appeared on the scene the Le Brave, a renowned French privateer, which mounted 16 guns, and had a crew of 130 tried men.

All seemed lost, and, indeed, the Bon Voyage's little complement of men were already packing up their traps preparatory to a trip across to the other ship, when the brave lieutenant hit upon a stratagem of so extraordinary a nature as veritably to read like some extract from a sensational boy's tale.

He knew that the Le Brave's invariable mode of fighting whenever possible was by boarding, so he brought all his four guns to the side on which she was approaching, loaded them, and caused the rest of the ship's ammunition to be thrown overboard. He next caused the only boat aboard to be plentifully supplied with firearms and moored under the stern out of sight. As the Le Brave drew near they let her have a broadside, a compliment which was soon returned, and a few minutes later the aggressor's bow was fouling the Bon Voyage's rigging, and her sailors streaming aboard.

The lieutenant at this very moment retreated with his men to the stern cabin, and the French, in their ignorance of the stratagem, followed, and actually placed sentries at the door, so that they could not sally forth. The prize crew, however, had meantime gained their boat by an open port, precisely as arranged, and were rowing stealthily round the ship to the Le Brave, which had now parted company with her quarry, and boarding her, they made short work of the four sailors left in charge.

The astonishment of the Frenchmen when they found the British flag floating proudly over their ship can better be imagined than described. They still had the men, four guns, and a good ship, but, to their chagrin, not a single barrel of powder. The gallant lieutenant assured them of the pleasure the exchange had afforded him, and at the muzzles of their own cannon he obliged them to promise to navigate the Bon Voyage to the port he himself was making for. A day or two later, however, the Tamar came in sight, and relieved the Frenchmen of their disagreeable task.

These were the days of blood-thrilling feats on the water. Just a year or two previous to the episode just recorded Commander Munro, of the small 16-gun brig Transfer, won for himself imperishable renown by a most audacious performance. He inadvertently ran into a powerful Spanish squadron one day, but hoisted the American flag, and was allowed to pass warship after warship unchallenged, any one of which could have sunk his ship with ease. Bringing up the rear of the Spanish fleet was a merchantman prize, deeply laden with valuable cargo, and the temptation to seize her was irresistible, and seize her the British commander did, practically within gunshot of the protecting warships. The very audacity of the thing wrought its complete success, for the Spaniards felt sure that a British fleet was close at hand, and, not wishing just then to be drawn into a battle, they allowed the Transfer and her capture to escape.

A meritorious feat of arms against the same enemy was the recovery of the British ship Hermione. The crew of the Hermione had mutinied, killed their officers, and then surrendered the ship to the Spaniards, who, to their discredit, sheltered the men and fitted the vessel out as a man-of-war. The Hermione when thus completed lay moored almost under the guns of two powerful batteries, and the fact coming to the ears of the captain of the H. M. Surprise, who was cruising in the neighborhood at the time, he determined to cut her out, undeterred by the obviously grave danger of such a mission. The Hermione had a large crew on board, and, though taken by surprise, they fought desperately, but the batteries upon which the Spanish relied so much were unable to afford any assistance; not knowing which side was in possession of the ship; and before they could satisfy themselves as to this the Hermione was sailing proudly away to rejoin the service she had been foully torn from.

Bishop In a Donkey Cart.

One of the best stories told regarding Bishop Barry, whose death was announced recently, relates how on one occasion he had a good distance to travel in order to keep an appointment at Brentford, but for some time he failed to find a vehicle to convey him to the place of meeting. Then a costermonger appeared in sight, and, learning of the bishop's difficulty, modestly offered him a lift. With equal modesty the prelate accepted, and the sight of a past Primate of Australia riding in the humblest vehicle known filled many persons with astonishment as the barrow and its strangely-contrasted occupants neared its destination. One of the bishop's first tasks was publicly to express his thanks to the costermonger for enabling him to fulfill his engagement.

Small Boat Overwhelmed.

A very sad drowning accident occurred the other morning at Scalloway. A small open boat returning from the haddock fishing was passing at what was thought to be a safe distance from the Brethren Reef, when she was suddenly overwhelmed by an enormous sea, and sank almost immediately. Of the four men in the boat two were drowned; the others managed to hold on to an oar and a buoy until rescued.

A Four-Legged Bird.

The crested hoactzin of British Guiana is the only survivor of a certain race of birds, most of which are now known only as fossils. The hoactzin inhabits the most secluded forests of South America, and its survival beyond its congeners is doubtless owing to its retiring habits and to the fact that it feeds on wild arum leaves, which gives its flesh a most offensive flavor, rendering it unfit for food.

The chief peculiarity of the hoactzin consists in the fact that when it is hatched it possesses four well-developed legs. The young birds leave the nest and climb about like monkeys over the adjoining limbs, and look more like tree-toads than birds.

The modification of the fore limbs begins at once after hatching, when the claws of the digits fall off and the whole claw-like hand begins to flatten and becomes wing-shaped. Feathers soon appear, and before full growth is reached not a vestige remains of the original character.

The adult birds not only have no claws upon their wings, but their thumbs even are so poorly developed that one would hardly suspect that in the nestlings we have the nearest approach to a quadruped found among

The "shal" of Kerman—whence our word "shawl"—is made of goats' hair. Like the carpets, the shawl patterns are learned by heart, and the work is even finer. Children also do this work. It is estimated that Kerman turns out $300,000 worth of shawls, handmade, a year. The finest product is a fir cone pattern, a rich color effect, made especially for the governor of the province, who wears it as a robe of honor on the Persian New Year's day.

He Got Her.

"It's so long since you called upon me," said the girl as she came down to the young man in the parlor, "that I was beginning to think you were forgetting me."

"I am for getting you," replied the smart youth, "and that's why I've called tonight. Can I have you?"

A Real Crisis.

Not Sisters

Now and again you see two women passing down the street who look like sisters. You are astonished to learn that they are mother and daughter, and you realize that a woman at forty or forty-five ought to be at her finest and fairest. Why isn't it so? The general health of woman is so intimately associated with the local health of the essentially feminine organs that there can be no red cheeks and round form where there is female weakness.

Women who have suffered from this trouble have found prompt relief and cure in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gives vigor and vitality to the organs of womanhood. It clears the complexion, brightens the eyes and reddens the cheeks.

No alcohol, or habit-forming drugs is contained in "Favorite Prescription." Any sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. Every letter is held as secredly confidential, and answered in a plain envelope. Address: World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R.V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N.Y.

The ...Veiled Lady...

was killed!—The 'lady in the case' did not use the 'lift,' but she tripped daintily up stairs and down, as if on a joyous errand! She was a cool hand."

Gordon's heart was beating quickly. "How do you know?" he said.

Jenks calmly offered Gordon a cigar. "All right?" the gambler queried. "San Francisco! Good cigars! none here,—try one."

"Go on!" cried Gordon.

"I took the janitor's boy to the circus; all boys like the circus. Same thing. Just as I said. The old man was 'full' the night of the killing. The boy was running the elevator. He is a bright lad. He saw no one go up!" Jenks paused; "but he did see a tall, beautiful woman in black come down! He thought she was a ghost; a lively one!" Jenks stoutly ejaculated.—"Anxious for a tip he ran out! On the landing, he found this black glove! —He kept quiet for fear his father would be dismissed for lounging in a saloon.'"

"Well!" the cavalryman ejaculated.

Jenks closed his cunning eyes!—"The boy was frightened! He thought it was really a vision! He shut down the gas, turned the steam off, found the father at his pet saloon, and then dragged him home!"

"What do you wish to do about this?" Gordon hesitatingly asked.

"I must find a young, strange and beautiful woman, tall and dark, who owns the mate to this glove."

"And then?" said honest Jack, his mind slowly moving.

"Then! I've got the woman who killed Neill; the guilty woman!—I'll send her to the gallows if I can!—Have you copied Neill's letter? I would like to see it again." Jenks rose, "waiting orders" attitude.

"Sit down! Don't hasten," Gordon said.

"I must be going," replied Jenks. "I have a new idea!"

Gordon, with the cold sweat on his brow, stammered out the awkward news of the fire, and its results. As Jenks listened, he held his head in his hands. Before he looked up, Gordon heard the soft rustle of Irene Hope's dress in the corridor. "Lieutenant!" said Jenks quietly, "I am sorry for you; more sorry for myself. You have put off the discovery of the murderess for five years! But I will find her. I'll have the best detectives in America watch this case! I will find her if I live. Still, the cards are dead against me!" As he left the room, he gazed reproachfully at Jack. "You are a young man—and very heedless! It was imprudent! I'm off to-morrow. I'll write you from Paris." In a moment he was gone. Gordon, standing gazing blankly at the door, heard Jenks murmur, "I beg pardon!" and Irene Hope quietly entered the room.

"I am going out! Lieutenant!" she smilingly said. "Do you disdain a carriage ride?"

"Not at all, if you invite me," Gordon gallantly answered.

Before the circuit of "Shaw's Garden" was made, Gordon had spoken the words of love long trembling on his lips. "Do not think of it, Mr. Gordon," replied his fair conductress. "Love lies far from my lonely path!—I should have told you I am going to Europe to study music for two years. My life belongs only to art."

"It belongs to me, Irene!" said Jack Gordon. "You shall be the Lady of Belvoir."

She smiled gently through her happy tears. And the lovely woman, whose every motion kindled the fires of his being, softly said, "Can you wait?"

Gordon cried, "An eternity, for you."

"Let me think for a few days! We will see," softly said Irene. Gordon's beaming eys shone with hope.

"I am tied down until I have shown my colors!" Jack mused, as he watched the lovely woman beside him! "I can not leave the 'Seventh' when on active service!

"If I win another compliment from Custer, and serve a couple of years,—I will join Irene abroad! I can, then, resign in honor! I will make her the happiest woman on earth!

"My own darling!" he gazed spellbound.

CHAPTER V.

Days of wearying suspense crawled along while loyal Jack Gordon waited for Irene Hope's answer. The cavalryman's recovery was now almost complete. Doctor Selfridge, with pardonable pride, marked the return of the Kentuckian's vigor. "I will warrant you for another dash at the red devils," said the Doctor two weeks later. "I suppose you'll be leaving us soon," sighed Selfridge, as the gentlemen sat over their wine.

"Yes, Doctor!" nervously said Gordon. "I am closing up this sad Neill case. I fear we must abandon it as a hopeless quest. Even the Chief gives it up! My detective at Detroit has failed to open up the mysterious past of the poor fellow who lies silent here, under the snow. Though I gave Orton full swing, he will go no further. That unfortuante fire robbed us of the only valuable evidence we had. I have my estate in proper hands; the bank will close up Neill's affairs. I shall run out to Belvoir,—go over to Washington and see my classmate Maxwell of the Engineers, and then go out and report at Fort Hays. The regiment is back from the Texas trip after Satanta and Lone Wolf. Custer has earned a country's gratitude! The frontier is for once peaceful."

"I am sorry to lose you, my bok," said the genial Doctor, who loved the sunny-hearted Kentuckian, "but duty is duty! When you need patching up, come again to us. I hope, though, it will not be soon necessary to repair your anatomy. I must go out to a Medical Society meeting; I will leave you to the enjoyment of Irene's music. Make the most of it, my boy, you won't hear such a voice soon again." The Doctor shot a Parthian glance from under his bushy eyebrows at the soldier. Jack actually blushed.

"Humph! One wound gives way to another. Region of the heart, this time," chuckled Selfridge, as he drove away.

Gordon sat looking at the fire. His mind reverted to the baffled quest. Only a woman's ring; only a stray glove—as relics of Neill's mysterious night visitor. Suddenly he started. "Have I lost that ring" His anxiety was soon allayed. Ah, yes; there it was, safe in his pocket-book! The loss of letters had driven its whereabouts from his mind. "And that strange fellow Jenks has the glove. I must write him, and also close up my matters with Orton!" Seated in the library, Gordon soon dashed off an epistle to Horace Jenks, informing him of his intended return to the regiment, and giving his headquarters address, as well as the St. Louis Bank as his agents. To Orton he mailed a letter of thanks and a handsome douceur. "Thank Heaven! that's off my mind now," he rejoiced.

Throwing down the pen, he sprang to his feet as Irene Hope entered the room. She was absolutely radiant in her beauty. Gordon's heart beat rapidly. There was a smile of meaning on her lips. Seating herself by his side, she said softly: "I have burned my ships! I have told Mrs. Selfridge of my departure. Mrs. Mason, one of my kindest friends, goes in three week to New York. She will place her girls at school in Dresden; I shall have pleasant company."

"And you have nothing to say to me, Irene!" cried Gordon, grasping her unresisting hands.

The glance of her dark eyes made his heart quiver.

"Nothing! save that we had better remain only dear friends. I can not, must not give up my art. It is my very life."

"Listen to me! Irene!" cried Gordon. "I must serve at least two years in honor to repay my West Point education. The regiment is in active service. But I want you! I want you as my wife! as the Lady of Belvoir! Be mine now! I will go back to the plains; you can go to Paris and finish your musical education. I will resign from the service later. We can travel, or you can follow your artistic career. The whole world is ours to choose from."

"You are too generous, Gordon; I will not tie you down," the proud girl replied.

"We are alone in the world," Gordon urged. "Life is before us, love with us, this earth would be a heaven for you as my wife."

Irene Hope buried her face in her hands. "No! it is not just! I will not link my fate to yours in an unequal union!—I am poor, unknown; you are the Master of Belvoir!" Irene was fighting hard. Was it only a woman's pride?"

Gordon caught his advantage. "Promise me you will not now say 'No.' Take another week to think!—I will not urge you further. My whole life's happiness is in your hands." His eager, pleading face touched the reluctant beauty.

"Mr. Gordon! I will not answer you to-night! Now! Shall I not sing for you?" she shyly said. There was a bright promise in her loving eyes! In the music room Gordon lingered under the magic spell, riveting his chains more firmly with each silvery note. In his dreams that night Gordon was haunted by the strains of the matchless singer, and (a delirious and happy unreality,) he fancied he could hear the dark-eyed one whisper, "I am yours: yours alone!"

Next night, while Gordon wearily directed Jackson in the preliminary work of preparing for his journey to Belvoir, Phineas Orton sat in an upper room in an obscure hotel, on the river bank, in St. Louis. Coming back in secret, he was dreaming over his cigar and watching the door of his room. "This Jenks is a queer one!—I wonder if that boy will ever come." Orton scanned the leaves of a long letter marked "Confidential—Pinkerton Agency." Its pages were carefully stamped and numbered. "I don't like to turn Gordon down," he ruminated, "yet he must not know of my presence. I wonder if he is hoodwinked by Love, or is it only a heedless youngster!—Jenks' letter makes out a strong case. It looks queerly. If this janitor's boy can find the woman he saw, we are all right.", He eagerly ran over an inclosure bearing the signature of Horace Jenks. "Go ahead till I stop you! You are my man now!" the gambler wrote. "I wonder if we shall ever get on the right trail." Orton's revery was cut short by a knock. One of the hotel porters led in a shock-headed boy of twelve. The porter grinned approvingly at the five-dollar bill which Orton slipped in his hand.

"Are you Terence Farrell?" Orton kindly said.

"Yes, Sir," said the lad, shyly balanced on the edge of a chair.

"And your father runs the elevator in the Lindell Building?"

"Yes, Sir," the boy answered.

Orton gazed at the boy. He seemed to be the incarnation of unkempt dullness.

"Terence! I want to know if you can do some work for me? I have plenty of money to pay you well." The boy's eyes opened. Money was already his only talisman. "But you must not tell your father."

"No! I won't tell the old man a word! He's bad to me; an' to mother when he gets full." The boy's fretful face looked grave.

"Now I want you to tell him you've got a job here at the Cairo House as errand boy."

"All right," said the youngster; "shall I tell my mother, too? I want to take her all my money. What shall I do?"

"You will come here to me every day, and I will tell you what to do. I'll pay you well. Now, Terence, do you remember the woman you saw come down stairs the night Mr. Neill was killed?"

KILLS LATE EMPLOYER

Discharged Workman Fells Contractor With a Bottle.

G.T.P. Bridge Over Red Deer River Is Scene of a Tragedy When Laborer Named Woods, After Being Refused a Disputed Five Days' Pay, Strikes Hector Murray, Who Dies Shortly Afterward.

Alberta, Sept. 2.—A tragedy occurred at the G.T.P. bridge over the Red River, six miles south of the town, Hector Murray of the contracting firm of Holmes, Murray and Sharkey being fatally beaten over the head by a disgruntled laborer named Woods.

In company with E. A. Marshall, C.E., Murray had driven to the river and was conferring with sub-Contractor Stuyvesant, when Woods approached with four companions and demanded of Murray, "Didn't I work five days for you?" Murray replied, "I know nothing about it."

Woods then demanded the five days' pay, which was refused. Woods turned to his companions and asked what should he do, and was advised by one of them "get your money." Whereupon Woods threatened Murray with a quart bottle of whisky. Murray advised him to go and settle at the camp, whereupon Woods felled him with a blow of the bottle over the temple, then walking with his companions to the river and disappeared.

Murray appeared stunned, but, rising, asked where they had gone, Marshall assisted him into a buggy and started for town. When about half way Murray relapsed into semi-consciousness and rapidly became worse, dying about 1.30 yesterday morning.

It appears Woods worked five days in one of the camps, and Wednesday, going for a load of hay, upset it, whereon, without stopping to reload, he drove off and demanded his time. The foreman told him to return and get the hay and he would be paid in full.

Slates Montreal's Mayor.

Montreal, Sept. 2.—Le Devoir, Henri Bourassa's paper, takes Mayor Guerin to task for taking part in the laying of the corner-stone of the First Presbyterian Church on Saturday last. That paper claims that the act of the mayor was reprehensible, because Catholics should not take part in a non-Catholic worship.

"It is not without a sentiment of goodness," adds Le Devoir, "that we protest against the conduct of the Mayor of Montreal. He has given so many proofs of his devotion to the church in the organization of the eucharistic congress, and, we also say with pleasure, that he had refused to distribute the prizes to the Lycee des Jeunnes Filles, an institution presided over by a Freemason."

Crashed Into Street Car.

Ottawa, Sept. 2.—Dashing in towards the city along Sussex street yesterday at a high rate of speed, an automobile, in which Percy Shaver, chauffeur, and Percy Harris, suddenly swerved across the car tracks to avoid running a carriage, in which Mrs. Edwards, wife of Senator Edwards, was seated, and crashed into a street car, badly damaging the latter, and also the automobile, which finally brought up at the railing of the high embankment.. None of the passengers on the street car were injured, but Mr. Harris sustained severe contusions on his right leg.

Eight-Year-Old Boy Drowned.

Huntsville, Sept. 2.—After forty-eight hours of almost continuous searching, the searchers for Larry Hebner, the eight-year-old son of Hiram Hebner, were attracted to the shore of Hunters Bay where a small whip owned by the boy was found lying. Shortly after his body was recovered in six feet of water.

The little chap was first missed from his home on Monday night at six o'clock.

How They Do In Germany.

Did the King Pepper Him?

London, Sept. 2.—King George, known as the best hunting shot in England, is believed to be the one who accidentally shot Lord Kilmarnock during a hunt Wednesday at Ballater, near Balmoral Castle.

It turned out, however, that the wounds were slight, and, aside from possible scars, his lordship will be none the worse for his experience.

Jury Blames Officials.

WOMEN AND TROUSERS.

Thoughts Suggested by the Recent Decision Rendered In Kansas.

When a Kansas woman addressed a letter to the Attorney-General of the state asking him if there was any law forbidding her wearing trousers, the matter caused considerable comment. The woman was a plain, sensible person who worked hard to support herself and children on a small farm, and in this employment she found skirts encumbering and awkward. She decided that she could wear trousers with comfort and convenience provided the law would permit.

There is something fine about this Kansas woman's position. She did not simper and treat the subject frivolously, but went straight to the point. There is no hint of immodesty or "mannishness" about the proposition and it certainly is not a joke with her. And it is gratifying to note that the Attorney-General assured her that she could wear trousers if she cared to do so without offence either legal or ethical.

Civilization, among other things, has made us slaves of sartiorial custom. We wear conventional clothing as a voluntary concession to what we deem the proprieties, but in reality we are hopelessly possessed with the fear of criticism. To be sure, we vary the quality and the designs of articles of apparel, but fundamentally we cling to the same set rules of habiliments which our fathers and grandfathers inherited. The absurdity of custom is illustrated in many forms, but it is particularly conspicuous in matters of dress. A woman, for instance, will wear a dinner gown cut alarmingly low fore and aft, with a train that drags behind like a comet's tail. At the seashore this same woman will wear a bathing suit that exposes the nether limbs to the knees, but carefully covers the throat and shoulders. A gentleman hesitates, often, to appear in his shirt sleeves in the bosom of his family, but when out bathing he will don a one-piece garment that is a disgrace to decency.

Why should not women wear trousers? In the Orient women wear trousers and men wear skirts. There is nothing immodest about trousers that should make them appropriate for man and inappropriate for women. Certainly some of the gowns of the present day are more shocking in their revelations than trousers could possibly be. Of course, men's attire does not hold many possibilities for orative effect, and for this reason if for no other it will probably never become generally popular for feminine wear. But when a woman has the nerve, the energy, and the independence to work a farm, she certainly is entitled to assume the livery of the head of the house.

A Japanese Custom.

In Japan the well-to-do have almost always in the houses one room called the "chamber of the inspiring view." Its essential is a beautiful view, but taste is catholic in Japan, and the delightful view may be a blossoming cherry tree, a glimpse of a river, a miniature garden or only the newly fallen snow. In this delightful country they get up parties to visit the maple trees in the glory of autumn color or the fresh, untrodden snow, as in this country one gives theatre parties and dinners. Mushroom hunts are a fashionable diversion, and verse writing and harp playing are occupations which, in the estimation of these eternal children, befit the gentlewoman when she is within doors.

Praise Your Wife.

Praise your wife, man, for pity's sake—praise your wife when she deserves it! It won't injure her any, though it may frighten her some from its strangeness. If you wish to make and keep her happy give her a loving word occasionally. If she takes pains to make you something pretty don't take it with only: "Yes, it is very pretty. Won't you hand me my paper?" It will take you only a minute's time to kiss her and tell her she is the best wife in town. You will find it to be a paying investment—one which will yield you a large return in increased care and willing labor for your comfort. Loving praise will lighten labor wonderfully and should be freely bestowed.

No Vowels In It.

Many places have curious names, but apparently there is only one place which has a name without any vowels. That place is the little hamlet of Ws, near Paris. Ws being an unpronounceable name, the inhabitants of the hamlet have transformed it into "D'Us," but this change has not been sanctioned legally, and on all official records the name Ws still appears. The hamlet has 117 inhabitants, and its sole attractions are the Chateau d'Osny, which has been for many years in the possession of Edmond About's family, and the Chateau de Vigny, which is one of the best specimens of the renaissance style of architecture.

Not the Fish He Caught.

"Say," said Baitman as he passed the fish dealer's stand, "send up a couple of nice bass to the house tomorrow."

"All right, sir," answered the dealer.

"And be sure they are bass," continued Baitman. "You see, I'm going—er—out—of town for the day, and—er—the last time I went I told my wife I was going trout fishing, and you sent up a salt mackerel. Another error like that on your part and there will be strained relations in my family. See?"

Not Accountable.

Hints Worth Taking.

For Rainy Days.—A good way to keep your skirt from getting dirty and wet on rainy days is to put a piece of black elastic with hook and eye on ends around the hips over your skirt. Pull up the skirt on all sides, put on your coat, and no one will notice it. The skirt will stay up and relieve you of holding and crushing it.

For the Mattress.—When cleaning house get a quarter of a yard of strong ticking and cut and sew double on the sides of your mattress for handles. You will find it a great help in lifting and turning the mattress over.

Keys.—Try tying keys to doorknobs with a loop of narrow ribbon. It will save a search for a missing key, particularly if there are small children in the house who are fond of taking keys away.

A Nail Hint.—Nails used in bathrooms and kitchens on which damp cloths and towels may be hung should be painted with white enamel so that they do not leave rusty marks.

For the Face.—To protect the face when sweeping or doing other dusty work smear cold cream on face and neck generously and dust talcum powder over it. This saves the pores of the skin from getting clogged with the dust.

Good Soap For Boys.—Pick up bits of soap that are left around the house, melt, stir in cornmeal to thicken and make cakes of the mass. When cold this makes excellent soap for the small boys to get dirt out of their knuckles.

Try Them For Dinner.

For strawberry patties take one and a half heaping tablespoonfuls of powdered gelatin, half a cupful of boiling water, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, four tablespoonfuls of sugar, one pound of strawberries and three-quarters of a pint of whipped cream. Pick the strawberries and rub sufficient of them through a sieve to make half a pint of puree. Warm this puree slightly, then add gelatin dissolved in the boiling water, sugar and lemon juice. Allow to cool slightly and fold in whipped cream. Divide the mixture into fresh patty cases and set away in a cool place. Decorate with whipped cream and ripe strawberries.

The German Girl's Hope Chest.

Every German girl has a hope chest. This is much different from the dowry chest which the American girl on becoming engaged begins to fill in advance of her wedding day. The German maiden begins to stock her hope chest even before she meets the man to whom she is to be married. She begins to save for her wedding day long before she is engaged. She is imbued with a sense of thrift and also with an ambition to have a larger dowry than her mother had. Often the German girl begins to collect things when she enters her teens. Silently she saves her money to use in buying articles for her chest. With skill she embroiders her initials on each article of linen. Thus by the time she is engaged to be married she is thoroughly equipped with hundreds of little articles that are useful in housekeeping.

Prosperous Germany.

NUMBER OF EMIGRANTS IS DECREASING, OWING TO THE PROTECTIVE POLICY.

A remarkable proof of the prosperity of Germany under its protective tariff is the diminution in the number of emigrants. Thirty years ago 200,000 Germans left their country every year; now the annual number of emigrants is approximately 20,000.

Official statistics show that the population of Germany already numbers 64,-750,000, and at the present rate of increase the population will be fully 65,000,000 when the next census is taken on December 1st. The increase of Germany's population for some time past has been approximately 1,000,000 per annum.

Forty years ago France and Germany had almost equal populations—40,000,000 in each case. Now Germany has 65,000,000 and France only 39,000,000, and the effect of this change on the political and military situation in Europe is evident.

The remarkable growth of German population is continuing in spite of the reduction of birth-rate from 42 per 1,000 in 1875 to 33 per 1,000 in 1908. The contributory causes are the reduction of the death-rate from 27 per 1,000 in 1885 to nineteen per 1,000 in 1909, and the diminution of emigration.

The Steward, B. C. correspondent of the Grand Trunk Pacific Passenger Department reports that the work at all the mines in the vicinity of Stewart is being vigorously pushed, and new strikes is being made on many of the properties. The Red Cliff Mine has let the contract for a large water power plant to supply power for their compressor, electric light and other objects. Lumber has been ordered for large ore bunkers to build as soon as possible. A new strike has been made on the Waterloo claim of the Redcliff group and from present indications it promises to be equally as large as their wonderful showing. Values are of a higher character.

Portland Canal Mining Company have their aerial tram in operation, the concentrator is practically completed, and this mine will very shortly be shipping ore.

The Mann interests are being extensively developed and very rich ore bodies have been opened up on several of their bonded properties. This practically assures us that many of their obligations respecting bonds on mining properties will be taken up.

Business in general in the town of Stewart is exceptionally good. Building operations are going ahead at a very rapid rate, and two large additions to one of the leading hotels are being rushed to completion to supply the demand for accomodation.

The Portland Canal Lumber Company Ltd., a subsidiary Company of the Fraser River Mills, Vancouver, B. C. have started the erection of a large sawmill on the townsite of Stewart which wil have a capacity of 50,000 feet per day.

IN OLD ANNAPOLIS.

Things Were Primitive But Happy In the First Settlement.

Annapolis, formerly Port Royal, was a "garrison town" from the time of its founding by De Monts in 1604, until, in 1853, it ceased to be the capital of the Province of Nova Scotia, and the troops were withdrawn and stationed at Halifax, and is therefor the oldest settlement in Canada.

Just how comfortably the early residents of Annapolis lived, and with how much affluence, is seen in the description given in the writings of M. Dierville, who was in Port Royal about 1699. The town had then been settled over ninety years, and so had arrived to very fair pretentions as a pioneer in the wilderness, although no more progress had been made than was the necessary outcome of an increased immigration.

Of the residents, Dierville says:—"They feed themselves and have surplus to sell. Hemp and flax prosper. Some use no other cloth but homespun. The wool is good, and most of the inhabitants are dressed in their own woollen homespun. Fruits, pulse and garden stuffs are excellent. Provisions are cheap; wheat 40 sous per bushel, the bushel weighs forty-one and one-half pounds; beef is two sous a pound; a pair of chickens, 10 sous; eggs, five sous per dozen; and hares, four sous apiece. (A sous, it may be mentioned, about equals a cent in our currency.) Game plenty. The founders of Port Royal knew the country well before they selected it as their fortress. They had forts at Port La Tour, at Le Have and at Muscoudabout. These all belonged to individuals, and when a good understanding existed amongst them, which was but rarely, they used to come to Port Royal for refreshments. But it is to be remarked that except Port Royal and Le Have, where they cultivated lands and carried on the fisheries, the other posts were only kept up for trading with the savages. Port Royal is, then, the general store of the country, and fortifying it protects Minas also, where corn is now raised, and cattle."

The first Town Council of Annapolis after its final occupation by the English was organized in the spring of 1720 by Governor Phillips. The members of that board were ten in number. The first work of this council was evidently in the line of superintendence of public repairs. The town was in a bad condition according to report of Governor Phillips. When he landed in April he found the place "in as bad a state as was possible to describe, both within and without."

The criminal courts of these early councils were the occasions of decidedly amusing proceedings. The Jean Picot affair and her sentence to "ducking at high water" have become familiar in history, and other sentences to the early offenders of justice were equally strange and ridiculous. In September, 1716, one Robert Nicols was charged with assaulting one of the officers of the garrison, and a court of four councillors found him guilty and passed the following sentence:—

"You being found guilty by H. M. Council for this Province of the crime wherewith thou art charged, the punishment, therefore, inflicted on thee is to sit upon a gallows three days, half an hour each day, with a rope about thy neck, and a paper upon thy breast whereon shall be wrote, in capital letters, "AUDACIOUS VILLAIN," and afterwards thou art to be whipt at a cart's tail from the prison house up to the uppermost house of the Cape, and from thence back again to prison house, receiving each hundred paces five stripes upon your bare back with a cat-of-nine-tails, and then thou are to be turned over for a soldier."

Evidently to be a soldier was not so high an honor as it once had been. Another sentence given in 1732 was that the prisoner should be publicly whipped "at the cart's tail" at four places in the town, and at each place to receive five stripes on his bare back with a cat-o'-nine tails.

Piracy was rampant in Annapolis during the early years of the eighteenth century, and not only was serious damage done to the property by these attacks, but the onslaughts were usually accompanied with loss of life. There was thus a large element of precariway towards the prosperity with malcontents on every hand spreading dissatisfaction and alarm.

In August, 1781, the town was attacked by two rebel schooners carrying twelve guns each. The ships came up the harbor under cover of night and landed their men, unobserved.

It was a genuine freebooters' excursion, with plans well laid and skilfully executed. The garrison was first attacked, the sentries silenced and the fort taken, while the soldiers slept. As soon as the day broke they turned their attention to the town, surrounded the houses, and, capturing every man and boy, locked them in the fort. Two of the inhabitants more daring than the rest, attempted to escape. They were discovered and promptly hung from the yard-arm of one of the schooners. Their fate served as a warning to any others who might be disposed to make a dash for freedom. After the whole town had been plundered, the guns in the fort spiked, the pirates made off, carrying with them the spoils of a most successful expedition.

A Different Sort of Doctor.

Dr. Charles Harriss, the well-known Canadian musician and composer, who has arranged and will conduct the Empire Concert at the forthcoming pageant to be held at the Crystal Palace, told an amusing story about himself the other day, says M.A.P.

Whilst Dr. Harris was on his way to South Africa, he desired to keep his identity a secret.

During the voyage a gentleman managed to get into conversation with the musician, and asked him if he would medically examine his little girl who was with him on the boat.

"My dear sir," replied Dr. Harriss, "I have never examined a child in my life."

Ten minutes later he overheard the gentleman say, in the smoking-room: "There you are! Didn't I say that man was a fraud!"

Complain of Custom Duties.

London, Sept. 2.—It is believed that arrangements will be made for the Queen's Own to march through the city. The desire for this is being more widely expressed every day. The messing arrangements at Rushmoor were on the lines of the rifle brigade. The junior army and navy stores have taken over Government rations, and have furnished cooks, carvers, mess tins, and table equipments, which are on a better scale than those of the regulars. Sergt. Ellingsworth has gone to Edinburgh to visit his old regiment, the 93rd.

Hon. W. S. Fielding, William Laidlaw, K.C., and Miss Laidlaw, visited the camp yesterday. Gen. Lomas dined with the officers at the Queen Hotel Wednesday night.

Complaint is still being made of the ungraciousness of the officials in connection with the customs duties. Sir Henry Pellatt has also been compelled to take out a license for his auto. The Ordnance Department is charging for blank ammunition, but it is hoped and believed that when Mr. Haldane's attention is directed to the matter it will be righted.

May Jeopardize Civic Plant.

Winnipeg, Sept. 2.—The city authorities are seriously alarmed at the permission granted the Minnesota Power & Canal Co. to divert 600 cubic feet per second from Birch Lake basin at Rainy River watershed into the St. Louis River. This diversion may seriously jeopardize the Winnipeg civic power plant on the Winnipeg River. The board of control has instructed its secretary to forward to the International Waterways Commission a request that the U. S. Secretary of War permit be held until the effect of the diversion can be estimated.

Hookworm Causes Ossification.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 2.—Physicians are greatly interested in the case of M. L. Peaden, a farmer of Pitt County, North Carolina, who is in an hospital here for special treatment to prevent a form of ossification. His condition is regarded as due to an attack of hookworm disease, which he suffered two years ago.

Deaths Now Number Nine.

Durand, Mich., Sept. 2.—Clinton A. Davis of Montreal, who was scalded in the Grand Trunk wreck near here last Wednesday night, died here yesterday. This brings the known deaths up to nine. Davis' mother, Mrs. Alma Ward, and the latter's nurse were killed. He was 26 years old.

TWO STOCK DEALS.

Sherwood Took Flood's Boast and Later Handed It Back.

In Joseph L. King's "History of the San Francisco Stock and Exchange Board" is this story of Flood and Sherwood:

In the early days, in the seventies, quite a number of operators would gather together in Cahill's office on Montgomery street, near California. Among them were Mr. James C. Flood and Mr. Robert Sherwood. Sherwood had 1,000 Consolidated Virginia, the stock selling at about $100. One day Sherwood, on looking at the prices, remarked that he was getting tired of that Consolidated Virginia; it did not move much. Mr. Flood said: "What are you growling about? If you are tired of that stock I will take it off your hands at $100." "Sold," said Sherwood, and the stock changed hands.

In course of time the Nevada bank building was erected on the corner of Pine and Montgomery streets. On meeting Sherwood one day Mr. Flood remarked, "We built that Nevada block on the profits of that 1,000 shares of Consolidated Virginia you sold us."

Band Concert at Children's Shelter

LARGE CROWD GATHERS TO ENJOY THE MUSIC—EVERYTHING CLEAN AND TIDY FOR THE CHILDREN.

At the Children's Shelter, situated at the corner of Moira and Frank streets, the spacious grounds were recently enclosed by the erection of a substantial fence. To provide for the payment of same and procure other necessaries for this deserving institution, a lawn social was held there last evening. Despite the fact that the air was chilly and the ground damp there was a large turnout and everybody appeared to enjoy themselves being conscious of the fact that they were assisting in making the little unfortunate inmates as happy as possible in the Shelter. The grounds were, with the aid of electric lights and chinese lanterns, illuminated for the occasion, whilst flags and bunting was used to decorate the front part of the building. The I. O. O. F. band which gratuitously gave its services rendered a programme which was thoroughly enjoyed. Booths where sweetmeats, ice cream, etc., could be procured were liberally patronized.

The interior of the Shelter was open for the inspection of guests, and during the evening every room and nook was seen. Everything about the place was scrupulously clean, and the children indicated that they were receiving every care. Miss Jamieson, the matron is certainly the right person in the right place. There are at present 12 children being cared for. In two years upwards of 200 children have been taken in at the Shelter, the great majority of whom are at present in foster homes.

Citizens generally appreciate the good work being done by the Children's Aid Society, and assist the officers and those in charge. Mr. Thos Ritchie, President, at his own expense, furnished a bath room with everything new and up-to-date. The Walton Company have signified their intention of providing a hardwood floor for the dining room, and the A. N. Pringle company, a similar floor for the reception room, Other needs were provided for by some visitors last evening.

It is estimated that the proceeds of the Social and cash donations amount to nearly $160.

Fell From Trestle, Fractured Two Ribs.

On Wednesday afternoon Mr Fred Harte, decorator, met with a painful accident. He was working upon a trestle at St. Agnes School Building when he fell, and in falling struck a radiator. The result was that he fractured two ribs and injured a third one. In consequence of the accident Mr. Harte will be laid up for some days.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

BASEBALL.

Grand Trunk vs. Park Nine.

The final game for the City Championship will be played at the Belleville Driving Park, Labor Day, Monday, September 5th.

This game promises to be one of the best games ever played in Belleville as both the Grand Trunk and Park Nine have been waiting to come together on that date. This game will be a rare treat for the fans, who have become numerous and highly touched with the ball-'bug' this season. It will be an opportunity for all lovers of the game to see some of the best amateur artists of both the east and west come together on that date.

Manager O'Flynn of the Park Nine expresses himself as satisfied that the team he will put on the field will be trained to the minute and will play "system" baseball; while on the other hand Manager Phil. Flagler of the Grand Trunks only smiles when you ask him what the result will be, He says that no matter which team wins, no excuses can be offered either way. His men are fit and ready, and will do battle to the bitter end.

The grounds are now being put in excellent condition, and when the umpire yells "play ball" at three p.m. on Monday afternoon, the fans who are not there when the teams line up will overlook one good bet.

This will be the greatest game ever played in Eastern Ontario, and it is rumored that Joe Kelly, the manager of the Toronto team, will have one of his scouts here to get a line on some of the players.

Mind Unbalanced, Thinks he is Rich.

Yesterday afternoon a man named Henry Scales, of this city, was taken in charge by the police, owing to the fact that he was acting strangely. The unfortunate man is unbalanced in mind, and his conversation is briefly in regard to procuring £10,000, which he claims is in a bank here to his credit, the same being procured for real estate which he disposed of. This morning Scales was remanded to jail in order that he may be examined as to his mental condition.

Dr. H. A. Yeomans, Medical Health Officer, city.

Dear Sir, I submit herewith for your approval the figures showing the quality of milk of twenty-one samples gathered from the different vendors to-day.

I am pleased to report to you that the quality of these samples are the best average milk I have tested for you since I began some years ago and, I feel that our labors have not been in vain. Although your milk has by no means reached perfection in quality, I find in most samples "Not Clean in flavor," some more pronounced than others. This in my opinion is caused by careless milking, neglect in proper cleaning utensils, and the neglect of cooling to 60F. degrees immediately after the milk is drawn from the cow. I believe a large number of the milk vendors are endeavoring to do their duty, but they are handy-capped by the farmers where they buy their milk, and you should invent some means to reach the producers of the milk on the farms and give them proper instructions as to the care of milk. Dairy stables and surroundings should be inspected to see that they are sweet and clean. This is very important just at this time, as the cows go into their winter quarters in the course of six or eight weeks and unless care is taken the quality of your milk will go back. I have the honor to be sir,

Your obedient servant,
J. A. KERR.

SUFFERED THREE YEARS

Till Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cured his Kidney Trouble

There are few diseases that cause more acute suffering than Kidney Trouble, and Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Sudbury Ont., is one of those who know it. He writes: "For over three years I suffered from kidney disease. First I thought I had sprained my back, for suddenly the pain would catch the small of my back and it would be impossible for me to straighten myself up for several minutes. A dull ache across the kidneys was always present, my urine was thick and cloudy, and passing it caused a burning, scalding pain. Tried medicines, but they failed. I was advised to try Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, as they had cured my wife years before. A few boxes affected a complete cure. I now enjoy the blessings of good health, which is due to this remedy."

Don't neglect kidney trouble—it's too dangerous as well as too painful. That old, reliable family remedy, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, has cured thousands and will cure you. It is equally effective in curing constipation and its attendant evils, biliousness, indigestion and sick headaches, and in purifing the blood. 25c a box at your druggist's. 10

VANNUTELLI ARRIVES

Papal Legate Gets Brilliant Reception at Quebec.

Ancient Capital Is Thronged With Catholics, Who Give a Magnificent Ovation to Italian Prelate and to Cardinal Logue, Primate of Ireland —Brodeur and Murphy Are Present in Behalf of the Government.

Quebec, Sept. 2.—Cardinal Vannutelli arrived at Quebec yesterday afternoon at 4.20 o'clock on the Government steamer Lady Grey, which had gone to meet the Empress of Ireland, on which the cardinal had journeyed from Liverpool. The welcome of the Government was tendered to the cardinal on board the Lady Grey by Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and by Hon. Charles Murphy, who had embarked for the purpose.

The arrival of the papal legate took place on the King's Wharf, which presented one of the most brilliant scenes that Quebec has ever witnessed. The gorgeously attired bishops and high dignitaries of the church, the robed civic authorities, the array of papal zouaves, the cheering multitudes, the thronged thoroughfares, the historic basilica, packed to overflowing, all combined for a unique occasion.

Above all the pomp and brilliance of the scene, the personality of the legate will be remembered the longest.

No more striking personage has ever visited Canada. Some had wondered how a man 74 years of age would stand the fatigue of the ceremonies, but a glance at this tall, virile, resolute figure set all doubts at rest. In stature, head and shoulders above the assembly that welcomed him, his strong, decisive, but kind features proclaimed him a veritable king of men.

CARDINAL VANNUTELLI.

Without the slightest trace of pomposity, but with the easy grace of magnanimous power, he dominated the scene, a prelate, who, to judge by the clue of physiognomy, would have a heart for any crisis and a wisdom that would never fail.

The cardinal was obviously delighted with the warmth of his reception. On the Dufferin terrace, outside the Hotel Frontenac, two throngs had been here, one for the legate and the other for Cardinal Logue.

The Irish primate contributed a welcome touch of humor to the scene by taking a pinch of snuff at an opportune moment. His action was cheered by the Irish element, who cheered at once.

On the terrace addresses of welcome were tendered by Archbishop Begin and the mayor of Quebec. Around the throne sat Bruchesi, Archbishop of Montreal, who had met the cardinal legate at Father Point, Mgr. Birgin, Mgr. Touchet, Bishop of Orleans; Mgr. Ilsley, Bishop of Birmingham; Mgr. Roy, auxiliary Bishop of Quebec; Mgr. Mathieu, Mgr. Northrs Mgr. Boleau, Mgr. March, Bishop of Havre de Grace, Newfoundland; Mgr. Legal, Bishop of St. Albert, Sask.; Mgr. Tetu, Mgr. Marois, Sir Lomer Gouin, Judge Cannon and numerous other celebrated men.

The terrace was crowded to overflowing. The whole city seemed to have mustered for the welcome. Fully 20,000 people thronged the streets. The hotels were packed. Prices high and accommodation difficult to obtain, yet no one would have believed it in the the morning. The town seemed half empty, and wore its immemorial aspect of slumberous mediaevalism.

And then suddenly the calm lifted, and throngs seemed to spring from unguessed sources, and the streets filled with applauding crowds and happy children and earnest votaries of the church; monks, nuns and priests without number.

Archbishop Begin in his speech dwelt eloquently on the glorious annals of the church in Canada. It was at Tadousac, which his eminence had passed, he said, that the first mass in Canada was said. He spoke of the loyalty of Quebec to the faith, and, after assuring his eminence that they considered themselves honored in Canada by being chosen as the first country in America for a Eucharistic Congress, they expressed their gratification at the visit of so distinguished a prince of the church as Cardinal Vannutelli.

The cardinal, who, on rising, was greeted with tumultuous applause, declared his delight with the magnificent and cordial welcome he had received from the first moment of setting foot in Canada. First of all he assured them that he had a mission from the holy father, which he would at once fulfill, namely, to assure them of the holy father's love and benediction. (Loud applause.)

The annals of the church in Canada showed an origin of marvelous heroism. The faith had been planted in the blood of the martyr, and to look at the crowds in Quebec to-day was to feel that in devotion to the faith the sons of the church were not degenerate. (Applause.) They had followed in the footsteps of their pioneer fathers.

In closing, the cardinal declared that he welcomed the manifestation as a happy augury of the future. They would all, he said, work to bring together the number of the faithful of every origin and race, to the fact of the God who dwells in our tabernacles.

In the evening a solemn service of benediction was held at the Basilica, which was filled to overflowing.

Object to Troops Parading.

Ottawa, Sept. 2.—Has the Roman Catholic Church the right to order out the Canadian militia to participate in processions and functions designed to honor that especial church in this land?

This question has been raised in its most acute form by the announcement that pontificial legate, Cardinal Vannutelli will, upon his arrival in Montreal on Saturday evening next, be received by a guard of honor of the Duke of York's Canadian Hussars, from the wharf to the residence of Lord Strathcona, and that the militia of Montreal generally would participate in the fetes connected with the eucharistic congress.

S. F. Jarvis, assistant deputy minister of militia, has replied to the objections that application had been made by certain militia units in Montreal for leave to turn out officially to take part in the parades of the eucharistic congress, but such application had been peremptorily refused. But intimation was made that if any individual members of a militia unit desired to turn out in uniform unofficially no objection would be taken.

It is officially stated that the troops ordered by the Government as an escort for Cardinal Vannutelli is a squadron of regular cavalry, which is to be brought from St. Johns, Que., for that purpose.

Vivian to Teach Town Planning.

Toronto, Sept. 2.—Town planning and town housing was the subject of a most interesting address delivered by Henry Vivian, M.P. for Birkenhead, Eng., before the Union of Canadian Municipalities at the City Hall yesterday afternoon. Mr. Vivian, who is on a three months' visit to Canada, arrived in Toronto yesterday.

Proper regulation in regard to the laying out of a city to meet future requirements he believed to be one of the most important movements in England at the present time, and to illustrate the effect of the movement he contrasted the physical condition of the school children living in the congested slum of Liverpool and those residing in Port Sunlight, a city of model homes for the working classes.

"Such a difference in conditions and surroundings," he said, "has produced almost a different creature."

On account of his interest in the movement he had come to Canada on an invitation from Earl Grey, to give some useful information in planning the opening of new streets and the housing of the people so as to meet the demands of health and beauty.

Don't Affect Preference.

London, Sept. 2.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, interviewed by The Morning Post, said that there was nothing in the free trade movement in Canada to interfere with the British preference. Laurier's speech as cabled Wednesday, represented Canadian opinion exactly. The British preference was the cardinal feature of the tariff, but Canada was united to the motherland in heart and life, independent of all tariff arrangements.

Smyth surrendered to the police.

SPORT IN ENGLAND.

A Pheasant Run Is Not a Branch of the Poultry Business.

"A Plain American in England," by Charles T. Whitefield, is a highly amusing diatribe on the gentle art of British entertainment. It appears in the American Magazine, and in the course of some descriptions of English customs the author relates the following incident, which happened at a pheasant run:

"A friend for whom I have a great admiration took me to see a pheasant run. The place looked just like a big chicken yard such as we have at home. There were hundreds of the birds feeding on scraps and grain thrown to them by the keeper. I had seen strings of these birds hanging up in the markets for sale at low prices, had bought their eggs in the swell restaurants at high prices, and I naturally supposed that this trade was conducted like any other branch of the poultry business. When you have been in England a short time you realize that you must approach the subject of trade or business with some delicacy, but I longed to know the modus operandi of poultry packing among the swells. I wondered if they could teach our Chicago stockyards anything. So I asked the keeper in my broadest English:

"'How do you collect and ship these birds?'

"'Collect 'em, sir?'

"'Yes,' I said, 'how do you kill them and get them to market?'

"'We don't kill 'em. We send in beaters and shoot 'em. It's great sport, sir!'

"That seemed to me a disgusting proposition—to beat a flock of tame, harmless pets to death and shoot them besides—and I remonstrate:

"'Why don't you simply wring their necks with a quick twist of the wrist, insuring a rapid and painless death, and then'—

"But my friend grasped me violently by the arm and drew men abruptly away. I felt badly about it, because this good and valuable host said it would be at least twenty years before he could look that gamekeeper in the face with tranquillity."

TOO GOOD A SHAVE.

It Lulled Budd to Sleep While the Price of Stocks Tumbled.

One of the anecdotes in Joseph L. King's "History of the San Francisco Stock Exchange Board" is as follows:

While stocks were quite low during a spell in 1873 a discovery of ore was made in Ophir, the stock advancing in price. It was the policy of those in control of a Comstock mine to keep secret any improvement until they could secure for themselves a good quantity of the stock.

Budd heard of this Ophir discovery and bought some stock, and as the price advanced from $16 to $85 the profits on his purchases at low figures enabled him to buy more stocks. Being quite a plunger, he purchased in all 2,500 shares. As the stock still advanced to higher figures he sold about 1,500 shares, leaving him a balance of 1,000 shares when the stock reached $82, which would have given him quite a large profit if all were sold at that figure.

During the recess that day he determined to sell the remainder, which would give him quite a profit. The afternoon session was devoted to the calling of outside stocks, occupying half an hour, after which the members would call up, through the chairman, any of the Comstock shares. Budd, thinking he had time sufficient during that first half hour to get shaved, sat down in a barber's chair and, being quite flush, gave the barber $5, directing him to give him a good shave. It turned out to be too good a shave, as Budd went to sleep, and the barber, being well paid, devoted quite a time in making his customer appear respectable. Budd woke up, looked at his watch and made a rush for the board. He ascertained that Ophir had been called and had broken so badly that when his stock was sold he only obtained $40 a share for it.

He always claimed that that shave cost him just $10,000.

Getting Into a Life Buoy.

The average person in danger of drowning usually attempts to lift a life buoy over his head, with the result that he is immediately plunged deeper into the water. A good swimmer can do this with a sudden upward jerk, but with the nonswimmer it is almost an impossible feat. What he should do when he has seized the buoy is to place both hands, palms downward, on the buoy on the part nearest the body, pressing it downward and slightly away, when the farther part of the buoy will rise out of the water and actually fall over the head. The arms can then be put through easily, "and there you are."

Just the Same.

"Try one of these light biscuits," the bride suggested. "I thought they might be a welcome change from bread."

"Fine!" exclaimed the young husband. "Just like those we got at the bakery when I was living at home."

"That's where I got them," she said. —Buffalo Express.

A Softened Expression.

"Father," said the small boy, "what is a 'euphemism?'"

"It is something, my son, that enables a man to say he is a free lance instead of admitting that he is out of a job."—Washington Star.

A cruel story runs on wheels, and every hand oils the wheels as they run.—Eliot.

A BROKEN DRIVING ROD.

The Disaster Most Dreaded by the Locomotive Engineer.

The close calls that whiten the engineer's hair are mostly due to some one else's error or oversight which he cannot foresee or prevent. That many of these close calls do not result fatally is due to the engineer's swift and skillful meeting of the emergency.

The great driving wheels on which most of the enormous weight on the locomotive rests are connected by massive jointed bars of forged steel. The ends of these are attached to the wheels about halfway between the axis and circumference. It is through these bars, called driving rods, that the wheels receive their impulse from the imprisoned steam. These rods weigh thousands of pounds each. Occasionally one of their fastenings will break, and then every revolution of the wheel to which the other end is attached will send the rod swinging like a titan's flail, beating down 300 strokes a minute. Nothing can withstand these awful blows. They tear up the track below and shatter the engine above, especially the cab where rides the engineer. No disaster comes so unexpectedly and is so much dreaded as this. Almost invariably it happens when the engine is running at high speed. When a driver breaks it is a miracle if the men in the cab escape with their lives. If they do survive and by their heroism succeed in stopping the train and avoiding a wreck despite the rain of blows from this huge flail of steel their act brings forth a greater measure of praise than almost any other form of bravery that the railroad knows.

Only the other day one of the driving rods of a fast passenger locomotive broke while the train was running more than sixty miles an hour down the steep grades of Pickerel mountain. In an instant the whirling bar of steel had smashed the cab and broken the controlling mechanism, so that it was impossible to bring the train to a stop by ordinary means. The great locomotive lunged forward like a runaway horse that had thrown its rider. In some way, however, Lutz, the engineer, had escaped injury. He crept to the opposite side of the cab and climbed out through the little window upon the boiler to try to reach some of the controlling apparatus from the outside. He was working himself astride along the scorching boiler when suddenly the engine struck a curve, which it took at terrific speed. The shock half threw the engineer from his perilous position, but he saved himself by grasping the bell rope. Then he worked himself down along the uninjured side of the swaying locomotive to where he could open one of the principal steam valves. A cloud of vapor rushed forth with a tremendous roar. Although robbed of its power, the locomotive did not slacken speed until it reached the bottom of the grade. Then little by little the thrashing of the great diving rod, which was pounding the upper part of the engine to pieces, grew slower, and finally it stopped. No one was killed or injured, and not a passenger in the long train knew until it was over of the danger that had been avoided so narrowly. — Thaddeus S. Dayton in Harper's Weekly.

A Rare Old Book.

The second book printed in the English language was "The Game and Playe of the Chess," which the title page says was "Fynyshid the last day of Marche, the yer of our lord god a thousand foure hondred and LXXIIj." Only twelve copies of the work are now known to exist. In 1813 an Englishman of the name of Alchorne sold his copy for a sum equal to $270 in United States currency. Fifty-six years later, in 1869, the same volume (an imperfect copy) was sold for $2,150. The British museum has refused an offer of $10,000 for its copy, which is imperfect to the extent of having seven leaves missing.

The Making of Words.

Dean Swift protested against "speculations, operations, preliminaries, ambassadors, pallisadoes, communication, circumvallation, battalions," as newfangled expressions brought into common use by the war of his day. Today nearly all these are the most orthodox English. In his time "mob" seems commonly to have been written "mobb," and "phizz" also had the doubled consonant. Hence his complaint that "we cram one syllable and cut off the rest, as the owl fattened her mice after she had bit off their legs to prevent them from running away."

Paris Detectives Discover a Wide Spread Plot to Overthrow British Rule In India

Intelligencer Special.

London, Eng., Sept. 3 — Official circles are much stirred over a despatch received this morning of the discovery by detectives there of a widespread revolutionary plot to overthrow British rule in India. It seems that under the name of "Madame Cama," bureaus in Paris, Geneva and Berlin have been operating for monhs sending out seditious literature and quietly circulating it among the Hindoos "Let us fill ourselves with the hauty spirit of our ancestors," says this revolutionary call. British rule shall die and there shall be a new era for Hindustan." The programme is to start a revolution by simultaneous guerilla warfare all over India, stops the railways, cut telegraph wires and harass the British till they are glad to get out. With sixty million of Hindoos to help, says the literature, this result should soon be brought about.

Signalmen on N.Y.C. Go Out on Strike.

(Intelligence. Special.)

Buffalo, Sept. 3.—Signalmen are out all over the New York Central Railway system. They are on strike for more pay and better hours. Officials of the road belittle the effect of the strike, and trains are running about as usual.

Vannutelli Receives A Great Reception.

Intelligencer Special.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 3.—Even more impressive than the reception at Quebec was that given to Cardinal Vannutelli, the Ambassador of the Pope, and his distinguished retinue, here this afternoon, when His Eminence landed from the Government steamer Lady Grey. After the ceremonies on landing, a procession was formed, and the high dignitaries of the church wended their way through lanes formed by crowds of cheering, though respectful, people. After the address of welcome presented by Mayor Guerin, His Eminence replied, expressing his gratitude for the enthusiastic welcome from all sides. Then the procession started up Beaver Hill and along Dorchester street to the residence of Archbishop Bruchesi, and all the while the big bell of Notre Dame and all the hundreds of smaller bells chimed a welcome.

While the procession lost some of its brilliancy by the unexpected absence of the military, the mounted police made up a strong escort.

It was noticeable that many of the soldiers abstained from parading, and mingled in the crowds in their uniforms.

LOCOMOTIVE LEAVES TRACK AND MAN LOSES HIS LEG.

(Intelligencer Special.)

Frederickton, N. B., Sept. 3. — Edward Logan, of Gibson, Ont., had his leg amputated and may die as a result of the Toronto Construction Company's locomotive leaving the track on the Transcontinental near Miramichi.

ANOTHER PIPE DREAM.

Intelligencer Special.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 3 — In an interview this morning, Dr. Rutherford, of the Department of Agriculture poohooed the idea of Buffalo and Rochester syndicates trying to corner the production of cream in Central and Western Ontario. He said that Ontario farmers had the remedy in their own hands. They should build more factories and produce more cheese. However, he thought the United States the best customer for butter Canada had.

The French military authorities in Africa are bending every effort to increase the number of a species of camel which can travel more than twice as swiftly as the ordinary camel of commerce.

Fill Them Full of Lead.

Hammond, Ind., Sept. 3.—"Fill full of lead everyone apprehended in the act of attempting to wreck a train."

This order was issued yesterday from detective headquarters of the Nickle Plate Railway, as the result of four recent attempts to wreck Nickle Plate trains between Hammond and Hegewisch. The Chicago-New York flyer was nearly ditched near Hegewisch Thursday, rail bands and straps having been removed from two rails.

D. R. A. Winners.

Ottawa, Sept. 3.—The following are the winners of the Canadian Rifle League prizes, which were shot for at the D. R. A. meeting: Hon. the Minister of Militia's prize, $50—Col.-Sergt. James Freeborn, 13th Regt., Hamilton. President's prize, candelabra—Governor-General's Footguards, Ottawa. Vice-President's prize, cup—Lieut. A. J. Meiklejohn, 43rd Regt., Ottawa.

Struck by the Engine.

London, Ont., Sept. 3.—Mrs. J. M. Conn was struck by a Pere Marquette engine at the Maitland street siding last night and sustained injuries which, it is feared, may prove fatal. She was crossing the tracks as the train drew up, and failed to notice it in time.

Police Inspector Shot.

Simla, British India, Sept. 3.—A native police inspector, Sarat Chandra was shot and probably fatally wounded yesterday at Decca, where a number of young Indians are on trial for conspiracy against the Government. The assailants of the inspector are youths of good families.

Vegetable Cast Iron.

Official tests of the many valuable hard woods native to Western Australia have made known the extraordinary properties of yate, believed to be the strongest of all known woods. Its average tensile strength is 24,000 pounds to the square inch, equalling that of good cast iron. But many specimens are much stronger, and one was tested up to seventeen and a half tons to the square inch, which is equal to the tensile strength of wrought iron. The sawed timber of yate is probably the strongest in the world. The tree grows to a maximum height of a hundred feet and has sometimes a diameter of two and a half or even three feet.

Description of a Mountain.

"Jimmy," said the teacher, "what is a cape?"

"A cape is land extending into the water."

"Correct, William. Define a gulf."

"A gulf is water extending into the land."

"Good! Christopher," to a small, eager-looking boy, "what is a mountain?"

Christopher shot up from his seat so suddenly as to startle the teacher and promptly responded, "A mountain is land extending into the air."

The Unkindest Cut.

"We can bear the injustice of being deprived of voting," shouted the suffragist, "but we must protest, and protest with all the vigor of our womanhood, against man, who makes our state of political slavery the target for his insulting irony!

"Just to think," she resumed after taking a drink of water and a deep breath—"just to think of the noble form of woman being made to typify in marble, bronze and granite that which has never been here—liberty!"

The Girl Who Motors.

Here is a simple beauty suggestion. For the girl who motors, says an expert, an ounce of prevention is as valuable as the proverbial pound of cure.

Instead of getting the pores of the skin thoroughly filled with dust and dirt and then undoing the damage with cold cream she will find that her skin will be kept in better condition if she uses cold cream, taking care to rub it in thoroughly before putting on her veil. This prevents cold or dust injuring the skin, and just before she reaches her destination she can remove all traces of it with an old, soft handkerchief. All who have motored for some time take this precaution, but do not often impart the knowledge of it to their friends, although to do so would be a kindness.

Political Pilgrimage Comes to an End In Medicine Hat With a Speech Which Avoids the Issues, But Goes Into the History of the Liberal Government — Bouquets for Hon. Clifford Sifton.

Medicine Hat, Alta., Sept. 3.—On the conclusion of the meeting here yesterday afternoon, which was attended by 3,000 people, the greatest political tour which Canada has ever seen passes into history.

Political tour it has been, for, as E. M. Macdonald, the party champion from Nova Scotia, said: "Some opposition newspapers profess surprise that Sir Wilfrid and has colleagues are talking politics. I wonder what they thought we would talk about? Are they afraid of the comparison we have made, and will continue to make?"

Sir Wilfrid, in his speech, avoided any lengthy discussion of weighty questions. He deplored the fact that Medicine Hat had gone back on the Liberal faith, and hoped the condition was only temporary, and it would return to its former love at the next opportunity.

Sir Wilfrid dwelt retrospectively with the circumstances under which he called together the "cabinet of premiers." After mentioning the names of Sir Oliver Mowat and Hon. A. G. Blair, he said, with reference to the Ministry of the Interior: "I wanted a strong man: I wanted a man from the West. I found that man in Clifford Sifton." After that subsequent events had justified his choice. When Mr. Sifton resigned he found Hon. Frank Oliver ready to take up the work along the same lines as his predecessors. Referring to the condition which obtained when the Liberals came into office, the Premier said: "We determined to change those conditions by opening up this country."

What the result has been was apparent to all. The 70,000 American settlers who came into Canada last year had brought $70,000,000 of wealth in with them. "Under these circumstances," he exclaimed, "is it any wonder that the whole west has improved, and Canada is feeling bigger than ever?"

There was some difficulty, the Premier continued, in assimilating the foreigners who came to Canada, on account of her democratic institutions. He had met many Americans an the trip, and had asked one and all if they were satisfied, and the answer always was "Yes; we are satisfied, and are proud to become Canadian citizens and British subjects."

New Vessels Launched.

London, Sept. 3.—The plans of the Allan Steamship Co. for the improvement of its Canadian service provide for the construction of three turbine steamers, each 700 feet in length, registering 20,000 tons and having a speed of 22 knots an hour.

It appears that the existing agreement between the Allan line and the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. for carrying the mails will not be renewed, and the Allan people propose to have their new ships ready in 1912, when the mail contract expires, so that they will be in a position to carry all the transatlantic mails in their own vessels.

Gotham's Homeless Army.

New York, Sept. 3.—One thousand and one hundred cases of eviction were on the docket of the second district municipal court yesterday. Idleness hunger, misery and sickness walk the east side, because of the cloakmakers' strike. It is estimated that 5,000 women and children are homeless because of yesterday's proceedings alone. Thousands of other cases are in preparation.

The magistrate gave all the unfortunates from two days to a week grace, but it was only a makeshift for they have no money and no expectations of money.

Visiting Dressmaker.

When the visiting dressmaker comes to you remember that she is not a machine, capable of grinding out work with no wear upon her being. Insist upon the worker taking a rest two or three times a day. Take up to the sewing room a plate of fruit during a short intermission. Ask her to leave the scene of hostilities and walk with you to the end of the garden or street.

Make life worth living for this woman, whose lot is not the easiest. Why the fact that you hire her to come implies that you cannot stand the pressure and strain of a sewing siege. The visiting dressmaker has feelings and is entitled to a respectable and civil consideration of them. It is an evidence of a lack of good breeding to disregard the rights of a woman who is giving you the full value of her monetary compensation. It is always gratifying to know that you have lightened a burden by a little kind thoughtfulness.

PAYS VISIT TO SHRINE

Cardinal Vannutelli and Party Go to Ste. Anne De Beaupre.

Legate Leaves Quebec for Montreal on Government Steamer Lady Grey—He Visits the United Temperance Congress In Session at Laval and Gets a Great Ovation — Quebec Hotels Are Crowded.

Quebec, Sept. 3.—The cardinal legate and his party, which included the Archbishop of Montreal and other distinguished prelates, left Quebec yesterday afternoon for Montreal via Three Rivers and Sorel, by the Government steamer Lady Grey. The Minister of Marine, Hon. L. P. Brodeur, welcomed the party on board.

The legate had obviously been delighted with his stay in Quebec, and as he stood on the gangway of the Lady Grey on the point of departure, he expressed his thanks to the assembly, and gave them his blessing. On the King's wharf, whence the departure was made, were the papal Zouaves, including many veterans of the Italian campaign, acting as a guard of honor.

The large and brilliant assembly that gathered to bid his eminence Godspeed in his journey to the Eucharistic Congress at Montreal included Archbishop Begin, chief pastor of the Diocese of Quebec, and other dignitaries. The laity were represented by Mayor Drouin, corporation officials and other prominent citizens.

The day in Quebec had been spent less strenuously than the previous day. The morning opened with early mass at the Basilica, which was packed to overflowing the legate being celebrant, assisted by Archbishop Begin. After breakfast the party journeyed in motor cars to the shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre, which much interested the visitors. The afternoon was taken up with seeing the Plains of Abraham and the other historical landmarks.

On Saturday morning the legate and party will disembark at Three Rivers, where mass will be said at 6 a.m., and a welcome will be tendered by the Bishop of Three Rivers, who will accompany the party to Montreal. A stop will also be made at Sorel, where a welcome will be tendered by the Bishop of St. Hyacinthe, who will also journey to Montreal.

During his stay in Quebec the cardinal visited the Catholic Temperance Congress at Laval, where he received an ovation from a great gathering. He thanked them for the splendid welcome, and declared, amid laughter, that temperance was a cardinal virtue. He congratulated the gathering on the work the temperance societies were doing for the uplifting of humanity, and in closing he gave the assembly a blessing in the name of the Sovereign Pontiff.

During the two days of the legate's visit Quebec has been crowded, the hotel have been besieged by a constant stream of visitors, and accommodation has been at a premium and difficult to obtain.

Big British Lock-Out.

London, Sept. 3.—Lock-out notices were posted at all the federal shipyards at noon yesterday advising the members of the Boilermakers' Society that their services would be dispensed with after yesterday. Fifty thousand men are directly affected.

The trouble is due to a strike on Thursday of the riveters employed at the Walker Shipyard at Newcastle-on-Tyne. The employers claim that this constituted a breach of agreement and declared that those locked out will not be allowed to resume work until the Boilermakers' Society guarantees a fulfillment of the terms of the national agreements for the prevention of strikes and lock-outs.

Boys Blew In the Money.

New York, Sept. 3.—Recorder McGovern, in Hoboken yesterday, held two boys, one ten years old, and the other fourteen, in $200 bail each, on a charge of grand larceny. The prisoners were Henry Bier and Geo. Abram. The theft of which they are accused was committed on Bier's father, Morris Bier, who is proprietor of a bakery. The boys took 6,800 pennies and $18 in other money, and went to Coney Island. They had rid themselves of all their wealth when they were arrested.

Fatal Motor Boat Explosion.

New York, Sept. 3.—Miss Maides Carroll, a 16-year-old girl of Middletown, N.Y., and David Bolton of Hoboken, were drowned and five others nearly lost their lives Thursday afternoon, when a motor boat in which they were cruising on the Hackensack, sunk after the gasoline tank had exploded. The two bodies have not been recovered.

Wants to Fly to the Exhibition.

Rochester, N.Y., Sept. 3.—John J. Frisbie of this city announced yesterday, through his manager, Chas. W. Nelson, that if arrangements can be made with Dr. J. O. Orr, general manager of the Toronto Exhibition, that he would fly from Ontario Beach to the fair grounds, either the latter part of this week or the first of next.

Molten Metal Killed Him.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—Thomas Powers was burned to death and several others were seriously injured in the Illinois Steel Co.'s mills in South Chicago early yesterday when a giant ladle of molten metal was overturned. The man was directly beneath the ladle when the hot liquid mass showered down upon him.

The Smuggling Habit.

As long as it is considered a "smart" thing to outwit customs inspectors, perjure one's self and defraud one's country, the only way to put an end to polite smuggling will be to impose such punishments on offenders of both sexes as will bring home to the whole class of travellers who have no objection to making a profit out of a pleasure trip that the game is not worth the candle. Because of some strange, distorted idea of their relationship to the government and its regulations, women are notoriously the worst offenders in this branch of the business of smuggling; where it is organized on wholesale lines and conducted on strict business methods, it is the experience of the government officials that there is little attraction for the feminine mind. It is the casual, irregular chance to take advantage of one's skill and native wit that is irrestible. And no amount of argument or logic has ever been able to bring home to the conscience of many very good women that there is no distinction between saving money by making false customs declarations and saving it by taking goods one wants from the counters of a departmental store while the attendants are not looking.

There is no doubt that it will fail pretty heavily on the first cultured and respected woman who is made to pay the full penalty for attempting to swindle the government, but the good the example will do ought to compensate for the hardship to the individual. A case excellently in point has just come to public notice in New York. A woman of wealth and refinement, accompanied by her son and her daughter was caught attempting to smuggle jewels worth one hundred thousand dallars passed the customs inspectors. She was given three chances to declare that they were in her possession, but not until the expert hands of two women officials had brought to light part of the plunder did she break down and confess. The offence was both deliberate and flagrant; what the federal officials will decide is an adequate punishment remains to be seen. If there is any definite intention on the part of the United States authorities to stop this kind of thing there would appear to be only one course to pursue. Just as soon as it became known that the detection of an attempt to smuggle jewels, laces or trinkets on a large scale meant a term in jail, it is highly probable that the smuggling habit would shrink to insignificant proportions.

When boiling milk for a custard powder, sprinkle the bottom of the saucepan with sugar; this dissolves and forms a layer, and so prevents the milk from burning, no matter how long it boils. It applies to any sweetened milk.

Fine Bindings at the Fair.

An important collection of fine bindings by some of the best English Designers will be found in the Applied Art Section of the Canadian National Exhibition this year.

The exhibit includes inlaid, tooled and colored work in Morroco and Vellum.

THE FOLDING BATH MFG. CO.

Mr. J. E. Saunders is in charge of the exhibit of the Folding Bath Manufacturing Company of Hamilton, which this year is under the Grand Stand. This exhibit is attracting much attention on account of its novelty. A bath tub that will fold up into a small space, it is made of cotton fabric and Brazilian para rubber. This is tacked on a hardwood frame and braced with steel supports. When it is folded it takes up no room in the house. There are two sizes on exhibition—for adults and for small children. During Exhibition the Company makes a special rate of $6.50 (freight prepaid in Ontario) to Exhibition visitors. They are also advertising for live agents.

THE ERIE IRON WORKS, LTD.

One of the new exhibits under the Grand Stand is that if the Erie Iron Works, Limited, of St. Thomas. They are showing their regular lines of plows, harrows, rollers and tanks, and are also exhibiting a new departure—a potato digger. Mr. William Boyd, the company's genial traveller, is in charge of the exhibit and he has a smile and a hearty hand clasp for everybody.

BIRD'S DINING HALL.

A number of people visiting the Exhibition waste time going down town for meals. This is needless, for Bird's Dining Hall is on the grounds, opposite the Grand Stand. Here as good a meal is served for 25 cents as can be secured in the city. They can accommodate over 800 people, and have an enormous staff of waiters. Quick, courteous service is assured, no matter how large the crowd. The hall is in one of the permanent buildings, and so the weather has no effect on the quality of the service. The boast of the management is that although they advertise that anyone not satisfied with the meal need not pay for it, they have not have one application for refund.

GOURLAY, WINTER & LEEMING.

One of the most attractive exhibits in the Manufacturers Building and one which appeals to the finer tastes, is that of Gourlay, Winter & Leeming. This firm is showing, in the southwest corner of the building, the well-known Gourlay Pianos and the Gourlay-Angelus Player Pianos.

The Gourlay-Angelus Player Piano combines all the good points of the Gourlay Piano and of the "Angelus," the first piano player, and the one which has maintained its supremacy by its simplicity, perfectness and ease of action. The combination of these two instruments is ideal and many of Canada's most beautiful homes now have the Gourlay-Angelus Player Pianos. Several models of the Gourlay-Angelus on view contain an Angelus action of the very same model as that supplied in a Brinsmead piano by the British agents to His Late Majesty King Edward VII., shortly before his death.

Music lovers are invited to call at the exhibit and hear these instruments or to visit the Toronto warerooms of Gourlay, Winter & Leeming at 188 Yonge street. There are many more models and designs of the Gourlay-Angelus, as well as Gourlay Pianos, shown here, and everything possible is done for the pleasure and comfort of visitors.

WONDERFUL TOLEDO SCALES.

"No Springs."

Our readers should not fail to see the Toledo Computing Scale Co.'s wonderful exhibit in the Manufacturers Building. This company is to-day selling more automatic computing scales in Canada than all others combined, and guarantee to furnish a better computing scale for less money than any other company.

The merchant public have long been in need of an automatic weighing machine "without springs," and not until the "Toledo" was invented, was such a scale available. Its phenomenal sale has clearly demonstrated the superiority of its correct gravity principle, and wide-awake merchants are rapidly losing faith in the old style "spring" scales, and even balance scales, and discarding them for the up-to-date Toledo. Among the large users of these scales is the T. Eaton Co., Limited, who have purshed fifty (50) for their Toronto and Winnipeg stores.

TRIED AND NEVER WANTING.

Prominent in Society Row at the Exhibition is the "resting tent" of the Independent Order of Foresters for the accommodation of members and visitors to the Fair. The tent, which affords every comfort, is in charge of Mr. George A. Mitchell, the energetic Superintendent of Field Work of the order, which, year by year, keeps on forging to the front, at the same time showing results which are astonishing. "The history of the order from its beginning," remarked Mr. Mitchell yesterday, "shows that its patrons are drawn from the ranks of the intelligent, home-loving and home-building people, who constitute the bone and sinew of every enlightened community. It is, therefore, a tribute to the I. O. F. to be able to record the fact that the amount of insurance carried by its thousands of members is very much in excess of other fraternal orders."

The I. O. F. is now in the 36th year of its existence, and, therefore, has passed the experimental point. He foundations have been laid on a solid basis, and every department of the order managed on business principles, thereby securing for all Foresters large and varied benefits at the lowest possible cost consistent with safety and permanence. Among the visitors at the tent yesterday were many members from different parts of Canada and the United States, all of whom were presented with handsome souvenir buttons bearing the head likenesses of the late Dr. Oronhyatekha, the master builder of the order, and Mr. Elliott Stevenson, its present Supreme Chief Ranger. A cordial welcome is extended the members and friends of the order to call at the tent. Mr. Mitchell is ably assisted by Messrs. James Glendenning and John T. Thompson, D.S.C.R.'s.

JOHNS GLASS BLOWERS.

The never failing Glass Blowers are just as popular this year as ever and their scientific and nimble work is always interesting to old and young alike. O. H. Johns Glass Blowers have one of the best shows on the Midway, and are deserving of the large crowds they gather. Souvenirs are given to all visitors.

NERO, THE TRICK HORSE.

Of all the shows on Midway there is none with a wider appeal than "Nero, the trick horse." The peculiarity about him is that he was born without a tail.

Little Nero is the whole show in himself. For 25 minutes he keeps a crowded tent in roars of laughter. He does everything but talk, and he nearly does that. At any rate, he answers all questions which his trainer asks him, he goes to church, and prays there, and is not ashamed to say so. He does a startling teeter act, and rolls around in barrels, and generally has a good time, in addition to giving other people the same. This is one of the best shows of the Fair.

JUST AS LONG AS YOU HAVE DANDRUFF YOUR HEAD WILL ITCH

It's the little microbes that are gnawing down into the hair roots. It may take a long time for these persistent pests to get down to the vital part, but when they do they will destroy the life of the hair in a very short time.

"I write in short that my head was almost running me crazy, and I saw your ad in the Times Union. I bought a bottle of Parisian Sage at once and tried it, and in a week I could see that my head was almost well, and my hair was growing wonderfully, and I continued using Parisian Sage, and now my hair is beautiful and everybody admires it. My scalp is always clean." Mrs. S. Dingle, Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 15, 1909.

Parisian Sage, the most delightful hair restorer, is guaranteed by J. S. McKeown to stop falling hair, to cure dandruff and all diseases of the scalp or money back. It is the most refreshing hair dressing in the world. Ladies use it extensively, because it makes the hair beautiful, soft and luxuriant. 50 cents a bottle at J. S. A Unique Celebration.

The children of Alexander and Forin streets held a picturesque picnic yesterday in Mrs. Doyle's orchard, Alexander street, to celebrate the rescue of their playmates in the recent accident which occurred among the sand hills of an adjoining lot. The trees were decorated with bunting and Chinese lanterns, and a goodly al fresco spread was partaken of by the twenty or thirty happy youngsters at sunset, the birds in the trees supplying a splendid orchestra. It was a sight the few grown-ups present will never forget, to see the hilarious joy of the children, as contrasted with the gloom and sadness which might have been, but for an almost miraculous conjuction of circumstances.

STILL COMING TO CANADA.

Grand Trunk Pacific Train No. 1 had four extra cars went out of Winnipeg Aug. 18th, with 150 American farmers from different points along the line in the Prairie Provinces. These house-seekers laugh at the fake back to Uncle Sam stories. Many of them have already visited the West and have located their homesteads or bought land. They argue that a new country which has never had a total crop failure in a quarter of a century is a good gamble.

Woman's World

Maxine Elliott's Protege—Newsboy Whom She Will Educate.

MAXINE ELLIOTT AND HER PROTOGE.

"Rusty" McGillan, a New York newsboy, is going to have all he wants to eat, wear good clothes and receive an expensive education, all because he worships Maxine Elliott.

When Miss Elliott was playing at her own theater in Thirty-ninth street, New York city, last season her carriage door was opened every night when she arrived at the theater by a well mannered little fellow, who doffed his ragged cap politely and tendered her all the evening papers, neatly folded. He refused persistently to take payment for the papers, and Miss Elliott would reward his gallantry with a nod and a smile.

The night Miss Elliott opened her theatrical season last fall she was met by the same boy with his armful of papers, who acted as though it was the most natural thing in the world that he should be at his post. Such quiet and dignified courtesy on the part of a ragged little newsboy touched Miss Elliott's heart, and she has made arrangements for his schooling at the Shattuck Military academy at Faribault, Minn. She picked this institution because of its excellence and for the further reason that the boy has an aunt living in St. Paul, near enough to Faribault so that she can [illegible]

The favored lad is thirteen years of age and is called "Rusty" by his newsboy comrades because of his dark red locks. He was born in Boston and came to New York city two years ago upon the death of his mother.

Preventing Colds In Spring.

Many a severe cold could be avoided, says Margaret Mixture, at this season if on coming indoors a woman would drink a cup of hot milk.

The object in drinking this is to start the blood circulating after it has become sluggish from the cold. Warm food will draw the blood to the stomach and send it later through its proper channels if digestion is what it should be. Milk is nourishing and at the same time soothing to nerves which have been overstimulated by cold. If a little salt is added the drink may be less unpalatable for those who do not care for milk.

To think that any kind of food may be eaten when one is cold is a mistake, for the digestive organs are not in normal condition at such a time and will not do their work properly. Therefore discretion should be exercised, and if milk is not taken soup is an excellent substitute. The object is to take food that is easy to assimilate and warm.

Few persons realize that when the body is cold vitality is lowered and that only those who are very strong should rely wholly upon reaction for warmth. Any one who is not strong is weakened by such reaction, and it is to reduce this strain that immediate action should be taken to restore warmth.

Colds which make one feel ill are likely to be caught when a person is fatigued, as vitality is then too low to throw off the chill and illness may result. Indigestion is another cause of cold, and it is always well to resort to a good cathartic when the first symptoms of cold are noticed.

Such attacks as the ones mentioned are caused by germs, as a rule, and if the liver is made to perform its functions there is a good chance of the germs being thrown off. The dose should be taken at night, and if possible the patient should stay in bed on the following day. This is a luxury many cannot take, and to these extra precautions, such as eating simple food and protecting the feet from dampness and cold, should be taken.

Y. M. C. A. Notes

Rev. J. A. McCunig, of New York will speak in the Palace Theatre tomorrow afternoon to a mass meeting of men. Subject—"Man's relationship to woman" Messrs. Wilkes, Smith and Poste will assist in the music.

It was decided last night that in the event that 400 tickete could be sold to go ahead with the Star Course. It was thought that for this season it would be better to emulate Stratford and put on four attractions only, but more expensive, sell the tickets at the same price as last year, but charge only 50c for permanent reservation of seats.

Last night the Board decided on inviting Mr. Don. McGillicuddy, of Toronto, to become Physical Director for the ensuing year, Mr. Wilkes having resigned to accept a similar position with Lethbridge.

How One Woman Regained Health.

The great fame of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is due to the fact that they have restored to active health and strength hundreds of people when all other treatment had failed to cure, and who had come to believe themselves hopeless, chronic invalids The case of Mrs. Henry Britton, 1224 Alexander Avenue, Winnipeg, Man., adds another striking proof to the truth of this assertion. Mr. Britton writes as follows concerning his wife's long illness and ultimate cure through the use of Dr. Williams Pink Pills. "It is a simple thing to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and yet it is difficult to express fully one's heartfelt gratitude for such a marvellous remedy, as they have restored my wife to health and strength after the best efforts of the medical fraternity had failed. For years prior to our coming to Canda, and since that time up to about three years ago, my wife had been subject to severe illnesses from what the doctors said was chronic anaemia. She was utterly and entirely helpless, and so weak that she had to be lifted in and out of bed for weeks at a stretch. The trouble was aggravated by recurrent rheumatism and heart trouble. She had no appetite or strength for anything. I employed the best medical attendance and nurses procurable. The doctor gave her tonics and ordered beef tea and wine. The tonics and medicine would relieve her for a time, and then she would slip back once more into the old state—but worse if anything. Then we began giving her advertised remedies, but all seemed of no avail. One evening while reading a newspaper I happened to see an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. It told the case of a young woman who had been a great sufferer from anaemia, and who testified to having been cured through the use of these Pills. The case seemed to describe very closely the symptoms of my wife, and although I had pretty nearly lost all hope of her ever being well again I decided to get a supply of the Pills and urged her to use them. My wife was thoroughly disheartened, and said she expected it was another case of money thrown away. However, she began taking the Pills, and I thank God she did, for after she had used them for a time, she felt they were helping her. From that time on her appetite came back, her color began to return, and she who had been looked upon as a helpless invalid began to take new interest in life. She continued taking the Pills, and through them her health continued to improve, until at last we were able to heartly congratulate her upon her complete restoration of health. Some three years have since passed, and in that time she has never been bothered in the slightest degree with the old troubles. Her cure has astonished everyone who knew how ill she had been, and we acknowledge with heartfelt thanks our gratitude to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which literally brought her back to health from the brink of the grave."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure such cases as this in just one way—they actually make new blood, which fills the depleted veins and brings new strength to every nerve and every organ in the body. Nearly all the everyday ailments of life come from impure or watery blood, and it is because Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make new blood that they cure anaemia, indigestion, headaches, sideaches, and backaches, rheumatism, neuralgia, general weakness and the ailments that growing girls and women do not like to talk about, even to their doctors. If you are weak, sick or ailing, no other medicine will cure you so quickly as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FLOWERS IN HISTORY.

Some Costly Bouquets and Floral Wreaths—Queen Victoria's Rose.

It is stated that over $250,000 was paid to Covent Garden alone for flowers to be made into wreaths for Queen Victoria's funeral. It is safe to say that this large sum has been more than doubled in the purchase of floral mementoes for that of our late King, for many of the wreaths—like that of the Sultan of Zanzibar, which was 14 feet by 7 feet and contained over 500 chosen orchids, and that of the Emperor of Japan, which measured 5 1-2 feet in diameter—cost considerably over $500 apiece.

Flowers have played an important part in the world's history.

In the national insignia see what a place they take—the rose standing for England, the thistle representing Scotland, and the shamrock Ireland.

For a flower the late Count de Chambord lost France. There came a moment when the throne was offered "King" Henry. But he must accept, with the sceptre and the gilded chair, the tri-colored flag. Another man would have taken the bauble and the seat, the crown and all its troubles; but Henri Cinq was not that sort of pretender. "Either I have the lilies and the white flag, or I remain an exile," he said, and with this he crushed all the hopes of the Bourbons.

It was with a white rose that Queen Victoria wooed and won Prince Albert. "I gave him a flower," she writes in her diary. "It was a white rose." As the monarch of a great country, she could receive no proposal from a prince of a small state, and till she gave him the rose he could not aspire to her hand. With what feelings he received it is told in the story of his life.

Flowers have played a great part in politics. There were the Wars of the Roses—red and white; and Lord Beaconsfield's flower, the primrose, has a million devotees to-day in England.

A fight took place not many years ago over an artificial forget-me-not. A gentleman sent it to a damsel whom he knew, and it fell into the hands of the elder brother of the lady. There was nothing in the letter that contained the flower to indicate why it was forwarded, not a word of all the epistle alluded to it, but the brother challenged the sender. Each fired at the same moment, both fell dead, and to this day no one knows why the artificial forget-me-not was sent.

The First Aviator.

Was Harold the last of the Saxon Kings, our first aviator? This is a point seriously maintained by ancient biographers of the Saxon King who perished in the Battle of Hastings. In the course of an article in The Windsor Magazine a writer recalls a tradition which cannot of course be either disputed or disproved to-day, but was of sufficient interest to be retold even by the poet Milton in his "History of the Anglo-Saxons," where the poet-historian says: "Harold was, in his youth, strangely aspiring had made and fitted wings to his hands and feet; with these on the top of a tower, spread out to gather air, he flew more than a furlong; but the wind being too high, came fluttering down, to the maiming of all his limbs; yet so conceited of his art, that he attributed the cause of his fall to the want of a tail, as birds have, which he forgot to make to his hinder parts. This story, though seeming otherwise too light in the midst of a sad narration, yet for the strangeness thereof, I thought worthy enough the placing."

An Extraordinary Shower.

Daniel O'Connell, the Irish agitator, once complained in the House of Commons of a report of a speech in a London newspaper which, he said, put into his mouth opinions he had never expressed. He vowed that if the editor did not apologize he would move that he be brought to the bar for a breach of privilege. Next day the reporter of the speech waited upon O'Connell and gave a most remarkable explanation. He stated that during his walk from the House to his office in Fleet street the rain streamed into his pockets and obliterated the notes of his speech.

"I accept the explanation," said O'Connell good humoredly, "but let me say that it must have been a very extraordinary shower of rain, for it not only washed out of your notebook the speech I delivered, but washed in another of an entirely different character."

Kangaroos.

Kangaroos use their hands very readily to hold food in and to put it to their mouths. As their fore legs are so short that they have to browse in a stooping position, they seem pleased when able to secure a large bunch of cabbage or other vegetable provender and to hold it in their hands to eat. Sometimes the young kangaroo, looking out of the pouch, catches one or two of the leaves which the old one drops, and the pair may be seen each nibbling at the salad held in their hands, one, so to speak, "one floor" above the other.

Survival of a Custom.

On gateposts you will frequently find a stone ball. Who would ever suppose that the balls on the gateposts were the heads of family enemies? It was once the custom to stick your enemy's gory head as a trophy on the gatepost. On the gates of towns were stuck the heads of traitorous persons. In old London, for instance, the bridge gate and Temple Bar were always decorated with ghastly relics of the kind, and the memory of the custom survives on the gateposts of modern suburban villas.

Church Becomes Theatre.

A number of workmen are transforming an old building in Praed street, Paddington, London, into a "luxurious cinematograph theatre"—as the notice-board has it. The transformation is of somewhat unusual interest, notwithstanding the number of derelict chapels that have shared a similar fate. The building is the chapel where Dr. Clifford first commenced his ministrations.

After a long series of tests German scientists seem to have disproved an old theory that resin is a beneficial ingredient in soaps, their decision being that the washing power of a soap decreases as the resin content increases.

THE FASHIONABLE DOG.

Samoyede Canine Pets Are "It" This Summer.

THE LATEST FAVORITE OF FASHION.

The Samoyede dog is the latest comer in canine pets for fashionable favor. This dog is a sort of four footed Admirable Crichton. He can do anything you ask of him—that is, anything within canine powers—and he can do it very well. He comes from the northeast of Russia, and, although new as a smart pet, he is the oldest domesticated dog in the world.

He is an ideal dog for children—intelligent, quick to learn tricks, good tempered and gentle, intensely affectionate, faithful and invariably well behaved. In short, he is a perfect four footed gentleman.

The Samoyede does splendidly harnessed singly or in pairs to a child's gocart. He takes to harness naturally, is untiring and strong and, to use a horsy expression, "quite without vice."

Apart from these excellent traits of character, the Samoyede dog's appearance is distinctly "fetching." In the puppy stage he is a fascinating little creature with a soft, fluffy white coat, for all the world like a Teddy bear. As he grows older he passes through the usual leggy state and at about a year old develops into a most aristocratic looking animal, very handsome and attractive, with long white fur standing straight out from the body, each hair having the icelike glisten peculiar to the breed.

Standing nearly as tall as a collie, ears pricked, eyes expressive, tail a spreading plume—not coiled tightly, like a chow—the striking appearance and elegant carriage of the Samoyede attract attention wherever he goes.

A Vacation Pest.

The most delightfully planned outing in the woods may be ruined by that vacation pest—the mosquito.

Some persons poison so dreadfully life is a torment, and there is always danger of malaria from the bites.

If you are especially poisoned by mosquitoes, arrange to go where they are not. Don't go in for camping or frequent resorts that are subject to them.

If you will go, take with you preventives in the form of mosquito nets, lump camphor and citronella.

In extreme cases there are head nets that can be bought for a dollar. They are made of fine black bobbinet that will stand rain and washing. There is a circular cloth piece above the net over hat and a yoke shaped piece at bottom fitted to the shoulders and tied under the arm.

For night use it is possible to buy frames and mosquito bars to fit folding camp cots.

The Beetle Watch.

Oddities in jewelry are constantly to be found, and the latest fad is the beetle watch that is worn on the end of a

A slight pressure on the end of the wings and the wings open and show the face of the watch.

An Outing Precaution.

Never go into the woods or out of the way places without being supplied with remedies in case of an emergency. Always take a hot water bottle and a medicine kit, stocked with such simple home remedies as you are accustomed to use.

In addition, there should be whisky, bandages, absorbent cotton, adhesive plasters, quinine, mustard and belladonna plasters and some colic tablets. An ointment to allay stings or itching is also good.

A kitchen table covered with zinc is a great labor saver. It is easily cleaned and saucepans may be stood, and vegetables, etc., cut up upon it without injuring it. The zinc costs little, will last practically a lifetime, and can easily be nailed on the table by any home carpenter.

Accosted by a beggar while coming out of a theater on Chestnut street a few evenings ago, a prominent member of the bar was asked for a nickel.

"That's all I want, boss, just a nickel," said the beggar in a whining tone of voice.

"No!" answered the lawyer, rather sternly. "I am saving up my nickels

"Law, Miss Minnie, what you think! I dun kilt three big rattlesnakes out in the yard."

"Now, Joseph," I replied, "you know that is not so."

"Well, now, Miss Minnie," he insisted insinuatingly, "it wuz two turrible big snakes, an' I killed 'em fo' sho'!"

Determined to convict him, I insisted, "You know you did not kill two snakes, Joseph."

He thought a moment, then said impressively, "Well, now, I did kill one powerful big snake in dat very front yard."

"Go away, boy! You are an outrageous story teller!" I cried indignantly. He was not one whit abashed by my vehemence, but cheerfully replied:

"Well, 'clare for goodness, Miss Minnie, hit was a powerful big worm!"—Delineator.

How do you eat?

Some people eat with their palates—and others with their brains. To which class do you belong? Those who eat with their palates eat only the food that tastes good, no matter whether it nourishes the body or not. Those who eat with their brains eat food which supplies the greatest amount of body-building material in the most digestible form.

The ...Veiled Lady...

"Now I will give you money to go all over the town. Do you know the city?" Orton continued.

"Every street," said the boy, proudly.

"And the parks, the theatres, and churches?"

"Yes, Sir!" the eager boy announced. He did know something.

"Oh! yes! she was so handsome I think I would know her anywhere."

"Then I want you to ride everywhere, in the street cars, and the public parks, and also go to the churches, and the theatres, and tell me if you see any one like that lady. Don't tell your father and mother a word. I'll give you a good suit of clothes when I'm done with you, and pay you well besides." The boy's eyes sparkled.

"When shall I come?"

"To-morrow at eight o'clock. Now be sure and come, Terence," said Orton. "You needn't dress up. You must not let any one know what you are doing. Do you understand? You must follow her, if you see here, till she goes to her house. Keep out of sight, and let me know the house and number."

"Oh! I know! You want to ketch her," the boy cunningly said.

"I only want to know where she lives," the detective replied.

Terence, with a half dollar in his pocket, went away joyously whistling. Late that night Orton studied over the city map, dividing the town into its graded sections. He muttered, "No use to hunt in the slums; this 'lady fine' never came from the back streets." Next day Terence entered into an unlimited round of boyish enjoyment!—Cars, omnibuses, the parks, and streets were his museums. Day after day slipped by. Nightly visits to the theatres pleased and thrilled the lad. No sight of the "pretty lady" gladdened his eyes. Orton philosophically spent his days among the suburbs, and in boating on the river. "She was a stranger, perhaps, after all," he mused. He avoided the leading thoroughfares of the city. "I would not wish to run against Gordon; he's a fine fellow even if he is not an expert in human frailty. I wonder if this Irish boy will stumble on the missing woman. It is our last chance; a slender reed to lean upon." A week later, Orton was confronted by a dilemma. The boy, returning to the Cairo House on Sunday afternoon, found Orton killing time with a novel.

"Well, youngster, anything new?"

"Yes, Sir," the lad replied. "I seed the lady once agin."

"Where?" Orton bounded from his chair. Victory was in his grasp.

"Down to the cathedral at high mass to-day?"

"And where did she go to?" Orton was breathless.

"I dunno!" said the boy stolidly. "She went in the church, and I didn't see her come out."

Orton grasped him by the shoulders. "Terence, you're a fool!" the angry man snapped out.

"No! I ain't no fool," the lad resolutely said. "I followed her an' she went in a door inside. I das'nt go in after her. An' I stayed there and watched, an' she didn't come out of that door."

"You are sure it was the same woman!" Orton was excited.

"I knowed her well! She was all in black, like before, only she hadn't no veil on to her face."

"Terence! you must go down when it's dusk and show me the place where she went in! You can go home and come back here for me. Here's your week's wages."

The happy boy proudly departed to give his mother the price of his labors. "I'll be back at five o'clock," he cheerily said.

"I must not frighten that lad," Orton reflected. "After all, I can only depend on his judgment and memory! Where could she have gone? People don't live in churches!" Three hours later Orton entered the Cathedral carelessly. The lad had preceded him. The shadow of the murderess had crossed the blessed portal but a few hours before. It was maddening to him to fail here!

"Ah!" said Orton. "Fool that I am—the choir loft!" for the boy indicated by a sign the door where the "Lady in Black" had vanished. His heart sank. "They have a choir of a hundred here. I may not be able to identify her. Let me see! Vespers! She might not even come! I'll try it! Terence," said he, as, obedient to a sign, the lad followed him out, "I want you to come here every day next week and watch this door! You must be careful. You can stay till it's dark. You come to my house every morning and report. If the lady belongs to the choir, she may come here to practice. Now, you followed her, and don't lose sight of her. Don't get tired! I will pay you well!"

"All right! Sir!" the willing boy answered.

Orton's veins burned with a strange fever for three days. In the quiet of a Wednesday evening, the boy dejectedly dragged himself upstairs to Orton's den. "I done all I could, and lost her again!" he said.

"Tell me quick!" shouted Orton' "Another blunder!"

"This afternoon the lady come agin," the boy related,—"the church is always open daytimes. I seed her go in the same door! Bimeby the organ played, and there was 'singin'. Not many, two or three of 'em. I staid around, and the sexton he come in and chased me out. I reckon he thought I'd hook sumthin'. I stayed on the street and she come out with another woman. I follered 'em a long ways till near Lucas Place. I don't know what there was to look at, but when they stopped at a corner, she seed me. I tried to keep out of the way, and follered her,—the other woman went off a different way,—she dodged me once or twice, and yet I was pretty sly. It was like playin' tag! Bimeby a hack come along! Jiminy! She jumped in and in a minnit, it turned the corner! I got up there, and all I seed was the hack goin' around another corner! It ain't no use! She's too smart for me!"

"She's alarmed, then," the detective dejectedly ruminated. Orton groaned in helpless rage. "I would like to break every bone in his body! Now she's lost to me! My lady will be far away in a day or so! She's no every-day fool!" He strode up and down. "Terence!" he said, "I'm sorry, but you did your best! Keep your watch up! Don't go near the church front! Hang around the square!—I'll have to trust to blind chance now, and the future! I must get at the choir someway! I wonder who the organist is. I'll have to go into action myself! It's risky, but it must be done! If Gordon was only out of the way!"

The boy left to resume his trade of general spy.

While Orton, in his lair, was bitterly reviling his bad fortune, another scene occupied the drawing-room of the Selfridge mansion. Jack Gordon was pleading with Irene Hope for the love of a life. "I leave in a few days. Irene!" he urged. "I must go East, and then join my regiment! I cannot leave until you give me the answer my heart craves! Shall I not know my fate? This is driving me wild!"

The radiant woman at his side gazed at him with a strange smile. "Could you bear a burden with me; for my sake; the burden of silence and secrecy for two years?" Her voice was almost solemn.

"I can bear anything which brings you to my arms at last!" he impetuously said.

"Listen now!" she slowly said. "I wish to leave this city at once! I will await Mrs. Mason in New York! If you will come to Louisville, I will marry you there; on condition that you do not claim me openly as your wife for two years. I will plight you my troth! I do not wish any one in Louisville to know of the marriage! Can you bear the burden of silence? I am ready to go! My preparations are made; I take to-morrow night's train. I will await you at the Galt House! But I will not trust you in New York: for you would betray all!"

"And your reasons! Irene!" Gordon said with gloomy brow. It taxed even his chivalry to think of the absence.

"I owe this to my art! I must go abroad! To perfect my voice has been my life's dream! I could not join you on the frontier! I will leave you free if you wish! The future is in your hands. Silence to all for two years! Am I worth this?" Her glance was a soul's temptation!

"And you love me, Irene?" Gordon cried, with open arms! The beautiful woman threw herself sobbing in his arms. "You are all the world to me now, darling!" whispered the soldier! "It shall be as you wish!"

"Then I'll tell you all I wish you to do for me, at Louisville!" the lovely woman whispered, with a smiling face.

Without a word of further explanation, Irene Hope departed for Louisville. Lamentations arose around her; she was inflexible!—Her imperious will restrained even Gordon's impetuosity. The sounds of farewell sadly echoed in the Selfridge home. Two days later, Lieutenant John Gordon, "summoned by a sudden telegram," departed for Washington. Gentle Mrs. Selfridge accepted Irene's departure with her usual self-abnegation! The Doctor fumed, as he shook hands with Gordon. "Everything breaking up at once!" he grumbled.

"Why, Doctor! cheer up! I'll be back soon and stay two or three days! I know I can't replace Miss Irene, but I'll do my best!

"What's the matter with the boy, I wonder!" said the old surgeon, as the train rolled away. "His eyes are fair,

THIRD OPERATION PREVENTED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill. — "I want to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was so sick that two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation. I had already had two operations, and they wanted me to go through a third one. I suffered day and night from inflammation and a small tumor, and never thought of seeing a well day again. A friend told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her, and I tried it, and after the third bottle was cured."—Mrs. ALVENA SPERLING, 11 Langdon Street, Chicago, Ill.

If you are ill do not drag along at home or in your place of employment until an operation is necessary, but build up the feminine system, and remove the cause of those distressing aches and pains by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Caught By a Woman.

Buffalo, Sept. 3.—Mrs. Oscar Haffa, wife of a musician in the 65th Regiment, captured a burglar early yesterday. Aroused from sleep by a noise in the parlor under her bedroom, she quietly crept downstairs, stole up on a man, who was standing over a lantern, and suddenly pinioned his arms behind him. Assisted by one of her young daughters, she held the struggling intruder until the arrival of a police officer, summoned by another daughter. The man, locked up on a charge of burglary, said he was George H. Robertson, 30 years old, of Tonawanda.

Police for Hudson Bay.

Halifax, Sept. 3.—Lieut.-Col. Fred White of Ottawa, comptroller of the Northwest Mounted Police, has been in Sydney for two days past, arranging for the shipment of supplies to Hudson Bay for the use of the police in that section, and for the work of the Hudson Bay Railway. It seems that the opening of the Hudson Bay district will mean much to Sydney during the construction stages of the road. Sydney is nearly 400 miles nearer Hudson Bay than Quebec, and the supplies of coal and steel are practically certain to go from Sydney.

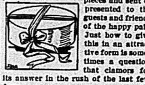
The Heart Shape Design a Popular Selection.

The statement that it is not what is done, but how it is done, that counts verges on the trite, but it is particularly applicable in the little things that contribute toward a pleasant time for wedding guests.

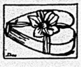
A wedding cake is no longer kept for weeks and weeks. It is cut into little pieces and sent or presented to the guests and friends of the happy pair. Just how to give this in an attractive form is sometimes a question that clamors for its answer in the rush of the last few days.



Boxes can now be purchased at stationery departments of any large store, and the accessories are within the reach of the majority of brides.

There is a charming little circular box that looks like a miniature wedding cake. When tied with white ribbon or with silken cords that reflect the color scheme of the decorations it is well worth having. The ends of the bow are gathered into the tops of tiny silver bells.

Perhaps the heart shaped box of white is more appropriate. This should hold a heart shaped piece of cake, and the top of the box should be tied down with broad ribbon, fastened under a rosette.



Square forms are always good. The addition of a card with the best wishes of the bride and bridegroom is a little personal touch that is well worth while. Through the knot of ribbon a spray of asparagus fern can be slipped. It lasts for weeks and gives the freshness that is desirable, especially for boxes that are to be sent away through the mail.

To the friends who are present there can easily be given a spray of leaves with a blossom from the decoration of the table or rooms. Tied with a gold or silver cord, a long, narrow box will hold a fresh sprig of flowers. People like to carry with them some part of the festivities. The mania for souvenirs still prevails.

Of course the custom of having the cake cut by the bride herself can easily be observed, for during the reception following the small pieces can be boxed and tied by a special committee of friends and distributed to the guests before their departure.

As to the dreams that may come when the fair recipients sleep with the bride's cake beneath their pillows, who can tell whether they can vie with the pleasure of receiving it in so charming a form?

Tasty Summer Dishes.

It is difficult to find a more tasty entree for a summer dinner than baked tomatoes served on the plate with the meat or in individual ramekins. A little cold boiled tongue or ham mixed with the breadcrumbs filling the tomatoes is a tasty addition. Plenty of butter should be used in seasoning cooked tomatoes of any kind, the butter neutralizing the acid of the vegetable. For the benefit of persons who have never stuffed and baked tomatoes it might be said that a slice is taken from the top of round, apple shaped tomatoes and the pulp is removed and mixed with breadcrumbs, rice or macaroni with or without a little minced meat and with or without onion juice and minced parsley. Melted butter should be used to moisten the crumbs, rice or macaroni. The tomatoes should be put into a baking dish and be baked in a hot oven about fifteen minutes or until they are tender and thoroughly heated through.

The dried pieces of the cheese box may be grated and mixed with rich cream seasoned with salt and paprika and left to stand and ripen for a day. The result is an excellent cream cheese which may be served with the salad course or for a supper. Sour cream may be employed.

For a timely luncheon dish cover the bottom of a baking dish with cooked fresh or canned asparagus cut into short lengths, turn over it some rich white sauce and then break on the top an egg for each person to be served. Bake until the whites of the eggs are set.

Electricity For Stains.

There seems to be no limit to the uses to which electricity can be put in the household.

The scientists are learning to harness it up into a first rate maid of all work and making it do everything, from washing the clothes to rocking the cradle, or they would if they had cradles in these up to date households.

But one of the newest uses to which electricity has been put is that of a speedy spot remover.

A technical magazine says that a new electrolytic bleaching apparatus has been invented which enables a woman to remove within two or three minutes any accidental stains from articles such as tablecloths, lace, embroidery work, etc. Tea, coffee, wine, fruit, ink of any color, may all be effectively and inexpensively removed within a few minutes, and above all, the electrolytic method does not destroy the fabric of the article treated.

Beneficial results are said to have attended experiments in a London hospital by which asthma, bronchitis and even tuberculosis patients were required to breathe compressed air for a few hours at a time.

THE AMOK SIGNAL.

When a Javanese Goes Mad and Kills All Within Reach.

On every side of me the violent closing of doors and shutters resembled a rapid fire volley from machine guns. The Parapalang was deserted, and not a thing stirred in any direction. Not a sound was heard except the repeated "rap, rap, rap, rap!"

It was the amok signal. It had started at some point in the city where an agent of police or possibly a citizen had first taken from its hook a stout, solid wooden club and had struck a long, also solid, beam that hung suspended from an adjacent portico. It had been taken up instantly at many different points in Weltevreden by citizens and police agents, so that the amok signal was flashed all over Weltevreden as quickly as if a central telephone or telegraph operator had flashed it over European wires. The signal meant that some unfortunate little brown Javanese had gone suddenly mad—mad as only a Malay can become. The repeated signals warned all who valued their lives to escape the maniacal rush of the dreaded amok runner.

Around the corner I came upon a native stretched out stark and then upon a dog that was limping along with frightful cuts across its body. A hundred feet farther I saw the first signs of life since the dreaded signal had first been sounded. Almost at the same moment that I saw a small group of police agents, natives and a few Europeans gathered on a lawn down the street there came the "finish" signal of three short raps repeated in rapid succession. This signal, like the first which gave the alarm, concerned the amok runner, only the signal now meant that the madman had been caught or dispatched. It was taken up in all directions. People emerged from their houses, and soon the little group on the lawn had grown into a veritable surging mob.

When I came upon this scene I found a small, wiry Javanese stretched out on the lawn. He had evidently been stunned by a blow from a club in the hands of a police agent. Near him lay a knife, and the knife showed that it had been put to awful use very recently.

The warning amok signals had been altogether vain in the case of one European, for near by, in the entrance to his house, lay a prominent planter, the victim of the mad Javanese. He had been stabbed to the heart. Before the dead planter reached the bed that was to be his last the little Javanese outside had recovered from the amok fever, was wondering what had happened to him and still more so at what he had done and was led away for his execution.—Emile W. Voute in Harper's Weekly.

Some Foreign Coins.

The franc was formerly called livre (pound), though the connection with any special weight is not evident. The name of the German coin, mark, meaning a weight of eight ounces, was formerly in general use in Europe. The name of the Italian coin that corresponds with the franc (lira) also means pound. The coins in present use in Spain have their names from other sources. The five peseta piece is called escudo (shield). "Peseta," the name of the small coin representing the monetary standard, means simply "little piece." "Ruble" is from the word meaning "to cut" and was so called because originally the coin was made with an ornamental edge.

A Patient Priscilla.

Katie, of Pennsylvania Dutch descent, had served for ten years in a wealthy Virginia family.

For more than half of this term of service one Jacob of her own people had at intervals come a-calling. He had sat in the kitchen and watched the deft and skillful movements of Katie with marked respect and ponderous admiration, but he had never "spoken." At length toward the end of the seventh year she took the reins of destiny in her own hands and addressed her admirer thus:

"Vell, Zhakob, if yer vants me yer can zhust haf me."

A light dawned in the mild blue eye of Jacob. Bringing his hand down gently on his knee, he replied:

"I vas zhust about to mention it."

The Steward, B. C. correspondent of the Grand Trunk Pacific Passenger Department reports that the work at all the mines in the vicinity of Stewart is being vigorously pushed, and new strikes is being made on many of the properties. The Red Cliff Mine has let the contract for a large water power plant to supply power for their compressor, electric light and other objects. Lumber has been ordered for large ore bunkers to build as soon as possible. A new strike has been made on the Waterloo claim of the Redcliff group and from present indications it promises to be equally as large as their wonderful showing. Values are of a higher character.

Portland Canal Mining Company have their aerial tram in operation, the concentrator is practically completed, and this mine will very shortly be shipping ore.

The Mann interests are being extensively developed and very rich ore bodies have been opened up on several of their bonded properties. This practically assures us that many of their obligations respecting bonds on mining properties will be taken up.

Business in general in the town of Stewart is exceptionally good. Building operations are going ahead at a very rapid rate, and two large additions to one of the leading hotels are being rushed to completion to supply the demand for accomodation.

The Portland Canal Lumber Company Ltd., a subsidiary Company of the Fraser River Mills, Vancouver, B. C. have started the erection of a large sawmill on the townsite of Stewart which wil have a capacity of 50,000 feet per day.

An Extraordinary Law Suit.

COMMENTS ON THE S. S. LESSON FOR SEPT. 4TH.

(By Evangeline.)

Matt. 21, 23:46. Place—The Court of the Temple. Time—Two days after the procession through the streets of Jerusalem. Circumstances—A law suit in which the defendant acted as judge, and the plaintiffs as jury.

The charge of the plaintiffs, the Scribes and Pharisees who represented the civil and ecclesiastical courts of the nation, was a breach of the peace—disorderly conduct.

They said "By what authority doest Thou these things? Who gave Thee this authority?" (To come into our temple and turn everything upside down and cause a general disturbance.)

The defendant answered and said unto them: "I also will ask you one question, which if ye tell me, I likewise will tell you by what authority I do these things. The baptism of John, whence was it? From heaven or from men?

There is a lull in court.

To admit that John received his commission from the Privy Council of Heaven meant that the defendant would then ask before the whole crowd: "Why then do you not believe him? He is my chief witness." While to assert that he did not, meant a collision with the people, who regarded John as a prophet.

"And they answered Jesus, and said 'We know not.'" They simply perjured themselves.

The defendant then addressed the court, pleading his own case in such a way as to make the plaintiffs the laughing stock, not only of the court, but of all the world ever since.

Observe His method. He relates three incidents, luminous with startling and revolutionary meaning, clear as day to His own, but not clearly apprehended by His enemies, the second and third of which form our lesson.

The first refers to a land owner who leased a vineyard to certain tenants and who went to suit to collect rents, beat one of his agents, killed another and stoned another. Later on he sent others who were treated in the same way. At length he sent his son, but the tenants said among themselves, "This is the heir; come, let us kill him and take his inheritance," and they cast him out of the vineyard and killed him.

Having gained the interest and attention of His hearers, He appeals to them as to what should be the action of the owner of the vineyard towards such men.

Without hesitation, they give a unanimous verdict. "He will miserably destroy those miserable men and will let out the vineyard to other husbandmen which will render him the fruits in their season," a verdict so soon to be executed in the most appalling siege of the world's history.

Step by step he argues the case, carrying conviction at every point, exposing their hypocritical practices in words that fell like strokes of lightning.

They were well acquainted with Old Testament imagery. They knew that God's vineyard meant Israel. They must have known that God was turning them down and out because of their treatment of the prophets and of His son. They may not have known, however, that the vineyard was soon to be given to the Gentiles because the fruit demanded by the prophets, viz.: repentance, obedience, rigtheous, were utterly lacking.

The story was true to fact in every detail, even in the prediction on the eve of fulfilment that "they would cast him forth out of the vineyard and kill Him" or crucify Him outside the gate.

Without the least opposition, He held the floor while He went still further and in another familiar figure from the Old Testament pronounced their doom.

"Jesus said unto them, did ye never read in the Scriptures the stone which the builders rejected, the same was made head of the corner? Therefore say I unto you the kingdom of heaven shall be taken away from you and shall be given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof."

This was the judgment of Him, who, stepping out of the prison dock into His rightful position of Judge of the Supreme Court, constituted the plaintiffs a jury on their own actions and compelled them, in spite of themselves, to find a verdict against themselves.

Has the incident any bearing upon your life?

Some day you will stand at the bar of God to receive your sentence. What shall it be—"Guilty" or "Not Guilty" of rejecting His Son?

Who will plead your case? Could you have a better counsel than your Chief Witness, who will some day be your Judge?

Then put your case into His hands. Never has He failed to get judgment in favor of a client.

Trust Him absolutely for acquittal and accept the trust committed to you in the vineyard. There is fruit going to waste that no one but you can gather—the fruit of souls saved from ruin "Fruit of the spirit," "fruit unto holiness."

God forbid that you should cry from a heart broken with remorse.

"Must I go and empty handed
Thus my dear Redeemer meet
Not one soul with which to greet
Him
Lay no trophy at His feet."

Historic Doubles.

Those almost perfect doubles George Du Maurier and Sir Laurence Alma-Tadema were nearly indistinguishable. The story goes that a lady sitting beside Du Maurier at dinner started conversation by poohpoohing all idea of a resemblance.

"You know, Mr. Alma-Tadema, I think it's absurd to say that you and Mr. Du Maurier are so awfully alike. There's really no resemblance at all. Don't you agree with me?"

"Quite," was the polite answer; "but, you see, I happen to be Mr. Du Maurier."

Royal Rat Catcher.

The dignity and emoluments of the rat-catcher at Buckingham Palace are calculated to create envy among the unemployed. It is true that as a rat-catcher his pay is only $40 per annum. But he is also turncock, for which he receives $365 a year, together with a residence, rent free, situated in the very centre of the fashionable part of London, in close proximity to the parks, the Houses of Parliament, Trafalgar Square, and the residences of the nobility and gentry.

Weak Stomach.

Few diseases inflict upon their victims greater suffering than do dyspepsia, indigestion and stomach trouble. If you have dyspepsia or indigestion in any form do not ruin your stomach with drugs, but use

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

When taken at mealtime it stimulates the mucous surfaces and little glands of the stomach to a healthy action, thereby improving the digestion and assimilation of the food and giving to the system its full proportion of nourishment. The action upon the digestive process is of great importance, as it brings to all the tissues and organs of the body the nutriment necessary to their sustenance and indirectly to the whole system strength and vigor.

We have thousands of grateful patients who write us they have been cured after they were given up by the doctors. Mr. James B. Foote of Walton, N. Y., writes:

"For years I suffered from dyspepsia and all the pains and aches of which a bad stomach is the cause. I began to think I was too old to get well, when I took Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey; now I am happy to say I have not been so well in years."

If you wish to keep young, strong and vigorous and enjoy perfect health, take Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey regularly, according to directions. It is recognized as a family medicine everywhere and is invaluable for overworked men, delicate women and sickly children. It is a promoter of health and longevity.

All druggists, grocers and dealers, or direct, $1.25 a large bottle. Refuse substitutes and imitations; they are impure and dangerous. Send for free medical booklet and doctor's advice. The Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

Don't fail to visit our booth when at the Canadian National Exhibition. All are welcome.

The Flower Show Was Most Successful

MANY BEAUTIFUL FLOWERS WERE GROWN BY THE CHILDREN — JUDGES HAD A DIFFICULT TASK.

Under the auspices of the Belleville Horticultural Society a flower show was held yesterday afternoon in the various public schools of the city. The Society, for the purpose of encouraging the cultivation and care of flowers in the spring, distributed amongst all the public school children packages of mixed Astor seeds and also intimated that at the proper time a flower show would be held and prizes awarded to those exhibiting the best flowers grown from the seeds supplied. From the display made in the various schools it was evident that the scholars appreciated the efforts of the Society. In some cases the judges had on easy task in determining which bouquets were worthy of the prize. A special prize was awarded for each school for the best made bouquet and three prizes for the best Astors shown by the scholars in the various rooms of the schools.

The teachers and the scholars in their division who were successful competitors were as follows:

In the City To-morrow

A great many of our citizens will remember with interest the excellent series of meetings on personal and social purity which were conducted in the various churches for about a week last spring by Rev. J. Aspinall McCuaig, of New York. When those meetings closed Mr. McCuaig stated that he would try and arrange another series in the fall. The route of his fall lectures have been so changed that he phoned his inability to carry out his original plan, and that he would spend to-morrow in the city, when he will preach in Bridge st. in the morning and at the Tabernacle in the evening. In the afternoon he will address a mass meeting of men in the Palace Theatre at four o'clock, Messrs Wilkes-Smith and Poste will assist in the music.

Patriotic Presentation.

At a regular meeting of Derry Lodge True Blues, No. 30, held in the lodge room here on Thursday evening, two of the members, Bro. J. Worrell and Bro. W. Cronk, presented the lodge with Union Jack flags. The gifts were suitably acknowledged by members who were present.

The opticians of Ontario held their third annual convention at the offices of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, of which they form a section, yesterday. It was well attended. Officers were elected as follows:—

This Painting Can Be Seen in the Dark

Mystery, complete enough to have baffled the explanations of such distinguished scientists as Lord Kelvin and Sir William Crooks, combined with art of a character so penetrating and intimate as to be fitly characterized only by the epithet "haunting," are the twin attributes of one of the most remarkable pictures of modern times. "The Shadow of the Cross," painted in 1891 by Hammond Ault at Springfield, Mass., has arrived in Toronto, and will be placed on view in Peterson's art rooms, 382 Yonge street, on Monday, Sept. 5, for the benefit of the Newsboys Home Building Fund.

But, turn down the lights in the rooms, and the mysterious quality of the painting becomes apparent. With no aid from light other than that which eminates from the background, the figure of Christ stands sharply silhouetted against the glowing luminosity of the sky, and, strangest phenomen of all, the shadow of a Cross, of which no trace could be seen when the picture was viewed in an ordinary light, appears diagonally across the painting, behind the standing figure.

Whatever may be the explanation of this mysterious appearance, it seems up to the present to have successfully eluded discovery, though the painting has been viewed by millions of persons from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

On a Fool's Errand.

The police last evening were called to Albert College, it being reported that a man was acting in a suspicious manner by roaming about the ground Upon investigation it was ascertained that it was a boy, who was waiting for a lady who was in the College on business

CHISHOLM IS ELECTED

Mayor of Halifax President of Municipal Union.

Resolution Is Passed at Convention of City Fathers In Toronto Emphasizing the Necessity For the Protection of Water Powers — Level Crossings Dangerous—Geary of Toronto Is First Vice-President.

Toronto, Sept. 3.—J. A. Chisholm, mayor of Halifax, was yesterday elected president of the Union of Canadian Municipalities by acclamation. The convention concluded at noon and the delegates took in the Exhibition in the afternoon. The meeting decided to hold the convention next year at Quebec.

There was a division of opinion on the question of export power, but the following resolution was passed: "That in the sense of this convention the water powers of the country are a national asset which should be preserved for the benefit of Canada by building up Canadian municipalities and that no perpetual or long term rights of exporting power from such sources should be granted, and that, where temporary rights of export are allowed, there should be clear advantage to the public interest or the public revenue."

MAYOR J. A. CHISHOLM.

Another resolution was passed in regard to level crossings, it being the opinion of the meeting that they were dangerous to the traveling public.

The officers elected were: Mayor J. A. Chisholm of Halifax, president (acclamation); Mayor G. R. Geary of Toronto, first vice-president (acclamation); Mayor J. A. F. Bleau of St. Boniface, 2nd vice-president; Mayor D. Milne of Medicine Hat, third vice-president; W. D. Lighthall, K.C., ex-Mayor of Westmount, hon. secretary-treasurer (acclamation).

Gasoline Launch Explodes.

Sandwich, Sept. 3.—Two young men had a dangerous experience Thursday night near the Pittsburg Coal Co.'s dock, when their gasoline launch became ignited from an explosion, and they were forced to jump into the river to save themselves from the burning gasoline.

The launch was in five feet of water when, without a moment's warning, an explosion occurred, and the little boat was enveloped in flames. One young man's neck was slightly burned. Both waded to shore in the shallow water. The boat is a total wreck. The loss is about $900. The men refused to give their names and got away as soon as possible.

Drowned While Carrying News.

Cobalt, Sept. 3.—While carrying the news of the death of a friend to Elk Lake City, Alfred Easy was drowned in the Montreal River. The friend was William Payne, caretaker at No. 2 of Booth's lumber camps, who fell dead in a fit. Easy found him, but how long he had been dead he could not tell. He set out with a canoe to take the news, and later his (Easy's) upturned canoe told of his own death.

Found In St. Clair River.

Sarnia, Sept. 3.—The dead body of a man about 65 years of age, was found yesterday morning floating in the St. Clair River below Courtright. A purse containing 50 cents was found on the body, but there were no marks or papers to indicate his identity. The remains were taken charge of by Coroner Dr. Hayes, and, if unclaimed within twenty-four hours, will be buried here. No inquest will be held.

Gave the Baby Carbolic.

Cleveland, Sept. 3.—Charged with the murder of her two weeks' old baby, Mrs. Elena Stempte of New Philadelphia, Ohio, was lodged in the county jail yesterday to await a hearing before the grand jury. Mrs. Stempte confessed her husband had left her five weeks ago, and when he did not return she grew discouraged and gave the babe carbolic acid.

Had Sixty Knife Wounds.

Wheeling, W. Va., Sept. 3.—The police are attempting to unravel the mystery surrounding the finding of the body of a well-dressed man yesterday under the Ohio River bridge. The man's body showed more than sixty knife wounds. He had been dead for hours. An Episcopalian hymn book was found near the man's body.

Ottawa Bonds Sold.

ENGINEER HITS BANDIT.

Lone Robber Is Slain by Blow With a Rock.

Colorado Springs, Col., Sept. 3.—In a desperate attempt to hold up westbound Colorado Midland train No. 3, four miles west of Divide, early yesterday, an unknown bandit was instantly killed by a rock thrown by Engineer Frank Stewart after he had shot the engineer in the leg.

The highwayman crawled over the tender as the train slowed up at a siding to meet the eastbound train. As he stopped the train, Stewart turned to see his fireman, Paul Bachman, standing with his hands above his head and heard the robber say: "Put up your hands or I'll blow your head off."

The robber then forced both men to leave the engine and marched them before him to the express car.

"When we got to the express car," said Stewart, "my fireman dashed under the car and crawled to the other side. The robber leaned under the car to shoot at him and when he took his eyes off me, I struck him with all my strength with a rock I had picked up as I jumped off the tender. Before the rock hit him he whirled and shot at me, the bullet striking me in the leg. I guess my blow finished him for he never moved after the rock hit him. I must have fainted then."

Praise for Prof. Coleman.

Sheffield, Sept. 3.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—At the British Association meeting Prof. Coleman of Toronto, in his Presidential address to the geological section, dealt with the history of the Canadian field to bring together, as he said, our knowledge of the most ancient chapters of history in North America as disclosed by recent field work.

Prof. Bonney, proposing a vote of thanks, said it was a great advantage to workers in the narrow island to get so admirably expressed views of one who had the privilege of examining a great continent. Hardly ever had there been a more interesting address to the section. Sir Archibald Geikie, who seconded the vote, said he had hardly ever listened to a more luminous and pleasant address. He hoped this was not to be Prof. Coleman's last visit.

To his British confreres in the report by Dr. Marron on new exposures discovered in ancient rocks in Yorkshire, Dr. Spencer of Toronto spoke of a similar series of fossils he had investigated in Canada.

Hector Fabre Dead.

Ottawa, Sept. 3.—Hector Fabre, Canadian commissioner to France, is dead. He had been sick for some time and the cable announcement yesterday morning was not unexpected. He represented Canada at Paris for a great many years.

Hon. Hector Fabre, C.M.G., had been commissioner-general for Canada in France since 1882. He was born in 1834 and was educated in Montreal. He had been connected with Canadian journalism for many years, being editor of L'Ordre at Montreal, 1862; Le Canadien, Quebec, 1864; L'Evenement, Quebec, 1867-82. He was a Senator from 1874 to 1882, and was created a C.M.G. at the close of the Indian and Colonial Exhibition at London in 1886. In 1894 he was created officer of the Legion of Honor for services rendered to Canada in France. He published a book, "Chroniques," in 1870.

With the Queen's Own.

London, Sept. 3.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Gen. Smith-Dorrien, with Gen. Maxse, watched the Queen's Own evolutioning for two hours Thursday in glorious sunshine.

Gen. French inspected the regiment on Monday and the Duke of Connaught on Wednesday.

Next week the Q.O.R. participate in the inter-divisional and command manoeuvres. Then comes a holiday in London, when the lord mayor lunches them at Guildhall.

On the 18th they enter the army manoeuvres, remaining in the field till they take the train for Liverpool.

The officers faced piles of invitations to dinner, but they solved the problem by dining in contingents at various messes each night.

International Tax Commission.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 3.—Allen Ripley Foote, Columbus, Ohio, was re-elected president of the International Tax Commission at the closing session of the conference yesterday. Among other officers elected are:

Corresponding secretary, U.S.—A. C. Pleydell, New York City, secretary New York Tax Reform Association.

Corresponding secretary, Canada—G. R. Geary, mayor of Toronto.

Daring Woman Aviator.

Ostend, Belgium, Sept. 3.—Miss Helene Dutrieu, the French aviatoress, established a new record for women pilots in distance and altitude with a passenger yesterday.

With a companion in her aeroplane Miss Dutrieu flew from this city to Bruges and returned, a total distance of about 28 miles. At Bruges she circled above the famous belfry of Leshales at a height of 1,300 feet.

Reciprocity the Problem.

London, Sept. 3.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Glasgow Herald says that reciprocity is the main problem of the immediate future in Canadian politics. In solving it, Canadians will study their own interests and will be unswayed by economic dogma or sentiment, which is the only way tariff questions should be handled.

Suicides In Gas Stove.

New York, Sept. 3.—William Hoffman, 35 years old, one of the proprietors of a restaurant on Lennox avenue, committed suicide in an unusual way yesterday, with his head on the oven of the kitchen gas range, four burners of which were open and unlighted.

Steamer Rubbed a Shoal.

Kingston, Sept. 3.—The steamer Derbyshire of Brockville, is in the Government dry dock for repairs. While en route to Montreal she sustained damage by rubbing against a shoal.

The argument advanced in favor of a new phonograph which has its records in the form of endless belts is that it is possible to provide much longer selections than by the older methods.

Boost For Crops.

Montreal, Sept. 3.—The western wheat crop got another boost, a six million bushel one, too, yesterday when the latest compiled report reached the C.P.R. offices. Frank O. Fowler, secretary of the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association, sent in estimates that bring up the anticipated wheat yield to 106,510,320 bushels. This is estimated on the acreage of 8,453,200 acres returning 12.6 bushels per. The Northwest Grain Dealers' Association is looked upon as one of the most reliable estimaters of the fall crops. The report to the C.P.R. yesterday predicted as follows:

Oats, 4,217,400 acres, at 26.5 bushels per acre, 111,983,000.

Barley, 1,022,000 acres, at 19.1 bushels per acre, 19,520,000.

Flax, 630,000 acres, at 8. per acre, 5,292,000.

Export of Halibut.

London, Sept. 3.—Nothing is known at Grimsby of the proposal to export halibut from Newfoundland or of the creation of a great trade between Grimsby and St. John's, which Premier Morris foreshadowed on Tuesday. There is little hope held out there of the success of such a venture, as several similar experiments have failed.

THE FORMULA OF "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Is On The Outside Of Every Box For All The World To See

Every user of "Fruit-a-tives" knows exactly what is being taken. The formula of this famous fruit medicine is printed plainly on the outside of every box. We have stated many times—and now state clearly—that "Fruit-a-tives" is made of the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes, with valuable heart and nerve tonics and antiseptics.

Everyone knows that fruit juice is healthful—but perhaps some do not understand why this is true.

Fruit juice consists of about 91% water, 8% of sweet principle, and 1% of a bitter substance. It is the quantity of bitter principle in fruit that gives the fruit value as a medicine. An eminent physician of Ottawa, after years of experimenting, found a method of increasing the bitter principle in fruit juice, thus increasing the medicinal or curative qualities.

The juices are first extracted from fresh, ripe oranges, apples, figs and prunes. By a secret process, some of the sweet atoms are replaced by the bitter principle. Then tonics and antiseptics are added, and the whole made into tablets, now known far and wide as "Fruit-a-tives."

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world that is made of fruit juices, and is one of the few remedies that have let their composition be known from their introduction to the public.

"Fruit-a-tives" is nature's stimulant for the liver, bowels, kidneys and skin. In cases of obstinate Constipation, Liver Trouble, Indigestion, Backache, Rheumatism, Headaches and Impure Blood, this wonderful fruit medicine cures when everything else fails.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold everywhere at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c., or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Crippen Murder Case Attracts Great Crowds

Intelligencer Special.

London, Eng., Sept. 6.—Thousands besieged the doors of the courtroom this afternoon at the continuation of the investigation of the Crippen and Lenere murder case. Hundreds of newspaper men were present, but few spectators could get in. Travers Humphreys outlined the case of the Crown, telling of the finding of the body thought to be that of Mrs. Crippen, and traces of the deadly hyoscin poison. Both prisoners appeared better spirited.

While both prisoners seemed more cheerful when brought into the courtroom, it was noticeable that their demeanor was much affected by the staring of spectators.

The girl wore good clothes and a large picture hat supplied by relatives. She was not long in the courtroom before she gave signs of collapse, and restoratives had to be administered. Crippen was visibly startled at ominous noises from outside the building, where the police had to charge the great crowd to keep them away from the windows.

Prosecutor Humphreys made a scathing arraignment of Crippen, tracing his career in the United States and Toronto. He called him a quack doctor, and then made the direct assertion that Crippen had poisoned his wife with deadly hyoscin, and mutilated the remains so that he could live unquestioned with his mistress, Miss Leneve. This reference to herself brought tears and sobbing from the other prisoner, Miss Leneve. Finally, the prosecutor caused a sensation by stating that part of a suit of pajamas was found with the body in the cellar, and the remainder of the same suit was found in the effects of the prisoner, Dr. Crippen.

After hearing much evidence already given, the investigation adjourned until Thursday next. It is evident that Miss Leneve will be used as a witness against Crippen. Application for bail for her was refused.

Greatest Crowd Ever Expected at Congress

Intelligencer Special.

Montreal, Q., Sept 6. — Prospects are that the opening to-night of the Eucharistic Congress in Montreal will bring the greatest crowd attending any religious festival ever held in Montreal. Standing room in the great cathedral has long since been at a premium, and he who has the encessary ticket is indeed fortunate. The City has taken an extremely ecclesiastical appearance, with all the Cardinals, Bishops and other high church dignitaries motoring or driving about the streets in rich robes. This morning Cardinal Vannutelli, the Pope's Emissary, celebrated mass at Hotel Dieu and visited wards of the hospital, afterwards calling at various monasteries and convents and giving blessings. A cable arrived this morning for Vannutelli from King George, but its nature is not given out.

IS A LAND OF PROMISE

Discouraged Britons Look This Way Says Bishop Ingram.

In a Remarkable Speech the Great Slum Worker at Anglican Church Bi-centenary Congress Tells of the State of Affairs In England—He Defends His So-Called Socialistic Sermon—Wants Better Immigration.

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 6.—Social problems occupied the Anglican Church Congress here yesterday.. Two sections sat in different buildings, one occupied with the more public aspect of the problems discussed, and the other considering them in special church and religious relations. The great meeting in the evening in St. Paul's Church was a magnificent climax to the day's deliberations, and the Bishop of London, Dr. Ingram, spoke with the power and sympathy of a master. Another meeting was held in St. George's Church, at which Sunday school problems were considered.

Dr. Ingram followed the Bishop of Niagara, Dr. Du Moulin, who was somewhat reactionary in his address, and the man from the slums spoke with a directness and outrightness which was startling in comparison.

"My brothers and sisters," he began, "I am sure we have all listened with the deepest interest while my dear old friend has told you of the touching efforts of a working class church to win the confidence of workingmen. But, the fact remains, in spite of all this, that we have somehow failed with the workingman. When you come to take the representatives they send up to the British Parliament, not one is a churchman. We have somehow failed to win their confidence and our non-conformist brethren have also failed, and have even less of their confidence.

"I want to face with you the question why that is. We never yet as a church caught the ideals that inspire them. We do not see the visions that draw them. We criticize them, but we do not understand them. We do not know what they are aiming at. I tried to describe something of their aims in my sermon on Sunday. Some one of the newspapers was pleased to call it socialism. If that is socialism, then, I say, God bless socialism. Is it not the ideal of the New Testament?"

"The workingman wanted equality of opportunity. This was very different from the stereotyped socialistic doctrine. When the workingman asked this he only asked something God wanted him to have. Every man should have a chance to live a human life; with time for his mind and soul as well as for his body. He asked pathetically also a chance for his children, a ladder of education, so that the poorest in the land might climb up and take his place with the highest. No body in the land," said the bishop, "had had its highest offices filled so often from the poorest class, as the Church of England.

"That dream—that day dream if you like—I claim the church has got to sympathize with. God never meant men to be downtrodden slaves. I claim that dream should be realized, and it will as far as I can do it in my time," declared the bishop with emphasis.

But then came the difficulty. He had lived for nine years in the middle of the slums, with only his thirty colleagues from Oxford. What stirred his heart was the two million with no room to live, two or three families in one room, with grown boys and girls, father and mother, and perhaps a workingman also, because there was no place else. Did they wonder if one's blood boiled at the impossibility of having decency? And yet girls, pure as a lily, and boys such as they could hardly believe about, came out of such places through a mother's grave.

"We have no right to give them such places to live in, only fit for dogs," he flamed. Picture after picture, he drew of the horrors he knew. Perhaps there were bitter socialists, but none should forget the sights that stung them into bitterness, he remarked.

Then he turned to Canada, almost a land of promise, with wages half as much more, with room for a hundred million people, and only seven. Coming from those fetid dens, he found room here to breathe and live. He looked at the bonny children in Toronto and Halifax, and thought of the poor little dwindled children left behind in London. The paradise was not so complete, however. He would like to see larger industries in places like Halifax, and he would tell capital when he returned of the opportunities. Why should there be six or seven hundred unemployed here? Why were labor exchanges not better organized at move labor to where it was needed? He would like more methodical immigration system.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 6.—A loggers' hospital at Rock Bay, one hundred miles up the coast, burned Sunday. Fourteen patients, who occupied beds, were removed with great difficulty, and only one was injured or burned.

TURNING TO AMERICA

Church of Rome Will Pay More Attention to New World.

Pontificial Legate Is Expected to Hint To-night at a Alternation Between Europe and America With the Eucharistic Congress—Father Vaughan's Sermon on the Future of Protestantism Widely Discussed.

Montreal, Sept. 6.—Everything is in a forward state of preparation for the opening of the twenty-first Eucharistic Congress, and the first of the kind ever held on Canadian or American soil, although it is said that the pontificial legate will hint in his opening speech this evening that these congresses may alternate in future between Europe and America.

It is said, in fact, that the authorities at Rome realize that, while the church is losing ground in the Latin countries of Europe, the progress being made both in the neighboring republic and the Dominion is sufficiently satisfactory to permit the pope's representative throwing out the hint in question.

The legate spent yesterday at the different religious establishments and spoke to the workers at Notre Dame yesterday afternoon.

The talk of the town yesterday was Father Bernard Vaughan's sermon in St. Patrick's on Sunday, the famous London priest having declared that Protestantism was a soulless religion and that half of the English Protestants were going to Rome, and the other half to unbelief.

Yesterday afternoon, the reverend father strolled into The Gazette office and interviewed Editor Kidd, who is a strict Presbyterian; yet he told the father that he had no fault to find with his sermon, as good Protestant doctrine demanded that a man should state in the pulpit what he thought was truth. At this reply, Father Vaughan smiled and retired.

The great opening to-day at the St. James Cathedral will be one of the events of the week, as the legate will deliver his address in French, also reading the Pope's letter to the people, after which Mgr. Bruchesi will reply on behalf of the congress.

It appears to be pretty certain that a red hat will come to the brilliant Archbishop Bruchesi, but it is not at all probable that the event will take place for some months at least. On Thursday, the cardinal will visit the Italian Church, and address the people in their own tongue, while the Monsigneur of Montreal, who also speaks Italian, will also speak in that language.

Speaking at the Monument National last night Father Vaughan of London, Eng., again lived up to his reputation as a vigorous lecturer. "Character" was his theme, and he declared there was "too much slim, sleep and slopp." "We want people to stiffen before they die," he cried.

At the same time Father Vaughan took an optimistic view of the future of the faith. Catholics were increasing, other denominations decreasing. If he were a Protestant he would work for all he was worth against race suicide, lest Catholics should gain possession. But it was needless to talk to a Catholic audience of race suicide.

Trio Assaulted Police.

Toronto, Sept. 6.—Policeman Disney took a severe beating at the hands of three men last evening, but finally, with the assistance of Policeman Older, landed the trio in the Agnes street station, charged with assaulting the police. One of the three assaulted a citizen in Wilton avenue, just east of Victoria street at 6.30. Disney, who has only been in uniform three weeks, started in to arrest the man, when he, with the other two, turned on him.

Disney was knocked down, beaten and kicked, sustaining several cuts in the face and head, and a deep gash in the back of his neck, in addition to an assorted collection of bruises. He stuck to the job, however, and when Policeman Older arrived, the three were quelled. They are Edward Dillon, 170 Duchess street, 23 years, an expressman; Thomas McEwen, 1 Alice street, 20 years, a teamster; Jos. McGrogan, 51 Fleming street, 22 years, a teamster. They are charged with assaulting the police.

Liquor Law Being Enforced.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 6.—Provincial license and police officers are having a lively time enforcing the Government's new regulations for the liquor traffic. At Prince Rupert, where for a time blind pigs flourished during the early history of the town, fines have been imposed aggregating between $8,000 and $10,000, while in other cases it has been made so warm for undesirables in the trade that they have left the country. At Sheep Creek an application for a license was peremptorily cancelled and a fine of $300 imposed for illicit selling at the established hotel. At Fort George two men were sentenced to a year's imprisonment, but given two weeks in which to leave the country before sentence commenced.

Queen's Own Officers Ill.

London, Sept. 6.—Seven of the Queen's Own officers are suffering from influenza, and one of them is seriously ill. The sudden transition from the Canadian summer to changeable British weather is believed to be the cause.

How Labor Day Was Spent in the City.

DOWNPOUR OF RAIN INTERFERES WITH THE SPORTS — PICNIC AT MASSASSAGA CALLED OFF —EXCITING GAME OF BALL BETWEEN THE GRAND TRUNK AND PARK NINE TEAMS — WATER SPORTS IN THE HARBOR.

The County picnic and Labor Day demonstration to be held at Massassaga park was a decided failure Though the weather cleared a little about one o'clock, the grounds were too wet and all was called off. The Oddfellows' Band certainly did all they could to make this a great day, the arrangements being most complete.

The Bashful Bumpkin Rube Band certainly made a great hit, playing all the popular tunes and many others. It was composed of members of the Oddfellows' Band and was led by Mr Wm. Heffernan.

GREAT GAME OF BALL.

The Park Nine baseball yesterday afternoon, by defeating the Grand Trunk team, captured the city championship for 1910. It was a great struggle, and was witnessed by a large and enthusiastic crowd of baseball fans. The game was scheduled to take place at the Driving Park, but owing to the downpour of rain in the early part of the day, those grounds were in such a condition that it was impossible to have the game take place there. It was played on the Grand Trunk Railway team's diamond at the head of Pine street, and considering the quantity of rain which fell the grounds were in fairly good condition owing to their elevation. Shortly before 4 o'clock Mr. Wm. Cochrane, umpire, called out "play ball," and the battle royal commenced, the Grand Trunk team being first at the bat. McDonald, pitcher, of Toronto, who at St. Michael's church picnic here recently pitched a 17 innings game, was twirler for the Park Nines, his catcher being McWhirter, also an outsider. The Grand Trunk were unable to score, although making strenuous efforts to do so. The Park Nine then went to bat, facing the pitching of Quinlan, an outsider, with 'Shorty' Brown behind the bat. The Park Nine were unable to score, and in fact no runs were secured until the third innings, when the Grand Trunk team, by safe hitting and some errors, were able to secure 4 runs. It then looked as if the railroaders had the game, but the old saying that "there is many a slip between the cup and the lip" proved to be only too true. In their half of the third innings the Park Nine secured one run. In their fourth innings the Grand Trunk team added two more runs to their score, which completed their run getting for the remainder of the game. The Park Nine in their 5th innings added three more runs to their score, which at this time was 6 to 4 in favor of the Grand Trunk. The Park Nine in the eighth innings made two more runs, tying the score. The interest in the game at this point was simply red hot, and it was with difficulty that the spectators were kept off the diamond. The Grand Trunk team were unable to score in their half of the 9th innings, but the Park Nine were. Turpin, the first man up, made a safe hit and by the time he had reached third base two men were out, namely McWhirter and McDonald. Wideman then stepped up to the plate, selected a ball which suited him and banged it to centre field, scoring Turpin and amidst tumultuous scenes winning the game for the Park Nine.

The game throughout was an excellent one and naturally much feeling was manifested. Mr. Cochrane, the umpire, had his hands full, and performed his duties well, although as is usually the case was found fault with over some decisions which he gave. Such is to be expected in a game such as was played.

Saunders pitched the last two innings for the Grand Trunk and he certainly pitched good ball. In fact all three pitchers, demonstrated that they were good twirlers.

The line up of the teams was as follows—

G. T. R.	Park Nine
Quinlan, p.	McDonald, p
Brown, c.	McWhirter, c.
O'Brien, 1stb.	Gerow, 1stb.
Laird, 2ndb.	Wideman, 2ndb
Saunders, 3rdb	Connell, 3rdb

O'Neil, r.f.	Brennan, r.f.
Gratton, c.f.	Turpin, c.f
LeFleur, l.f.	Connolly, l.f.

The score by innings was as follows—

G. T. R. — 0 0 4 2 0 0 0 0 0—6

THE WORLD TONGUE.

HARDLY A LAND IN WHICH ENGLISH IS NOT NOW HEARD.

The traveller of to-day, unless he is going to Tibet or Tierra del Fuego, can get along very well with a knowledge of the English language. The farther he goes the more he is surprised at finding the English is really "the" world tongue. In France and Spain and Italy the American traveler is craftily "spotted." He is approached on the streets by those who would for a consideration make him feel quite at home. One of his chief worries is to escape the pests who can speak English and who wish to apprise him of the fact. They may not necessarily desire to mulct him. Sometimes they are seeking merely to "show off." At any rate, they classify distinctly as bores. One may go to Smyrna or Constantinoule or Beirut and still find the streets plentifully full of English speaking nuisances. At Jerusalem he will be fairly flooded with English. He may penetrate even to Damascus, and he will find at least a befezzed hall porter who can converse glibly with him and any number of fluently willing dragemans. He may go to Cairo, and in the shadow of the pyramids he will find blue gowned Bedouins speaking more than passable English. He may go hundreds of miles up the Nile and may be steered through the locks of the first cataract by frizzly hair Nubian boatmen who make insistent demands for backsheesh in very intelligible terms. He may wander, donkey back to the tombs of the kings in the Sahara desert and be painfully disillusioned by a few words of concise information or explanation by some barefooted, dusky tent dweller.

DON'T BUY A TIRE BY ITS LOOKS.

All Automobile Tires look very much alike, they can't be judged by their appearance when new, nor can they be judged by their appearance after having gone one or two thousand miles. The tire that will do this is the Dunlop Tire, because, besides the quality there is in the tire itself, you may rely upon the ready willingness of the Dunlop Company to thoroughly satisfy every user of Dunlop Automobile Tires.

Following Cook Book Directions

is a comparatively eays matter if you have a properly constructed stove. The reason why so many stoves are poor cookers is largely due to the firebox not being large enough for the oven. Sounds simple, doesn't it, yet on it rests the results of your culinary efforts. In the construction of the certainly takes the place of doubt by providing a firebox which has been scientifically proportioned to the size of the oven. Result: the firebox is not overtaxed and there is always sufficient heat to ensure good cooking. There are other exclusive features of the Happy Thought that cannot fail to commend themselves to you. Call and we'll gladly explain them.

COUNTING BY TENS.

And a Suggestion as to Why We Buy Things by the Dozen.

Did it ever occur to you as strange that while we count by tens we buy so many articles by the dozen? If we ask the price of apples, oranges, oysters, eggs, collars, handkerchiefs and many other things we will be told so many cents or dollars a dozen, or if large quantities are wanted so much a gross, which means a dozen dozen.

How do you suppose this has come about? It was this way: Nearly all savage people count by their fingers—that is, if they want to tell you they have seen two wild beasts they will hold up two fingers, and if ten they will hold up both hands, and if twenty both hands twice, and so on. Babies also learn to count by their fingers and toes, and to many people it seems as if that were the only possible way.

It is, however, rather a clumsy way, as you find out when you try to divide ten. Say, for example, you have ten apples. You can only make an equal division among two or five persons, while if you have twelve you can give an equal number to two, three, four or six. We find the same inconvenience in dividing a dollar and often have to pay 13 cents for what should properly cost 12½ cents.

If we had been born with two, four six or eight fingers or toes, like some animals, it is possible that we should have counted differently, but it does not now seem likely there will ever be any change in the ten or decimal system, as it is called, especially since the Arabic numerals now used nearly everywhere are based on this system.

CHEAPEST TIRE IN THE END.

Every experienced automobilist knows that, on the whole, Dunlop Automobile Tires cost less per mile because besides the quality which is in the tire in the first place, there stands back of it the ready willingness of the Dunlop Company to thoroughly satisfy every user of Dunlop Automobile Tires.

Back From Arctic.

Bristol, R.I., Sept. 6.—Two polar bears, two walrus, six musk ox calves, and a great variety of birds are among the living trophies brought back from the far north by Harry Whitney of New Haven, Conn., and Paul J. Rainey of New York, the wealthy sportsmen who arrived here Sunday night after a summer's hunting beyond the Arctic circles.

Two Drown In Collision.

New York, Sept. 6.—The barge Bristol, in tow from Newport News to New York, laden with 1,000 tons of pig iron, is lying at the bottom of the ocean, off Barnegate, N.J., as the result of a collision with the outward bound Italian steamer Dinnamare, bound for Norfolk.

Two of the barge's crew, J. Brown, the captain, and Wm. Holmes, a seaman, were drowned.

MAN, STUDY YOUR HAIR!

Then Before You Comb It Study the Architecture of Your Face.

Just as surely as hair is woman's crowning glory it is man's glorious crowning—that is, to those that have it. Those whose heads have pushed up through their hair usually use a huckaback towel for the delicate process of parting the hair, but unless one has the peculiar requirements it is not worth while to cultivate them.

Men with low, squatting foreheads should not pull their hair down over their brows, and men whose foreheads are beginning to work back should invite their locks down. If your hair has quietly slipped down toward your ears on each side, leave it there. If you bring it up in strings and wisps it will merely look like climbing vines and will never really have the free and easy homelike appearance that ought to be the part of all natural hair.

Do not part your hair any earlier than you can help. Hair is in a hurry these days, anyway. Usually it doesn't stay more than long enough to make sure that the baby is going to be a boy before it hastens off. It will part of itself soon enough the best you can do.

Before combing your hair you should get acquainted with the architecture of your face. If your face is of the harvest moon variety do not inlay your hair. Puff it up as much as possible. It's better to look like a feather duster on a Monday morning than a scratched billiard ball on a Saturday night.

But if your face is of a long, galloping ensemble do not encourage your hair to fluff. Instead keep it down close to headquarters. If your head inclines to run up to a cone do not spread your hair around in imitation of a palm tree thatch. Rather fluff it up and windrow it for fear some unbred person will begin to talk about spring radish tops.—Homer Croy in Delineator.

UNCLE SAM'S DOCTORS.

Rank and Pay of Physicians In the Government Service.

Uncle Sam employs more than 1,000 physicians.

These doctors are pretty evenly divided between the medical corps of the army, the medical corps of the navy, the marine hospital and the public health service. The complete army medical corps includes 444 medical officers in addition to the medical reserve corps, the hospital corps, the nurse corps and the dental corps. The medical corps embraces "a surgeon general with the rank of brigadier general, 14 colonels, 105 majors and 300 captains or first lieutenants, with the rank, pay and allowances of officers of corresponding grades in the cavalry arm of the service."

The pay of doctors is interesting. The lowest rank held by medical officers is that of first lieutenant. The medical lieutenant gets $2,000 per annum, or $166.66 monthly. At the end of three years he is promoted to captain and receives $2,400 a year. In two years he receives an increase of 10 per cent, or five years' service, making $2,640, or $220 per month. After ten years' service the pay would be $2,880, or $240 per month. The pay attached to the rank of major is $3,000 per year, which, with 10 per cent added for each five years' service, becomes $3,600 after ten years' service, $3,900 after fifteen years' service and $4,000 after twenty years' service. The monthly pay of lieutenant colonel, colonel and brigadier general is $375, $416.66 and $500 respectively.

In addition to their salaries, officers are furnished with comfortable quarters and the keep of two horses free, and groceries, fuel, etc., at wholesale prices.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Bald Eagle's Nest.

Among birds the home of the bald eagle is perhaps the most striking, possibly because of the majesty of the bird itself. It appeals to the imagination. Built of huge sticks loosely interwoven and situated on some lofty and inaccessible ledge, with the bones of the eagle's victims scattered roundabout it, it gives a proper setting to the stern and savage character of its builder. Here the eagle reigns supreme, and here year after year he and his mate rear their young. This is the aerie from which he can scan the whole countryside and, like the robber barons of old, levy toll on all who pass his door.

Her Lost Jewels.

Backlotz—What's this I hear about Mrs. Swellman being robbed of her jewels? Subbubs—Fact. They're gone, and Mrs. Kraft is the guilty party. Backlotz—What! You don't mean to say she stole— Subbubs—What else can you call it? She offered the cook 15 shillings a week and the chambermaid 10 shillings, and now she's got 'em.—London Tit-Bits.

A Substitute.

"Pardon me, gentlemen," said the individual who had just moved into the little town as he entered the grocery store, "but is there a chicken raiser here?"

"Why don't you take an ax?" asked the village Talleyrand. "A razor will lose its edge if you use it on a chicken."

Well Fed.

The Barmaid—Your dog is getting very fat. What do you feed him on, Mr. McPherson? McPherson—Oh, I dinna gi'e him ony reg'lar meals. Jist whenever I drop in for a drink he gets a biscuit.—London M. A. P.

Right and Wrong.

It requires something of a hero to give up when he is wrong and a good deal of a family man to give up when he is right.—Puck.

Beneficial results are said to have attended experiments in a London hospital by which asthma, bronchitis and even tuberculosis patients were required to breathe compressed air for a few hours at a time.

DIGGING THE BIG DITCH.

The steam shovels stand on terraced levels and in fifty minutes load a train of eighteen flat cars, which are unloaded in fifteen minutes more amid a shower of dust. The line of cars is followed by "spreaders." All through the cut puffs of steam here and there indicate where the shovels are burrowing their way and pushing the work forward. Watching shovel 221, I stood on engine No. 298 when she was at work. Engineer Harrison, his hand on the lever, was pushing the cars up in due course as the steam shovels filled them, while the conductor, raising and lowering a flag, directed a "shove-up," so that even while loading it is sometimes necessary for an engineer to keep his hand on the throttle. One shovel accomplished probably as much work in a day as could be done by 600 men, and there is a great deal of rivalry among the operators to make the best record.

The record of steam shovel 223 for one hot day shows how the dirt flies on the isthmus. Three hundred and thirteen cars were loaded in 470 minutes. In the language of Larry O'Grady, this was "going some," almost an average of a car a minute, with eleven seconds grace, or a rate of a cubic yard of earth every seven seconds. A remark was made by a sad eyed man of unknown nationality, "It looks as though the dirt had wings, doesn't it?" Over 50,933 cubic yards of rock have been taken out in twenty-five working days by one shovel, and a completed tunnel through the cut is excavated within every month.—Joe Mitchell Chapple in National Magazine.

A FOREST GIANT.

Monster Tree Trunk That Rivals the Famous Fallen Monarch.

A rival of the giant tree, the Fallen Monarch, familiar in pictures with a stagecoach on top of its trunk, has been found on the slopes of Bald mountain, in northern Tulare county.

It is in a region little visited and was first noted by R. H. Gallagher, an old Yosemite stage driver, two years ago. When Gallagher tried to return to it he lost the trail and did not find the great tree again for months.

The great trunk lies in the forest, the lower two or three feet of it buried in the soil which has been accumulating for ages. It is believed that hundreds of years have passed since the great tree fell, and the fires of ages have rolled over it through the forest. Much of the bark has been burned away, yet originally it was from twenty to forty inches thick. The trunk now is more than 100 feet in circumference, and it is a hard climb to get on top of it.

Bald peak is midway between the Sequoia National park and the General Grant National park. Near by is Redwood mountain, on which there are said to be 10,000 giant trees. The region, which is northeast of Visalia, is reached by stage to Eshom valley, twenty-one miles, where Gallagher has a camp called Juanita camp.—Los Angeles Express.

German Acuteness.

The egg cups imported into India at one time all came from Great Britain. The Indian eggs are, however, very small, and the egg cups did not fit. A German traveler noticed this small item and got his firm to make smaller egg cups and export them there. All the trade is now in German hands. In Africa the scissors imported from Sheffield were found to be rather dangerous weapons to place in the hands of the natives, owing to their sharp points. The Solingen Steel works sent a lot of round pointed scissors out, which found favor, and now Germany has captured the whole market.—From "Germany of the Germans."

Saving the Edelweiss.

The edelweiss, responsible for so many deaths, is becoming rare. The plant when it is culled is not of particular beauty, but the fascination of picking it is in an inverse ratio. Natives of the poorer class gather the flower, and tourists buy it for the same reason as certain anglers buy trout. The Bavarian government is so alarmed at the threatened destruction of the mountain "orchid" that a law has been passed to penalize the gathering without a permit. The measure is somewhat drastic, for even a proprietor who wishes to gather the flower must first obtain a permit.—London Globe.

Bacteria.

Modern investigations as to the origin of diseases have brought the little organisms called bacteria into so much prominence that search has been made to ascertain whether they existed during the early geological periods. Not long since the fact was announced that Regnault had discovered bacteria in coal. Continuing his researches, he found evidence that bacteria were probably coeval with the first appearance of organic life on the earth. They attacked vegetable tissues as well as the bones and teeth of animals; but, as a rule, they belonged to species distinct from those of today.

A Romantic Career.

Caid Belton, the young English officer who, at the age of twenty-six, became commander in chief to Mulai Hafid and helped him win the throne of Morocco, has had a stranger than fiction career. At nineteen he received his commission for bravery in South Africa, soon after achieved his captaincy in Somaliland, entered Mulai Hafid's service in 1908, and now everybody in Morocco calls him "the kingmaker."

At a recent meeting of the Society of Authors, London, Maurice Hewlett directed attention to the fact that Thomas Hardy, recently elected, was but the third president the society has had in its entire career. Mr. Hardy's predecessors were Tennyson and George Meredith.

New York, Sept. 6.—With more than 300 passengers, including many women and children on board, the excursion steamer Sea Gull, which left Glen Island, on Long Island Sound, late Sunday night for New York, broke her anchor chain while at anchor outside Hell Gate waiting for the fog to lift, and drifted on the rocks off Cat Briar Island. Household Hints.

Do you know that coffee stains, even when there is cream in the coffee, can be removed from the most delicate silk or woolen fabrics by brushing the spots with pure glycerin? Rinse in lukewarm water and press on the wrong side until quite dry. The glycerin absorbs both the coloring matter and the grease.

Do you know if a cloth is wetted in vinegar and wrung out as dry as possible with the hands and wrapped around cheese and then the whole put in a large paper bag and kept in a cool place the cheese will retain the moisture and freshness of a newly cut cheese and will not mold.

Do you know that in peeling apples the brown satin that generally appears on peeled slices can be avoided by setting each slice as it is peeled in a basin of cold water? Thus no contact with the air is possible, and the stain is avoidable.

The water draws out the acids, and there is a sacrifice of flavor to color if this plan is used and the apples are soaked too long. Any discolored slices will turn white again if rubbed with a piece of lemon.

The ...Veiled Lady...

ly dancing! Has he Irene's promise? Perhaps! I hope so! Her self-reliant nature keeps her quiet! Almost a miracle! A woman who can keep her own secrets, yes, her innermost thoughts. Well! she has every arrangement made for Paris! There are many of our friends there! It's only an excursion run now! Confound it! I will miss them both! Jack's only food for powder any way! So we go!" Dr. Selfridge leaned back in his padded coupe and thought sadly of his own gallant boy who fell at Corinth, under bold Earl Van Dorn!—"I'll work on, and wear out, like the rest!" he sighed. He was nearing the "sere and yellow leaf!"

Next morning, Phineas Orton idly scanned the columns of the St. Louis Republican, as he leisurely finished his breakfast.

"Politics! Bah!—River News! Trash! Local issues of the Day! Theatres! ah! . . . . Social News!—Let us see!" Suddenly he rose from his chair, and glanced at his watch. "Nine thirty! Thank Heaven! I can move around, a little, now! I think I will prospect that church?" Carefully cutting out an item, he donned his street garb. Lighting his cigar, he read once more before sallying forth: "Lieutenant John Gordon, Seventh U. S. Cavalry, has recovered from the severe wounds he received in the Battle of the Washita, and left last evening for Washington, where he reports, prior to joining his regiment at Fort Hays." "So he is out of the way at last! Good!"—Orton hailed a passing car, and in an hour was cautiously examining the interior of the Cathedral. Above him, from the organ loft, pealed out the noble strains of the greatest of instruments, wakened by a master hand.

"Yes, Sir!" replied the official. "Stranger here?" he remarked, with visions of a tip. "Would you like to see it?"

"If I don't disturb any one!" the detective answered.

"Oh! There's only Professor Windmuller, the old organist, upstairs. He don't mind strangers! He's a jolly old German and fond of company."

So it fell out that in an hour, Orton and the organist sat in a cosy retreat where the musician enjoyed, as was his wont, his German pipe and the beer of the Fatherland!—"You haf our Sonntag music heard?" the Professor queried. "Nein? You must come! Not so bad fur die Amerika," he qualified his praise. "But we haf the best sangerin now lost! She goes to the old country fur de music culture. Ah! wie schon!" the old man sighed. "She shall not be so easy to replace!"

Orton casually asked, as he ordered fresh supplies, "And when did she leave, Professor?"

"On die Wednesday, she half say Good Bye to me! I know not where she goes to, but it is a lovely Fraulein!"

Orton was quivering with excitement. "What was her name?" he queried.

"It was the Miss Irene Hope; and for two years she haf sing here like an angel!" the musician said.

"Is she really gone?" Orton persisted.

"So I think!" said Windmuller, filling his pipe. "It is to the priest's house she goes by the Sacristy, to say also, the auf wiedersehen!"

Orton hid his face behind rapid puffs of smoke. "And so she went out another way!" His pulse was bounding. "And beautiful, a blond frau?" interrogated Orton, with a poor attempt at the Professor's jargon.

"Nein! Tall, wit dark eyes and black hair! Ein Engelschon Fraulein! She haf in the home of the great Doctor Selfridge lived!"

"And she has been here two years? You are sure?"

"I have played efry Sonntag for the Fraulein!—I haf myself, her all the while seen."

Promising to listen to the grand services of High Mass, Orton said adieu! The old Professor claimed him for another visit. Orton sat quiet for an hour, in the nearest convenient retreat. "No! It cannot be! This woman has been here openly for two years! Neill never went into society here! Gordon told me he had only been once at Selfridge's house. They did not know him!" said he, consulting his notes. "I don't dare to go to the Doctor's. I must let Gordon alone! If I could only get her picture! The choir is a large one! Some one of the volunteer singers, most likely! If it was a local connection, it would be some rank outsider! A woman in this Miss Hope's social position could not carry on an intrigue! Her every hour was counted at home. Neill could not go out in the day! She was tied down in a secluded southern home! As for local connection, Neill was a Northerner! They don't get on so easy in the Southern families! And Farrell says he never saw any likely looking woman call at Neill's office; nor any letters writen in a feminine hand arrive either! At the hotel, his habits were very steady! Reading, study, and occasional military visitors busied him!—Could the woman whom Terence saw, have been carrying on some other intrigue? Possibly. St. Louis is like all large cities, it has its hidden life! I wonder if Neill had made any secret enemy! Some creole! Some river pirate! Some new lover of the woman whom he feared! Did she track him down; and some one else do the deed?

"It's all a mystery! The three old letters merely open a story, which is only an episode in many men's lives. The last one reads like the words of an angry woman who had finally caught him after a long chase! If I found this woman, now, why, there's really nothing to hold her on! The ring! It can't be easily traced to her,—and Gordon has that!" He wandered homeward! "Time alone brings out these veiled mysteries! I'll report in detail to Horace Jenks! The boy can keep at work! If I dared talk to the Cathedral clergy! But they are artful! I would have to unmask! I'll wait Jenks' reply; but I'll keep my eye on Miss Irene Hope's future career!"

Long and late Orton's lamp burned that night, and while he indited his report to Horace Jenks in Paris; at Louisville (three hundred miles away) John Gordon and Irene Hope were made one,—"until Death should them part!"—It was, in private, that the Master of Belvoir wedded his peerless bride! The venerable clergyman, who blessed their union, eyed the handsome young couple askance! "There seems to be no constraint! It does not look like a runaway match," he ruminated, as he filled out duplicate marriage certificates. He listened to the rumble of the carriage wheels as "Man and Wife" left him! "This is certainly handsome!" said the dominie, pocketing a hundred-dollar bill, with his spectacles! "Ah! Young hearts! High Hopes! Such is Life," he mused.

"You wear my own mother's wedding ring, darling," he whispered. "Now, I mush show you a soldier's strategy! We will take the midnight train for Cincinnati; as the 'Galt House' is Kentucky's most noted hostelry, I might meet friends, and would then have to explain, and risk breaking my word to you!—At Cincinnati we will rest for a few days!"

Gordon had left the faithful Jackson in charge at St. Louis. With the aid of a strange maid and man, the cavalryman and his bride departed for the banks of the Ohio.

Three days later the young dreamers in the Land of Love held a solemn conclave over the future. Irene Gordon's brow was grave.

"Dear Jack! I find only one trouble where all was—I thought—arranged—I cannot write to you as Irene Hope! I dare not as Irene Gordon! What shall we do? I will not use the name Irene Hope in the domain of art! I have resolved to bear the name of Isabel Percy,—a family name! How shall this be done?"

The blushing bride of three days was in a quandary! Gordon, to whose noble nature all concealment was repugnant, thought long and seriously!

"I have it! My bank correspondent with Drexel, Harjes & Co., of Paris I will provide you money for your voyage! I will have a letter of credit prepared for Miss Isabel Percy, and forwarded to you there! I shall give you a letter to them from my bank, and you can draw on the Bank of St. Louis against your own funds. No one will know but that you are a 'Kentucky cousin!'" For Irene Gordon, with her Delilah skill, had run over the gamut of Jack Gordon's loves "You will write me to the Bank of St. Louis, and they will have my orders; also my will!" His beautiful wife shuddered.

"Don't speak of that!"

"I must," he said, "and once for all! I have made my classmate Maxwell, Executor, and the Bank of St Louis, trustees. I must change it now for you!"

"It shall be as you wish!" his wife said, her lovely arms twined around him, "but don't talk to me of death! Wait till you join me abroad; then our real life will begin!"

Gordon folded the anxious beauty to his breast. "Ah! If Maxwell could only know you! He is a royal fellow! He would idolize you! It's too hard by Jove! And my Virginian heart brother, Beverly Seaton, too, he——"

Gordon's wife fell fainting in his arms. He shouted for the maid!—In half an hour, the fair woman he loved was able to whisper:

"Don't be frightened! I was only weak and nervous! You simply crush me when you talk of your will and death!" She covered her eyes with her trembling hands. Gordon warmed them with kisses. "I am all right now," she whispered, between smiles and tears. He fondly said:

"You need rest, my darling! I insist that you must sleep! I shall write some letters! The maid will watch with you here!"

"Don't leave me, Jack! My own husband! Stay and write here. I will be well in the morning."

It was late, when Gordon gazing at the quiet face of the lovely sleeper, threw himself half dressed on a divan. Utterly exhausted, he slept heavily! Was it a dream that in the night he felt his wife's presence as she hovered near? Had he woke in the early gray of the winter dawn, he might have seen a woman, almost ghostlike in her gliding, scanning the stamped envelopes ready for the mail on his table! With several to St. Louis, and one to Maxwell, at Washington, lay a letter directed to Beverly Seaton, Brevoort House, New York City.

"Tell me of your friends! Who is this Mr. Seaton?" said Irene at breakfast. She was in her usual calm beauty and serenity.

"Oh! He's a splendid young Virginian, who is a sworn ally of my classmate Maxwell! He has a royal old place near Woodstock in the Shenandoah! He was in the southern army! I hope to meet him at Washington! I've written him to come down and stay with Maxwell and myself, for the last few days I can be there!—I wouldn't dare to trust myself alone till you sail, Irene! If I must obey you, I shall go west at once! My wife! My wife! Can I not tell Selfridge! You know he loves you like a father! He spent the last three hours I was with him, telling me that you had been the light of his home! He also told me that he would leave you property! Can I not make his heart glad?"

"My husband! I have your word of honor! When the two years are finished, you will know all! Doctor Selfridge shall hear often of me! But there must always be secrecy! You must not even show my picture! I have my reasons!" Her face was shaded with a nameless sorrow and unrest. "And your friends, Maxwell and Seaton, are they married?"

"Neither of them! Maxwell is ambitious, and Seaton never goes in so-

THE NEXT CENSUS.

The Counting of 1911 Will Cover a Wide Field.

The next census of Canada will be taken under date of June 1, 1911, and will embrace the subjects of population, mortality, agriculture, manufactures, minerals, fisheries and dairy products.

Population will be recorded under the heads of residence and personal description, citizenship, nationality and religion; profession, occupation and trade or means of living; wage-earnings and insurance; education and language spoken, and infirmities.

Every person living on 1st June will be entered on the schedule of population by name, as member of a family, institution or household, together with place of habitation, sex, relationship to head of family or household, and whether single, married, widowed, divorced or legally separated. The month of birth, year of birth and age at last birthday will also be recorded.

Entries will be made for each person to show the country or place of birth, year of immigration to Canada, if born elsewhere, year of naturalization if formerly an alien, and also racial or tribal origin, nationality and religion. Every person of alien birth who has become a naturalized citizen is a Canadian by nationality; and every British subject with residence in Canada, as well as every native of Canada who has acquired citizenship by birth or naturalization, is also a Canadian by nationality. But there is no Canadian by racial or tribal origin, unless the Indians are so counted.

Every person having an occupation or trade will be entered for it, but if employed in the census year at some other occupation for part or whole time he will be so recorded also. If the person is working on own account, the entry will be so made. An entry is also required to be made showing where the person is employed, as farm, in woolen mill, at foundry shop, in drug store, etc.

Wage earners are entered to show the number of weeks employed in 1910 at chief occupation or trade; at other than chief occupation if any; the hours of working time per week at chief occupation, or at other occupation, if any; the total earnings in 1910 at chief occupation; the total earnings at other than chief occupation; and the rate per hour when employed by the hour.

Entries are required to be made for each person showing the amount of insurance held at date of the census upon life, as well as against accident or sickness, together with the cost of such insurance in the census year.

Under the heading of education and language, records will be taken for every person of five years of age and over showing the number of months at school in 1910, and if the person can read and write, and the language commonly spoken by each person. The cost of education in 1910 for persons over 16 years of age at college, convent or university is also called for.

The last question on the schedule of population relates to infirmities. It calls for a record of each person having an infirmity. If blind, deaf and dumb, crazy or lunatic, idiotic or silly, a record thereof will be made in the proper column, and the age at which the infirmity appeared is required to be specified.

Hays' Lesson In Diligence.

The anecdote anent C. M. Hays, president of the G.T.R., which is given below, is going the rounds of the Canadian press, and is used quite properly as a counsel to diligence in young men.

Charles Melville Hays was in the passenger department of the Atlantic and Pacific Railway at St. Louis when he was not much over 17. One day Mr. Talmage, vice-president and general manager of the Gould roads, entered the room. It was a little before lunch hour, and half the clerks were putting on their coats. Others were looking at their watches and leaving for the wash-room. In the general commotion of breaking up there were a few who were still busy, and among them was young Hays. Talmage approached him and asked the time of day. The young man did not hear, and Talmage put a hand on his desk, repeating the question. Hays looked up, surprised to see the chief at his elbow.

"I beg your pardon, were you speaking to me?" he asked.

"Merely asked the time—that was all," said Talmage.

Hays glanced about the room until his eyes rested on the office clock and said:

"It's eleven fifty."

"Thank you," said the general manager, strolling out.

It was directly after that conversation that Talmage picked Hays out as his private secretary and confidential clerk. The fact that Hays was thinking more about his work than about breaking away had impressed the general manager in a most favorable way.

Reporter Was Late.

If you know of an item or piece of news, tell us about it. That's just what we want. But a newspaper man sometimes experiences more difficulty in gathering news than one would imagine. This was the case with a reporter in a neighboring town who a few days ago was sent to write up a fire in a residence. Going to the door he enquired for the lady of the house. The maid said she was out. "Are any of the family at home?" inquired the scribe. "No, they are all out," was the reply.

"Well, wasn't there a fire here last evening?" "Yes," said the young lady, "but that's out too."—Caledonia Banner.

Beeton Boy's Success.

Shelburne amateur gardeners are getting out after records. H. S. Fenton's garden yielded a good mess of green peas on July 7. This seems like "a little bit of all right" for early.—Shelburne Economist. Mr. Fenton was an old Beeton boy. Beeton boys lead wherever they go.—Beeton World.

When boiling milk for a custard powder, sprinkle the bottom of the saucepan with sugar; this dissolves and forms a layer, and so prevents the milk from burning, no matter how long it boils. It applies to any sweetened milk.

Wallpaper that has been soiled by a smoky fire or lamp may be cleansed by using a hard, dry sponge; the stiffer and harder the better. Rub the wall briskly with it.

When packing lay a sheet of tissue paper between the folds of your skirts, and if the trunk will not take them full-length put a soft wad of paper where they turn over.

Tinware should be rubbed with flannel well soaped to remove all stains, brightened with a fine flannel dipped in whitening and finished with the ever-useful chamois leather.

In the making of hot starch soapy water should always be used. This gives the necessary shine to the linen, while it prevents any chance of the iron sticking to the surface of the article.

CANADIAN QUAIL.

The Sportsman Is Swiftly Driving Him to Extinction.

Just at this season of the year, in early morning or early twilight, you may hear him piping his mellow "bob white" from stumpy fallow or snake fence.

He is a bold fellow in this, his mating season. He seeks the highest pinnacle of stump or fence to send his call of gladness out across a world of sweeping grain or tangled shrubbery.

Close at hand, his mate, a shy, brown-coated bird, is huddled on her nest. That nest rests on the ground snugly hidden in the tall grasses. It holds twelve or fourteen white eggs and, while warming these to life, the hen bird's sharp eyes are alert for sign of her greatest enemies, the sneaking weasel or hawk.

When the eggs are hatched, the nest is discarded for a hiding place in the dark thicket of alders and yellow-tops. The "bob white's" call is heard no more, neither is the splendid fellow seen again on stump or fence top. He is with his mate teaching the animated balls of down, the baby quail, things they must learn if they would avoid the many dangers of the bird world.

Morning and evening, the old birds take their brood out into the open to feed. There the little birds tumble or play or, at the slightest noise in the open, or shadow in the skies, dart and hide. Once hidden, it would take a clever prowler to find the little fellows, so cunningly do they hug the grass and so closely do their feathers blend with its colors.

In a very short time the baby birds' wings grow strong enough to carry them. Every day then the old birds take them for a short flight and after the evening feeding-time lead them in Indian file down furrows, dry water runs and weedy fallows back to the roosting-place, for after the last flights the birds fly hardly ever, unless it be away from danger.

The covey roosts in a little bare spot commanding a view of their surroundings. They snuggle down in a complete circle, heads outward. When molested they take to flight with a thundering whirl of wings that is very disconcerting to the amateur sportsman.

The Canadian quail, like all other of our game birds, is rapidly becoming extinct. This is due to two causes—the wholesale slaughter of the game bird and lack of safe harbors as breeding and roosting spots.

A Hot-Weather Broil.

Truly a hot weather quarrel this recent war between the pen and the city fathers of Edmonton—all over a brick of ice cream. The journal editor is quite wrathy. It seems that in Edmonton stands an institution called Happyland; surely there is nothing remarkable in that. What town in Canada to-day is minus its Elysian Happyland, or Dreamland wonderful banishers of dull care; outside a maze of colored lights; past the doorkeeper smiling and effusive in his brass buttons the glorious strains of "Has Any One Here Seen Kelly" breaking on the ears? "All for a dine, ten cents," barks the florid proprietor. The performance is served up. You watch Jeffries floor Sam Berger, and while you are figuring out his chances with the Big Smoke, the scene abruptly changes. Exit the fighters; the fleeting pictures are now revealing the awful vicissitudes of Bertha, the Sewing-Machine Girl.

But Edmonton's Happyland, according to press descriptions, has none of these features extraordinary. It is merely a plain unvarnished booth — object to sell ice cream. Charitable mission to the parched throngs these days! For many weeks this booth has dispensed the chill confection on every day in the week. Especially on the seventh day did the cones and the sodas disappear—horrible thing! thought someone trailing home from church one Sunday morn. The City Council got wind of it, there was a pow-wow, the chief of police was dispatched to the scene — and Happyland on Sunday sells no more ice cream. Exclaims The Journal:—

"Even in Toronto the good, where the desire to restrict the freedom of the individual runs rampant, the courts have given interpretations to the Sunday observance ordinances which prescribe ice cream as food and admit the right of dealers to sell and individuals to buy the same on Sunday."

Wo, the Poor Chinaman.

Mr. Ewing Buchan, manager of the Vancouver branch of the Bank of Hamilton, is the possessor of a fine basso profundo reading voice; also of a Chinese cook who answers to the name of Wo.

Mr. Buchan is in the habit of reading a passage of the Scriptures to his assembled family every day before breakfast.

Now it happened one day that Mr. Buchan chose for the morning's reading a passage from the Lamentations of Jeremiah. His family duly assembled, Mr. Buchan cleared his throat, and in a sonorous voice commenced—"Woe, Woe and lamentation——"

He got no further, for at that point the door communicating with the kitchen burst open and the celestial cook inserted his head. "You wanta me?" he inquired. Tableau.

Doctor's Thrilling Experience.

Doctor Boyd of Fort William and a party of nine friends had an experience on Sunday night they will not soon forget. They left with a launch on Sunday for a little tour of some of the islands. Everything was pleasant until the storm sprang up in the afternoon. When they reached the more open water the little launch was at the mercy of the waves. The party was forced to land and finding the soft side of rock lay down and tried to woo Morpheus. Needless to say their sleep was not peaceful slumbers. Morning was a welcome relief as the storm had gone down and let them home none the worse.—Manitoulin Expositor.

The argument advanced in favor of a new phonograph which has its records in the form of endless belts is that it is possible to provide much longer selections than by the older methods.

FLOWERS IN HISTORY.

Some Costly Bouquets and Floral Wreaths—Queen Victoria's Rose.

It is stated that over $250,000 was paid to Covent Garden alone for flowers to be made into wreaths for Queen Victoria's funeral. It is safe to say that this large sum has been more than doubled in the purchase of floral mementoes for that of our late King, for many of the wreaths—like that of the Sultan of Zanzibar, which was 14 feet by 7 feet and contained over 500 chosen orchids, and that of the Emperor of Japan, which measured 5 1-2 feet in diameter—cost considerably over $500 apiece.

Flowers have played an important part in the world's history.

In the national insignia see what a place they take—the rose standing for England, the thistle representing Scotland, and the shamrock Ireland.

For a flower the late Count de Chambord lost France. There came a moment when the throne was offered "King" Henry. But he must accept, with the sceptre and the gilded chair, the tri-colored flag. Another man would have taken the bauble and the seat, the crown and all its troubles; but Henri Cinq was not that sort of pretender. "Either I have the lilies and the white flag, or I remain an exile," he said, and with this he crushed all the hopes of the Bourbons.

It was with a white rose that Queen Victoria wooed and won Prince Albert. "I gave him a flower," she writes in her diary. "It was a white rose." As the monarch of a great country, she could receive no proposal from a prince of a small state, and till she gave him the rose he could not aspire to her hand. With what feelings he received it is told in the story of his life.

Flowers have played a great part in politics. There were the Wars of the Roses—red and white; and Lord Beaconsfield's flower, the primrose, has a million devotees to-day in England.

A fight took place not many years ago over an artificial forget-me-not. A gentleman sent it to a damsel whom he knew, and it fell into the hands of the elder brother of the lady. There was nothing in the letter that contained the flower to indicate why it was forwarded, not a word of all the epistle alluded to it, but the brother challenged the sender. Each fired at the same moment, both fell dead, and to this day no one knows why the artificial forget-me-not was sent.

The First Aviator.

Was Harold the last of the Saxon Kings, our first aviator? This is a point seriously maintained by ancient biographers of the Saxon King who perished in the Battle of Hastings. In the course of an article in The Windsor Magazine a writer recalls a tradition which cannot of course be either disputed or disproved to-day, but was of sufficient interest to be retold even by the poet Milton in his "History of the Anglo-Saxons," where the poet-historian says: "Harold was, in his youth, strangely aspiring had made and fitted wings to his hands and feet; with these on the top of a tower, spread out to gather air, he flew more than a furlong; but the wind being too high, came fluttering down, to the maiming of all his limbs; yet so conceited of his art, that he attributed the cause of his fall to the want of a tail, as birds have, which he forgot to make to his hinder parts. This story, though seeming otherwise too light in the midst of a sad narration, yet for the strangeness thereof, I thought worthy enough the placing."

An Extraordinary Shower.

Daniel O'Connell, the Irish agitator, once complained in the House of Commons of a report of a speech in a London newspaper which, he said, put into his mouth opinions he had never expressed. He vowed that if the editor did not apologize he would move that he be brought to the bar for a breach of privilege. Next day the reporter of the speech waited upon O'Connell and gave a most remarkable explanation. He stated that during his walk from the House to his office in Fleet street the rain streamed into his pockets and obliterated the notes of his speech.

"I accept the explanation," said O'Connell good humoredly, "but let me say that it must have been a very extraordinary shower of rain, for it not only washed out of your notebook the speech I delivered, but washed in another of an entirely different character."

Kangaroos.

Kangaroos use their hands very readily to hold food in and to put it to their mouths. As their fore legs are so short that they have to browse in a stooping position, they seem pleased when able to secure a large bunch of cabbage or other vegetable provender and to hold it in their hands to eat. Sometimes the young kangaroo, looking out of the pouch, catches one or two of the leaves which the old one drops, and the pair may be seen each nibbling at the salad held in their hands, one, so to speak, "one floor" above the other.

Survival of a Custom.

On gateposts you will frequently find a stone ball. Who would ever suppose that the balls on the gateposts were the heads of family enemies? It was once the custom to stick your enemy's gory head as a trophy on the gatepost. On the gates of towns were stuck the heads of traitorous persons. In old London, for instance, the bridge gate and Temple Bar were always decorated with ghastly relics of the kind, and the memory of the custom survives on the gateposts of modern suburban villas.

Church Becomes Theatre.

A number of workmen are transforming an old building in Praed street, Paddington, London, into a "luxurious cinematograph theatre"—as the notice-board has it. The transformation is of somewhat unusual interest, notwithstanding the number of derelict chapels that have shared a similar fate. The building is the chapel where Dr. Clifford first commenced his ministrations.

IN MEMORIAM.

At an early hour Tuesday evening, Johnnie W. Jordan, beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jordan, second concession of Thurlow, met with a fatal accident on the Grand Junction Railway, while employed as brakeman. He was a young man who was highly esteemed by all who knew him. His death came as a sudden shock to his many bereaved friends. He leaves to mourn his loss a sorrowing father and mother, also five brothers, namely: Anson, Will, Hector, Frank and Burrows, and two sisters, Mrs. A. W. Reid, of this city, and Miss Maggie, at home.

In memory of our beloved one, who died August 9th, 1910:

Earth has lost its look of gladness,
  Heaven seems to us more bright,
Since the spirit of our dear one
  Has taken his Heavenly homeward flight.

Even as the winter breezes kill
  The blooming summer flowers,
So death did rob with icy chill
  This fond dear one of ours.

No brother could have fonder been.
  His memory is warm;
The hearts for him are sad to-day
  Throughout this home of ours.

The Golden Gates were open,
  A gentle voice said come,
And, with farewell unspoken,
  He calmly entered home.

And when we think of that dear form,
  Which now is still and cold,
Thank God, we know where he has gone,
  His name with Christ enrolled.

GUARD THEIR HEALTH!

Children Who Grow Very Fast Need Careful Watching.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills would make her healthy and happy.

Next to infancy, the years between ten or twelve and eighteen are the most critical in life, especially for the boys and girls who grow too fast. Rapid growth and the physical changes that are taking place render them particularly liable to weakness and disorders of the digestive system, kidneys or lungs that very frequently, when allowed to run on, condemn them to a lifetime of suffering.

It is most important that at this period of life those organs which carry off the body's waste and impurities—the bowels, the kidneys and the skin—should be kept active and vigorous.

Nothing will do this more effectively than that good old-fashioned remedy, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. It acts directly on each of these organs, enabling them to do their work properly, and thus keeps the whole system pure and healthy.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are still made from precisely the same formula as when our grandparents used them, for nothing better has ever been devised.

LLOYD-GEORGE IN CANADA.

The Welshman's Clothes Were His Chief Feature.

It was between sessions at Ottawa; accurately, in August, eleven years ago, when the tourists and citizens in the Russell House rotunda were amazed one afternoon. Into their midst, coming from the elevator that had deposited him on the ground floor, entered a gentleman whose attire was a sartorial wonder. On his head was a felt hat with a brim that would make any Stetson look like a narrow-brimmed straw. His form was half obscured by a roomy garment of rough tweed that hung from his shoulders and swayed in the August air like a South American poncho. He wore knickerbockers that were as ample as a Dutchman's breeches, and his fifteen-inch, laced up, hobnailed boots would have lasted across country to Dawson City, then lately placed on the map.

Two or three newspaper correspondents were in the rotunda. They made a run for Frank St. Jacques, the proprietor, and demanded to be told the name and style of the phenomenon.

"Why," said St. Jacques, "that's one of three Welshmen who have just struck town. They're registered. Let's see their names."

There they were:

D. Lloyd-George, M.P., London.
J. D. Rees, Cardiff.
W. L. Griffith, Cardiff.

While the search was being made the man with the clothes disappeared, but Griffith was close by. The newspapermen soon identified him as an old friend—the Canadian immigration agent at Cardiff; a Welshman who had farmed for many years in Manitoba and had lately been appointed to Cardiff by Hon. Clifford Sifton. Mr. Griffith is now Lord Strathcona's right-hand man.

A few observations were immediately taken through unsmoked glasses, and The Globe man asked:

"Say, Griffith, who's the chap with the weird clothes?"

"Why," answered the genial Griffith, "you want to keep your eye on him. He's a young Welsh lawyer and M.P. And he's going to be in the next Liberal Government, sure."

"But, gentle stranger, why that rig? What has Canada done to him that he should thus dazzle our eyes?"

"Well, he just went to a colonial outfitter and told him that he wanted a wardrobe for a Canadian trip. That's what he got. As he is in Canada, he's wearing it."

"So I see," observed one of the correspondents. "I could feel very much worse over it if we had another gentle quencher."

It was the now famous Lloyd-George, sure enough. He and Rees and Griffith were on a trip to the West to pick out land for a proposed Welsh colony. Some thousands of the Cymrians had been sent to Patagonia a few years before to found agricultural settlements, but they did not get along well with either the Argentine Government—the Argentine owns Patagonia—or the priests. The Welshmen wanted to come to Canada, and Lloyd-George, Rees and Griffith were to spy out the land. They went west with W. D. Scott, now Superintendent of Immigration, and had a buckboard trip from Regina northwest to near where Saskatoon now stands.

The Welsh settlement, as Lloyd-George wanted it established, came to naught. The future Chancellor of the Exchequer had a few stipulations which didn't suit either Clifford Sifton or W. D. Scott. One of them was that the Welshmen were to be given a big slice of territory which they were to own and govern. Welsh was to be the only language used, and English-speaking settlers were to be barred.

The Minister of the Interior promptly turned down this proposal, but an arrangement was arrived at under which some hundreds of the Patagonian Welshmen were brought to Canada as ordinary settlers. Joseph Chamberlain, then Colonial Secretary, was asked by Lloyd-George to finance the journey, but answered that Her Majesty's Government was not in the business of paying emigration expenses. Finally some wealthy Welshmen supplied the necessary funds for those who wanted to come north. In the interval many had changed their minds and stayed where they were.

When in Ottawa on the return trip from their tour, Lloyd-George and Rees became very friendly with the Canadian newspaper correspondents. The man who is now one of the three or four most prominent figures in the Empire was a hard-shell free trader and anti-militarist. The Boer war was a good deal nearer than most men thought, but Lloyd-George was as strongly convinced that it would come as was Chamberlain.

"Chamberlain will force Britain into a murderous war because his masters tell him to do so," said Lloyd-George.

"And who are his masters?"

"Ask Rhodes. Ask in the city of London."

A year afterward Lloyd-George was being execrated, hooted; chased through Birmingham disguised as a policeman. Now he is no longer "a young Welsh lawyer."

He has got there.

But, oh, those clothes!—Roden Kingsmill, in Canadian Courier.

A Snow Slander.

It fills the Canadian heart with desolation to read such an item as this:

"Sir Ernest Shackleton has chosen Canada as a place for his future home. He yearns to tramp all over the snowy wilderness and discover its mineral resources."

Thus writes The San Francisco Argonaut, in the full tide of its enthusiasm. This chilly bit of information comes, too, just at the time when the winter flannel is forgotten and the straw hat gleams on every highway. To throw the snowy wilderness in our faces in this way is the act of a cruel enemy. If Sir Ernest is indulging in any "yearns" towards our icebound districts, he has indeed another "yearn" coming to him. If we don't look out Peary will be buying that ice palace in Montreal and Dr. Cook will want a lonely hut on the Hamilton mountain-side.

Although the fisheries yield more than 1,205,000,000 pounds of sea food annually the demand exceeds the supply to such an extent that more than 400,000,000 pounds are imported each year.

TRANSPORTING DON JOSE.

What Sir William Van Horne Found When He Went to Cuba.

Before Sir William Van Horne built the Cuba railroad, the transportation problem worried none of the Cuban Dons greatly. The country, according to Norman Rankin in July Canada Monthly, lay dreaming under a centuries-old habit of Spanish leisure. "In fact," he says, "nobody cared much whether school kept or not.

"Under the Spanish regime in Cuba traveling was a serious business. Does Don Jose Miguel Fernandez Filipe Sebastian y Herera desire to go anywhere? That, look you, is a matter for thought. He discusses it gravely with his family and friends for a week or so, over coffee and cigarettes; perhaps at the end of that time he does not feel that there is need for instant haste, and loafs over more cigarettes and fresh coffee for another ten days.

"At last, summoning up his energies, he languidly sends for Pedro, and requests that the conveyance be made ready.

"In a reasonable Spanish time (which anywhere else would be an outrageously unreasonable one) Pedro returns. The volanta-wagon is minus a wheel. Que calamidad! What misfortune! Car-r-ramba! Likewise Voto a Dios! It is to repair it. Exit Pedro.

"Business of interval, and more cigarettes. Re-enter Pedro. The volanta-wagon is repaired, but he is desolated to inform the senor that the off mare is ill. Ah, child of a pig that she is to fall ill on this most auspicious day of days! But, Santissima Maria,—with an outward gesture of the hands that casts Pedro a passive wreck at the senor's illustrious feet—the fact remains that the off mare cannot stand up. More impassioned Spanish, and another interval.

"Eventually on some one of those vista to-morrows, the volanta-wagon is at last ready. Don Jose Miguel Fernandez Filipe Sebastian y Herera deposits himself and all his names in the creaky, wooden-wheeled contraption—and spends heaven only knows how many days of hay-foot straw-foot travel in reaching anywhere.

"But it is so seldom that one wants to reach anywhere," says he, "that what does it matter? Except Englishmen and Americans, who are always wanting some mad thing. It is much better to remain in the cool patio and smoke cigarettes!"

"Spiritual Comforts" Provided.

An incident occurred at Farnum camp, where the artillery and cavalry of the Province of Quebec receive their annual training, which illustrates the danger of speaking in metaphors. It is laid down in the regulations of the Militia Department of Canada that during the training manoeuvres the artillery must not fire unless there is a medical officer present with the necessary stores to dress wounds in case of accident. The officer in command of the artillery is held responsible for the carrying out of this regulation, and this year, as usual, a surgeon with an ambulance and stores was detailed to attend the batteries during practice. One very hot afternoon two colonels who were directing the firing became overcome with thirst, and riding over to the medical officer, asked him what he had in his ambulance, thinking that he would appreciate the significance of the enquiry:

"Bandages, dressings, some instruments and two stretchers," replied the medical officer.

"Any 'spiritual comforts?'" asked one of the colonels.

"No, I did not know they were required," said the medical officer.

"Well, that's something you should never forget," said the thirsty officers, covering their disappointment philosophically.

"I promise that the matter will be attended to to-morrow," said the surgeon, and the others rode away.

Next day the two colonels, as the day progressed, began to suffer again from heat and thirst and rode over to the ambulance.

"Well, have you brought those 'spiritual comforts' to-day?" they asked with pleasant anticipations.

"Yes, indeed, I have attended to that," replied the medical officer, and forthwith introduced the chaplain of the 26th Canadian Horse.

A Canadian Punster.

Very ingenious was the manner in which the late Alexander Pirie could handle the English language to make a Canadian pun. There was a discussion in the press as to the possibility of a murderer going to heaven on an eleventh-hour repentance. Some murderer sentenced to be hanged had declared that he was going straight to Heaven. Mr. Pirie's comment was a doubt as to whether there exists a next world for men who have their "necks twirled" in this.

His most famous jest was made when the Scott Act was sweeping the counties, and he suggested that the Minister of Agriculture raise a grade of short horns for use in Scott Act counties.

In 1896, when Hugh John Macdonald joined the Tupper Administration, and came to tour Ontario, with his chief, a great deal of fun was poked at Hugh John, who was alleged to be traveling on his father's reputation. Like his father, he has a very large nose, and Liberal newspapers did not hesitate to say that that nose was his chief asset, and the strong reliance of the Conservative party. Mr. Pirie affected to be grieved over those personal references to Hugh John's nose. "It's a disgrace," he wrote. "It's worse than a disgrace. Snoutrage."

A Clever Lover.

The Montreal man who had lost trace of his sweetheart certainly adopted a novel plan to locate her. He advertised that the lady was heir to a large fortune, and then sat down and waited, while the lady's relatives put forth some strenuous efforts to find her whereabouts, efforts which were at last successful. When Shakespeare—was it?—said "Love finds a way" he must have had in mind some similarly nervy gentleman.—Ottawa Journal.

To facilitate the seating of patrons of moving picture theatres where there are no reserved seats without the use of ushers, a New York man has patented a system whereby an incandescent lamp remains lighted on the back of each seat as long as it remains unoccupied.

Fox, an Outdoor Game.

This is suitable for a boys' game and is better played out of doors.

A space is marked out for the fox's den, and the fox and the rest of the players use their handkerchiefs—knotted at the end if they prefer—in attacking each other. Fox, to show he is ready to begin, shouts out, "Twice five are ten." The others call, "Fox, fox, come out of your den." Fox comes out hopping on one foot and trying to hit any of the players on the back with his handkerchief, they hitting him if they can. If fox while hopping succeeds in striking any player the one hit becomes fox and is driven to his den by the handkerchiefs of the others. After reaching the den he may give warning and hop out as the other one did.

Should fox in his efforts to hit his enemies lose his balance and use both feet he is driven home under the blows of the handkerchiefs.

The Game of Post Town.

This is an interesting game for children of nine or ten who know something of geography and are familiar with the names of places. One is chosen postmaster. Each child takes the name of any town she prefers. If there are too many for the postmaster to remember he writes down the names and holds the list in his hand. He then calls out, "I am going to send a letter from Richmond to Boston," for instance. The children bearing the names of the towns mentioned exchange seats. If they fail to do so the one who does not respond pays a forfeit. Occasionally he exclaims, "General post!" Then every one must exchange places. If any one does not secure a seat she must pay a forfeit, and these are redeemed when the game is over. Excitement is added if long postal routes, including many cities, are named.

Forbidden Letter.

The idea of this game is to try how many sentences can be spoken without containing a certain letter which has been agreed upon. Supposing, for instance, the letter "f" is not to be introduced, the first player might ask, "Is this a new game to you?" The second player could answer: "Oh, no! I played it years ago, when quite a youngster."

He would perhaps turn to the third player and ask, "You remember it, do you not?" The third player might answer, "Yes, but we used to play it differently." This player, having used a word with an "f" in it, must pay a forfeit and remain out.

The answers must be given at once without hesitation, and the player who avoids for the greatest length of time using a word containing the forbidden letter wins the game.

N. B. Headquarters for School Supplies.

Will Expropriate The Lingham Property

SUCH WAS THE DECISION OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION AT THE MEETING ON SATURDAY NIGHT—MR. P. C. MACLAURIN, SCIENCE TEACHER, HANDS IN HIS RESIGNATION.

At a special meeting of the Board of Education held on Saturday evening to consider the purchasing of a site for the erection of a Public School, the following members were in attendance:—

Messrs. W. S. Morden, chairman, Wm. Johnson, J. Wallace, C. F. Sharpe, W. P. Hudson, C. M. Reid, J. F. Wills, T. E Ketcheson, G. A. Bennett, S. S. Moore, W. S. Smith, B. Mallery, F. S. Deacon and P. Harrison.

A communication was read from Mr P. C. Mac Laurin, science teacher in the High School, tending his resignation, the same to take effect three months hence. His object on leaving was to take up his residence in the West.—Laid on table.

On motion the Board went into Committee of the whole on communications reports, etc. Mr. Johson in the chair.

A report was presented from the Sites, Building and Repairs Committee, which showed that Mr. Lindsay, City Engineer had prepared an estimate of the cost of putting the Leavens property on Dundas street in proper shape, of placing down a concrete drain, etc., which amounted to upwards of $3,000. A plan was also filed showing that the property contained about one acre of land.

Mr. Bennett stated that the Leavens property contained one acre, and in order to have the necessary quantity of land for a school site, two buildings adjoining would have to be purchased.

After a brief discussion the report of the Sites, Building and Repairs Committee was adopted.

The Committee rose and reported. The report was received and adopted.

Mr. Hudson said that as it was apparent there was not sufficient land in the Leavens property for a school site, he certainly would have to oppose purchasing the same, and especially as it would cost a large sum to procure other property and fill up the lot. As a member of the Board, he was opposed to the principle of expropriatng any property. He did not want any litigation in this matter.

Mr. Johnson was opposed to the purchasing of the Leavins property. He believed the Board were unanimous in procuring the Lingham property.

Mr. Hudson moved, seconded by Mr. Moore, that no expropriation proceedings be proceeded with by the Board.

This resolution was defeated but two voting for it, namely, the mover and the seconder.

At this stage of the proceedings the Board adjourned for a few minutes in order to consult with Mr. F. R. Lingham, who was present, in regard to procuring from him what land the Board desired, namely, two acres of a square block, and not an "L" shaped piece such as he was willing to sell to the Board

When the Board reassembled Mr. Johnson moved, seconded by Mr. Smith, that the Board proceed under the resolution passed August 27th, and the Solicitor be instructed to take the necessary steps and report at the next regular meeting of the Board on Friday evening next.

This resolution, which was unanimously adopted, means that the Board will take steps to expropriate the two acres of a square block of the Lingham property, which is needed for a school site.

A motion prevailed that Messrs. Ellis & Connery, architects, of Toronto, be consulted in reference to preparing plans, specifications, etc., for a new Public School building.

The communication of Mr. P. C. MacLaurin tendering his resignation as teacher of science in the High School was on motion referred to the School Management Committee.

STRONG BILL AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

In presenting the vaudeville at Griffin's Opera House this week, Manager Hurley has made a new departure from the usual offerings. The Hardys, amateur sketch artists, produce a delicious confection in "The Eternal Triangle." The wife discovers a letter written to her before her marriage by a former admirer, and which she believes was withheld by the man who is now her husband to make the path clear for himself. She, immediately upon finding the epistle, denounces her husband in the most scathing terms, and he, rather than vilify the memory of the man she held faith in, consents to go away. A visit from a burglar, who, upon being cornered, unmasks, brings husband and wife together again in a strong scene.

To strengthen the bill for to-night and Wednesday, the manager has secured the well-known interpreter of song, Helen St. Rayner.

The Biograph feature picture, "Jack Tars of the British Navy," will be enough to convince the most skeptical as to why the English navy is called "The First on the Seas." Three other intensely interesting films are shown.

Death of a Little Child

OBITUARY

On Saturday afternoon Mr. Wm. H. Stafford passed away at his late home on William street. Deceased had been ill for some time and his demise was by no means unexpected. Mr. Stafford, who was 47 years of age, was born in the Township of Ameliasburg being a son of the late Mr. W. G. Stafford. For some time previous to coming to this city, the deceased conducted a hardware business in Deseronto. He was engaged in the same business here. Although being a resident of the city but a comparatively short time Mr. Stafford made many friends. He was in every respect of the word an upright and conscientious man, respected by all who knew him. Deceased was a member of the Methodist Church and always took an active interest in church work. A widow and family survive. The remains were yesterday afternoon taken to Albury cemetery, Ameliasburg Township, for interment.

FRANCIS HOGLE.

Mr. Francis Hogle died in this city on Sunday. Deceased, who was in his 76th year, was during his life a resident of Sidney Township, where he was well and favorably known. Mr. Hogle was a bachelor. He was a member of the Methodist church. Two brothers and a sister residing in Sidney survive.

we's Great London Circus in Belleville.

THE STREET PARADE WITNESSED BY MANY SPECTATORS — THE SHOW IS GOOD, CLEAN AND CONTAINS MANY NOTABLE FEATURES.

Howe's great London shows, or in common parlance Howe's circus, is in the city. It arrived this morning and the unloading operations at the station was followed by pitching the tents on the show grounds near Pine street. The street parade was witnessed by a large number of spectators.

The show is good, clean, wholesome and lively. It is not the biggest show on earth, does not pretend to be, but it is all that it advertises itself, which was shown by this afternoon's performance.

There are several features that single the show for pre-eminence. The Eddys, in their different acts, for they appear more than once, are splendid performers, graceful and clever. The Japanese troupe are really very fine, and the equestrian work of William Wallet brought hearty applause, as also did other acts mentioned.

The gay apparel, the tinsel and the general circus atmosphere, that so entrances the young, were there, from the opening march to the closing act, which, strange to say, was not the time honored chariot race.

A particular strong feature of this circus is the work of the clowns, of whom there are half a dozen clever fun makers.

The menagerie is well kept, the animals are good specimens of their kind, and the troupe of trained elephants is imposing in massive array.

One thing more remains to be said about the show., and this is that the officials are polite and obliging, and they leave nothing undone to minister to the convenience and comfort of their ptarons. Good order is maintained on the grounds, and the whole show is praiseworthy.

There will be another performance to-night.

TAFT ON CONSERVATION.

President of U. S. Puts Up an Argument for Development Too.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 6.—President Taft, in an address before the National Conservation Congress here yesterday, made plain his position on the whole subject of conservation. The speech was an exhaustive one and prepared with great care. The President showed an exact knowledge of the subject.

The central note of his address was an appeal for practical common sense in conservation.

"The time has come, he declared, "for a halt in general rhapsodies over conservation, making the word mean every known good in the world, for after public attention has been aroused, such appeals are of doubtful utility and do not direct the public to the specific course that the people should take, or have their legislators take, in order to promote the cause of conservation.

"Real conservation involves wise non-wasteful use in the present generation, with every possible means of preservation for future generations.

"The problem is how to save and how to utilize; how to conserve and still develop."

President Taft announced that he would submit to the congress the solution of the problem of adjusting of control of water power, such as between the States and the general government.

The President got a most demonstrative welcome at the conservation congress. Gifford Pinchot, who has been in St. Paul for two days, was not present. He went into J. A. Tawney's district yesterday to deliver a speech in favor of Mr. Tawney's opponent. The former forester will be back in the city to-day to meet Col. Roosevelt.

Mr. Taft gave repeated credit in his speech to Col. Roosevelt for his work for conservation, but he apparently took a fling at "Nationalism" when he said:

"In these days there is a disposition to look too much to the Federal Government for everything. I am liberal in the construction of the constitution with reference to federal power, but I am firmly convinced that the only safe course for us to pursue is to hold fast to the limitations of the constitution and to regard as sacred the powers of the States."

A Marvelous Escape.

Ashtabula, Ohio, Sept. 6.—Climbing from the wreckage of his buggy, on the pilot of a locomotive flying at the rate of 50 miles an hour, Fred. Miner, aged 18, clambered up on the running board of the engine and into the engine cab. His escape was near to the miraculous.

The engine, on the Lake Shore Railroad, struck his horse and buggy a few miles outside of this town. The horse was killed and Miner wedged in the wreckage of the buggy, remained on the pilot of the rushing engine. Indignant, he climbed into the cab, he says, to tell the engineer what he thought of him.

He claimed that the engine had no headlight. The engine stopped to let him off, Miner pointing out that his parents would expect him home early, and he walked the six miles back to town. He was not hurt.

Dead, Sitting In Bed.

Woodstock, Sept. 6.—Sitting bolt upright on the edge of the bed and with an unlighted cigar in his hand, the fully dressed body of Walter Quick was found in his room at the Royal Hotel yesterday evening. He had been seen last at the G.T.R. station Sunday evening and had evidently been dead some hours when found. Dr. West and Coroner McLay decided that death was due to an apoplectic seizure and that an inquest was unnecessary.

Mr. Quick, who was a young man employed as a tuner at the Thomas Organ Co.'s factory, had been staying at the hotel while his mother was away in Cleveland.

He was to be married in a day or two to a popular Woodstock young lady.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 104 carloads, consisting of 1997 cattle, 16 hogs, 283 sheep and lambs, 45 calves and 18 horses.

Exporters.

Exporters sold from $5.60 to $6.65 for steers; heifers, $5.50 to $6.10; bulls, $4.50 to $5.50.

Butchers.

The best butchers' cattle were 20c to 25c per cwt. higher, owing to many heifers of butchers weights being bought for export; prime picked lots of butchers sold at $6 to $6.25; loads of good, $5.60 to $6.12½; medium, $5.25 to $5.50; common, $4.80 to $5.15; cows, $3 to $5.25.

Stockers and Feeders.

Few feeders or stockers on sale, prices were unchanged, but firm.

Milkers and Springers.

A limited number only was offered. The market for milkers and springers was very strong and prices firm at $50 to $80 each.

Veal Calves.

Market a shade easier at $3.50 to $8 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep market was strong. Ewes of light weight, $4.50 to $4.75; ewes, heavy, $4 to $4.50; rams, $3 to $3.50 per cwt. The lamb market was easy at $5.75 to $6.25 per cwt., the latter price only being paid for selected lots.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Sept. 5.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards, west end market, receipts last week were 3075 cattle, 2825 sheep and lambs, 2160 hogs and 750 calves. The supply this morning amounted to 1225 cattle, 1740 sheep and lambs, 1480 hogs and 325 calves. Considering the liberal supplies of cattle that have come forward during the past ten days, of which a large percentage are from the northwest, the tone of the market has remained remarkably steady, and prices show no important change as compared with those of a week ago, which may be attributed to the large increase in the demand from local buyers on account of the much heavier consumption. There has also been a better demand from outside buyers and several carloads were bought for shipment to Quebec and Ottawa, and a few small lots were picked up for export account. Choice steers sold at 6c to 6¼c; good at 5½c to 5¾c; fairly good at 5c to 5¼c; fair at 4½c to 4¾c, and common at 4c to 4¼c per lb. There were a good many cows which brought from 3½c to 5c per lb., as to quality. Bulls for canning purposes sold at $1.75 per cwt. Owing to increased receipts, hog prices were 25c per cwt. lower, as compared with a week ago. The demand from packers was good with sales of selected lots at $9.25 weighed off cars. Some deliveries were made on contracts made last week at $9.40. Lambs were easy on account of liberal supplies and the somewhat limited demand. The crop of lambs this year is much larger than a year ago. Trade was slow at 5½c to 6c per lb. Sheep offerings are limited, and sales of picked lots were made at 4c to 4¼c, and culls at 3¼c to 3¾c per lb. The demand for calves continues good at from $3 to $10 each.

At the Canadian Pacific live stock market receipts last week were 2473 cattle for export account, and 1350 cattle, 1846 sheep and lambs, 1839 hogs and 225 calves. Offerings this morning consisted of [illegible]

MORE PINKHAM CURES

Added to the Long List due to This Famous Remedy.

Glanford Station, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for years and never found any medicine to compare with it. I had ulcers and falling of the uterus, and doctors did me no good. I suffered dreadfully until I began taking your medicine. It has also helped other women to whom I have recommended it."—Mrs. HENRY CLARK, Glanford Station, Ontario.

Gardiner, Me.—"I was a great sufferer from a female disease. The doctor said I would have to go to the hospital for an operation, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me in three months."—Mrs. S. A. WILLIAMS, R. F. D. No. 14, Box 39, Gardiner, Maine.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, indigestion, dizziness, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result is worth millions to many suffering women.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

LABORITES DRENCHED

Union Parades Are Held Under Great Difficulties.

Heavy Rainfall Is Reported From All Parts of the Province—Guelph Suffers From the Moisture—New York Has Complete Freedom From Strikes For First Time In Fifteen Years—50,000 Men In Line.

Toronto, Sept. 6.—Out-of-door pleasures were at a severe discount yesterday. Indeed, it hardly looked at all like a holiday until the rain finally ceased early in the evening. Traffic on the lake steamers was not much greater than the normal of exhibition time, the water being rough. The outside amusement resorts had a bad day.

The rain yesterday was general in Ontario along the lake and to the north. In the western part of the province, it was fair. The downpour in Toronto totalled nearly 1 1-2 inches of water. The street car track on Queen street, east of the Woodbine became undermined, and the service was tied up during the afternoon.

Traffic at the Union Station was heavy.

Parade at Guelph.

Guelph, Sept. 6.—The dignity of labor was upheld here yesterday under the most trying climatic condition. In spite of the heavy showers that fell throughout the day the local trades and labor unions succeeded in carrying out a very successful program of labor demonstrations.

In the morning there was a big parade, in which about 400 men marched in attractive uniforms, and with pretty and interesting floats. The prize for the best union in the parade was carried by the local union of moulders, who were about 75 strong, while the printers carried off second money. The Guelph Musical Society and Galt Kilties' bands took part in the parade and gave concerts afternoon and evening in the winter fair building, where the big program of athletic sports was carried out.

Heaviest Rainfall In Years.

Winnipeg, Sept. 6.—Drenching rain all day effectually doused all Labor Day celebrations and sports. Rain started about 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon and has continued steadily ever since, varied by occasion cloudbursts. It will be measured by inches for the twenty-four hours, and it looks like continuing. Reports from Manitoba and many other western points indicate general heavy rainfalls, and harvesting operations will be severely checked. Local old-timers claim it is the heaviest continuous fall for several years.

The Day at Quebec.

Quebec, Sept. 6.—Favored by ideal weather, the celebration of Labor Day by the various labor unions was magnificent. There was yesterday morning a grand procession of all the national unions and yesterday afternoon a grand picnic on the fair grounds.

50,000 Parade In New York.

New York, Sept. 6.—For the first time in fifteen years, Labor Day dawned in Greater New York without a single strike to mar the celebration of the day.

"With the cloakmakers' long strike settled in the nick of time, there is no labor trouble of any kind in the city—a most magnificent showing for organized labor," was the comment of Edward J. Hannah, grand marshal of the biggest Labor Day parade ever planned in the metropolis.

The only indication of any impending labor disturbance was of extremely minor importance. It was announced yesterday that the Stage Hands' Union, representing employes of 51 theatres, have presented demands for wage increases averaging about 18 per cent., and declare they will strike on Sunday next if their demands are not granted. The stage hands at present receive from $18 to $28 a week, and the stage carpenters from $30 to $45. It is said that a compromise settlement by the theatres is likely.

Fully 50,000 paraders, representing practically every labor organization in Greater New York, participated in the parade. The members of the Cloakmakers' Union, the settlement of whose strike last week is looked upon by organized labor as a great moral victory, were given a noisy ovation all along the line of march.

Collision at Sea.

New York, Sept. 6.—With her decks swept clear of lifeboats and rigging and her starboard rail and upperstructure raked fore and aft, the Brazilian steamer Tapajose yesterday put into port bringing a tale of collision at sea and of the mysterious disappearance of the vessel causing it. The Tapajose left New York bound for various Brazilian ports, and when 35 miles southeast of Scotland Light, suddenly came upon an unknown four-masted schooner bearing down upon her through the fog. The schooner struck the steamer on the starboard bow, and her anchor fouled the Tapajose's fore rigging, which was torn away like so much paper. The supports of both upper and lower bridges were also swept away, together with the lifeboats and davits. The impact was such as to dent several of the steamer's plates.

France Buys Airships.

Paris, Sept. 6.—The Ministry of War yesterday ordered the purchase of ten military monoplanes and twenty biplanes within the coming three months. This will give the French army an aerial flotilla of sixty by the end of the year.

The army's aeroplanes to be acquired in 1911 must be capable of carrying a weight of 300 kilograms or approximately 661 pounds in a continuous flight of 300 kilometres, or about 185 miles at a minimum speed of 60 kilometres, or 37.26 miles an hour.

The Ministry offers a premium of $20,000 for a machine fulfilling these conditions. President Fallieres has offered a cup as a trophy for the constructor of the French machine which wins the most honors at the Bordeaux aviation meeting, Sept. 11.

ADRIFT IN OPEN BOAT.

Mauretania Rescues Sailors After Six Days on Atlantic.

London, Sept. 6.—A wireless message received yesterday morning from the steamer Mauretania, bound from New York for Liverpool, gives further details of the rescue on Friday night of the missing officers and crew of the burned British tramp steamer West Point. The first news that the shipwrecked men had been picked up was transmitted to the American side of the Atlantic yesterday.

The West Point was burned at sea a week ago Sunday. On Thursday the Leyland Line steamer Devonian, westbound, picked up six of the crew, while the remainder, making another boatload, were found by the Mauretania.

It was 11 o'clock on Friday night when the Mauretania was battling with a northerly gale that a lookout sighted the West Point's small boat. The steamer hove to and the little boat came alongside. It was found to contain Capt. Pinkham, the second officer, two engineers and 12 seamen.

All of the party were well, in spite of the fact that they had been tossed about in an open boat for six days. Capt. Pinkham said that just before he made out the lights of the Mauretania he had given up hope of being saved by a passing vessels and was steering toward the Azores.

The rescue was effected in 38 minutes from the time the lookout discovered the little craft bobbing along on the high waves. The passengers of the Mauretania subscribed $450 for the relief of the West Point's men, including $10 which one contributor paid for Capt. Pinkham's cat.

Another Shooting By Fellow Lodgers

(Intelligencer Special.)

New York, Sept. 7. — There seems to be an epidemic of mistaking inoffensive people here for burglars. Early this morning Samuel Davis, a master carpenter, while entering his apartments, was shot and killed by nerwas given out this afternoon.

It seems the victim didn't have a latchkey with him and tried to get in by way of the fire escape. He was to have been married to-day.

Great Britian Wins In Fisheries Dispute

(Intelligencer Special)

The Hague, Holland, Sept. 7 -- Great Britain has won the long-argued case against the United States before the Hague Tribunal regarding the Newfoundland fisheries. The decision was give nout this afternoon.

While independent experts agree that the decision of the Tribunal in the North Atlantic Fisheries Case greatly favors Great Britain, the decision as read by Prof. Lunmasch this afternoon, at that great international peace court, has the failing common to lesser tribunals, that of giving judgments so lengthy and technical that they are beyond the grasp of the lay mind. It is evident in all points of difference except that dealing with exclusion of United States fishermen from the bays, the tribunal decides in favor of the British contentions.

All the points hinged on the interpretation of the fishing rights around the shores of Newfoundland as laid down in treaties following the American war of Independence and campaign of 1812-13.

The States sought for her fishermen privileges which Newfoundland, Canada and Great Britain were not inclined to give. On more than one occasion the dispute nearly developed war between the two Anglo-Saxon nations.

Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, was the British representative on the Hague Tribunal during the long trial and argument of the case.

Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, Minister of Justice, prepared the case for Canada, and was assisted by many prominent legal lights of Canada and the old land. One net result of the decision is the permanent settlement of a question which has agitated the two nations for years, and caused many fears of bloodshed. The decision actually means a lot for Canadian and Newfoundland fishermen.

Although the States get the decision technically on points 2, 3, 4, 6 and 7, and Great Britain on 1 and 5, it is Great Britain's victory because the two latter were most important from the British standpoint. They dealt directly with areas to which the British are entitled to exclusive fishing rights.

DON'T LIKE THE TEXT OF THE MESSAGE.

Intelligencer Special.

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 7 — There is a tendency on the part of citizens of Toronto to resent the word "homage" used in the message of Mr. Justice Girouard, Administrator for Canada in the absence of Earl Grey, to Cardinal Vannutelli. They say it commits Canada to reverence, the Pope, whom the Cardinal represents. It is stated in Montreal that the word "homage" in French simply signifies respect.

HUGE CONGRESS OPENS

Eucharistic Gathering Begins With Message From Pope.

His Holiness In Letter Confided to Cardinal Vannutelli Gives His Blessing to the Coming Session of Roman Bishops and Hopes For Submission to the Centre of Christian Unity—Bruchesi Replies.

Montreal, Sept. 7.—The formal opening of the 21st International Eucharistic Congress, and the first ever held in the new world, took place here last evening at eight o'clock in St. James' Cathedral, amid extraordinary pomp and display, probably never before seen in any Catholic centre of this continent.

Archbishop Bruchesi made many sacrifices to obtain this signal honor for the Canadian church and for his diocese, but his triumph last evening was sufficiently magnificent to repay this brilliant prelate and probably prince of the church for all he has done.

As hinted in the despatch of Monday evening, the legate in his opening address declared that in future these congresses would probably alternate between the old and new world.

Another important feature was the telegram to the King, and His Majesty's reply.

In answer to a telegram to the Holy Father, the cardinal secretary of state also sent a message of congratulation.

It was a magnificent sight at about eight o'clock, when a hundred bishops and archbishops, headed by Cardinal Vannutelli, the pontificial legate, and Cardinal Logue, beautifully robed in scarlet and gold, left the grand salon of the archbishop's palace, and, coming out to Palace street, entered the cathedral from Dorchester street and proceeded to their respective places in front of the altar railing.

The great cathedral was packed to the doors, and there would have been many thousands more had the vast edifice been large enough to contain them. The legate first delivered his message to the congress, supplementing the same by reading the papal message, which had just arrived from the Vatican. In part the message said:

"By these letters we appoint you our legate, to preside in our name and place at the eucharistic congress of Montreal.

"The mission entrusted to you is in keeping with your piety and rank, and peculiarly calculated to advance the Christian cause. For, by this public manifestation, the eucharistic bread, unhampered by space and division, will bind together the lands which the seas divide, stimulate distant nations to vindicate and proclaim the glory of God, the Saviour, and to honor with due loyalty and submission the centre of Christian unity, to wit, Christ's vicar on earth.

"Consequently, all those matters will be discussed in the congress, whereby the devotion to the august sacrament may be spread and honored more widely, so that, in this wise, the insults heaped upon it may be repaired, the practice of frequent communion revived, and all be convinced that no devotion is more efficacious than this, to link souls together in the bonds of peace and good will, so necessary to Christian and civil society; in fine, that by the writings and the manifold activities employed for this purpose, men may be led to higher and better achievements.

Mgr. Bruchesi's reply was a splendid effort. His grace referred to the modification of the royal declaration, adding that Catholics all over the British Empire would be ever grateful for this latest royal act. The reading of the royal message to the congress created very great enthusiasm, and his grace the Archbishop of Montreal told your correspondent that Catholic hearts were especially grateful to King George for his very prompt message from Balmoral.

Would Weaken Bonds of Empire.

London, Sept. 7.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Daily Mail, after paying a glowing tribute to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's wonderful hold on the Canadian people, says the pleading of western farmers is mostly on the part of Americans, who desire cheaper terms for American makers of implements, whose views they represent and are urged to represent. "This is a point," it says, "which Sir Wilfrid, having subordinated politics to his philosophy, wholly conceals. He could not, indeed, confess it, but the point is crucial. We welcome Sir Wilfrid Laurier's reiterated words of loyalty to the Empire, but the grant of special concessions to the United States, organized for their fellows by American purchasers of Canadian land, can only weaken the bonds of Empire, and would in the sequel obliterate the southern line, on which Canada's individuality is based."

The Standard points out that tariff commissions are no novelty in Canada. It says: "Sir Wilfrid Laurier's statements of his policy of to-day or to-morrow must be estimated by reference to his whole public career. Does anyone suppose protection is no longer backed by a large majority of Canadians? Though Laurier holds the Cobden Club's medal, yet for 15 years be has held the Premiership without taking a single important step towards freeing Canadian ports."

Foul Play Suspected.

Ottawa, Sept. 7.—Lying dead in bed, with blood on his face and a pool of blood on the floor, George Beduke was found at 10.30 yesterday morning by Detective Joliat at 44 Elizabeth street. When the detective arrived at the house he found five foreigners in the room, two of whom were asleep in the same bed as the dead man.

The strange fact is that in spite of the blood, no outward signs of violence were noticeable on the body.

The police are investigating and an inquest will be held.

Lived Two Days With Broken Neck.

Ottawa, Sept. 7.—Fred. Foster of Caldwell, Renfrew County, lived for over two days with a broken neck. Early Sunday morning Foster, who was but a young man, was brought to the hospital here with his neck broken between the fourth and fifth vertibrae, and his lower limbs paralyzed, as the result of an accident with runaway horses. An operation was performed, but Fraser died early yesterday morning.

Crushed by Auto.

London, Ont., Sept. 7.—James Snowden, a messenger, was probably fatally injured by being run over by a large touring car. Snowden was riding behind a wagon loaded with big boxes and turned out suddenly right in front of the auto, which struck him squarely. He passed beneath the wheels and was terribly crushed.

Posed as a Priest.

Montreal, Sept. 7.—A sensation developed yesterday when it was discovered that a man dressed in priest's apparel, who had smuggled his way into the Archbishop's Collegiate Institute, where, with twenty-five regular priests, he was enjoying the free hospitality of the diocese, was nothing but an imposter.

An Episode to be Regretted.

The difficulty that has arisen on the subject of the employment of the Canadian regulars as a guard of honor for the Papal Legate is much to be regretted. Everyone must hope that it will not be followed by any expressions calculated to disturb the good feeling prevailing throughout the country. It is easy, of course, to understand the situation. During the past few years our Government has established direct relations with the Vatican. The Manitoba school dispute was the beginning of this diplomacy. A settlement of that matter was necessary, and in order to reach such a conclusion negotiations with Rome were instituted.

Our first messenger to the Vatican was Mr. Gustave Drolet, an eminent Montreal gentleman, who had already made himself famous as the leader of the corps of Zouaves sent from the Province of Quebec to take part on the side of the Pope in the war which resulted in the unification of Italy This distinguished officer was persona grata at the Papal Court, and was thus enabled to make the views of the Government known to the advisers of His Holiness. Mr. Drolet's report of his mission tells of his interviews with Cardinal Rampolla, and of his account of Sir Wilfrid as given to that high ecclesiastic. He spoke so enthusiastically of Sir Wilfrid that the Cardinal marvelled that so religious a man should hold a secular office. The result of the mission of Mr. Drolet was an arrangement for a second delegation to Rome, with Mr. Fitzpatrick, the then Minister of Justice, at its head. Mr. Fitzpatrick was successful in his diplomacy. He secured the approval of the Pope for the proposed school settlement, promising, however, on the authority of the Premier, that what was being done was but an instalment, and would be followed by further action. It was in consequence of local dissatisfaction with the arrangement that the Pope was asked to send a special representative to examine the situation and to report upon it. The representative chosen for this work was Mgr. Merry Del Val, an ecclesiastic, who has since risen to a very high office at Rome. Mgr. Merry Del Val, however, was not a permanent ambassador. He was sent for a special purpose only. After his return to Rome a permanent representative of the Pope was asked for by leading men in the Liberal party, and Mgr. Sbarretti was named by His Holiness for the diplomatic post at Ottawa. With this ambassador the Government negotiates. It settled with him, for example, the school clauses of the Northwest autonomy bills before presenting them to Parliament.

The coming of the Papal Legate is, as a consequence of the relations that have been established between Ottawa and Rome, a more or less State event For this reason the Government naturally desired to receive the visitor with all the honors accorded the special representative of another power. It is said that the British War Office interfered to prevent the carrying out of the programme and cancelled the order of the troops to attend upon the representative of the Pope. But this is to be doubted. The War Office would not be likely to interfere in a domestic matter, and were it to do so the Government would resent the intervention. It is more probable that the Ottawa authorities have concluded that the action determined upon would not be regarded with favor by all the members of their party.—Mail and Empire.

Jumped Off a Boat.

FRANK TWEDDLE, OF PICTON, CAUSED GREAT EXCITEMENT ON STEAMER ALEXANDRIA—MADE TWO JUMPS INTO THE WATER—ARRESED FOR DRUNKENESS AND REMANDED.

Frank Tweddle, aged about thirty years, Picton, caused a great deal of excitement on board the steamer Alexandria, on which he had been working as a deck hand, while the vessel was near Bath, Monday night, on the way to Kingston. He jumped into the water twice, and no doubt would have drowned had not some of the members of the crew pulled him out. As a result of his behavior, the boat was delayed quite a while, and when the vessel reached Kingston, Twiddle was handed over to the police, when a charge of being drunk was lodged against him

Tweddle is a big, strong fellow, and appeared to be dazed, when he was arranged before Magristrate Farrell in the police court, Tuesday morning, and asked to answer to the charge of being drunk.

"I was never put in in this town before," he stated, when the magistrate asked him for an explanation for his conduct.

Constable James Bateson, who was called to the wharf to arrest Twiddle, told the magistrate that he had been called to Folger's wharf to the steamer Alexandris. The captain and the purser wanted Tweddle placed under arrest, stating that he had twice jumped off the vessel. Twiddle was then taken to the lock-up.

"What is the matter?" asked the magistrate of Twiddle.

"Nothing is the matter that I know of," was the reply.

The magistrate decided to remand the accused for a week. He had been drinking very heavily, so it is alleged, and it is feared that his mind has been affected.

Twiddle jumping overboard caused a great commotion on board the vessel Some of the men on deck noticed him in the water and at once threw out a rope to give him aid, but it is stated that Twiddle did not want the aid, and it appeared as if it was a case of suicide Twiddle is a good swimmer, however, and if he at first had the idea of doing away with himself he changed his mind, as he commenced to swim around in great style. A couple of men went into the water after him, but he got away again, and took another dip into the water, when he was again captured and Kingston, when he was handed over to taken in charge until the boat reached the police.—Kingston Whig.

UNCONSCIOUS HUMOR.

THE WAY IT SOMETIMES CROPS OUT IN EXAMINATION PAPERS.

"About the driest thing in the world is the reading of a lot of examination papers," said a young University of Pennsylvania English Instructor recently, "but occasionally the monotony of an evening of such work is viewed by a bit of humor. Frequently students try to be funny, thinking, perhaps, that they will in his way get on the right side of the man, who marks the papers, but such attempts are usually flat failures. It is the unconscious bits of humor that are the gems.

"A short time ago I gave as a subject for an essay to one of my freshman classes 'My Impressions of Pennsylvania.' One youth wrote his name at the top of his paper and then sat through the entire hour, gazing at the ceiling, apparently unable to get a start. Then at the end he handed in the blank piece of paper. As a piece of satire it would have been excellent, but I am sure he had no such intention. The blank paper merely represented his inability to get his impressions in writing and not the lack of impressions.

"A short time ago a history professor asked the question: 'What caused the French rebellion of 1830?' One of the replies was merely, 'To much Bourbon.' If this answer had come from an ordinary student he would have given the writer credit for a witty answer, but it was written by a serious minded youth from the country, who, he was sure, was incapable of such an effort and probably did not even know there was a whiskey by that name. Truly the unconscious are the gems."—Philadelphia Record.

The Baby 'Round The House.

I like a place that's litter'd with the baby-things of children,
With the tiny chairs and tables and the motions all bewilderin';
And the blocks and cards and rick-racks
That comprise the sundry nicknacks
That a baby finds attractive,
While his folks are bein' active,
'round the house.

I dread the place too tidy, with the marks of care a-lingerin';
With the books arranged old-fashioned, and no sign of infant
fingerin';
There is a certain homelike feelin'
That can never come a-stealing,
Where no baby is a-lurkin'.
While the older folks go workin'

And the plan is desolating, that leaves out the baby-creatures,

RAIN INTERFERED WITH THE ATTENDANCE BUT NOT WITH THE PERFORMANCE.

A fair crowd turned out to see the circus yesterday, both in the afternoon and evening. The heavy rain which had fallen made things unpleasant for all. Even the animals showed the effect of the weather. However, in spite of all this the performance was very good and was all that it professed to be. The Eddy trio gave a demonstration of iron jaw work. Suspended by thei teeth high up in the dome of the canvas the three young people presented sensational number which ended in "death's musical whirl." The six members of the Uyeno Japanese troup proved themselves fearless tumblers, balancers and foot-jugglers. William Wallet's somersault riding elicited much applause. Misses Mildrid Kellogg and Maud Earle and William Tessier and Mexico, performing as they did on slender swinging trapeze bars high in the air without being safe-guarded by a life belt or net beneath them, stilled more than one breath among the onlookers. An act properly described as a feature event was that which introduced Miss Caroline and Master Philip Eddy on a high wire. What these clever performers did not do upon their slender steel thread no professional acrobat need attempt upon terra firma. Delovoye and his many clowns were really funny, and they kept the audience in good humor throughout. There were many other excellent acts and novelties, all of which contribute in making one of the best and most satisfactory circus performances ever presented here. The interior of the huge amphitheatre was brilliantly illuminated by the show's own lighting plant and every act was in plain view from all parts of the canvas enclosure. The performance was good and clean, the attendants polite, their uniform in good condition and their conduct admirable. No vulgar or profane language is tolerated. No flim-flam nor graft are permitted. How's show is all right.

Best For Aged People.

HERE'S A KIDNEY TREATMENT WE WANT YOU TO TRY AT OUR RISK.

With advanced age come derangement of the kidneys and associate organs. Nature is unable to perform her proper functions and requires certain outside aid.

We are so confident that we have the aid so essential for restoring strength and activity and health to weak or distressed kidneys that we are willing to supply it with the positive understanding that it shall cost the user nothing whatever, if for any reason it fails to give entire satisfaction.

After a thorough experience with the most successful kidney treatments we are satisfied that Rexall Kidney Remedy is the one preparation which embraces all those qualities so necessary for giving prompt and permanent relief in all classes of kidney and urinary troubles.

Inasmuch as a trial of Rexall Kidney Remedy can be had at our entire risk, there is no reason for anyone hesitating to put it to a practical test. Why not try a bottle to-day, on our guarntee? Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store, J. S. McKeown.

MYSTERIOUS CONVENT

SISTERHOOD OF THE HOLY FACE IS NOW A MEMORY.

Order of Devoted Women In Montreal Who Lived and Practiced Their Holy Exercises In Heart of Business Section Have Disappeared—Tradition Says They Slept In Coffins With a Crucifix Before Them.

The evening of Good Friday is the time set apart in the great Church of Notre Dame, Montreal, for the Adoration of the Holy Face.

"La Sainte Face," a ceremony which consists chiefly of visiting the Stations of the Cross, with a period for meditation at each spot, hallowed in the imagination by the sufferings endured by the Saviour in the course of his agonized journey.

And when, the ceremony finished year after year, the faithful have wended their way thoughtfully homeward, they have asked one another, quietly and solemnly, "And what has become of the Convent of that other Holy Face, and what of the little nuns that inhabited it?"

For, not more than a decade ago, there was such a convent right in the heart of the city, inhabited by little nuns, who lived as austere a life as the Trappists at Oka, and, like so many other brave and noble religieuses prayed for those in the great world who did not pray for themselves.

It used to be known as the Mysterious Convent and was situated on the west side of Amherst street, just below St. Catherine.

The block containing the building with its big gateway, like a Porte Cochere, in the centre, is there still, but its appearance is changed, and one might almost say, like in so many similar cases in the West End where churches have been turned into stores and theatres, the money-changers have entered the temple.

Stores and business places are occupying the lower part of the block now, but the gilded mortar which was there when the convent existed, the sign of the old-fashioned physician, is still to be seen in front, and in the rear there are the ruins of the once-beautiful convent garden, with here and there in corners the battered holy statues that adorned it.

That little garden was the only place of recreation the little nuns had; and there they walked and meditated. This exercise and their walk to early Mass at St. James Church, on the corner of St. Denis and St. Catherine streets, were their only outings.

As a rule, they wore a black habit, with a small white frill projecting from that part which framed the face; on feasts days it was quite a treat to see them walk to and from the church in their special habit with the crimson front, upon which the face of the Saviour was painted.

Tradition has it that they slept in coffins, which were mounted on trestles, and contained a pillow and a blanket, and that the only other furniture of their rooms or cells consisted of a little table with a crucifix and a death's head.

At least one such cell existed, furnished in exactly that manner, but whether they actually slept in the coffin is a matter of uncertainty in view of statements made, by those who should know, at the present day. Suffice it that ten years ago some of the little nuns told the numerous faithful who were visitors to the strange convent that they did.

The rigor of their devotions is not however, to be doubted even at the present time.

They spent seven and a half hours at prayer each day. They retired to sleep at half-past eight, and arose at midnight. Then, like the Trappists, who, however, do not sleep again, they devoted an hour and a half, when all the busy world was asleep, to more religious exercises, after which they retired once more, to rise again for the spiritual and mundane tasks of the day, at five o'clock.

On Fridays they scourged one another with the same knotted scourges of many lashes which the Trappists use in their devotional system.

And, in reading this, remember that when the order was, so to speak, at the height of its prosperity, the Sister Superior was apparently not much more than twenty-five years old, and the little nuns ranged in age all the way down from twenty to fifteen.

All this may seem strange to those who pride themselves on being worldly wise, the scoffers, and cynics; but careful investigations made at that time showed that the matter was tragically real to those little women.

They believed themselves called to the work they were doing; they believed that they were serving the Lord in a fashion he could not fail to approve of, and many are the faithful to be found to-day who will tell you that not one, but several miraculous cures, were effected through their piety and good works.

For some years they quietly and peacefully went their devotional way, and then the fame of their piety, and the reported cures which had been wrought through their prayers, brought unpleasant notoriety.

They were never officially recognized as a religious order by the heads of the Church. As the then Sister Superior said:

"We are only verbally recognized, but God is good and we must have patience. We have only been founded a few years, and the little sisters of St. Joseph were founded forty-six years before they were recognized."

For a while after that the newspapers throughout Canada and the United States published sensational accounts of the Little Convent and the Little Sisters.

Then suddenly it was stated that some of them had gone to form a branch convent at Bideford, Maine; still later, that the others had gone up North to establish a convent like the Trappist Monastery, and after that came oblivion, as it were.

During its actual existence the convent was called the Mysterious Convent.

Points For Mothers

What becomes of precocious children when they grow up? Nobody knows. It is a good thing that average gets hold of them or we would be a land overflowing with geniuses. There would be so many of them that common people would not be missed from the directory, says an exchange.

As a matter of fact, the men and women who are doing things when they are fifty years old are not the ones who were pointed out on children's day. Very often precocity is a flower that blooms early and withers early. Even the big men and women who stand out in history were commonplace children, while their precocious companions sleep in obscure graves. The most precocious thing George Washington did was to lay low the historic cherry tree, and this is more than duplicated each day by boys who never rise to dizzier pinnacles than school directors.

Too often the boy who stood at the head of the spelling class comes when he is forty years old to the boy who stood next to the end for a job. Congress has within its halls today men who didn't learn to read until twelve years of age. Life is not a dash and sprint, with the prize to the child who gets away from the starting line first, but is a day in day out Marathon, with the laurel to the one who keeps plugging along. More life meets are won by plugging than by sprinting.

So let the mother of the ordinary child up and clear her looks. Do not envy the precocious child of your neighbor. Rest secure in the knowledge that the precocious child across the street may be only a morning glory to dazzle for an hour, while your own child, with its glories yet unrevealed, may be a lily of the valley to gladden hearts for many days.

Overattention to Children.

Few mothers realize the risk of overcaution and overattention to their children after they are old enough to play and romp about. A child is happier with few and simple playthings than with a multitude of complicated toys. There is no such good fun or good training as making oneself useful in doing little things like work, and it is cruelty to deprive the child of this pleasure and stimulus. Let the brain and body be trained through hand, foot and eye. Give the boy a carpenter's bench; encourage the girls to do housework. Where possible let both boy and girl have a little garden patch, if only a few feet square, and the care of a few plants. A woman in her home, a man in his garden—this seems to be a fundamental type from which we cannot entirely depart without risk to body and mind. Cheerfulness, sincerity, industry, perseverance and unselfishness may be acquired by practice and constant repetition as much as the art of correct speaking or of playing the piano and are far more necessary to health.

In the Nursery.

Better than chairs are low, broad seats built in all around the wall of the room. The seat should be eight or nine inches high and from one to two feet broad and may be put up by a carpenter at slight expense. The children may slide all along these and draw their toys up beside them, and there will be less danger of bumped noses and bruised elbows from tipping over of the chairs. Little pillows with durable covers may be strewn about for small, sleepy heads or to make the seat less hard. Such a seat is best made of hard wood if the floor is hard wood; if not it should be made very smooth and varnished, so that there may be no danger of splinters.

The Value of Laughter.

A famous doctor once said: "Encourage your child to be merry and to laugh aloud. A good, hearty laugh expands the chest and makes the blood bound merrily along. Commend me to a good laugh—not to a little, sniggling laugh, but to one that will sound right through the house. It will not only do your child good, but will be a benefit to all who hear and be an important means of driving the blues away from a dwelling. Merriment is very catching and spreads in a remarkable manner, few being able to resist the contagion. A hearty laugh is delightful harmony—indeed, it is the best of all music."

Here's Good Advice.

Never give medicine to a baby without a doctor's orders.

Do not use devices for keeping baby's food warm.

Keep the food on ice until feeding time, then warm it and give immediately.

When the Baby Sleeps.

Do not permit a baby to sleep with its head under the bedclothes. Trained nurses who are supposed to know better are often responsible for this habit. They keep the head of an infant so carefully wrapped for fear of draft that the child becomes accustomed to muffling.

When starching Holland pinafores put a little tea into the starch. It will help to keep their color.

Silence!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indelicate. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to cure a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of FREE consultation by letter. All correspondence is held as sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Gordon C. Hewitt, Dominion Entomologist, says, referring to the infantile death rate from intestinal diseases and diarrhœa spread by the house fly, he believes that the so-called harmless fly is yearly causing the death of thousands of infants, as well as spreading the germs of typhoid fever.

The ...Veiled Lady...

ciety. He lost his father, and his only sister during the war!"

Irene Gordon busied herself with the breakfast equipage. "What is Seaton's profession? The other one is a soldier, I know!" Irene looked up brightly.

"Oh! Seaton travels a great deal! He's a very peculiar man, moody and sorrowful! I think he mourns still over the war! He is rich; fairly rich! I want him to go west with me! I love the man! He's too lonely, and needs a newer life."

When Jack Gordon went down to arrange some business details, he gathered up his letters.

"Promise me, on your honor, you will not mention me, or our secret, to either of these friends, till I bid you! I know that college friendships can trace out, bit by bit, many hidden life stories! Be on your guard! I am your acknowledged wife only, when our probation is up! Promise! For my sake! For our Love! Our new life!"

"I swear it!" cried Gordon, folding her in his arms. As he descended the stairs, his wife stood gazing at the door! "Beverly in New York! My God! Whither shall I turn?"

CHAPTER VI.

Two days later Gordon's glowing happiness was shadowed by the sadness of the parting. The last golden hours were now winging fast away! Mrs. Mason and family might arrive any day in New York. By telegraph, Gordon learned from Maxwell that he expected his orders for the west any day. "Darling! The moment of our separation is near!" Irene Gordon whispered! "Be patient, I will be brave, and our future will be all the brighter! You must not go on to New York City with me. It would betray all! Mrs. Mason could not be hoodwinked by us! I have given you now my life, my heart, my soul! I will only travel with you as far as Pittsburg; then you can go to Washington, and I alone to New York.—Mrs. Mason has made her arrangements at the New York Hotel! You will have daily letters from me until I sail! Then I shall send them to the War Department! Your friends might question you, if you are all together at the Ebbitt House!" she said, archly. So forth they went to their place of separation.

Gordon was gloomy. He moodily said: "I have to dissemble everywhere now! I shall telegraph Jackson to come on to Belvoir and wait there for me! My idea is to get rid of Maxwell and Seaton as soon as I can! If we must part, it is better as you say! Irene! My wife! we are paying the uttermost price for the happiness of the dim future! I will be better off every way with the regiment, than alone! To think that I cannot even show my wife's picture! But I have thought of you!" Gordon handed Irene a magnificent sapphire and diamond ring! The stone was of great beauty, and deeply ridden in its encircling brilliants. Touching a little spring the sapphire swung aside, showing a concealed picture of the Master of Belvoir. They were on the train, and the parting moment was near at hand.

"You will have me always with you if you wear this!" he whispered.

"It shall be with me to my death," she said with trembling lips.

"Pittsburg!" The fatal words dropped from the conductor's lips as Gordon was finishing his last injunction.

While the throng separated, the soldier consecrated his last half-hour to assuring himself of every provision for Irene's comfort. Money, papers, directions, and all the minor details of the proposed voyage had been finally disposed of. "I shall leave a sealed letter for you in the Bank of St. Louis, addressed to you as Irene Hope, to the care of Doctor Selfridge. It will have a copy of my will and wishes for you from time to time. Maxwell will have my injunctions to aid and guide in all. In the new will you are named as my wife, and I will leave a letter for Maxwell, to be used only in case of my death!"

Before Gordon could murmur half the burning words of endearment his passionate love framed, with a last embrace, with frenzied kisses, he tore himself from the clinging arms of his peerless wife! She was gone! In vain he repeated her parting words: "It is after, all, only a long engagement! Your life on the plains, and mine, devoted to my art, will make the moments quickly pass, then,—heart to heart, we will live a newer life of love! I have given you my whole heart and soul! . . . . . You could not leave the service now in honor! Think of our naval officers who are often absent on their three years' cruise. You shall be proud of my art, and I of your record!" She was gone!

Gordon standing on the platform, gazing down the track at the fast-receding train lights, shivered in the cold blast. As he peered into the night, the dull boom of the midnight bell fell on his ear. He was at last alone! The cheerless clang of the Iron Bell of Twelve seemed to seal his misery. "A fool's bargain!" muttered Gordon. "I cannot live without Irene! Shall I take the next train? No! She would not yield to me. I am bound in honor!"—Lieutenant Gordon, 7th Cavalry U.S.A., was the personification of soldierly smartness, as he reported next day to the Adjutant-General of the Army in Washington. This formality over (after an interview with the General Commanding, which made him proud and happy), he hastened to the office of the Chief of Engineers. Gordon had his formal orders to report at the Headquarters of the Seventh Cavalry at Fort Hays.

"I will go resolutely at my work; it will help me to bear Irene's absence," he murmured. His rash marriage seemed like the sweet dream of a summer night. Vinton Maxwell, his curly head bowed over plats and drawings, sprang up with a shout as Gordon entered the room, where he was diligently tracing roads on paper for the Arizona public. "Hurrah, Jack!" he cried. "Seaton will be here in a couple of days! Let's go over to the Metropolitan Club and have lunch! We will soon have our own little coterie at the 'Ebbitt.' Have you a few days to spare?"

"They gave me an extra week!" the cavalryman replied.

For three happy days and nights the friends revelled in their cosy rooms in the exchange of experiences! "One good thing, Jack!" cried Maxwell, "there's not much money available now for Arizona roads! After I have detailed these projects to the Commanding General at Prescott, their execution may be delayed for an appropriation! The Chief of Engineers has kindly promised to send me to the Department of the Platte! Any line officer can make the usual sketch maps of Arizona scouts! There is no office work, no fortifications there, and good surveying leads to rough but effective scalping in Arizona! General Humphreys thinks I can do more good work on the plains with large bodies of troops and helping to fill up the railroad maps. Now if you will effect some new deed of daring, you may have a tour of staff duty as 'Aide to the Department Commander!' Then we will be together."

"No, Maxwell," said Gordon resolutely, "I'll stick to the regiment! That's what General Sherman says! No fancy duty! Stay with your own corps and share both its dark and its bright days!"

"You may be right, Jack!" Maxwell said. "Besides, there's always a squad of pretty girls visiting at headquarters. They would marry you out of hand! You haven't done the deed yet? A young officer is a fool to marry too soon; be a Captain first, anyway."

"By Jove, no!" cried Gordon! "Not such a fool!" He glanced out of the window at the snow-clad roofs, with some bitterness. The stars were shining in the crystalline skies, and the merry jingling sleigh bells told of Washington's snow carnival. He dared not speak of Irene, his heart's queen. Secrecy seemed now shameful, for the first time.

"Beverly Seaton ought to turn up now!" Maxwell proceeded. "Did you hear from him? I haven't yet! You have had several New York letters, I see!"

"They were not from Seaton!" Gordon gravely replied; for he had stolen away to read and re-read the pages traced by the stately beauty whom he dared not yet acknowledge, as the Queen of Belvoir. Had he thrown the gauntlet down to adverse fate? It seemed so mad, so quixotic a compact at last, this hasty, hidden marriage. And yet, Selfridge had said: "Gordon, my boy! She's a noble woman, she's one in a million!" "Did Selfridge know all her past history? Surely! For the one woman of a million I can afford to sacrifice something." Gordon threw up his proud head. "She's better, wiser and knows more of life than I do! I can trust her! Yet, I don't dare confide in the Doctor now!" Some fiend at his heart whispered. "Can she trust herself?" Gordon winced under the sugegstion. A sharp knock at the door recalled him.

"By Jove! I hope you have better news than I have," the Engineer said, gazing up gloomily. "Seaton is in a great state of excitement about some of his business troubles! He wants me to meet him at the station to-morrow, and give him the whole day! He's going back at once!" Maxwell sprang to Gordon's side. "Jack! old man! What's the matter with you? Rouse yourself!" he cried; for Gordon was gazing blankly at a telegram. "See here! Jack! I hope you are not in any ugly snarl!" Maxwell was alarmed.

Gordon quietly threw his telegram in the fire, and stirred its ashes with the poker. "I'm all right, Vinton! It's nothing," he groaned. The Engineer felt that a barrier had been thrust between them; while Gordon remembered Orton's savage remark at St. Louis: "A woman may send you to the devil yet!" and wondered, "Am I already on the road?" Maxwell bit his lip and murmured: "The old thing; it's some love scrape; the first baby-faced woman parts even the warmest comrades! Who can she be!" He pored over an Army and Navy Journal, while Gordon repeated to himself the words burned into his brain: "Sailed alone to-day; letters from Paris; imperative—Isabel."

"Hang it! let's have a walk!" the cavalryman cried. His face was burning in a tell-tale rage. Silently the friends strode the streets crowded with late revellers. Their cigars were a welcome excuse for silence. "I'll go down and meet Seaton with you tomorrow, Vinton!" said Gordon, with a strange smile, as they parted. "Don't worry about me. I'm all right!"

Gray and gloomy was the early winter morning as Seaton descended from the New York train. His joy at seeing Jack seemed softened by his anxiety to reach Maxwell's ear. As the carriage rolled along, Seaton spoke: "Now I've got some business to use our old 'Reliable' on, Gordon; I must go back to New York to-night! Won't you all breakfast with me at Welcker's? Say two o'clock, Gordon! I will get a private room there, and Maxwell and I will be done when you come! I'll come back and give you a couple of days!"

"All right!" said Gordon, doubtfully. "Seaton! Your business thrusts itself between us all the while!"

Alas! for Jack Gordon, that he could not read the future! While Gordon stalked off to pay various official calls of ceremony, Seaton and Maxwell were soon closeted at Welcker's.

Gospel Truth About Zutoo

We tell you truthfully and concientiously that one of our little tablets called ZUTOO, harmless as soda, will cure your headache sick, nervous or neuralgic in twenty minutes and always leave you feeling good.

We tell you further that these tablets will break up a cold, will relieve indigestion and the monthly pains of women. Every user of ZUTOO will tell you the same thing. So will every druggist and dealer who sells them.

Generally you accept what every body says as being so, but we don't ask you to take anybody's word about ZUTOO tablets. Try them. Know for yourself what these remarkable little tablets will do. 25c at dealers or by mail postpaid. B.N. Robinson & Co., Reg'd Coaticook, Q.

A waste-paper basket should be part of the nursery furniture and the children should be taught to use it for its proper purpose. The habit may be formed of putting in it scraps of paper and other rubbish which would otherwise litter the floor.

Towns Would Like Bigger Profit From Autoists' Fines.

At Meeting of Ontario Municipal Association Will Consider a Petition to the Ontario Government Asking a Larger Share of Money Levied on "Joy Riders"—Association Will Divide Into Two Sections.

Toronto, Sept. 7.—A number of resolutions of an important character, in their relations to municipal affairs were presented by the resolution committee at the meeting of the Ontario Municipal Association, which opened in the City Hall yesterday morning. There were almost 40 delegates present, and President George Geddes mayor of St. Thomas, presided. For the most part the delegates comprised mayors, reeves and city clerks of the Ontario municipalities.

Among the resolutions submitted and which will be discussed this morning, is one in effect that in consideration of the cost to municipalities of the construction and maintenance of roads and streets and the extent to which they are used in the operation of motor vehicles, the Ontario Government be petitioned to pay over to the said municipalities a just proportion of the amount collected annually in permits and fines imposed in connection with the operation of motor vehicles. This resolution was passed by the Ottawa City Council Aug. 8 and may be endorsed by the association.

W. C. Nickle of Belleville was the mover of a resolution that the association ask for legislation amending the municipal act, giving cities and towns the powers, with the assent of the electors, to hold nominations on the last Monday in January and the election on the first Monday in February.

Another resolution, moved by Mayor J. W. Lawrason of Dundas, is that the Good Roads Act be amended so as to require that all streets through towns and villages, not separated from the country, which are a continuation of the roads forming part of the good roads scheme of the county, shall be maintained and kept in repair as a part of the good roads system of the county.

Reeve George S. Henry of York Township submitted a motion proposing an amendment to the registry and land titles act, to provide that plans of property shall not be registered until submitted and approved by municipal councils or county judges, or master of titles, and that no street shall be laid out less than 66 feet wide, no lane less than 20 feet and that parallel streets shall not exceed a distance of 660 feet apart.

It was the general opinion that the best interests of the association could be served by dividing it into the urban and rural divisions, the idea being that greater concentrated effort is needed to thwart the grasping methods of corporations.

Beat Regulars Erecting Tents.

Alton, Eng., Sept. 7.—The Queen's Own of Toronto, on a march of fourteen miles, led the way and set the pace yesterday morning for 8,000 troops in the second division camp, two miles from here. They beat the regulars in putting up tents. The men stood the march well, though there were a few blistered feet.

Captains George Pellatt, Kirkpatrick, Lieuts. Massey and George Gzowsky will remain in Aldershot for some time, owing to a slight attack of influenza. It is not serious, and is due to the change of climate.

Nearly Severed His Foot.

Kingston, Sept. 7.—Eldred Bennett Willet's Holme, aged five, was riding on the back of one of three horses attached to a gang plow when the animals ran away. The little fellow fell off and the revolving cutter nearly severed one of his feet. He was brought to the General Hospital, where the flesh was stitched together.

Drowned From Motor Boat.

Chatham, Sept. 7.—Returning from a fishing party near Prairie Siding, Arthur Bury, aged 38, attempted to move to the stern of a motor boat.

In some way he fell overboard and never rose to the surface. It is believed that he was sucked under the boat and possibly hit on the head with the propellor.

Farm and Garden

AUTOMOBILE AS FARM HAND.

Many Uses For the Motorcar as an Adjunct to Farm Work.

The automobile is rapidly becoming the most useful and popular farm hand that can be employed by the enterprising agriculturist. Its variety of uses is great. A man who has a large farm to look after finds that he can get around much more swiftly and comfortably in an auto runabout than by horse, buggy or Shanks' mare. Some farmers use the auto in peddling chickens about town, while others fire up their motorcars early in the morning and speed away to town and deliver milk from door to door. For hauling light produce to market the automobile is unexcelled. When the children have a considerable distance to go to reach the country schoolhouse they are happy if "pop" or the hired man can crank up the auto and speed them on their way.

PEDDLING CHICKENS IN AUTO.

Charles P. Cushing, a writer in Leslie's Weekly, has some interesting things to say about the use of the automobile on farms—for instance:

David Rankin, owner of a system of farms comprising 25,640 acres near Tarkio, Mo., has some philosophy on this subject. He likes to feel the pull of reins and sticks to the old fashioned buggy himself, but he gives his foremen automobiles. This is simply part of his business policy: "Get the best and latest farming implements. They are the cheapest in the end."

To say, as writers for certain automobile journals do, that the farmers are hostile to automobiles is rank nonsense. The greatest difference of opinion on motorcars may be found among the farmers in the same state or even in the same county. As correspondent for the Kansas City Star I toured Missouri with Governor Joseph W. Folk when he was campaigning for the senatorship in the fall of 1908. In the more progressive towns the farmers had their motorcars waiting at the hitching posts around the courthouse square as evidence of the progressive spirit and the prosperity of the community more patent than fat sheep or bulging corncribs.

In Kansas hundreds of farmers have bought automobiles. That is not a newspaper "feature story" for the delectation of the gullible and the amusement of editorial satirists. It is plain fact.

Do not jump to the conclusion from this, however, that many farmers have bought blindly. The farmer's familiarity with tools and farm machinery and gasoline engines is a far better preparation for intelligent selection of a car and intelligent care of it afterward than the ordinary city man's superficial knowledge gained from catalogues and gossip or from watching a thousand "makes" whir past him on the streets.

At a motorcar show in Kansas City there was an example of this point. Isaac Page of Dickinson county, Kan., had just traded his runabout for a touring car. The deal was finished as quickly and as calmly as the purchase of a washing machine. Mr. Page's manner was that of a city business man, though he wore a black felt cheese box hat with a huge brim, a white hickory shirt without a necktie, and his suit was the plainest of "store clothes."

UP TO DATE AUTO MILKMAN.

"Don't get it into your head that I'm old. I'm only fifty-seven," he warned when I introduced myself as a reporter. "And don't think that there's anything unusual in a farmer from Dickinson county, Kan., buying a new motorcar. I always say we older people can't afford to get into ruts. Things change, and we've got to keep up. There are a dozen other farmers in my neighborhood who own cars. We need 'em. Now, I live eight miles out of Abilene. With a car I can run in in twenty-two minutes. See?"

If Distilleries Should Close.

The secretary of agriculture is authoritatively quoted as saying that if every distillery and brewery in the United States was to close and never use another bushel of grain in the manufacture of intoxicating liquors the American farmers, as a class, would not know it as far as the effect would show itself on the markets for grain.

Bread or potatoes should never be put in the mouth at the same time as fish, especially by children, or it will be difficult to detect bones in the fish, and they may be swallowed by mistake.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Miss Sara Palmer has been elected president of the National Society of New England Women to succeed Mrs. Thomas Abernethy Fair.

The only woman in the United States engaged in making monuments, so far as is known, is Mrs. A. H. Russell of Ashland, Ore., who is seventy years old. She can letter in seven different languages.

Elizabeth Hirsch has been elected vice president of the city council of Liegnitz, Germany. She is the first woman to occupy that office and was chosen because of her ability as a business woman.

The Writers.

Henry M. Alden has edited Harper's Magazine for forty years.

Aloysius Coll, newspaper man, magazine writer and poet, is secretary of the chamber of commerce of Douglas, Ariz.

Signor d'Annunzio, the famous Italian novelist and poet, has been exulting in the extent of his vocabulary. "Many people," he tells an interviewer, "find 800 words sufficient for all the purpose of writing and speaking. In my works you will find at least 15,000 different words."

What Rich Women Are Doing.

Mrs. Thomas F. Ryan is noted for her charities, and it is estimated that in the last few years she has given away over $2,000,000. Her single largest donation was for the building and refurnishing of the Cathedral of St. Peter at Richmond, Va., which cost her nearly $1,000,000.

Miss Helen Gould's gifts likewise have been widely distributed. She has spent more than $10,000,000 of the fortune left her by her father, Jay Gould. Miss Gould's personal interest in charity work has made her famous over the world.

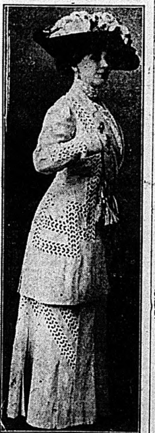
The present Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt has recently given $1,000,000 to build model tenement houses for city dwellers afflicted with tuberculosis, and she is noted for many other smaller charities.

Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan, works quietly, and it is hard to estimate in dollars and cents the amount of financial help given by this charming girl to others during the last few years, but it is conservatively estimated at more than $800,000.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont has given liberally to charity in the past, and her gifts exceed the $300,000 mark.

The Linen Suit.

As surely as summer comes round so surely appears the linen suit, and this season is no exception to the rule. But the quality and weave of the linens of this year are very different from those of other days. The old objection to this material—its creasing propensities—is done away with in the new linens, which are soft, pliable and in many instances of a weave resembling grenadine. The suit pictured is of the heavy variety in a charming shade of gray green. The suit is kept in one tone, and the trimming is of crochet banding dyed to match the linen.



Sashes.

Sashes are with us once more. The broad belts now so popular are continued in soft knots and long ends when the gown to be ornamented is of light, summery texture. Wide flowered ribbon in pompadour patterns, soft broken plaids of a dainty color on white, new satin brocade in soft self tones and the ever beautiful messalines are all sought by the foresighted summer girl.

The sash or girdle of ribbons or even of silk by the yard is as much a fashion for the child as for the grownup.

ANOTHER INNOVATION IN RAILWAY TRAVEL.

If it is the growing time for Canada it is also the growing time for the Grand Trunk Railway System. The popularity of the International Limited the finest and fastest train in Canada has made larger cars an absolute necessity in order to provide room for the growing traffic. The result of this is a much heavier train and in order to handle this train larger and swifter locomotives have been especially designed and built. But before this was done the 80 pound rail was replaced with 100 pound steel. After all that is the foundation—the roadbed.

The cafe parlor cars, which have done service since the establishment of this splendid train are now replaced by new diners which are pioneers in their way. The new cars are 70 feet 7 inches long, 10 1-2 feet wide, 14 1-2 feet high. They are equipped with six wheeled trucks and have steel platforms. They are heated with steam from the locomotive and equipped with electric lights, electric fans, etc. The dining room is finished in African Mahogany, the chairs are made of Mexican Mahogany, upholstered with black leather. These cars were made in the Montreal shops of the Grand Trunk Railway.

New parlor cars similar in excellence to the dining cars are operated on the International Limited.

SIR MACKENZIE BOWELL WILL GO THROUGH TO ROCKIES.

Medicine Hat Daily News.

Hearty and vigorous in spite of his 87 years, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, former Premier of Canada and life member of the Canadian Senate, is visiting at the home of his son-in-law, J. C. Jamieson, at Bald Eagle Lake, says the St. Paul, Minn., Despatch.

Sir Mackenzie is an ardent lover of nature, and his favorite pastime is to work in the flower gardens that surrounds his son-in-law's house. "I bought him a new rake and hoe, before he came," said Mr. Jamieson "and I never touched them, but Sir Mackenzie would rather get out and dig weeds, I believe than eat."

The Canadian statesman rejoices in the way he is retaining his youthful looks. "Last summer when I was here," he said "some one wanted to know which was the father, myself or Jim there," and he pointed to his son-in-law.

Sir Mackenzie will spend three or four weeks at Bald Eagle with his son-in-law, after which he will go for a trip through the Rockies, returning thence to his home in Ontario.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

Abbie Woods, of Montreal, defeated Tom Longboat, the Indian crack, in a fifteen-mile professional race at Atwater Park, Montreal, Monday afternoon. There was less than thirty feet between the pair when Wood raced over the finish line. Not more than sixty feet separated the runners at any stage of the race, and until the last lap they ran in close company with first one and then the other in the lead. Wood's time for the fifteen miles was 1 hour, 28 minutes and 5 seconds.

IN OLD ANNAPOLIS.

Things Were Primitive But Happy In the First Settlement.

Annapolis, formerly Port Royal, was a "garrison town" from the time of its founding by De Monts in 1604, until, in 1853, it ceased to be the capital of the Province of Nova Scotia, and the troops were withdrawn and stationed at Halifax, and is therefor the oldest settlement in Canada.

Just how comfortably the early residents of Annapolis lived, and with how much affluence, is seen in the description given in the writings of M. Dierville, who was in Port Royal about 1699. The town had then been settled over ninety years, and so had arrived to very fair pretentions as a pioneer in the wilderness, although no more progress had been made than was the necessary outcome of an increased immigration.

Of the residents, Dierville says:—"They feed themselves and have surplus to sell. Hemp and flax prosper. Some use no other cloth but homespun. The wool is good, and most of the inhabitants are dressed in their own woollen homespun. Fruits, pulse and garden stuffs are excellent. Provisions are cheap; wheat 40 sous per bushel, the bushel weighs forty-one and one-half pounds; beef is two sous a pound; a pair of chickens, 10 sous; eggs, five sous per dozen; and hares, four sous apiece. (A sous, it may be mentioned, about equals a cent in our currency.) Game plenty. The founders of Port Royal knew the country well before they selected it as their fortress. They had forts at Port La Tour, at Le Have and at Muscoudabout. These all belonged to individuals, and when a good understanding existed amongst them, which was but rarely, they used to come to Port Royal for refreshments. But it is to be remarked that except Port Royal and Le Have, where they cultivated lands and carried on the fisheries, the other posts were only kept up for trading with the savages. Port Royal is, then, the general store of the country, and fortifying it protects Minas also, where corn is now raised, and cattle."

The first Town Council of Annapolis after its final occupation by the English was organized in the spring of 1720 by Governor Phillips. The members of that board were ten in number. The first work of this council was evidently in the line of superintendence of public repairs. The town was in a bad condition according to report of Governor Phillips. When he landed in April he found the place "in as bad a state as was possible to describe, both within and without."

The criminal courts of these early councils were the occasions of decidedly amusing proceedings. The Jean Picot affair and her sentence to "ducking at high water" have become familiar in history, and other sentences to the early offenders of justice were equally strange and ridiculous. In September, 1716, one Robert Nicols was charged with assaulting one of the officers of the garrison, and a court of four councillors found him guilty and passed the following sentence:—

"You being found guilty by H. M. Council for this Province of the crime wherewith thou art charged, the punishment, therefore, inflicted on thee is to sit upon a gallows three days, half an hour each day, with a rope about thy neck, and a paper upon thy breast whereon shall be wrote, in capital letters, "AUDACIOUS VILLAIN," and afterwards thou art to be whipt at a cart's tail from the prison house up to the uppermost house of the Cape, and from thence back again to prison house, receiving each hundred paces five stripes upon your bare back with a cat-of-nine-tails, and then thou are to be turned over for a soldier."

Evidently to be a soldier was not so high an honor as it once had been. Another sentence given in 1732 was that the prisoner should be publicly whipped "at the cart's tail" at four places in the town, and at each place to receive five stripes on his bare back with a cat-o'-nine tails.

Piracy was rampant in Annapolis during the early years of the eighteenth century, and not only was serious damage done to the property by these attacks, but the onslaughts were usually accompanied with loss of life. There was thus a large element of precariway towards the prosperity with malcontents on every hand spreading dissatisfaction and alarm.

In August, 1781, the town was attacked by two rebel schooners carrying twelve guns each. The ships came up the harbor under cover of night and landed their men, unobserved.

It was a genuine freebooters' excursion, with plans well laid and skilfully executed. The garrison was first attacked, the sentries silenced and the fort taken, while the soldiers slept. As soon as the day broke they turned their attention to the town, surrounded the houses, and, capturing every man and boy, locked them in the fort. Two of the inhabitants more daring than the rest, attempted to escape. They were discovered and promptly hung from the yard-arm of one of the schooners. Their fate served as a warning to any others who might be disposed to make a dash for freedom. After the whole town had been plundered, the guns in the fort spiked, the pirates made off, carrying with them the spoils of a most successful expedition.

A Different Sort of Doctor.

Dr. Charles Harriss, the well-known Canadian musician and composer, who has arranged and will conduct the Empire Concert at the forthcoming pageant to be held at the Crystal Palace, told an amusing story about himself the other day, says M.A.P.

Whilst Dr. Harris was on his way to South Africa, he desired to keep his identity a secret.

During the voyage a gentleman managed to get into conversation with the musician, and asked him if he would medically examine his little girl who was with him on the boat.

"My dear sir," replied Dr. Harriss, "I have never examined a child in my life."

Ten minutes later he overheard the gentleman say, in the smoking-room: "There you are! Didn't I say that man was a fraud!"

Although the fisheries yield more than 1,205,000,000 pounds of sea food annually the demand exceeds the supply to such an extent that more than 400,000,000 pounds are imported each year.

THE SMART CAPER.

Wear a Breakfast Cap and Look Dainty.

THE NEW BREAKFAST CAP.

Old time fashions are being revived in all departments of dress, and the last new old fashion to appear is the breakfast cap. Some girls prefer to call them colonial caps, for they were worn by the ladies of the Revolution, who looked charming in the dainty lace headgear. Every one is familiar with the pictures of Martha Washington in her mob cap. Well, you can make your new breakfast headpiece just like hers if you want to or you can copy the peasant headdress of Holland, which is a delightful model.

All kinds of odds and ends of lace and muslin are brought into commission for these caps, and it is only the work of a few minutes to make a lovely creation all lace, frills and flowing ribbons. The illustration will give a good idea of a modish cap.

And, by the way, these caps are being presented to summer brides and to young mothers and debutantes.

The Bathing Suit.

The better the material the more durable the bathing suit or beach gown. Clothes for the seashore, whether for the actual sea dip or for the merest daily sunbath on the beach, are subjected to the most strenuous fading process and therefore demand the best in fabric and dye.

The costume pictured is both practical and pretty.

Arranging Flowers.

No trouble is too great to the genuine lover of flowers when arranging them. The utmost pains will be taken to choose the most suitable glass or jar receptacle. A large bunch of sweet peas looks well if placed on an old china mug or bow pot. Roses are equally effective if set in specimen glasses or carelessly grouped in a porcelain bowl.

Lilies of the valley are a host in themselves. Poppies seem to require clay pottery or the bottle green vases that are so general nowadays. Forget-me-nots look well in small, low glasses. Mignonette is best in a bowl by itself, as it is said to kill flowers that are put with it. The old fashioned clove carnation looks well with a spray of white jasmine. Scarlet geranium should always have a spray of its own leaves.

Maidenhair fern, so lovely as foliage, is properly associated with hothouse blossoms, but orchids should be excepted from this suggestion. They are best as nature intended them to be. Indeed, it is always more artistic to give each flower its own foliage.

Pongee Petticoats.

Paris says the pongee petticoat is new. It is made of the natural colored silk, with a scant ruffle, and is very closely fitted over the hips. Its only trimming is an insertion along the ruffle's edge of coffee colored linen lace or a few rows of ecru colored soutache braid.

By using a pattern for the homemade petticoat there is no reason why it cannot be made to look quite as well as those made by the skirt experts.

To facilitate the seating of patrons of moving picture theatres where there are no reserved seats without the use of ushers, a New York man has patented a system whereby an incandescent lamp remains lighted on the back of each seat as long as it remains unoccupied.

The Manifestations Of Eye-Strain

Being extracts from a recent address given before a graduating class in Medicine, by Ernest Clarke, M. D., of London, England.

"Eye-Strain may be defined as a symptom or group of symptoms produced by the correction or attempt at correction by the ciliary muscle of an error of refraction, or as a want of balance between the external muscles of the eye. Where gross errors exist either in the refraction or in the muscular equilibrium the patient cannot correct, and consequently makes no attempt to correct the defect, and eye-strain is not produced. The smaller the error the more likely is eye-strain to be present, and, also, unfortunately for the patient, the more likely is it to be overlooked.

The symptoms of eye-strain may be grouped under three headings: (1) Manifestations on the eye and lids. (2) Peripheral irritation. (3) Nerve exhaustion.

Encourage the Fair.

The Editor of the Intelligencer,

Dear Sir:—

Anyone who has visited the Industrial Exhibition now being held in Toronto cannot deny the fact that it has done more to advertise Toronto than anything else, and added much to the general prosperity which she now enjoys. This is true not only of Toronto but of other smaller towns and cities, which hold a good annual Agriculture Exhibition. And such would be the case with our own town if the merchants and citizens of Belleville would give our own Agriculture Fair the support it deserves. A few of our citizens and the people of East Hastings have done nobly to re-establish an annual Fair here but it is not fair to have all the responsibility rest on the shoulders of a few. This is an opportune time, and there is no time to lose, for us to wake up and make this year's Fair a success and the beginning of better things.

Wm. Thompson,
Furniture Manufacturer.

The Belleville Fair.

The Belleville Fair which is to be held on Sept. 13 and 14th, promises to be the best held here in many years.

The management is making improvements in the halls for the benefit of the exhibitors, so that there will be plenty of room for the exhibitors. The secretary has already received a lot of entries in the different classes.

The speeding events promises to be the best in the history of the Fair.

The programme of amusements is first class in very respect, and the performance in front of the Grand Stand this year will be worth the price of admission.

On Tuesday afternoon, Sept 13th, the best game of ball of the season will be played for a silver cup presented by the Fair Board between the Park Nine and the Grand Trunk teams.

On Tuesday evening a first-class programme has been arranged for and will be presented in front of the Grand Stand. The grounds will be well lighted, so that everybody will have a first-class view.

The management would urge upon the merchants to join with them and do all in their power to aid in making the Fair the best ever held.

The Secretary, R. H. Ketcheson will be pleased to furnish all information required.

Defect in Caisson At Quebec Bridge.

WILL DELAY BRIDGE A YEAR—LOSS THROUGH THE DEFECT IS ESTIMATED AT HALF A MILLION DOLLARS.

Quebec, September 6.—A few days ago a defect was discovered in the new caisson for the north pillar of the Quebec Bridge, and Mr. Vautelet, of Montreal, one of the three engineers superintending the construction, came and, after examining the caisson at Cape Rouge, condemned it, and it is probable that it will have to be removed to Roche's Cove and partly rebuilt, which will delay the completion of the bridge for about a year. At the offices of Messrs. Davis, the contractors of the bridge, practically no information can be obtained, but it is stated that the contractors have received instructions from the federal authorities to complete their work for the autumn of 1911. It was necessary to use 1700 tons of timber in the construction of the caisson, and after it was launched, ten feet of concrete was placed in it, which will have to be removed before the caisson will be placed in Roche's cove. This will necessitate considerable work, and the loss is estimated at half a million dollars.

Drowning Accident At Adolphustown.

Mr. Cecil Miller, a fireman on the steamer Quinte Queen, was drowned at Adolphustown dock, Saturday morning about eight o'clock. The steamer was on her regular trip to Picton, and while calling at Adolphustown wharf the little three-year-old child of Mr. Miller fell overboard. Mr. Miller was attending to the fires at the time, and hearing of the accident rushed on deck and immediately jumped in the water to save his little one. He immediately went down out of sight and never came up again. It is thought that his death was caused from being chilled by the cold water. The child was rescued by some one standing on the dock. The crew grappled and soon recovered Miller's body which they brought on to Picton. Deceased was thirty eight years old. The funeral took place on Sunday at ten o'clock. He leaves a widow and three small children.

Along the Docks.

The steamer Belleville of the R. and O. line called here this morning, being eastward bound. She had on board many passengers and a large quantity of freight. A large consignment of cheese was shipped to Montreal.

The steamer Brockville this morning brought an excursion party to the city. They were from various bay ports.

The Dundas St. Sewer.

The large iron pipe which is to be connected with the Dundas street sewer and carried out in the bed of the river for a distance of nearly 300 feet is upon the ground, and will shortly be placed in position by the contractors, Messrs. ONLY AN "ACCESSORY."

Ethel Leneve's Charge In Murder Case Is Reduced.

London, Sept. 7.—The charge against Ethel Clare Leneve, co-defendant with Dr. H. H. Crippen, was yesterday reduced to that of being an accessory after the fact. This was announced when the hearing of the pair was resumed in the Bow street police court.

When arrested she was accused of being an accomplice.

Prosecutor Travers Humphreys, who made the announcement, also for the first time gave out the case of the prosecution, declaring that the examination of the remains of Belle Elmore (Mrs. Crippen) showed that there had been a criminal operation on the victim, while the chemical analysis revealed large quantities of hyoscin, one of the most powerful drugs known.

A few days before the death of Belle Elmore, her husband bought five grains of hyoscin, enough to kill forty persons.

The prosecutor charged flatly that Ethel Leneve was Crippen's mistress and that their relations had aroused the anger of Mrs. Crippen. By this move, the prosecution has advanced its theory of motive.

Application to admit the prisoners to bail was refused, and an adjournment was taken until Thursday.

New testimony will doubtless be elaborated later by the physicians who conducted the post mortem, with the statement of Mrs. Paul Martinetti to the effect that Mrs. Crippen had once shown her a scar on the lower part of the body which had the appearance of being from an old cut. The doctors who examined the body found in the Crippen home, discovered a piece of flesh bearing a similar scar.

All night long crowds surrounded Bow street police court, to get a glimpse of the prisoners when they were taken in yesterday for the continued hearing before Magistrate De Rutzn. At dawn the throng increased and by the time the principals in the most enthralling mystery of a decade were hurried into the building, flanked and led by guards, fully 10,000 were crowded about the court and on the adjacent streets. A heavy detail of police was hard put to it to preserve order. When the prisoners mounted the steps of the building, the crowd surged forward, and several persons were crushed. Four women had to be carried from the danger zone by the police.

Will Delay G.T.P.

Vancouver, Sept. 7.—That the completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway through northern British Columbia may be delayed a couple of years became very apparent to railway men here yesterday, when it became known that no effort would be made to get under contract this year a large section between Aldermere and Tete Jaune Cache. All the rest of the line is now under contract and it was expected that on the present trip that President Hays of the G.T.P. would announce the awarding of the contract.

The reason for the delay is the scarcity of labor, and the deadlock that had arisen between the railway company and the British Columbia Government on the Oriental employment question. Up to the time of his return to Vancouver from Prince Rupert, it is under stood that President Hays intended to award the final contract, but he was met here by the declaration of Contractor J. W. Stewart that he did not care to take up any more work, and that, so far as he was concerned, he would care for further work by building westward from Edmonton, rather than east from Prince Rupert. In order to finish the new transcontinental on time in 1913 it would be necessary to rush work from both ends.

Black Hand Active.

New York, Sept. 7.—Activities of the dreaded Black Hand show no diminution, two attempts being made yesterday to destroy the homes of Italians who refused payments to the society. A blackmailing band sought to blow up and burn the house of Frank Mazetetta, a contractor, in Brooklyn, because he would not pay $10,000. Mrs. Mazetetta fled to Europe with her children. Firemen checked the flames in Mazetetta's home, and threw two unexploded bombs out of the window.

Blackhanders ignited a can of explosives against the front door of Giovanni Palmero on East 87th street early yesterday. The fuse burned out without exploding the can. Palmero has received many threatening letters.

Winston Churchill Wounded.

London, Sept. 7.—Much curiosity, not unmixed with anxiety, is felt here over a despatch printed in The Manchester Guardian, to the effect that Winston Churchill, Home Secretary, had been wounded in Smyrna.

Churchill, who is taking advantage of the lull in English politics to make a tour of the Orient, was understood to be traveling in Asia Minor, but his exact whereabouts were not known until the receipt of this despatch. The cablegram, which lacks detail, states that Hon. Mr. Churchill was accidentally wounded in the leg.

CHURCH'S RELATIONS

Halifax Bicentenary Gathering Discusses Whole Matter.

Bishop Ingram of London With Remarkable Force Throws New Life Into an Old Topic — No Effort Should Be Made to Enforce a Complete Dogmatic Unity Like the Roman Church.

Halifax, Sept. 7.—While diocesan and parochial and other church problems occupied some of the congress meetings yesterday, it was the relations existing between the Church of England and other churches, its attitude to the unchurched and to the churchless nations that contributed the main topics.

The personality of the Bishop of London, has in this discussion irradiated an influence which all men have felt.

"It is a great responsibility," he said, "to hear two such appeals. As I sat and heard those two impassioned appeals from two such wholehearted men of God, I said to myself, 'I have to answer that at the Judgment Day.' And so have you. There is no literary grace about this, but the words burned in."

Most of the day's proceedings were an elaboration in one form or another of this message of personal responsibility.

If appeals could do it, a thousand missionaries would start out next Monday. The Bishop of Glasgow satirized those who see all sorts of good things for other people to do, but never dream of finding a lesson for themselves, and Bishop Ingram put his finger on the same point. "I don't want to have you say, 'We have had some fine inspiring addresses to-day,' as if they only involved other people, and did not involve you. I want to involve you." And he involves them.

He told them that it was God's holy will to convert the world through man and that God was not afraid to face the consequence of His own actions. If man did not do the work, it was not done. If they had not built 240 churches in London in the forty years past, two and a half million people would have no churches. If they were missionaries, they would be red-hot missionaries, wherever they were, at home or abroad, and the red-hot missionaries could not stop until the world was won, as he believed it could be in this generation, and he told how an arid parish desert in East London had blossomed as the rose in seven years.

The good qualities of the heathen were much dwelt on yesterday from various points of view. Canon Tucker canonized the Chinese. They were the most vigorous people in mind and body in the world, thrifty, industrious, loving their parents with a devotion beyond all parallel, and winning the promise of long life in their land. With laws before Moses and psalms before David, and silk when Britons painted their skin, we assumed to look down on this glorious people. China has learned her lesson and by and by wil be able to speak with her enemies in the gate. All the nations were in upheaval, straining and rending themselves in the throes of a renaissance.

A Peculiar Perversion.

New York, Sept. 7.—A weakness for babies, white or black, and an admitted inability to pass them without kissing and biting them, landed Elizabeth McGuirk, 35 years old, in the cells last night. Lillian Smothers, a negress, leaving her 18-months-old daughter Ruby in a go-cart, heard it cry, and returned to find teeth marks and blood on its left forearm. Two little girls said that a woman had kissed and bitten the child.

Double Drowning.

Brockville, Sept. 7.—J. J. Letool, a Thiel detective of Ottawa, and A. Brander, typewriter agent, were drowned from a launch five miles east of here yesterday morning.

With their wives and J. O. Clendenning, in charge of the boat, the party left here in the launch Imp, for Ogdensburg, and at a point mentioned the launch capsized. Clendenning managed to save the women and himself.

Another Fire at Brussels Ex.

Brussels, Sept. 7.—Widespread consternation was caused by a second fire on the exposition grounds last evening. The fire was discovered in the gallery of the international machinery building, and extinguished without much difficulty.

Last month the exposition was the scene of a conflagration which wiped out a number of buildings, and entailed a loss of $20,000,000.

Army Up to Full Strength.

Washington, Sept. 7.—Though President Taft's policy of retrenchment is to be followed more effectively than ever, the standing army will be recruited up to its authorized strength of 87,000 men, according to announcement made by Major-Gen. Wood, chief of staff, when he returned to Washington yesterday, after a trip to Beverley, where he conferred with the President.

Engineer of Train Killed.

Masillon, O., Sept. 7.—A runaway locomotive on the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railroad crashed into a passenger train at Run Junction, seven miles south of here, yesterday, killing the engineer of the passenger train. C. W. Foster, of this city. Not one of the 100 passengers was seriously hurt.

Attempted Train Wrecking.

Brockville, Sept. 7.—Reuben Lee, a young man of 20 years, residing at Forfar, was arrested Monday charged with attempting to wreck a train on the B., W. & N. Railway, the recently acquired branch of the Canadian Northern, on Aug. 8 last.

THREE YOUNG MAGNATES.

Youthful Business Men Who Are Now Millionaires.

Every little while there is some little incident occurring that goes to show how fast some of the younger generation of Canadians have jumped, by their own efforts, into the millionaire class.

The other day, for instance, when the big ocean liner Lusitania pulled into New York from England it had among its passengers three young Canadians who about five years ago very few people ever expected would be in the millionaire class for a great many years to come, and yet in that short space of time, in entirely different fields had accumulated an unusually large amount of wealth for a young country like Canada.

The three of them, who chummed quite a lot together on the way over, were Mr. C. B. Gordon, the young president of the Dominion Textile Co., which represents the merger of a number of the larger cotton concerns of Canada; Mr. W. M. Aitken, more generally known as the president of the Royal Securities Corporation because it is his pet concern, but in reality the wizard of Canadian promoters, who even before he had touched the thirty-year mark had perhaps more consolidations to his credit than any other Canadian capitalist; and Mr. Shirley Ogilvie, a director of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Ltd., but more generally known as one of the four young men who jumped into prominence a few years ago, when after securing the control of the Canadian Rubber Co., they formed the big Canadian rubber consolidation, now included in the Canadian Consolidated Rubber Co.

Even a hasty glance back shows at what a tremendous pace all three of them have come along, for it only seems the other day when Charlie Gordon was working almost day and night to put the Standard Shirt Co. on its feet and probably had never dreamt of such a thing as the consolidation of the principal cotton concerns of the country.

When the time came, however, for this consolidation the Montreal financiers who recognized the possibilities of it, right from the outset called in Mr. Gordon's advice because it was felt that from a practical standpoint he knew a great deal about the cotton trade of the country.

When finally the merger had been completed it was found that Gordon had relinquished his position in the Standard Shirt and was to fill the important post of vice-president and managing director of the big textile concern.

Naturally, of course, from a stock market standpoint, he got right in on the ground floor, and while he was going ahead making a success of the Textile Company he was all the time adding to the value of his big holdings in the company.

Then about a year ago, when Mr. David Yuile, the president of the company, passed away, the directors insisted on Mr. Gordon stepping into the presidency, notwithstanding the fact that in doing so he would easily be the youngest Canadian to occupy such a post in a big concern.

Of course Mr. Gordon has also been a shrewd business man in other ways, but there can be little doubt but that by far the greater proportion of his present large fortune was made out of the Textile securities.

Then while young Mr. Aitken has during the past year become one of the leading figures in financial circles, both in Montreal and Toronto, still before coming up to Montreal to reside from Halifax he had put through a large number of deals, more particularly in connection with public utilities and electrical power concerns.

"Patrick," Duke of Connaught.

A propos of the probable appointment of H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught to be Governor-General of Canada before very long, though not probably this year, some papers have credited the selection of the name "Patrick," as one of the many borne by His Royal Highness to the personal request of the Duke of Wellington, who acted as sponsor. As a matter of fact, Queen Victoria herself has explained that the suggestion came from a humble but patriotic daughter of Ireland. Her Majesty was out driving with two of her children when an old beggar wife hobbled across her path and cried with high-pitched fervor: "Oh, Queen dear! call the next one Patrick and all Ireland will die for ye!" In the royal family, and among his intimates, the Duke of Connaught is always called "Pat," and it is related by one who knows him very well that he can tell the good stories he has collected in his travels and campaigns, with a humor worthy of his Irish name.

A Dundas Militiaman.

The famous 77th Regiment has a new colonel, and his name is not Bertram, but Knowles.

The new colonel is, however, of the Bertram type. He was born in Flamboro Township in Wentworth County in 1862. Proceeding rapidly to a professional career, he has been a barrister in the town of Dundas since 1884. He has served on the School Board, and in the council, and was for two years mayor of the town.

His military service has been short. In 1899 he joined the 77th Regiment as captain of No. 1 Company. Exactly ten years later, he became Lieutenant-Colonel and Commanding Officer.

Wolfe Memorial.

Beckles Willson, secretary of the Wolfe Memorial Fund, which is being raised with the object of erecting a statue to the hero of Quebec in his birthplace, Westerham, England, is in the east in connection with the matter, having arrived from England. Mr. Willson has visited several Quebec sites linked with Wolfe's name, and has left for Montreal in the interests of the memorial fund, of which Lord Roberts is chairman.

Wealthy Farmers Seek Canada.

One hundred wealthy farmers from Iowa, Nebraska and Illinois arrived from St. Paul the other day. The same day they left by a special train for Scott and Mainwright, Sask.

EDWARD AS MOTORIST.

He Was an Enthusiast and Patron of the Toot-Toot Art.

By the death of King Edward, motoring in common with many other forms of sport has lost a munificent patron. His Majesty was the proud possessor of a baker's dozen of motor-cars, most of which represent the last word in the automobile world.

The King was immune from the tyranny of the number-plate, and his cars were therefore innocent of the symbolism which appeals so strongly to the executive of the police-trap.

A detailed description of all the King's cars was issued to the police throughout the Kingdom together with instructions that "all facilities" were to be given for their progress on the road. But this concern at headquarters was not sufficient to prevent mistakes. More than once the royal cars were held up owing to the interference of some officious constable, who was disappointed in his search for a number, and a considerable amount of time and breath has been wasted before he has been convinced that "the King can do no wrong."

Unlike his brother, the Duke of Connaught, the King was remarkably free from anything in the nature of a serious accident. He had breakdowns in legion—no motorist is free from these little unpreventable inconveniences — but he always proved himself equal to the emergency by availing himself of the first handy vehicle and so avoiding becoming an object of interest to all and sundry.

A short while ago his car came to a sudden stop in Richmond Park. In a moment a vast crowd appeared, apparently from nowhere, and enjoyed the spectacle of the King of England instructing his chauffeur in the true inwardness of the breakdown, showing him the best method of remedying the fault, and exhibiting in a number of ways his intimate knowledge of motor-car mechanism. He owed this knowledge to Mr. Oliver Stanton, who, years ago, taught His Majesty cycling, and more recently made him a thorough master of the automobile.

King Edward's chauffeurs were all picked men. Most of them served in Scotland Yard, and have, at some time or other, driven the official motor-cars of the police. How this idea of the King's was carried out is interesting. One day a chauffeur in the employ of the Commissioner of Police was told off to perform some service for the King, and the fine physique and bearing of the man attracted His Majesty's attention. While this man was in attendance at Buckingham Palace something went wrong with a royal motor-car, which seemed to puzzle the King's own chauffeur, and resist all his attempts at remedy.

At last the man from Scotland Yard stepped forward, and in a few minutes found a remedy. The King was so pleased that he asked the man to take service with him, and, the permission of the Commissioner being secured, the corps of policemen-chauffeurs was inaugurated. As it was necessary for policemen to accompany the King almost everywhere he went, the men performed dual service.

Although the King was extremely free from accidents, he had foresight enough to know that he was not infallible, so he had a complete first-aid outfit attached to each of his cars. This miniature surgery weighs about six pounds, and includes an India rubber tourniquet to stop bleeding, several pairs of scissors and forceps, antiseptic swabs, gauze, bandages, a variety of unguents and dressings, a selection of stimulative drugs, and a bottle of brandy. These contents are arranged in the order of their use in the eight different compartments of a silver box which fits into a royal blue morocco case.

On the lid of each case are detailed instructions, while on the front of each silver box is the inscription: "A Friend in Need is a Friend Indeed."

The Names of the Mighty.

Talking of family names, the new issue of the London directory provides some curiosities. Sebastian Bach is a horse dealer, Robert Bruce and John Bunyan are green grocers, John Milton is a chandler and James Boswell a mason.

William Shakespeare is the name of a barrister, tailor and a van builder. There is a Crusoe and also a Gulliver. Julius Caesar is a chemist; Livy keeps apartments. Homer is a lighterman, Pindar an electrical engineer, Mars, retails beer, and Venus, not inappropriately, sugars, candles. Frances Bacon is an architect and Bayard a dairyman. And what could be better for the name of a saddler than Whippy?

From Sailor to Royal Academician.

Mr. C. Napier Hemy, one of the newly-elected Royal Academicians, has had an extremely eventful career. Born at Newcastle-on-Tyne, he was taken by his parents to Australia, where in his early days he worked hard as a miner in the bush. The call of art was strong upon him, however, and he abandoned everything to study painting in Antwerp. Returning to England in 1870 his success with the brush was soon assured, and, elected an Associate in 1898, he has now deservedly achieved the highest honor the art world has to offer.

Healy on Redmond.

The Irish politician takes his business seriously and when he strikes an opponent he strikes to kill. The other day at a mass meeting in Cork, Mr. M. Healy, M.P., said that Mr. John Redmond and his party, in voting for the Budget, had committed the greatest act of betrayal of Irish interests since that memorable act of treachery in Ireland's history when, 110 years ago, other Irishmen put their hand and seal to the Act of Union.

Exporting Cabinet Ministers.

In proposing "Scotland and her Industries" at a Glasgow corporation dinner recently an Englishman remarked that the two chief industries of the northern land were the manufacture of marmalade and Cabinet Ministers. Sir Samuel Chisholm, who replied, suggested that they had a good-going business in the output of Prime Ministers—for export as well as for home consumption.

HOW MANY REALIZE THE MARVELLOUS VALUE OF FRUIT IN CURING MANY DISEASES?

Wonderful Success of "Fruit-a-tives" —The Famous Fruit Medicine

Fruit juice consists of about 91% water, 8% of sweet matter, and only 1% of an intensely bitter substance. Careful experiments show that it is this bitter principle, which is the active or medicinal material of fruit juice.

Under certain conditions, the bitter principle can be made to replace or transform some of the sweet atoms in the juice, thus making a new compound which is much more active medicinally than the ordinary juice.

Many fruits were analyzed and it was found that the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes gave the best results. These fruit juices, having been made more active by the secret process of changing the sweet principle into the bitter, are combined with tonics and antiseptics and made into tablets. These tablets are the famous fruit medicine—"Fruit-a-tives"—known in every part of Canada for their wonderful curative qualities in diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys and Skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50 or trial size, 25c

Commanding Officer Says Regiment Will Turn Out Regareless of Order of Militia Department.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 8.—"My Regiment shall take part in the Eucharistic procession on Sunday and guard the Host on its way to the Cathedral."

This was the rather sensational statement of Col. Labelle, Commanding the Sixty-fifth Regiment, mostly French Canadians. Labelle says he will ask the Regiment to volunteer for the parade, notwithstanding the orders of the militia deparment that there shall be no military demonstration. The Committee in charge of the great civic Reception to Vannuelli tonight have decreed that nobody will be admitted unless in evening dress. At first it was ordered that ladies should appear in decollete dress, but this has been modified, and high-necked dresses may be worn. Judging from the tremendous rush for invitations, the event bids fair to break the record of any reception ever held here. His Eminence has fully recovered from he fainting spell of last night's great crush.

The Crippen Case.

Intelligencer Special.

London, Eng., Sept 8—As witness after witness told his or her story at the Crippen investigation to-day the doctor's nervousness increased. He twitched visibly when Harold Kirby a chemist's clerk, told of his sale to Crippen of the deadly hyocsin poison on January 29. On cross-examination by Crippen's counsel, however, Kirby admitted that Crippen frequently purchased the drug, alleging he wanted it as a sedative. It has been understood that Crippen had hoped to make his defense that his wife died after an unsuccessful operation. During the taking of evidence to-day the Doctor and his fellow-defendant, Miss Leneve were overheard more than once discussing the testimony as presented. The court room was crowded as usual, the spectators being titled people and many fashionably dressed women. Two neighbors testified to having seen Miss Leneve wearing clothes and jewelry formerly worn by Mrs. Crippen. Inspector Dew then took the stand and told how Miss Leneve told him when he visited the residence in June that she was Crippen's housekeeper. There is no truth in the story that she confessed anything, but authorities will try to use her as a witness.

Inspector Dew, continuing the evidence, said that Crippen remarked, when questioned by him, "I'd better tell the truth." Dew said both Crippen and Leneve made statements, but he didn't give them in the evidence.

Dew said Crippen told him his wife had an ungovernable temper and about January left him after a violent quarrel, saying she would not return. He said he told the neighbors that his wife was dead so as to prevent scandal.

Regarding Leneve, Dew said she simply told him that Crippen informed her his wife was dead.

It is the opinion here that the defence can easily get witnesses to swear as positively as the crown's witnesses that there is no hyoscin in the body.

Second Thought is Quite Different.

Intelligencer Special.

London, Eng., Sept. 8 — To-day's afternoon papers are not quite so enthusiastic about the Hague decision. After calm consideration they agree that while it is a diplomatic victory for Britain and settles a long-standing dispute, it really disarms Newfoundland in her economic campaign against the United States.

Rome and Spain Cannot Make Peace.

It is stated that the Pope will not attempt to reopen negotiations again, which means that the rupture is extremely serious.

Friction Between Irish and French.

(Intelligencer Special.)

Montreal, Q., Sept. 8 — There is a division in the City Council over a flag incident connected with the Eucharistic Congress.

It seems that with the Union Jack and Papal ensigns in front of the City Hall is the green flag of Ireland, placed there by the order of Mayor Guerin, who is a son of Erin.

There isn't a French tricolor in sight, from the front of the building, and French members of the Council are sore. A protest made to the Mayor had no effect.

THE INVESTIGATION INTO THE ACCIDENT NEAR DURAND.

Intelligencer Special.

Durand, Mich., Sept. 8 — Continuing the investigation into the Grand Trunk smash-up, witnesses this morning exonerated all the employees except brakesman Graham. He was the man whose business it was to look after the tail lights, and he admitted, in evidence some time ago that he had not been examined regarding his qualifications before being taken on.

CROWDS OF THE FAITHFUL AT THE EUCHARISTIC SERVICE.

(Intelligencer Special)

Montreal, Q., Sept. 8 — The Eucharistic service in St. James' Cathedral this morning was crowded to the doors with Fathers, Brothers and Sisters of the Church, it being mainly the Sacrament for those connected with various institutions and orders. After it was over, His Eminence Cardinal Vannutelli gave the Papal benediction, after which he drove to the Italian quarter, where he spent some time among his fellow countrymen.

Cardinal Gibbons, from the United States, is here and will endeavor to have the Congress next year held in New York City. Mayor Guerin's reception will be held to-night, despite the fact that Vannutelli was nearly overcome in the crowd last night.

Beside the skeleton of a Roman soldier of the first century, found recently in France, there was a flask con-

HAD NO TAIL LIGHTS

Witnesses Swear G.T.R. Train at Durand Was Unprotected.

Inquest Into Wreck on Chicago Train Elicits Evidence to the Effect That Brakeman Did Not Know His Work —Two Travelers Say Green Lights Were Not In Place at Rear of the Wrecked Train.

Durand, Mich., Sept. 8.—The inquest into the wreck on the Grand Trunk at Duffield, four miles east of here, on Aug. 25, in which nine passengers, many of them Canadians, lost their lives, was resumed here yesterday. Both the state and the railway company were represented by an imposing array of legal talent.

Attorney-General Franz Kuhn, Deputy Attorney-General Chase, and all the members of the Michigan Railway Commission were in attendance for the people, while Harrison Geer, general counsel for the Grand Trunk, and a host of lesser officials, were on hand to look after the railway's interests.

Twenty-seven witnesses are yet to be examined, and, although both sides are anxious to finish, but ten of these were heard up to 6 o'clock, when an adjournment was taken until this morning.

Yesterday's testimony could hardly be considered as helping the railway's case; rather was it weakened, because of the fact that mature and disinterested witnesses stated positively that no tail lights were shown by No. 14 when she pulled out of Durand on the night of Aug. 24.

One witness, Herbert Bixby of Flint, who was a passenger on No. 14, testified that when the train came to a stop he put his head out of the window to see what was delaying it. While looking he saw No. 4 start out from Durand station, and took his head in just as the crash came. He heard no torpedo explode.

Commissioner Scully, in cross-examination of several witnesses, started out on a new tack, by demanding of those who testified, as to whether their expenses while at Durand were not being paid by the Grand Trunk. Miss Hazel Felton admitted that she "understood the company would take care of all that."

Samuel Hawkinson of Palisade Mich., gave some rather important evidence. He was on train 14, and when it stopped for repairs to the engine Hawkinson got out and sat on the bank near by. He saw Brakeman Graham go some 350 feet back with a red lantern in his hand, but said no attempt was made to signal with it.

"He just stood still," the witness said. When No. 4 was a short distance away the red light was waved a few times frantically, and then the train swept by and the collision followed. Hawkinson was of the opinion that if the engineer of the on-coming train had shut off steam as soon as he caught sight of the danger signal he might have avoided hitting No. 14 ahead. Witness saw only one fire extinguisher on the ground, and that could not be used, being out of order.

A. B. Emmons, another traveler, said he was sure No. 14 carried no tail lights, as he had watched her pull out of the station here and the absence of lights excited his interest. Later, when he heard of the wreck he recalled the absence of rear lights.

Charles Libbey, a gate tender for the Grand Trunk here, testified to having seen No. 14 pull out with the usual tail lights "sitting on the rear platform, instead of being on the hooks at the side of the car, as they should have been."

Paid Price of Pessimism.

Winnipeg, Sept. 8.—Up to the present 9,500 farm laborers have been brought into the west from eastern provinces by the C.P.R. Up to this time last year the number exceeded 20,000. The cause of the falling off is attributed by the C.P.R. officials to the fact that farmers, during the early part of the season, estimated that their crops this year would not be up to the standard of last year. On these grounds they did not make application early in the season for men.

It is estimated that 10,000 men and more are needed in order that the wheat growers may have sufficient help in completing the harvesting of the crops.

Floods in Japan.

Tokio, Sept. 8.—Serious floods threaten the cities of Osaka and Kobe on the Island of Hondo. River banks are collapsing, and much damage is probable. High water also is doing serious damage in the northern part of Main Island.

CRUSH AT RECEPTION

Great Crowd Attends Levee of Cardinal Vannutelli.

Papal Legate Is Overcome by the Heat and Has to Be Taken Out to Get Fresh Air — Prelates Visit Prison and Have a Talk With the Men In Jail—Members of Dominion Cabinet at Evening Function.

Montreal, Sept. 8.—A tremendous crowd gathered around the Windsor Hotel last night watching the carriages, cabs, taxis and other conveyances depositing their guests and then passing on to join the gradually growing line extending over several blocks. All eyes were watching for Cardinal Vannutelli, and it was with difficulty the police kept the crowd back as they pushed in on the cordon keeping clear the line from the curb to the main entrance of the hotel. When the doors were open the crush became terrible, all pressing toward the door. The heat and pressure became so great that many women had to be passed out by the windows. About 10.30 the cardinal himself was partly overcome, and he had to go outside for a breath of air, returning later and staying beyond the time set for the close of the reception, 11 o'clock.

The cardinal sat surrounded by his suite and the bishops. As the crowd came in they knelt down one by one and kissed the ring of the representative of his holiness the Pope. Then they passed on to be greeted in turn by the Secretary of State, Hon. Chas. Murphy, Archbishop Bruchesi of Montreal, Sir Richard Cartwright, Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Hon. Sydney Fisher and Sir Frederick Borden were also present. Over the door through which the people passed before the cardinal were the Union Jack and the papal colors.

Amid the pomp and splendor of the Eucharistic proceedings, the "little ones" of the community are not forgotten. Archbishop Bruchesi is renowned throughout Canada for many virtues, but for none more than the care and solicitude he has always shown for those unfortunates who at times fill the wards of the jail at Montreal. Twice a year his grace visits this institution.

It surprised none, therefore, when the jail was scheduled yesterday as the first point of call for the cardinal and suite. In preparation for the event the men inmates were gathered in the chapel of the institution, and at 7.30 His Eminence Cardinal Vannutelli, assisted by Archbishop Bruchesi and Mgr. Tampiere, said mass. The distinguished party were received by Sheriff Lemieux and Governor Vallee.

After mass, his eminence addressed the inmates, his kind words being interpreted by his grace of Montreal. He had come, said the cardinal, at the invitation of the archbishop to speak to them. All men are brothers in Jesus Christ, and no man lived who could say he was without fault. He had come to them, blessing them and acting for the holy father, and in the name of Him who said: "He who visits one of those in prison visits Me." Those listening to him could not be present at the grand ceremonies outside, but they could be present in spirit. All men are prisoners on earth until the heavenly Father released them from the valley of tears.

The appropriate words of the distinguished visitor greatly moved those to whom they were addressed.

To Suspend Gold Coinage.

Washington, Sept. 8.—Gold coinage will be suspended in the United States for an indefinite period if present plans are adopted by the Treasury Department. By the substitution of gold certificates for all bullion turned into the mint $300,000 to $500,000 a year will be saved. It has been found that foreign markets to save expense to themselves use U. S. gold to settle commercial balances.

Cables to Sir James.

Toronto, Sept. 8.—Hon. Adam Beck, who was in the city to go further into the tests made by J. W. Sothman, chief engineer of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, cables Sir James Whitney, who is at the present time in London, that under a most severe test power was being transmitted on the Berlin-Niagara Falls line with unqualified success.

An American Scheme.

Washington, Sept. 8.—A member of a well-known London firm says that the order compelling foreign manufacturers to deposit samples of goods in advance of shipments was part of an American textile manufacturing ring's attempt to pirate British designs and coloring.

A Public Funeral for Minister.

Fort William, Sept. 8.—A public funeral was held here yesterday morning in Wesley Methodist Church over the remains of Rev. W. R. Millyard, president of the London Conference, who died here Tuesday while on his way home from the general conference.

Farewell Address Was Delivered By Mr. J. W. Johnson

AT THE CLOSING SESSION OF THE INTERNATIONAL TAX ASSOCIATION CONVENTION — A MASTERLY EFFORT BY THE REPRESENTATIVE FOR THE ON.

At the closing session of the International Tax Association Convention, held in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, last week, Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., was requested to deliver a farewell address on behalf of the delegates from Canada. He spoke as follows:

"On behalf of the delegates in attendance at the Convention from the Provinces of Canada, I desire to express our thanks for the courtesy and consideration shown us by the officers and members of the Association and our high appreciation of the hospitality and attention extended to us by the citizens of Milwaukee. I was quite familiar with the Milwaukee of forty years ago, being then engaged in the transportation business. Many a cargo of wheat and flour I loaded at the elevators of those days. Milwaukee has made splendid commercial and industrial progress, and along with it you have created the finest system of parks and recreation grounds that I have ever seen. I note the existing conditions with pleasure and I heartily congratulate those who have the good fortune to be participants in the city's prosperity. Some sixty years ago there was born in Milwaukee a lad of Irish parents, who was destined to become a great Canadian. He is the President of the Canadian Pacific Railway. His Canadian name is longer than the one he received at birth. He is now Sir Thomas G. Shaughnessy, and is not only one of Canada's greatest men, but one of the potent forces by which the British Empire holds its position in the world. I have also noted with pleasure the great advance the State of Wisconsin has made in agriculture. During an afternoon spent in the vicinity of Watertown, with a relative residing there, I was struck with the close resemblance this portion of the State bears to the section of the great and prosperous Province of Ontario from which I come. Each is a rich dairy section, beautiful, attractive and prosperous. A former Governor of Wiscon, Governor Hoard, an expert in the dairy industry, has many a time taken part in the Dairymen's Conventions of Eastern Ontario, where I have met him. He is held in high esteem among our people.

"I have formed a high estimate of the value of the discussions that take place at your conventions, and of the conclusions reached by this Association. We have heard at this meeting from Governors and Lieutenant-Governors of States, members of Governments from Canada, from eminent professors of political economy at your greatest universities and from men extensively and practically engaged in the work pertaining to assessment and taxation. I have been interested and instructed, but it was not often that I found common ground with you in the discussions, as the principles of Government and the methods of administration in the States differ so widely from those that obtain in the Provinces of Canada. Economic facts, from which conclusions may be deducted, have frequently been stated at our meetings. I draw your attention now to a very important one, one which affords to both countries common ground for thought and discussion because it is common experience on both sides of the line. I have been looking up some records of the period when I was engaged in the transportation business between Chicago and Milwaukee and Montreal. I find that at that time wheat was quoted in both western cities at $1.50 a bushel, and for the last cargo the steamer on which I was purser took from here in the fall of 1870 we got 15c. a bushel for carrying wheat and 55c. a barrel for carrying flour from Milwaukee to Montreal. To-day wheat is quoted in Chicago and Milwaukee at $1.00 a bushel, and the cost of transporting it to Montreal is probably not over 5c. a bushel. The discussion of railway assessment and taxation before the convention has given me pause and thought. I witnessed what seemed to me was the manifestation of a desire on the part of some of the States to treat the railways unfairly, to regard them as victims to be bled, and the process of bleeding a spectacle to be relished and repeated. I believe that railways should pay a just share of taxation. I have given my vote in the Legislature to insure it at the same time I remember that railways are created by the investment by individuals of their money, and, in common justice, these investors are entitled to a reasonable profit upon their enterprise. The return they receive averages less than 5 1-2 per cent. per annum in the States and Canada. If wheat is only a dollar a bushel to-day and, in consequence, the father of a family can buy a wholesome loaf of bread weighing three pounds for ten cents, or even less, he may gratefully thank the investors in railways, who took the commercial risk in establishing them, for this happy state of affairs. What has made the opening up and development of the State of Wisconsin, and all the other States, as well as the Provinces of Canada, possible?—primarily the railways; how was it possible to assemble these delegates in this city from all parts of the continent, over which they travelled in comfort and luxury?—the railways. These points and those that they suggest are worthy of consideration by governments and municipalities when dealing with railway assessment and taxation. Don't penalize the instruments by which, to a large extent, the settlement of this continent has been effected, and upon which its further development and progress so largely depend.

"The relations that exist between the United States and Canada are of the most friendly nature. We are originally of the same family. You were the first born, the elder brother, we the second. You arrived at maturity earlier than we; you set up in business for yourselves and have prospered marvellously, at which we, along with the mother country, rejoice greatly. We have but recently come of age, and have elected to continue with the old and well established firm of John Bull & Sons, a full partner in his business, with the unrestricted and untrammelled control of one of its largest and most important branches. We, too, are prospering in the highest degree. The day for treating Canada as a poor relation anywhere is past. We thought at one time, that United States markets were necessary to our existence. You practically excluded our produce and our products by legislation; that action was the potent influence to which primarily Canada owes her splendid position in the world to-day. We sought new markets abroad, found them, and are keeping them; and we established a customs tariff which primarily provides for the cost of government, legislation, administration and national development, and, incidentally, but effectually, creates and protects native industries of every class: the home market, with increased and increasing population, for the farmer, the factories for the Canadian workman, with that diversity of employment in our own land without which no country can be great, and with such competition as keeps prices reasonable. There are lines in which reciprocity might be established between you and us, to the advantage of each, but Canada will never be found again knocking at your doors. She needs and asks for no favors but good will and neighborly feeling, with perfect equality. We may consent, at your request, to have reciprocity in some natural products; already your distinguished President, Mr. Taft, and our equally distinguished Premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, have discussed the subject, but I feel safe in predicting that no matter which political party controls the affairs of Canada, the industries of the Dominion will remain protected, at least so long as the United States maintains a prohibitive tariff against our goods. Canada is worthy of your esteem and friendship, as the United States is worthy of, and receives, ours. Intercourse between the two nations is vast and constantly increasing, and is accompanied by mutual esteem and confidence. May this condition ever remain."

Loud applause followed the conclusion of Mr. Johnson's speech.

A lady whose home is in Cleveland, Ohio, and who is at present visiting relatives in the city, this morning whilst temporarily insane made a desperate attempt to end her existence. Had it not been for the prompt arrival of a physician, he attempt at self-destruction would no doubt have proven successful. The lady in question became possessed of a small knife used about the house, and with it she made two ugly wounds in her throat, one of which was two inches in length, and she also slashed her left wrist. When discovered the woman was bleeding profusely from the wounds made. Medical aid was secured as speedily as possible, and the unfortunate woman was attended to. One of the wounds in the neck required six stitches to be taken in it. Her condition at present is such that she is by on means out of danger.

Bright Young Life Is Cut Short.

After an illness of only five days, Dorothy Elizabeth Rose Parker, the eldest daughter of the late Mrs. A. G. Parker, and granddaughter of Mrs. C. J. Bowell, passed peacefully away at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Bowell, at 4 a.m. this morning. Little Dorothy, who was 5 years and 6 months of age, was of a most lovable disposition, and endeared herself with everyone with whom she came in contact. She leaves behind a father, residing in British Columbia, a younger sister and her grandmother to mourn the loss of this bright young life, cut off at an early age.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon from the residence of Mr. C. J. Bowell at 4.15 p.m.

Church and State in Europe.

(American Review of Reviews.)

One of the most momentous phases of the present day advance of liberalism throughout the world is the struggle of governments and peoples to free themselves from the political and economic burden of an established church. It will not be denied by modern secularists and churchmen alike in the countries where church and state are united that, in the long run, not only the state but the church itself would greatly benefit by a separation. The ideal relation between church and state is undoubtedly that which obtains in this country. Here there are no formal nor special contract relations between the two parties, and the Government gives to the property and rights of the church the same protection it gives the property and rights of other associations, with the additional privilege of partial exemption from taxation. In Europe, however, particularly in Latin Europe, quite a different condition obtains. In these countries there is a church organization, a hierarchy, which has survived from the days when the church and the state were literally one. The members of this organization are recognized as quasi-public officials. The organization itself, moreover, is in possession of land, treasure, and other material property and its officials in actual and potential control of a vast deal of human and other machinery for the production of material wealth and the attainment of temporal political power.

Nearly Lost Her.

"You must understand, dear," said the beautiful young woman who was about to become the bride of an old man, "that I am marrying you only for your money."

"Yes, I know, sweetheart, "but I come of a long-lived family and I am sure that I can teach you to love me in time."

In that moment he almost lost her. —Chicago Record-Herald.

Should Pay for Quality of Milk.

The Eastern Dairymen's Association met Tuesday at the Walker House, Toronto, and heard the report of the instructors and public persecutors. G. G. Publow, chief dairy inspector and sanitary inspector for Eastern Ontario, suggested that the milk be paid for according to quality and not according to weight, the latter method being considered unfair to dairy men.

The question is to be discussed at dairy meetings throughout the province and is to be dealt with in detail at the convention in Jaunary.

A Just Sentence.

Considerable excitement was created recently in St. Paul, Minn., over the sentence handed out to the President of a bank there. It appears that he was driving his automobile at a high speed, when it collided with a buggy, throwing the occupants out and badly damaging the buggy. He showed a fine contempt for them by driving on as though nothing had happened. However the officers of the law got busy and he was landed in jail. Thinking it was only a trifle he pleaded guilty, expecting to pay a nominal fine and be released.

Things did not turn out as he wished, however. He was sentenced to thirty days in the workhouse. He and his friends made strenous effortes for his release, but the judge remained firm and the State Supreme Court sustained him. He will have to serve his sentence, and will incidently get some experience at making brooms.

The sentence is just, and it is a pity that such puishments are the exception and not the rule. A fine is a small matter to a rich man but some experience in a prison is a far different matter. The judge deserves credit for the stand he took.

Mr. Walter Tomlinson, of Winnipeg, who has been spending a few days with his arents on Ann street, has returned home, accompanied by his sister Miss Della.

Miss Gertrude Davies, of Toronto, who has spent the past two months visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Davis, Victoria Ave., returned home to-day.

An Interesting Event.

COMMENTS ON THE S. S. LESSON BY EVANGELINE.

(Sept. 11th—Matt. 22:1-14.)

Once more we see our Lord the centre of attraction in the court of the temple.

Coming events cast their shadows before them. Under the shadow of a parable He gives a hint of a coming event, the true meaning of which would be hidden for a time, but would become progressively clear as the time rolled by.

What was the shadow?

"A certain king made a marriage feast for his son and sent his servants to call them that were bidden, and they would not come. Again he sent forth others, saying 'All things are now ready, come,' but they made light of it and went their way—and laid hold on his servants and treated them shamefully and killed them, but the king was wroth and destroyed those murderers. Then said he 'Go into the highways and as may as ye shall find bid to the marriage feast,' and they gatheredas many as they found, and the wedding was filled with guests. And when the king came in to see his guests he saw there a man who had not on a wedding garment, and he said, 'Take him away.'"

Of all the love stories ever conceived, not one surpasses the romance of how he wooed and won his true bride—the church—which John defines as "Them which are saved." (Rev. 21: 24.)

"Romance has sung both sweet and well
But never tale like this could tell."

Follow Him as eH leaves His Father's palace in the cloudless sky, where boundless wealth was His, where white-winged servants in thousands stood ready to anticipate His slightest wish where He dwelt in the perpetual sunshine of His Father's love.

See Him as He lays aside His throne and crown and robes of state and, disguised as a slave, wanders weary, footsore and sad, in an alien land, where Satan reigned and all were slaves, where He dwelt, misunderstood, despised, unappreciated.

Why? That eH might woo and win a lowly bride.

Did ever lover whisper such love as He? Did ever lover bear what He bore for her He loved?

He told her of His home above, how "no tears" nor "night" are there, how He would go to prepare a place for her and would soon come back to claim her for His own. He promised that He would make her fair, so fair that all heaven would gaze in rapture on her beauty, so fair that God would raise her to His throne and His embrace, the royal consort of His Son.

But deep as was His love for her, he could not rise above the chains that bound her hand and foot. For thirty three long years He toiled for her, but Satan held her fast until one day on Calvary He met the foe and fought, and she was free.

What did it mean to her as the realization of her destiny dawned upon her? Simply this, that from her innermost being came the glad response to His love.

"I am Thine own, O Christ,
Henceforth entirely Thine,
And life from this glad hour
New life is mine.

I cannot tell the art
By which such bliss is given;
I know Thou hast my heart,
And I have heaven."

But to proceed with the romance of two worlds, a few days after this, He wandered with her out to Bethany and bidding her farewell, a cloud received Him out of her sight. To comfort her the angels whispered, "He shall come again ni like manner as you have seen Him go."

True to her affiance, the early church lived in constant expectation of the fulfilment of the promise "I will come again and receive you unto myself." "A little while and you shall not see Me, and again a little while and you shall see Me." Such a little while it would have been had not the church wearied with watching, "slumbered and slept," when she should have been hastening preparations for that glad day when she would enter into the consummation of her deepest longings.

It was to this event that the parable pointed, and of which John wrote when he said "Let us be glad for the marriage of the Lamb is come and his wife hath made herself ready."

The "certain king" was God the Father, who sent out invitations through His servants, the prophets, to the Jews, but the R.S.V.P. brought no response. eJsus wept over them as He said, "How often would I have gathered you—but you would not."

"Again He sent forth other servants," the apostles, with the invitations, "Come to the marriage," but "they made light of it" and slew them. In less than forty years the murderers were destroyed and their city burned.

Then the King laid upon her the responsibility of getting out the invitations when He said "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature."

What has been the delay? Why did His "little while" mean such a long while? Why is it that since "the kingdom of heaven or the king's reign from heaven began it would seem that

Truth were forever on the scaffold,
Wrong forever on the throne?

The whole trouble has been over the invitations. She was asleep when she should have been getting ou the invitations. To-day the cry is going forth "Behold the bridegroom!" Sooner than we think He may be here to place

Wrong forever on the scaffold,
Truth forever on the throne.

From the vantage ground of the world's great missionary congress in Edinburgh, one can see the invitation going to "every nation and tongue and people."

At last the Bride is making herself ready. At last she is hastening the coming of the Bridegroom in hustling out the invitations.

It is a grand thing to be ready, to have the invitations out, to have one's wedding dress finished.

What are you going to wear? Will it be the pure white suit of Christ's rightness or will it be the every day overall of your own good works?

Great will be your consternation if, after accepting the invitations, He finds you cheeky enough to appear at His table without the wedding garment.

I can almost hear the wedding chimes:

Come! Come! Come!
Come! Come! Come!

In the glory land fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters and little children are beckoning you to come.

Why not accept the invitation now. Go in for a good wash Clean up. If salvation means anything, it means cleanliness. Away with whiskey and tobacco and unchaste words, thoughts and deeds. Put on the garment of salvation, which He has provided for you, and wear it all day on Sunday and six days a week, so that when the door opens into the banqueting house you will be "Ready, boys, aye ready."

The Old English Prize Ring

In the latter days of the English prize ring innumerable expedients had to be devised to bring off a fight. A favorite plan was to pitch the ring on the border of two counties, so that the question of magisterial jurisdiction might be rendered difficult. Another plan was to charter a steamboat and proceed down the Thames to some lonely police forsaken spot in the marshes of Essex. For the memorable contest between Sayers and Heenan in 1860 a special train was run from London bridge to a secret destination. But the passengers, who comprised members of Parliament, peers, pickpockets, pugilists, clergy and, it is said, a few bishops, cheerfully took tickets simply marked "excursion." They presently found themselves near Farnborough, in Surrey, where the fight occurred.—London Chronicle.

The Average Income of a Doctor.

When we bear in mind that the average income of doctors in the British Islands is well below £120 a year and take into consideration the additional fact that this income has to be earned in a manner which, through its worry and stress, is not condusive to longevity, it is at once apparent that the need for helping those who have, through no fault of their own fallen behind in the struggle, is very great. Can it be wondered that many medical men find it impossible adequately to provide for their families or for their own future when they are broken and incapacitated, during a career, which is so strenuous, and judging by that average income, so undemunerative?—The Hospital.

The Power of Fear.

Authentic instances of the hair turning white in a few hours or a night through fear or sudden shock could be multiplied indefinitely. It is stated that when Ludwig of Bavaria learned of the innocence of his wife, whom he had caused to be put to death on suspicion for her unfaithfulness, his hair became as white as snow within a couple of days.

When Charles I. attempted to escape from Carlsbrooke Castle his hair turned white in a single night. The hair of Marie Antoinette was suddenly changed by her great distress. On a portrait of herself which she gave to a friend she wrote, "Whitened by affliction."

This power of fear to modify the currents of the blood and all the secretions, to whiten the hair to paralyze the nervous system and even to produce death, is well known.

Whatever makes people happy whatever excites enjoyable emotions relaxes the capillaries and gives freedom to the circulation; whatever depresses and distresses us distrusts us, worries us in fact all phases of fear contract these blood vessels and impede the full circulation of the blood. This is illustrated in the pale face caused by fear or terror.—Success.

Decline of the Moustache.

London Express.

Permission to wear a moustache was eagerly sought after in the middle of the last century. But now the virile decoration is discarded. Why? In those old days the Bank of England would not allow its employees to wear it, and issued an order which might have come more appropriately from a Bank of Ireland. It was to the effect that the moustache was not to be worn in business hours! A large drapery firm in London objected not only to the moustache, but to hair parted down the middle. There is more tolerance now, and his moustache is often a young shopman's most precious possession. Men look younger when clean-shaven. They are also nove readable without the protection given by the moustache to the upper lip. If hearts can be worn on sleeves thoughts can be read on upper lips. But is it always wise to leave the legend unhidden? Men seldom like to be divined, as La Rochefoucauld remarked once and for all time.

Why Chinese Cherish Pigtails.

London Chronicle.

The statement that the Chinaman has always cherished his pigtail needs modification, as a correspondent reminds us. It is not 300 years old yet as a Chinese institution. Indeed, the most remarkable thing about this honored coiffure is that it was originally a humiliation to the Chinese. The earlier Chinamen wore his hair according to taste and fancy, but usually bunched up into a top knot. When the conquering Manchus overthrew the Ming dynasty early in the seventeenth century they ordered the Chinese to adopt their own fashion of shaven heads and pigtails. This is first mentioned at the capture of Liaoyang, about 1618. The Chinese resented the disgrace, and stone tablets in Japan record that many fled the country to escape it. But the astute Manchu Emperor made the pigtail popular by decreeing that only honorable men might wear it and that criminals should lose it.

The ...Veiled Lady...

"What's all this, now?" Maxwell anxiously demanded.

"I have been working with Inspector Walling, of the New York Police for a day! Maxwell!" cried Seaton, bounding to his feet. "My sister was in New York two days ago!"

"And did you see her yourself?" Maxwell excitedly said.

"No! but Hannibal did! I have hitherto kept him from suspecting anything wrong! Now, it's too late!" Seaton spoke in dejection. "He knows or must know she shuns me! But, thank God! she is alive!" Seaton resumed. "I think that cursed darkey knows more than he told me when we met! He saw her by chance, and he followed her. She visited several jewelry and pawn shops! He feared to leave in order to find me, but he noted the localities. When my sister left the place, it was nearly dark; Hannibal was elbowed about in the crowd, and only succeeded in seeing her signal a coupe and disappear like the wind! The carriage drove towards the Jersey ferry.

"Now comes the mystery! Hannibal stoutly maintains that she is well and beautiful, but her hair is black! It was golden naturally! Is this a disguise? He was afraid to speak to her! I left him in New York! It did not take Inspector Walling three hours next day to hand me a half dozen of the most valuable of my mother's jewels! The dealers were fairly respectable people and had paid her decent prices! Walling told me they bought with confidence on her air of absolute distinction! She said simply she had no further use for the jewels! Now, Maxwell! I am in a dilemma. I want Walling to find where she went! He thinks she sailed for Europe, because one of the men paid her in French gold for a necklace; at her request!"

"Well! Can't Walling stop her?" answered Maxwell.

"'My boy!' said the veteran Inspector, 'Has this lady committed a crime?'" Seaton earnestly explained this to the Engineer! "I said, 'Certainly not! She had a right to the jewels!' 'She is not a fugitive wife; or engaged in any fraud?' 'None that I know of,' I was forced to answer. Then said he coldly, 'This lady is of age, and you are not her guardian by law.' I saw him glance at the clock. Scores of people were waiting for him. 'Then, my young friend, as you don't wish to raise a hue and cry, and have no right to arrest her, I would advise you simply to discreetly follow her. You can't telegraph and detain her! The steamship people and foreign police will not act without a prima facie case! If it is only a family disagreement, use patience and kindness! You have not told me all! Unfortunately,' he said (with a sigh), 'I hear stories daily of such estrangement and aversion. I will send out a 'round robin,' and have all the goods which she sold, held for you to repurchase. Think it over and come and see me again!—I think she has some reason for seclusion, and has gone over the water! Probably to the Continent; Americans seem to prefer it. She is smart enough to keep out of your way. Don't go yourself! Send some good man! I can name you several! You would not probably wish to use a disguise or a false name! She can do as she wishes; it is a mere metter of choice! She is unaccused and free!'"

Maxwell and Seaton struggled with the problem until Gordon was announced. "Not a word more now!" hastily said Seaton, finger on lip.

A social breakfast restored the entente cordiale of the three friends "By taking the midnight train, I'm all right for the morning," said Seaton. "Now, Gordon! I'll take Maxwell away at nine o'clock to-night, and then you can have him till I return in two days. We can finish these business affairs at the station."

Jack Gordon was appeased. "I'll telegraph Ormsby, who is at Fort Whipple, to come over and wait till you return. We'll have a bowl of 'Cavalry Punch' ready for you."

Ringing for the man, Jack indited his dispatch. In giving the servant the change, Gordon dropped his purse. It burst open! Grasping the scattered articles, the Kentuckian dispatched his man. "Here's something else, Jack!" cried Seaton, bending over. "You are as careless as ever! I suppose some 'fayre ladye's ring!'"

"It is a queer thing," said Gordon rising; "an old timer!" as he stretched out his hand for the bauble.

"Where in God's name did you get this?" Seaton sharply said.

"Do you know it?" Gordon coldly answered.

Seaton's manner was even peremptory!—"I want to know where you got it, and how?" said Seaton with an agitation not to be dissembled.

"This is a nice day," Maxwell grumbled. "Clouds everywhere."

"You had better ask me, in some more courteous way, Seaton!" said the haughty Kentuckian, rising. "Give me the ring, Sir!"

"Not till I know how you happen to have it!" insisted the excited Virginian. They glared in sudden rage at each other!

"Seaton! this is wrong!" said Maxwell, gravely taking the ring and handing it to Gordon. "I am sure Lieutenant Gordon will explain through me!"

Recovering himself: "When you are a little cooler, Beverly!" said Gordon! "I'm going out for a walk! I will be back in half an hour!" Despite Maxwell's entreaties, Gordon walked away.

When the door closed, Seaton sprang to Maxwell's side. "The very devil himself is baffling me! That ring was worn by my mother; and my father gave it to Beatrice as the very last reminder of her! It has even now her name, 'Beatrice,' in its hoop; though scratched and worn! I must know the truth! Gordon must speak!"

"Then don't ask it like a wild man! Beverly! Remember that Gordon knows nothing of your sister! You have resolutely concealed this! Now trust me! If you wish the ring peacefully returned, let me make the arrangements! Gordon will stand very little dictation! You would not, yourself! He cannot know its importance to you! Don't let him dream of it!"

"You are right, Maxwell; but my soul's on fire! I would not insult Gordon for the world! I'll go out and he will tell you all! You are the steady one! I'm all at sea!" Seaton was beside himself.

John Gordon strode the streets sullenly while waiting for his wrath to cool. "This departure hangs like a pall over me! I must wait for three weeks for news from Paris! I cannot reach my lovely darling, now on the sea! What is there embroiling us all! Some devil influence; I feel it clutching at my peace of mind! And I am tied to a dog-like silence! By God!" Gorden mentally swore, "I'll ride so far into the next Indian battle that they can't find me, if I have been deceived! Here's Selfridge and dear old Maxwell; either of them could comfort and advise me. I have sworn to wait! What am I waiting for? Irene has acted with astounding heartlessness! What does she mean?" Gordon finally mounted the stairway at Welcker's.

"See here, Jack!" said sturdy Maxwell, "sit down with me! Seaton is worried and anxious! He feels he was harsh and impatient! Don't store it up against him! He is in great trouble! We all have our sorrows; our dark moments!"

Jack's good humor returned. "Vinton," he said slowly, "I am going to put you under our solemn class pledge of honor! All is for the best, after all! But you must use discretion as well as silence! A look, a word, may poison Seaton's mind! You must disarm his inquiry about that cursed ring!"

"Why so?" said Maxwell anxiously. Clouds were gathering closer around the three sworn friends.

"Because the woman who killed Egbert Neill dropped this from her finger! It was found in the room by a detective whom I privately employed to trace the murder up! I cannot give you his name! I am sworn not to! There were two old letters found on Neill's body; and one recent one, of a menacing nature had also been sent to him!" Gordon told of Mr. Jenks, of California, all his theories and discovery. "Now, Maxwell!" soberly said Gordon, "I don't wish to be questioned by Seaton, for evident reasons." He grimly continued: "This thing had better lie in mystery! I can not, will not tell Seaton all I know! There is no one [illegible] the strongest theories are sometimes false! Orton, my detective, has never met Jenks! These two stories will not be related to Seaton as a whole, for these two men don't know each other! Orton knows nothing of Jenks' independent work; and I concealed the ring business from Jenks! You had better give this ill-fated jewel to Seaton! Tell him only that his peremptory manner annoyed and startled me! Tell him that I obtained it by accident, in St. Louis, where it had been found, and that I know nothing of its past history! Here's the ring! Give it to him, and we will drop that subject forever! I couldn't tell him anything beyond the mere conjectures of a strange detective, and the theories of an ardent friend and partner!"

"This is wise!" Maxwell murmured. "If it is some old keepsake, its recovery ends the right of Seaton to follow you up! You have told the truth, but not all! You are doing right! He must not catechise you!"

"I will take a drive out and meet Ormsby,—I will come in here naturally for dinner!" the cavalryman said.

No doubt about an enamelled bed's hygienic merit; none about its beauty. Nor any about its being worth its price—if it bears the "Ideal" Guarantee on the footrail.

That Guarantee assures you of more than mere surface excellence. It warrants real satisfaction to the buyer. Its snowy enamel will stay white; its parts will not work loose.

Know why "Ideal" Metal Beds are better. Ask for "The Philosophy of Sleep"—worth reading, though it is free. Write for Booklet No. 109

SHOULD CLERGY HEAL?

Faith Treatment Discussed by the Anglicans.

Halifax, Sept. 8.—His Lordship of Toronto, Bishop Sweeny, had a large contract proposed to him yesterday afternoon during the board of trade excursion around the harbor given to those attending the Church of England Congress on board the "Lady Laurier." Bishop Worrell submitted a resolution, which was unanimously adopted, that a committee be appointed by the primate to prepare for another congress to be held five years hence. It was generally agreed, and added as a rider that the next congress be held in Toronto, and all who spoke desired that St. Alban's Cathedral be ready for dedication then, as Halifax Cathedral has been on this occasion. A wealthy diocese like Toronto should have no difficulty, it was believed, when such a comparatively small place as Halifax, with its fifty-five thousand, had succeeded.

The closing mass meeting in the cathedral last night was addressed by Rev. Paterson Smyth, on the call to Bible study, Bishop Brent on the call to prayer and Bishop Ingram on the call to service.

The ministry of healing occupied section A during the morning. There were decided differences of opinion, in the absence of experience. A few who had had results, which the medical men questioned, were positive as to the merits of the Emanuel movement. Bishop Perrin, who presided, declared himself in favor of the introduction of an office for the unction of the sick. Rev. Lyman Pierson, Northampton, Mass., was the most enthusiastic supporter. He thought healing might be restored to the ministry. He did not carry the meeting very far with him, and the paper contributed by Sir Dyce Duckworth, St. Bartholomew's Hospital, read by Rev. F. S. Smith, depreciated the whole business, but evidently, as the chairman said, under a misapprehension.

Queen's Is Expanding.

Kingston, Sept. 8.—Queen's University will open September 28, and it is expected that 1,700 students will register. An attendance of 2,000 is looked for in three years. The staffs of the various faculties have been increased, but several assistants are necessary in arts. Labor strikes prevent the opening of the chemistry building this season.

Suffering from a fractured skull, James Campsail, a miner, is in the General Hospital, and will likely die. While at work in the Feldspar Mine at Verona, a piece of rock fell on his head.

Called to Windsor.

Windsor, Sept. 8.—Rev. Arthur Carlisle, rector of Holy Trinity Church, Lucan, has accepted a call to All Saints' Church in Windsor, to succeed Rev. F. A. H. Chadwick, who went to Vancouver a short time ago.

Mackenzie King at The Hague.

The Hague, Sept. 8.—The International Congress of Social and Industrial Insurance is in session here. W. L. Mackenzie King, Canadian Minister of Labor, is the representative from Canada.

Good, Better or Best?

A VITAL DIFFERENCE IN BREADS

QUALITY you know is comparative. Just as much so in bread, as in woolens or linens.

If you make bread at all you naturally want it to be good—as good as, or better than your neighbor's.

But is your bread as good as it ought to be? Does it furnish its full quantum of health and strength? Is it nutritious as well as delicious?

Ordinary flour makes fairly good looking bread. But if you care for food value, for nutrition, for digestibility, for bone and muscle and blood building quality, you will want a flour rich in the highest quality of gluten. You will want the flour that makes bread not only good-to-look-at, but also makes it strength-producing, health-producing.

But where can you get such flour and how can you tell it from the kind that isn't nourishing?

The safe way is to get OGILVIE'S "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD". Then you can't make a mistake.

"ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" is the finest flour in the world and makes the best bread in the world.

And it is just as good for Pastry as it is for Bread. It is the one flour which has proved an unqualified success for every household purpose. And its absolute uniformity guarantees you against failure—

ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR isn't just ordinary wheat sent to an ordinary mill and ground by the ordinary process. It is Manitoba Red Fyfe Wheat which is especially rich in high quality gluten, scientifically milled and subjected to scientific chemical tests as well as baking tests before it comes to you in sack or barrel, etc.

No wonder "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" makes the finest and most nourishing bread. No wonder it makes the most delicious and healthful pies, cakes, biscuits, muffins, rolls.

Bread made from ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR is vastly more nourishing than bread made from ordinary flour. Also it is lighter, flakier, more delicious as well as more nutritious.

Order "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" at once. Don't delay. The sooner you commence using this finest of all flours the better for your family.

OGILVIE'S ROYAL HOUSEHOLD

Wedding Bells.

THRASHER—RADFORD.

On Thursday, Sept. 1st, the home of Mr. J. W. Radford, 3rd concession of Sidney, was the scene of a very happy event, being the marriage of their only daughter, Mabel, to Mr. Roy Thrasher, of Sidney. At high noon two little flower girls marched into the drawing room, carrying baskets of flowers, also white ribbons, which formed an aisle. As the wedding march was played by Miss Marjorie White, the bride came in leaning on the arm of her father, passing through the aisle of ribbons. The young couple stood under a white floral bell and green arch. The room was very tastefully decorated in green and white, the sitting room in pink and white, while the dining room was very pretty in yellow and white. The bride looked charming, dressed in cream voile over cream taffeta silk. She also wore the traditional bridal veil and orange blossoms. The groom is very popular. The bride's going away gown was ashes of roses suit, silk waist and black picture hat. Her bridesmaid was Miss Lena Vanderwater, who looked very pretty in cream silk mull. The groom was supported by the bride's brother, Mr. Fred Radford. Rev. Mr. Dafoe, of Bayside, performed the ceremony. The bride was the recipient of some very handsome and useful presents. About 100 guests sat down to a dainty repast, Mr. Dickens, of Belleville, being the caterer. The bride's mother was gowned very prettily in shot silk. The groom's mother was dressed in a handsome black silk. Miss Nellie Spafford sang "Because" during the ceremony. On entering the carriage the bride's pathway was strewn with flowers. They left on the 5.30 train for Toronto, Detroit and other points of interest. The young couple's many friends wish them every success in life.

MILLIGAN—PORTT.

A very pleasant wedding was solemnized at Trinity Church, Shannonville, on Wednesday Sept. 7th, at 9 a. m., by Rev. E. E. Lake, when Miss Clara Winnifield Portt became the bride of Dayton N. Milligan. The bride was daintily attired in white net, trimmed with Irish lace and medallions over white silk and carried a bouquet of white Asters. The couple were unattended. After the ceremony the happy couple drove to Belleville, where the bride doffed her wedding attire and donned her travelling suit of blue panama with white silk waist and white picture hat. They took the International Limited for Toronto. After spending a few days there they will return to their future home in Melrose. Their many friends join in wishing them a happy and prosperous married life.

For the Children

W. E. D. Stokes, Jr., the Boy Inventor.

William E. D. Stokes of New York, though only twelve years old, has made a name among wireless experts by an invention. He designed what is called a "receiving box." This contrivance not only catches dispatches sent in the ordinary code used by the Marconi and De Forest systems, but reproduces the words and sounds of wireless telephony in volume deep enough to be heard at a distance of several feet from the apparatus. Working alone on the roof of his father's hotel in New York, the youngster made his important discovery. Recently he attracted attention at Washington, where he appeared before a senate committee in opposition to a measure to prevent any but authorized companies from taking wireless messages from the air.

Chance to Save Money

We are assured by a contemporary that it costs less to send a dozen pairs of shoes from this country to Peru by mail than it does by freight.

Those persons who make a practice of dropping shoes into the mail boxes will be glad to read this item.

Nothing pleases the paying public better than the opportunity of making a legitimate saving in the cost of transportation.

If we can knock the freight barons by sending twelve pairs of stamped shoes to Peru let's do it by all means. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

For the Children

Training Scouts In Ambulance Work.

The boy scout movement, which has become so popular in this country, originated in England about three years ago. General Baden-Powell, who won fame in the Boer war, organized the first corps. Any number of boys between the ages of ten and eighteen may agree to enroll themselves as boy scouts, paying 2 cents a week to the common fund. But before being allowed to join the organization he must know the scouts' laws and signs and salute, and he must know how to tie the four common knots. The scouts' motto is "Be prepared," and this means that the recruit must always be ready to do his duty, that he must obey orders and that he must be prepared for any emergency liable to arise. Ernest Thompson Seton has contributed many features to the plan in England and is helping spread the movement here. In August he will make up a party of scouts from the various associations in this country and will teach woodcraft, Indian games, building tepees, natural history and kindred subjects to the youngsters. The picture shows a patrol of English boy scouts being trained to ambulance work.

The Spitting Snake.

Lieutenant Sefton of the British army says that the African cobra is known as the "spitting snake" on account of its power to throw its venom quite a distance into the eyes of its enemy. It is a lazy reptile, save when stirred to anger, when it cannot be equaled for swiftness and accuracy in spitting at or biting its victim. The spitting is accomplished by expelling the breath sharply through the mouth, so that the soapy venom flies straight as a pea thrown from a pipe into the victim's eyes. This cobra attains the length of six feet and is large and powerful. It is doubly formidable from the fact that it can swim in the rivers very swiftly and has no fear. In swimming the cobra moves along very rapidly and with its nose and beady eyes just above the water's surface. Lieutenant Sefton declares that the bite of this snake will kill an ox and never fails to be fatal to a white man. There is a vine which, when the young leaves are crushed and applied as a poultice, will extract the poison, but it seems to act only on the native blood, since, of two men bitten and treated in exactly the same way, one, a native, recovered and the white man died.

Raining Trees.

After a frosty night, when the sun comes out, the frost melts and falls from the trees in drops. Even in summer, when there has been a heavy dew on a cool night, this falls later like a fine spray of rain. But there are countries that have little rain and much warmth, yet these countries have trees which seem to gather moisture when the sun has set to distribute it upon the thirsty land during the next day. Some kind of trees attract more moisture than others, and these have been called rain trees. The dry plains of parts of South America are said to be refreshed by the drippings from an acacia tree. Occasionally moisture falls which is caused by insects. Travelers have seen a species of cicada, or grasshopper, swarming upon young shoots in hot countries and squirting out juice as they feed.

The Jamaica Firefly.

The Jamaica firefly, a species of insect over an inch in length, emits a very brilliant light, which comes from the sides of the head and beneath the thorax. The light is a fluctuating one, not the steady glow of the glowworm. A very remarkable fact is that this fluctuating or pulsating light may continue after the death of the insect. If it is supposed that the light of the living insect is due to oxygen supplied under its control to the luminous matter, a conclusion may be reached to the effect that after death the oxygen of the air might obtain access to it and produce a like effect. It is difficult, however, to account for the pulsations in the light of the dead firefly.

That he pleased both the girls and boys,
And they stopped to hear him play
"Over the Hills and Far Away."

TALES OF THE FLEET.

Remarkable Achievements That Illuminate the Annals of the Navy.

In the year 1806 occurred the most amazing instance of naval strategy on a small scale ever placed on record. Britain was then at war with a very large part of the world, and privateering was an exceedingly profitable as well as an honorable profession.

The privateer Tamar, in the course of her meanderings, captured the little Bon Voyage, and placed a prize crew of 14 aboard her, under charge of the first lieutenant, with instructions to make for the first friendly port. Next day the faster sailing Tamar was out of sight, and, to the consternation of the little prize crew, there appeared on the scene the Le Brave, a renowned French privateer, which mounted 16 guns, and had a crew of 130 tried men.

All seemed lost, and, indeed, the Bon Voyage's little complement of men were already packing up their traps preparatory to a trip across to the other ship, when the brave lieutenant hit upon a stratagem of so extraordinary a nature as veritably to read like some extract from a sensational boy's tale.

He knew that the Le Brave's invariable mode of fighting whenever possible was by boarding, so he brought all his four guns to the side on which she was approaching, loaded them, and caused the rest of the ship's ammunition to be thrown overboard. He next caused the only boat aboard to be plentifully supplied with firearms and moored under the stern out of sight. As the Le Brave drew near they let her have a broadside, a compliment which was soon returned, and a few minutes later the aggressor's bow was fouling the Bon Voyage's rigging, and her sailors streaming aboard.

The lieutenant at this very moment retreated with his men to the stern cabin, and the French, in their ignorance of the stratagem, followed, and actually placed sentries at the door, so that they could not sally forth. The prize crew, however, had meantime gained their boat by an open port, precisely as arranged, and were rowing stealthily round the ship to the Le Brave, which had now parted company with her quarry, and boarding her, they made short work of the four sailors left in charge.

The astonishment of the Frenchmen when they found the British flag floating proudly over their ship can better be imagined than described. They still had the men, four guns, and a good ship, but, to their chagrin, not a single barrel of powder. The gallant lieutenant assured them of the pleasure the exchange had afforded him, and at the muzzles of their own cannon he obliged them to promise to navigate the Bon Voyage to the port he himself was making for. A day or two later, however, the Tamar came in sight, and relieved the Frenchmen of their disagreeable task.

These were the days of blood-thrilling feats on the water. Just a year or two previous to the episode just recorded Commander Munro, of the small 16-gun brig Transfer, won for himself imperishable renown by a most audacious performance. He inadvertently ran into a powerful Spanish squadron one day, but hoisted the American flag, and was allowed to pass warship after warship unchallenged, any one of which could have sunk his ship with ease. Bringing up the rear of the Spanish fleet was a merchantman prize, deeply laden with valuable cargo, and the temptation to seize her was irresistible, and seize her the British commander did, practically within gunshot of the protecting warships. The very audacity of the thing wrought its complete success, for the Spaniards felt sure that a British fleet was close at hand, and, not wishing just then to be drawn into a battle, they allowed the Transfer and her capture to escape.

A meritorious feat of arms against the same enemy was the recovery of the British ship Hermione. The crew of the Hermione had mutinied, killed their officers, and then surrendered the ship to the Spaniards, who, to their discredit, sheltered the men and fitted the vessel out as a man-of-war. The Hermione when thus completed lay moored almost under the guns of two powerful batteries, and the fact coming to the ears of the captain of the H. M. Surprise, who was cruising in the neighborhood at the time, he determined to cut her out, undeterred by the obviously grave danger of such a mission. The Hermione had a large crew on board, and, though taken by surprise, they fought desperately, but the batteries upon which the Spanish relied so much were unable to afford any assistance; not knowing which side was in possession of the ship; and before they could satisfy themselves as to this the Hermione was sailing proudly away to rejoin the service she had been foully torn from.

Bishop In a Donkey Cart.

One of the best stories told regarding Bishop Barry, whose death was announced recently, relates how on one occasion he had a good distance to travel in order to keep an appointment at Brentford, but for some time he failed to find a vehicle to convey him to the place of meeting. Then a costermonger appeared in sight, and, learning of the bishop's difficulty, modestly offered him a lift. With equal modesty the prelate accepted, and the sight of a past Primate of Australia riding in the humblest vehicle known filled many persons with astonishment as the barrow and its strangely-contrasted occupants neared its destination. One of the bishop's first tasks was publicly to express his thanks to the costermonger for enabling him to fulfill his engagement.

Small Boat Overwhelmed.

A very sad drowning accident occurred the other morning at Scalloway. A small open boat returning from the haddock fishing was passing at what was thought to be a safe distance from the Brethren Reef, when she was suddenly overwhelmed by an enormous sea, and sank almost immediately. Of the four men in the boat two were drowned; the others managed to hold on to an oar and a buoy until rescued.

Deciding Tire Value.

The general utility of any make of Automobile Tires is not decided by the appearance of a sample tire after it has gone one or two thousand miles—the average cost per mile per tire is arrived at by running a car on a particular set of tires, and then making the comparison of the cost of the tire upkeep. Dunlop Tires give a low average cost per mile, for besides the quality that goes with them, the Dunlop Company is ever anxious to satisfy the users of Dunlop Automobile Tires.

The Manifestations Of Eye-Strain

Continued.

Manifestations of Eye-Strain on the Eye and Lids.

Eye-Strain means an increased demand for work on the part of the ciliary or external muscles, which determines an increased flow of blood to these parts; if this is constant congestion is liable to follow, and with it pain.

With the parts thus rendered specially receptive to infective germs there is little difficulty in understanding that inflammation should ensue.

The children with chronic blepharitis, who years ago swelled our hospital clienteles and returned month after month and year after year without apparent improvement in spite of active local treatment, having practically disappeared as chronic cases, since the routine treatment has been adopted of correcting the error of refraction which is invariably present. No doubt germs and want of cleanliness contribute in the main to the disease, but local antiseptic treatment proves a really efficient remedy only when the eye-strain is removed.

The New School Site.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer—

Sir,—May I, through your paper, express my great surprise at and disapproval of the action of the Public School Board, in endeavoring to expropriate a portion of the grounds of the grounds of St. Agnes School. It seems to me a very poor appreciation of the establishment of the School in this city, and of all it means to Belleville.

The proposed site for expropriation is a very necessary adjunct to the school, and while at present used for a garden, in the near future it may be ETAOIN SHRDLU CMFWPY may be used for other school purposes, especially if the school continues to increase in numbers as it is doing now.

The School, is an institution of which any city might be proud, and after the large amount of money spent upon it to make it as complete as possible in every particular and the thought and hard work given to it also by Mr. and Mrs. Lingham, they should be given special consideration and particularly by the gentlemen, who, for the time being, represent the educational interests of Belleville. There are many localities that would gladly welcome and do all in their power to help on such an institution.

The late Mr. Pense, of Kingston, that well-known and public-spirited man and educationalist, shortly before his death said, "What would we not give to have such a school as St. Agnes' in Kingston?"

The Public School Board do not seem to be of that opinion.

In these days when all educationalists are encouraging the holding of large spacious and beautiful grounds the action of the Board seems highly objectionable.

The girls' schools in the larger cities, have numberless advantages and attractions to offer parents looking for a suitable school for their daughters.. St. Agnes' has its beautiful grounds and surroundings, its home grown fruit and vegetables, all of which appeal most strongly to people in the larger cities from which many of our pupils come.

Do the Board of Education wish to take that drawing card away from St. Agnes', and so to speak, cripple it?

Only to-day a lady who came to make final arrangements for sending her daughter to us, said, when I told her of the proposed expropriation "Why half the beauty of the place would be gone?"

For seven years it has been a struggle to get pupils to come to Belleville, instead of going to Toronto Now, our school is firmly established and wherever it is known, has the reputation of being a first-class school.

Does it not seem a pity that the Board of Education should be the motive power in checking that progress?

If there was no other available property, the matter would present itself in a different light and be justifiable; as it is however, there are various other properties whose owner would only be too glad to sell them.

It is a well known fact that in the past history of Belleville, those in authority, at times, by their short-sighted and ill-advised poliices, supposed to be for the sake of economy, have made mistakes which have been detrimental to Belleville for all time. This is such a time and the proposed action is both short sighted and ill-advised and not best for Belleville. During my seven years' residence in Belleville I have found the people just, cultured and progressive and feel sure that the expropriation need only to be put before them in the proper light to be condemned and that steps will be taken to prevent the suggested vandalism. I might refer to the legal objections which, I am advised, are many and important, but I prefer to anticipate the common sense and esprit-de-corps of the citizens of Belleville and possibly, on more careful reflection, of the members of the School Board.

FANNY E. CARROLL,
Principal of St. Agnes School.

Will Be Sent To Insane Aysłum.

James Meagher, who is well known in the city, was yesterday taken care of by the police. Unfortunately James is unbalanced in mind and he will be sent to an institution where he will receive proper care and treatment.

Change of Date of Municipal Elections

AND OTHER MATTERS OF INTEREST WILL BE DISCUSSED AT THE MEETING OF THE ONTARIO MUNICIPAL ASSOCIATION.

A number of resolutions of an important character in their relations to municipal affairs were presented by the resolution committee at the meeting of the Ontario Municipal Association, which opened in the city hall, Toronto, on Tuesday morning. There were almost 40 delegates present, and President Geo. Geddes, mayor of St. Thomas, presided. For the most part the delegates comprise mayors, reeves and city clerks of the Ontario municipalities.

Among the resolutions submitted, and which will be discussed this morning, is one in effect that in consideration of the cost to municipalities of the construction and maintenance of roads and streets and the extent to which they are used in the operation of motor vehicles, the Ontario Government be petitioned to pay over to the said municipalities, a just portion of the amount collected annually in permits and fines imposed in connection with the operation of motor vehicles. This resolution was passed by the Ottawa City Council Aug. 8, and may be endorsed by the Association.

W. C. Mikel, of Belleville was the mover of a resolution that the association ask for legislation amending the municipal act, giving cities and towns the power with the assent of the electors, to hold nominations on the last Monday in January and the election on the first Monday in February.

INDIANS WERE INTOXICATED

Peter Claus and Joseph Johns, two Indians, were this morning before Magistrate Masson, charged with being intoxicated. Both admitted the offence.

In answer to an enquiry from the Magistrate, they stated that a man whom they did not know gave them a drink of liquor from a bottle. This took place in a stable in rear of a hotel. Claus did admit that he secured other liquor in a hotel in the city, but Johns stated that all he had to drink was a drink of lemon sour. The Magistrate fined both $10 each or in default 21 days in jail. The matter will also be reported to Mr. W. S. Herrington, K. C., of Napanee, who is appointed by the Government to look after the interests of the Indians.

Tells of Life in Holy Ghost Colony.

GIRL WHO SPENT SIX YEARS THERE TALKS OF "ELIJAH'S MAGNETIC POWERS.

YARMOUTH, N. S., Sept. 8.—Sarah Joseph, who spent six years in the "Jerusalem," city of Elijah Sandford's Holy Ghost Colony, at Sandford, Me., in a letter to the New York World draws a graphic picture of the life among that strange religious sect. The Sandford boat was recently wrecked near here, and Miss Joseph says every follower of Sandford believd that had he been on the boat, the accident would not have happened.

"He is a truly wonderful man," she writes. "He has a magnetic personality, and so kind-hearted and so ready to aid us that one cannot help believing anything he says.

"The horrors of hell are pictured to his followers daily by Sandford, and naturally enough they become frightened to leave lest the devil and his wicked influences should get them. With the exceptions of visits to Alexandria and a place called Joppa, where other colonists of the faith were located, I spent practically six years in Jerusalem.

"The life was much the same from day to day. We spent much time in prayer and giving blessings to God for what we received. In fact we believed that in prayer we could win anything in the world and that regardless of persecution from those in the outside world prayer would always remain our protector.

"When we were not at prayer we were fasting for our sins or engaged in hard work for the benefit of the colony. At Jerusalem, the people were always changing. I don't know the purpose for this, but a family would rarely remain more than six months before it would be sent to some other colony. Some were sent to Joppa. Then I was sent abroad the Kingdom. Every day we had services and Sandford told us of his divine power.

"He told us that in the future the older members of his flock or those who had been loyal to him would remain on board the ship. We were short of food many times, but he did not dare to put into an American port because my brother would make trouble for him.

"I was afraid of Sandford's and Perry's curses and that my soul would be lost if I disobeyed.

"I have heard that conditions at Shiloh are very bad, the woman overworked and with the children half starved, living on meal and potatoes for weeks at a time. Sandford sold off most of the stock there to maintain his people on the Kingdom and his yacht Coronet. Sandford keeps his followers shut from the world, fearing that they would desert the faith. Sandford is a dangerous man for society. He has wrecked many homes, separated families and reduced hundreds to poverty. He prefers women converts to men because they are easier to handle. But he has to have men followers, because they bring in the money and do the hard work, but Sandford's funds are now low, and he cannot last much longer.

His Thanks to the Chauffer.

New York Tribune.

A New York merchant takes his vacation in the form of long and short automobile trips with his family, on which he is usually accompanied by a neighbor car owner, also accompanied by his family. On his return to the city from a four days' trip he found this letter from the proprietor of a country hotel: "When we saw your two cars stop at our house my wife and I thought we were going to have a houseful of city people for a few days. What happened? Your shofer (sic) asked about the road, two of the youngsters bought postal cards and the ladies sat on the porch and drank water which our girls brought them. Your friend's shofer sneaked off and got a drink downstairs at the bar. That's what we got out of a party of nine. I want you to thank the young fellow who bought the drink. Automobiles are great for country hotels."

Electric lamps are inserted in the floors of passenger elevators so a person entering a car at night will know just where he is to step. The light is switched on or off automatically as a car stops at or leaves a floor.

HOLMAN HUNT DEAD.

Great Father of the Pre-Raphaelite Movement Passes Away.

London, Sept. 8.—William Holman Hunt, celebrated painter, and one of the three founders of the Pre-Raphaelite movement, died here yesterday, aged 83. Holman Hunt began exhibiting his pictures in 1846. Many of the greatest of English paintings are credited to his brush. He received many decorations, among them the Order of Merit.

Toronto, Sept. 8.—The late Holman Hunt's great picture "The Light of the World," was exhibited in Toronto in the O.S.A. gallery several years ago. This painting, which had been recently finished, was an enlarged replica of the original painted in 1852-54, while the artist was still a member of that unique band "The Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood," and it showed all the charm, as well as all the defects of their theories on art. It was freighted with allegory in its smallest detail, most of it quite hidden from ordinary mortals. The picture, "The Shadow of Death," now at the gallery of the Toronto Exhibition, is another example of the artist's peculiar mysticism and mannerisms, one of the theories of Pre-Raphaelites being that every object must be painted with the greatest truth and fidelity to nature, whether important or unimportant. Combined with this was an unconventional realism in the treatment of imaginative subjects.

When an old man of 78, Holman Hunt exhibited his last picture "The Lady of Shalott." He was ranked as one of the foremost painters of religious subjects.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

According to a report submitted to the directors of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., the strike of the conductors and motormen, in the early part of the present year, cost the company $2,300,000.

Several attorneys who were asked to defend some of the men indicted for murder of first degree, in connection with the lynching of Gale Charlton in Newark, Ohio, have refused to do so, saying they were opposed to lynching.

Floating in 30 feet of water in the Long Pond at Centre Island, Toronto, the body of Mrs. Margaret McWillie, widow, 60 years of age, was found by Ralph Gates of the yacht Florence. She has been suffering from nervous troubles.

Looks Black for Crippen.

London, Sept. 8.—Ethel Leneve has confessed to all that she knows concerning the fate of Belle Elmore Crippen. When the preliminary hearing of the prisoners is continued, Miss Leneve's confession, which is in affidavit form, will be presented as the principal evidence of the prosecution. It is understood that Mr. Thomas Humphreys, who is conducting the prosecution, will then consent to have the girl released on bail, provided she can find a bondsman.

When the charge of murder against the girl was reduced to one of being an accessory after the fact, it became evident that Miss Leneve was being approached. If, as now seems certain, she consents to turn King's evidence, she will escape with nominal punishment. If, however, she should be found guilty of being an accessory after the fact, she would be liable to be hanged, though the sentence in such case is usually twenty years.

With the girl's testimony thrown into the balance against him, the case looks black for Crippen.

Motor Boat Victims Found.

Brockville, Sept. 8.—The bodies of J. J. Letoile and N. C. Brander, the victims of Tuesday's motor boat accident, were taken from the St. Lawrence yesterday afternoon, in close proximity to where the craft foundered in the gale. Letoile's body will be shipped to Ottawa, and Brander's to St. Paul, Minn.

Inspector Smith of the Thiel Agency has arrived in town to take up the unfinished work of Detective Letoile in the matter of the contemplated prosecutions arising out of the riot at the G.T.R. depot during the strike.

Denounced His Parishioner.

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., Sept. 8.—That Rev. W. H. Hubbard, former pastor of the fashionable Mill street Baptist Church of this city, was well within his rights when he denounced from the pulpit Mrs. Helen H. Leading members of the church say they will withdraw and start another church if the trustees obey the mandate of the Baptist Association.

Putting Screws on Contractors.

Albany, N.Y., Sept. 8.—Admitting that at least fifty per cent. of the good roads contracts had been raised during the administration of Frederick Skene as state engineer and surveyor in 1907 and 1908, W. T. Jerome, counsel for Skene, in his address yesterday to the jury trying Skene on charges of grand larceny, contended that C. P. O'Neil was made confidential assistant to Skene by the power of Tammany Hall for the purpose of "putting the screws to contractors."

Shot the Burglar.

New York, Sept. 8.—About to clamber through a window, which he had just opened, into a down town flat early yesterday morning, a burglar was shot and instantly killed, falling part way into the room. John Guarralo, who with his brother-in-law, occupied the flat, handled the gun.

BRITAIN GETS VERDICT

Is Sustained in Chief Points of Fisheries Dispute.

Right to Make Fishing Regulations Without the Concurrence of U. S. and a Decision That the Three-Mile Limit Shall Be Based on Headlands Are Britain's Chief Victories—Both Parties Are Satisfied.

The Hague, Sept. 8.—In the gloomy little chamber of the permanent arbitration court, five judges, who since June 1 have considered the Newfoundland fisheries dispute between Great Britain and the United States, pronounced yesterday afternoon their verdict. The decision gives neither principal a clear cut award, but of the seven questions decided, the tribunal supports the United States in five and Great Britain in the other two.

This decision determines finally the disputes arising from the British-American treaty of 1818, which have caused continuous diplomatic controversies.

The British are pleased with the award because the three-mile limit is based on headlands instead of following the simnuousities of the coast, and in saving the sovereignty by having confirmed Great Britain's right to make reasonable fisheries regulations without the concurrence of the United States. These points are regarded as the most important.

Americans here are satisfied with the verdict, but on question No. 1, the United States has raised certain questions of equity, which will be submitted to a special commission.

This point, upon which Great Britain is also sustained, embodied the question of whether any local law adopted by a British colony must be submitted for approval to any foreign power having a treaty on a similar subject with the Imperial Government.

The provisions of the award apply not only to future legislation by the Imperial Government and the colonies, but require that the existing statutes and regulations to which the Americans have objected be submitted to a commission which shall judge of their reasonableness, necessity and fairness laid down by the tribunal.

In connection with its conclusion that the reasonableness of the fishing regulations must be determined through expert information, the tribunal directs the appointment of a commission of specialists, and calls upon Great Britain and the United States to designate their commissioners within one month, and appoints as a third commissioner Dr. Hook, scientific adviser of fisheries of the Netherlands.

The court was unanimous on all questions except the fifth, as to which Luis Drago, the member from the Argentine Republic, gave a dissenting opinion, largely supporting American contentions.

The court finds that the claims of Great Britain to a right to prohibit American vessels from employing foreigners, and to impose lighthouse, customs and other duties, are unauthorized by the treaty of 1818.

The tribunal finds that the regulation of the manner, time and implements of fishing which Great Britain or Newfoundland enforces must be reasonable and appropriate, but Great Britain cannot be the sole judge of their reasonableness. In case of disagreement the question must be determined by an impartial tribunal.

On question six, which presented the claim of Great Britain to the right to exclude fishermen from the bays and harbors on the treaty coasts of Newfoundland and the Magdalen Islands, the tribunal declares without qualification in favor of the United States.

On question five, which was decided adversely to the United States, the court followed the strict letter of the British-American treaty, whereby America renounced the right to fish in any bays on non-treaty coasts. The court holds that this renunciation applied to all bays, irrespective of their size, instead of to small bays only, as was contended by the Americans.

Regarding point one, the tribunal holds that the right of Great Britain to make fishing regulations without the consent of America, is inherent in the former's sovereignty, but the exercise of this right must not violate the treaty of 1818 or be so framed as to give the local fishermen an advantage over the Americans.

Satisfaction at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Sept. 8.—The decision in the fisheries case at The Hague is generally regarded here as a distinct victory for the British case.

The establishment of the claim of complete autonomy in framing regulations, so long denied by the United States, is regarded with extreme satisfaction.

In the absence of an official intimation from Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, J. S. Ewart, K.C., Canadian counsel in the case, would express no general opinion on the award. Mr. Ewart spent 18 months in preparing the case and is openly disappointed at the failure of the tribunal to unanimously define the meaning of the word "bay," and expressed a hope that the next award might throw light upon the decision in that regard.

Fearful Record of Crime.

Rome, Sept. 8.—One of the most startling reigns of crime in the history of the Black Hand in Italy has come to light in the investigation into the murder at Pallaro, Calabria, of Policeman Guiseppe Rovolino, his wife and six children. Official figures given out yesterday show that in July and August there were 41 murders in the Pallaro district, 78 woundings, 30 bomb explosions, six kidnappings, and innumerable blackmailings.

A Cloak for Smuggling.

Windsor, Sept. 8.—Windsor will likely impose a very heavy license on Chinese laundries in the city. Many laundries are believed to be nothing less than places of refuge for birds of passage awaiting an opportunity to be smuggled into the United States at this point.

Bread or potatoes should never be put in the mouth at the same time as fish, especially by children, or it will be difficult to detect bones in the fish, and they may be swallowed by mistake.

SIM SIMPKINS.

Sim Simpkins don't believe in things;
His fancy never spreads its wings.
He says that "two an' two is four
An' so shill be forevermore."
When Morse got up the telegraph
Old Sim read of it with a laugh,
And then says he:
"Huh! Needn't tell me.
I don't believe what I can't see."

And when 'twas said electric lights
Should gleam and glimmer through th nights
Old Sim said: "Shucks! How'll you send fire
A-scootin' through a solid wire?"
He proved that it could not be done
By argument that weighed a ton
When "Humph!" said he.
"You needn't tell me.
I don't believe what I can't see."

When Bell announced the telephone
Old Sim read of it with a groan
And wiped his specs and slowly said:
"Th' feller's plainly off his head.
Th' idy! Talk an' I could hear
Ten miles away all plain an' clear!
Huh! No, sir-ree;
You needn't tell me!
I don't believe what I can't see."

The wireless telegraph made Sim
Deny its truth with language grim.
"It's nothin' but a pesky sham.
Now, who could breathe a tellygram?"
And when the Wrights got up and flew
Old Sim just took another chew,
And "Umph!" said he.
"You needn't tell me!
I don't believe what I can't see."

Don't think this shaft is aimed at Sim
And that there's only one of him.
Oh, gentle reader, you and I
Learn of some truths, but do not try
To make them true, but wisely frown,
And arguments we try to drown
With "No, sir-ree;
You needn't tell me!
I don't believe what I can't see."

In Doubt.

"Charles, you would better walk down to papa's office and see him about our engagement."

"Clara, I can walk to your papa's office, but I may need some help to get back."

His Money.

A poor beggar received a monthly allowance of $5 from a rich man. The money used to be paid to him regularly by the bookkeeper. On one occasion when the poor man came around the bookkeeper handed him only $3. The poor man remained standing quietly until the bookkeeper asked whether there was anything else he wished.

"You must have made a mistake," he said. "I always get $5."

"Yes," replied the bookkeper; "that has now been changed."

"Changed? Why?"

"You see, the boss recently married off his eldest daughter, and he had a great deal of expense, as you may imagine—the dowry and so forth. You can easily understand"—

"Yes, yes!" grumbled the beggar. "Give your employer my best wishes and tell him that if he ever marries off another daughter he may do it with his own money, not with mine."—Maccabean.

His Error.

The young man who loved the daughter of the widow had called to get the mother's consent to lead the fair girl to the altar, but he blundered at the very outset.

"I have come, madam," he began in a voice that was agitated and beseeching, "to ask you for the blessed privilege of working for your dear daughter, taking care of her, giving her a home and"—

He got no further. The widow, with indescribable eagerness, threw herself into his arms. "I gladly give you the privilege," she cried. "You don't know how I have hoped and longed for a model man like you to be my darling daughter's father!"—Chicago News.

Why He Was Gallant.

A stout woman entered a crowded car and took hold of a strap directly in front of a man seated in the corner. As the car started she lunged against his newspaper and trod heavily on his toes. As soon as he could extricate himself he arose and offered her his seat.

"You are very kind, sir," she said, panting for breath.

"Not at all, madam," he replied. "It's not kindness; it's simply self defense."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

The Reason.

"Talking about women," observed the peach to the potato, "I can't bear these so called notable housewives with their energy in providing for their families."

"Why not? What effect do they produce on you?" asked the potato.

"They jar me," answered the peach.—Baltimore American.

A Proper Name.

"You have christened your baby Halley's Comet?"

"Yes. It's unusual, but appropriate. He's a bright spot in one existence that gets us up at all sorts of unearthly hours."—Washington Star.

The Real Job.

Him—I—I don't know how to tell you how I love you.

Her—Don't worry about that. I'll take it as it comes. What you want to get nervous about is how to tell papa about it.—Chicago Record-Herald.

The French military authorities in Africa are bending every effort to increase the number of a species of camel which can travel more than twice as swiftly as the ordinary camel of commerce.

A NEW WEAVE OF SWEATER

The Long Effect in These Coats Is Smartest.

FOR THE GOLFING GIRL.

If any girl can go through the summer without a sweater she is a rare specimen of femininity. Its uses are infinite and too many to enumerate. Each year the type of sweater varies. Last season we had the long style, and this summer the longer lengths are still modish, but the difference in this year's sweater is in the weave. The illustration shows one of the newest and smartest of the season's weaves, a broad fancy stripe, which is very becoming to the figure.

Charge It to the Woman.

That cheerful farce known to the public as an "inquiry into the causes of the cost of living" assumes more amazing proportions day by day. Somebody or something is to blame for the prohibitive prices which mock our indigence, and under no circumstances may the sensitive feelings of the protectionists be hurt. Consequently political economists who are not calm enough to share the frank indifference of congress offer us strange and artless solutions of a problem which has grown too formidable for play, says Agnes Repplier.

The most original of all these suggestions comes from an instructor in economics in the Wharton School of Finance at the University of Pennsylvania, who holds that food is dear because women buy it and women "have no basis for estimating the value of what they spend." Money to a man represents so many hours or days of labor. Money to a woman stands for no economic effort. The price of all commodities is unreasonably dear because of the "extravagant willingness of women to pay for them."

If this be true all that is needed to reduce the cost of living is that men shall shop and market. The poulterer will not venture to ask $2.50 for a pair of chickens; the dairyman will blush at the mere thought of demanding 50 cents a dozen for eggs when confronted by the wage earner of the family. Hogs were quoted recently at a figure calculated to make these lordly animals swagger in their sties, but they will soon be reduced to humility and moderation if the father of the family buys the morning sausage. Even the cook will cheerfully accept $4 a week instead of $7 when her master pays her wages, especially if she can be brought to understand that he is philosophically indifferent to his food and that it was only the "extravagant willingness" of her mistress to pay her $7 which made her ask so much.

The Charm of Enthusiasm.

Have you ever realized what a charm there is in enthusiasm? Life is so often monotonous that we like occasionally to be wakened up with interest, and the person who is radiant over small things is always a delight.

The girl who carries enthusiasm into her work as well as into her play will find that she holds a winning card. Work that is done for the "joy of working" is likely to be well done. Lack of interest makes for dull routine, remarks a writer. It brings discontent and often failure. The men who succeed are the ones who can inspire both themselves and others by their magnetic personality, and there is nothing so magnetic as enthusiasm. People will follow us, like us and admire us if we have it. It is worth cultivating if it is not natural endowment.

Pleasantness a Tonic.

Don't be afraid of being pleasant. It cannot hurt you and will be as good as a tonic for all you meet.

What though you do think yourself superior to most of your acquaintances, is it good taste to placard your belief by a freezing countenance?

There is nothing like affability to conceal one's family skeletons. A haughty manner is a direct bid for the rest of the world to rake up ancestral secrets that you thought buried.

A meat and fruit press that a Pennsylvanian has patented is inclined so that the juices flow into a receptacle placed under it as rapidly as they are extracted.

Heavy Rains Interfere With the Ceremonies At Eucharistic Congress.

Intelligencer Special.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 9.—All preparations made here for the celebration of High Pontifical Mass, in Fletcher's Field, under the shelter of Mount Royal, this morning came to nought. A great cross has been erected, with embellishments of angels and throne for Cardinals Vannutelli and Logue. It was expected that hundreds of thousands of people would attend, and thirty thousand school children, after training for weeks, were to sing. But rain came down in torrents, commencing at midnight, and continuing till late this morning. It may be held to-morrow. In the meantime Mass will be celebrated in some of the larger cathedrals.

Hot Roast For Women of New York

Intelligencer Special.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Sept. 9.—That modernized housekeeping, with all its labor saving devices, dining out, and worklessness is responsible for the shocking state of society to-day, with infidelity, intemperance, ill health and divorce, is the theory advanced by Dr. Anna Wells Bloom, of New York, one of the most prominent women physicians of the city. She says that Gotham women of the middle and wealthy classes haven't enough to do to keep them out of mischief.

Have Formed a Union For Self Protection.

(Intelligencer Special)

LONDON, Eng., Sept. 9.—English speaking chefs and waiters in the restaurants and hotels here have formed a strong union to protect themselves against continental labor, which is gradually taking over the best positions. The employers says that British and United States waiters are too clumsy and not as attentive as foreigners.

France Finds Need of Airship Regulations.

Intelligencer Special.

PARIS, France, Sept. 9.—"Reckless aeroplaning" is the latest crime on the calendar of the police court here. The defendant this morning was an aviator named Pariot, who swooped down and into the electric lights, smashing several. The Magistrate trying the case could find no laws to cover it, and new ones must be framed. A French airship builder expects to sell eleven thousand machines within a year. The necessity for drastic regulations is great.

Car Ferry Sank On Lake Michigan.

Intelligencer Special

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Sept. 9.—Wireless messages have been picked up to the effect that the Pere Marquette car ferry No. 18, sank in Lake Michigan during the terrific gale last night, there being a train and cargo aboard. It is gathered that the passengers and crew of seventy-five persons were saved by a sister ferry, but there is great anxiety here.

The loss will half a million dollars, at the lowest estimate.

It is feared that the sinking of the car ferry in Lake Michigan means one of the most disastrous occurrences in the history of navigation on the great lakes. Wireless messages from midlake to Ludington, Mich., and other points, and transmitted here, indicate that in all probability thirty-nine of the passengers and crew were drowned.

One report says that all the officers and crew were drowned except F. J. Young, chief steward; James Fay, cook, and Seymour Cochrane, passenger.

Another story says that the disaster took place twenty miles from Sheboygan, and that all but seven were picked up by a sister ferry.

The gale was the fiercest in the memory of Lake Michigan sailors. All the crew belonged to Ludington, Mich.

The police had to force the child's hands apart in order to make her let go.

MESSAGE FROM THE DEAD.

Seance at His Home Results In Declaration of Communication.

Boston, Sept. 9.—William James, the former Harvard professor and distinguished scientist and psychic expert, has sent a message to his friends from the spirit world, it was asserted yesterday by M. S. Ayer, founder of the First Spiritual Temple of Boston, who conducted the seance at his country home at Harwichport, Mass.

Mr. Ayer says that the message was received through a well-known spiritualistic medium at a seance held at his cottage at Harwichport, on Monday evening. The message given out by Mr. Ayer is:

"I am at peace, at peace (here some words could not be distinguished) with myself and all mankind. I have awakened to a life far beyond my highest expectation while a denizen of earth. Tell my brothers that I will transmit a message through this instrument that will prove my individuality, when I can manifest more clearly than at this time.

"I did not realize how difficult it would be to manifest from this plane of life to the mortal plane. There is much, very much, for me to learn and many conditions to overcome."

The seance, says Mr. Ayer, was under the auspices of the Temple Band of Spirits. Mr. Ayer refused to tell the name of the medium or to reveal the names of those present.

Henry James, jr., son of Prof. James, says that he knows nothing of any message having been received from his father.

May Lose Both Hands.

Prescott, Sept. 9.—An awful accident happened to Fred. La Mere at 2.30 Wednesday afternoon, as a result of which he will lose the use of both hands.

He was working in the hold of a grain vessel at the elevator, guiding the big scoop. The ropes caught, and in shaking them loose he put himself in such a position that if he let go it would mean instant death, and if he hung on he would be drawn into the pulley block.

He hung on and had his right hand cut off diagonally across the palm barely leaving the trunk, and part of the thumb and first and second fingers of the left hand, the third finger badly pinched and torn, but not severed. He was taken to the Ogdensburg Hospital.

Harnessing Wind and Sun.

London, Sept. 9.—Prof. Fessenden at the British Association meetings outlined the possibilities of harnessing the wind and sun, in order to produce electrical energy.

He said a number of windmills round the coast could give power enough to run all the railways, factories and electric light stations in Great Britain, but he thought, humorously, with solar energy Britain could not do quite so well.

Sir W. White doubted the practicability of the scheme.

Objects to Senator's Company.

Freeport, Ill., Sept. 9.—Col. Roosevelt refused flatly to attend the banquet tendered last night by the Hamilton Club, Chicago, unless Senator Lorimer is excluded. He demanded that a telegram to that effect be sent to the Senator. Roosevelt said that he would feel the same about the presence of Senator Lorimer that he would feel if members of the Illinois Legislature, who are involved in the graft investigation, should be present.

Newfoundland Is Satisfied.

St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 9.—The decision of the international court of arbitration on the Newfoundland fisheries dispute is looked upon here as a substantial victory for the colony. The winning of point one by Great Britain means, it is pointed out, that Newfoundland will have full power to control all fishery legislation, and make the American fishermen subject thereto

Dynamited the Safe.

Macedon, N.Y., Sept. 9.—Yeggs dynamited the postoffice safe here early yesterday morning and obtained several hundred dollars' worth of stamps and some cash.

GEN. FRENCH'S REPORT

Inspector-General Has Some Criticisms and Suggestions.

He Would Retain the Canadian Volunteer System, But Favors Large Increase in the Staff Organization and the Preparation of Plans For Efficient Mobilization—Too Much Ceremonial Work.

Ottawa, Sept. 9.—One of the pieces of work which awaited Sir Wilfrid Laurier on his return to the capital was to confer with Sir Frederick Borden on the subject of Gen. Sir John French's report on the Canadian militia. The Minister of Militia has been withholding the report from publication, on the ground that so important a document must pass before the Premier's eye before being made public. Yesterday the document was placed in the Premier's hands and the objection to publication disappears.

The report made by the Imperial inspector-general on the whole approves of the retention of the voluntary system for Canada. Sir John French also approves the numbers aimed at by the existing Canadian system, namely a first line of 100,000, with provision for the ultimate organization of a second line also 100,000 strong. With this as his basis, he makes a number of suggestions and criticisms.

Peace organization practically identical with that which should obtain in war time summarizes the needs of the Canadian militia, as presented in the report. The necessity for a large increase in the staff organization and the preparation of efficient plans of prompt mobilization are among the most important points brought out. The fondness of the city corps for ceremonial rather than the practical business of war is adversely commented upon, and in this connection the length of the annual camp training, especially for the cavalry, is declared to be quite inadequate to the production of efficient soldiers.

Prompt mobilization being of the utmost necessity in modern warfare, the general recommends in the mobilization staff alone an increase of ten or twelve officers, at headquarters and in the different districts, that plans may be worked out in minutest detail.

The lack of efficient officers in all branches of the service comes in for severe criticism. The general finds the standards set all right, but too much laxity in the reinforcement of these requirements. More attention should be paid to the training of the junior officers in the work of their sub-units.

The attendance both of officers and men at camp is found to be lamentably lax. Public opinion should back up the headquarters' staff in exacting as high a standard of military duty as that exacted by a business man from his employes.

The haphazard way in which new corps are formed is commented on, by which the individual preferences of the promoters of the new corps determined the arm of the service to which they should belong. This has produced a badly unbalanced militia force. The proportion of infantry is too large. The proportion of field artillery should be five guns to each thousand men, instead of two as at present. Each county should, he says, furnish a proportion of each arm of the service, instead of specializing. In regard to the cavalry, the necessity of an efficient "remount staff," to look after the supply of horses, is noted.

Decentralization of the mobilization stores to the individual corps and subdivisions, is urged, as also the necessity of ample reserves of ammunition, which should be interchangeable with that used in other parts of the Empire.

In the matter of armament, Gen. French recommends the howitzer, a short gun, throwing a 60 to 100-pound shell almost vertically upon the enemies hidden by hills or trenches, as more suitable for eastern Canada than the "Long Tom," which is adapted to direct fire. Some of the heavy artillery should be converted into howitzer batteries.

For the west the problem is different, and the general recommends the development of a force of mounted rifles, field artillery and infantry in the principal towns. There should be 16 days' training for the mounted men.

Petawawa Camp is declared to be the best training ground in the Empire, and a similar central training ground is suggested for the west. The cadet movement comes in for high approval. The administrative services are also commended.

In Solitary Confinement.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 9.—The fact that Charles W. Morse, the banker confined in the federal penitentiary, was put in solitary confinement for two days last May for infraction of the rules, was made public here yesterday by Warden Meyer. He said that Morse's offence was a polite, but positive, refusal to tell from what source he received $41 in money.

New Tunnel Inaugurated.

New York, Sept. 9.—Intercity tunnel train service under the East River, between the new Pennsylvania terminal in Manhattan and Long Island City, was successfully inaugurated yesterday. Suburban points on Long Island are brought on an average of about 25 minutes nearer the heart of Manhattan Island by the new service.

The Globe and Free Trade

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's troubles in the West have had the effect of forcing a discussion on the question of free-trade versus protection; and this discussion has had the effect of drawing the Globe out into the open. The Globe for years has been preaching free-trade and supporting protectionist government; and has contrived to manage this running with the hare and hunting with the hounds with an air of superior virtue peculiarly its own. Of late, however, various Conservative journals have been drawing attention to this insincerity, and the Globe has been obliged to try to justify its inconsistency.

Driven into a corner, the Globe's plea in effect is, that it has been and is, doing evil that good may come. The good that is to come is simply the retention of office by the Liberal party. If it frankly stood by its convictions and insisted on free-trade, the Liberal party would be defeated and the Conservatives would be returned to power. Therefore the Globe follows its alleged principals.

Here are Globe's own words: "The dominant sentiment in Canada to-day would not warrant the Liberal Government in going to the country on a free-trade policy. Political necessaries are stronger than the economic." And again it says: "An appeal to the country on the sole issue of absolute free-trade would, under present conditions, mean defeat for a Liberal Government." Office, that's the thing! Office at any cost! There's the profit in making sacrifices for principle? Why be a home for lost causes be they never so noble?

People who desire lower tariff accordingly are given thoroughly to understand that there is no hope for any substantial lowering of the tariff. The Globe thinks as a matter of theory that the tariff should be lowered, but it knows and admits that the Laurier Government does not intend to grant lower tariff and for the sake of office the Globe supports the Government which it knows to be protectionist. The average man will agree that this is partisanship run mad—or rather, run to sheer dishonesty.

The Globe insists that the return of the Conseravtives to office would mean a much higher tariff. The indications point all the other way. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and not Mr. Borden is in alliance with the trusts and corporations. The Premier, and not the Opposition leader, has bonused the iron and steel trade to the extent of upwards of a million dollars a year. If the Laurier Government is sustained at the next general election it will be with the aid of the combines and corporations which he has favored.

Though the earth is adding 100 tons of extraneous matter, such as meteoric particles and cosmic dust, a day, it will take 1,000,000,000 years for it to accumulate a layer an inch thick all over.

The material is soft to touch and pliable to the extreme, and when soiled has only to be placed in a fire to be made absolutely clean.

Iron cloth is largely used to-day by tailors everywhere for the purpose of making the collars of coats set properly. This cloth is manufactured from steel wool and has the appearance of having been woven from horsehair.

Wool not the product of sheep is being utilized abroad for the making of men's clothing. This is known as "limestone" wool, and is made in an electric furnace. Powdered limestone mixed with certain chemicals is thrown into the furnace and after passing through a furious air blast it is tossed out as fluffy as wool. When it comes from the furnace the wool is dried and made into lengths of cloth. A pair of trousers or a coat made of this material cannot, it is claimed be burned or damaged by grease, and is as flexible as cloth made from sheep's wool.

An English manufacturer has succeeded in making a fabric from old ropes. He obtained a quantity of old rope and cordage, unravelled it and wove it by a secret process into a kind of cloth. The resultant material he dyed a dark brown. A suit was worn by the manufacturer himself, and it is said that he has a large trade in this line in the British colonies.

A novelty in dress for women is spun glass cloth, which may, it is said, be had in white, green, lilac, pink and yellow shades. The inventor of this fabric was an Australian and his invention was said to have resulted in the production of a material as bright and flexible as silk. The first lady to wear a gown of this material was one of royal rank. It was a very delicate shade of pink lavender shot with pink and its peculiar sheen reminded her admirers of a sparkle of diamond dust.

Paper cloths were worn by the Japanese troops, who found them very serviceable and much warmer than those of cloth. Paper dressing gowns, bath robes and similar articles of attire are now being turned out by the carload in England, France, Germany and other European countries. The paper whereof they are made is of the "blotter" variety, and after being treated by a new process is dyed in various colors or printed with a pretty floral design.

Even gloves are made of paper, the principal claim to advantage being that they are susceptible of being cleaned many times.

Stranger Arrested On a Serious Charge.

William McDonald, who is apparently a middle-aged man and a stranger here, was arrested last evening and the charge against him is of a serious nature. It appears that yesterday he went into a residence on George street and under the guise of the ing an employee of the city water works department went all through the premises from cellar to garret looking for a supposed leak in a water pipe. The affair was reported to the authorities with the result that McDonald was placed under arrest.

This morning he was brought before Magistrate Masson and being charged with an indictable offence elected to be tried by the Magistrate The Crown not being prepared to proceed, the accused was remanded to jail until to-morrow.

Century Old Ships.

Manchester Guardian.

Much has been said lately of an American vessel, the Polly, 45 tons, which still keeps the sea, though she is on her 106th year of service. This is a respectable age for any vessel, but three are older ones on the British register. The oldest, we believe, the Jenny, of Carnarvon, but we know nothing of her except that she is 122 years old. The next in order of age is the May, of Whitehaven, sometimes call the Molly Ashcroft to distinguish her from other Mays. The May was built at Cowes in 1798, so she is one hundred and twelve years old, six years older than the American vessel. Tonnage is a very variable quantity according to the system of measurement. The May was originally rated at 34 tons, but she has been registered by the Board of Trade as 12.76 tons. Visitors to Ramsey had an opportunity of seeing her there on a fishing expedition last summer.

For all her 112 years, the May is still capable of coming through an adventure or two. She came into Whitehaven in a gale nine years ago, and was brought there by her present owner, who regularly fishes in her with a crew of three or four. She is a "jigger smack"—that is, she has a small after-master. She was dismasked in a gale last winter, but she is in first class trim to-day, and her owner speaks highly of her qualities. Of course the question is always asked how far an old boat has been patched up, and how much of the original fabric remains. As a matter of fact, the May was practically rebuilt eighteen year ago, but a boat must be sound to stand extensive repairs, and the fact, therefore, does not really detract so much as one might think from the wonder of her inmense age.

Eighty Years of Frrncis Joseph

American Review of Reviews.

The best wishes of the civilized world have gone out to the aged Emperor, Francis Joseph of Austria-Hungary, who, on the eighteenth day of the last month, celebrated his eightieth birthday. If he lives until December 2 of the present year, he will have been sixty-two years on the throne of the Dual Monarchy. During that monumentally long reign almost every imaginable calamity has fallen upon him. His realm has been torn by fierce conflicts beween the diverse races that make up its population. His armies have been defeated on the field of battle, and he has lost territory. His beautiful and accomplished wife, the Empress Elizabeth, was murdered, and his only son and heir died by his own hand to escape the public shame of a mysterious private scandal. Through it all, Francis Joseph, Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary, had maintained a cheerful dignified calm and remarkable tenacity of purpose. He had been, moreover, an example to the crowned heads of Europe for his untiring devotion to duty and for his many private virtues. During the year preceding his eightieth birthday, he had the satisfaction of seeing the prestige of his country greatly increased by the acquiescence of the rest of the continent in the annexation of the two Balkan provinces, Bosnia and Herzegovina. He recently made a visit to these provinces, and was loyally received by their inhabitants. He has not been able, it is true, to thoroughly settle the parliamentary difficulties between Vienna and Budapest. Yet his influence had always been in the direction of conciliation to the Hungarians. "If Austria-Hungary did not exist," said a Bohemian Statesman, a generation ago, "she would have to be invented." A strong power at Vienna has always been necessary to keep the peace between the jangling and diverse races of southeastern Europe. When that power is wielded by a monarch who is as just and wise as Francis Joseph has been, the entire continent, as well as the people of Ausria-Hungary and the Balkan states, has reason to join in hoping that the aged monarch may have still more years of life and usefulness.

An American on the Exodus.

At a dinner in honor of a party of American Newspaper men in the west not very long ago, Mr. Elmer E. Critchfield of Chicago said:—

"A good many things has been dropped on our way up here which give us from the other side of this imaginary something called a boundary line, occasion to think. People are telling us, or rather a few people have been endeavoring to to tell us, that some of our former citizens who decided to cast in their lot with you have become dissatisfied and are flocking back to the States."

"Gentlemen, the people on the other side of the line who really count for anything and who really do things and help to make the big world go round understand the animus behind this declaration. You need not be worried in any particular about that declaration because it is not true. It is not because the people are dissatisfied with you, or with your country, or with your government, or with the administration of your laws, or of the conditions which they find that they are going back. You are all big enough to know occasionally a man becomes dissatisfied without cause. The disgruntled individual is not going to do you any good if he remains here. Let him go back."

"We have a department of our government whose duty it is to enter and make a complete check of every man who crosses this imaginary line and out of the 758,000 we have gladly contributed you less than 204 of them have come back." (Loud applause.)

CANADIAN QUAIL.

The Sportsman Is Swiftly Driving Him to Extinction.

Just at this season of the year, in early morning or early twilight, you may hear him piping his mellow "bob white" from stumpy fallow or snake fence.

He is a bold fellow in this, his mating season. He seeks the highest pinnacle of stump or fence to send his call of gladness out across a world of sweeping grain or tangled shrubbery.

Close at hand, his mate, a shy, brown-coated bird, is huddled on her nest. That nest rests on the ground snugly hidden in the tall grasses. It holds twelve or fourteen white eggs and, while warming these to life, the hen bird's sharp eyes are alert for sign of her greatest enemies, the sneaking weasel or hawk.

When the eggs are hatched, the nest is discarded for a hiding place in the dark thicket of alders and yellow-tops. The "bob white's" call is heard no more, neither is the splendid fellow seen again on stump or fence top. He is with his mate teaching the animated balls of down, the baby quail, things they must learn if they would avoid the many dangers of the bird world.

Morning and evening, the old birds take their brood out into the open to feed. There the little birds tumble or play or, at the slightest noise in the open, or shadow in the skies, dart and hide. Once hidden, it would take a clever prowler to find the little fellows, so cunningly do they hug the grass and so closely do their feathers blend with its colors.

In a very short time the baby birds' wings grow strong enough to carry them. Every day then the old birds take them for a short flight and after the evening feeding-time lead them in Indian file down furrows, dry water runs and weedy fallows back to the roosting-place, for after the last flights the birds fly hardly ever, unless it be away from danger.

The covey roosts in a little bare spot commanding a view of their surroundings. They snuggle down in a complete circle, heads outward. When molested they take to flight with a thundering whirl of wings that is very disconcerting to the amateur sportsman.

The Canadian quail, like all other of our game birds, is rapidly becoming extinct. This is due to two causes—the wholesale slaughter of the game bird and lack of safe harbors as breeding and roosting spots.

A Hot-Weather Broil.

Truly a hot weather quarrel this recent war between the pen and the city fathers of Edmonton—all over a brick of ice cream. The journal editor is quite wrathy. It seems that in Edmonton stands an institution called Happyland; surely there is nothing remarkable in that. What town in Canada to-day is minus its Elysian Happyland, or Dreamland wonderful banishers of dull care; outside a maze of colored lights; past the doorkeeper smiling and effusive in his brass buttons the glorious strains of "Has Any One Here Seen Kelly" breaking on the ears? "All for a dime, ten cents," barks the florid proprietor. The performance is served up. You watch Jeffries floor Sam Berger, and while you are figuring out his chances with the Big Smoke, the scene abruptly changes. Exit the fighters; the fleeting pictures are now revealing the awful vicissitudes of Bertha, the Sewing-Machine Girl.

But Edmonton's Happyland, according to press descriptions, has none of these features extraordinary. It is merely a plain unvarnished booth—object to sell ice cream. Charitable mission to the parched throngs these days! For many weeks this booth has dispensed the chill confection on every day in the week. Especially on the seventh day did the cones and the sodas disappear—horrible thing! thought someone trailing home from church one Sunday morn. The City Council got wind of it, there was a pow-wow, the chief of police was dispatched to the scene—and Happyland on Sunday sells no more ice cream. Exclaims The Journal:—

"Even in Toronto the good, where the desire to restrict the freedom of the individual runs rampant, the courts have given interpretations to the Sunday observance ordinances which prescribe ice cream as food and admit the right of dealers to sell and individuals to buy the same on Sunday."

Wo, the Poor Chinaman.

Mr. Ewing Buchan, manager of the Vancouver branch of the Bank of Hamilton, is the possessor of a fine basso profundo reading voice; also of a Chinese cook who answers to the name of Wo.

Mr. Buchan is in the habit of reading a passage of the Scriptures to his assembled family every day before breakfast.

Now it happened one day that Mr. Buchan chose for the morning's reading a passage from the Lamentations of Jeremiah. His family duly assembled, Mr. Buchan cleared his throat, and in a sonorous voice commenced—"Woe, Woe and lamentation——"

He got no further, for at that point the door communicating with the kitchen burst open and the celestial cook inserted his head. "You wanta me?" he inquired. Tableau.

In reading the Scriptures Mr. Buchan now pitches his voice lower.

Doctor's Thrilling Experience.

Doctor Boyd of Fort William and a party of nine friends had an experience on Sunday night they will not soon forget. They left with a launch on Sunday for a little tour of some of the islands. Everything was pleasant until the storm sprang up in the afternoon. When they reached the more open water the little launch was at the mercy of the waves. The party was forced to land and finding the soft side of rock lay down and tried to woo Morpheus. Needless to say their sleep was not peaceful slumbers. Morning was a welcome relief as the storm had gone down and let them home none the worse.—Manitoulin Expositor.

Farm and Garden

AUTOMOBILE AS FARM HAND.

Many Uses For the Motorcar as an Adjunct to Farm Work.

The automobile is rapidly becoming the most useful and popular farm hand that can be employed by the enterprising agriculturist. Its variety of uses is great. A man who has a large farm to look after finds that he can get around much more swiftly and comfortably in an auto runabout than by horse, buggy or Shanks' mare. Some farmers use the auto in peddling chickens about town, while others fire up their motorcars early in the morning and speed away to town and deliver milk from door to door. For hauling light produce to market the automobile is unexcelled. When the children have a considerable distance to go to reach the country schoolhouse they are happy if "pop" or the hired man can crank up the auto and speed them on their way.

PEDDLING CHICKENS IN AUTO.

Charles P. Cushing, a writer in Leslie's Weekly, has some interesting things to say about the use of the automobile on farms—for instance:

David Rankin, owner of a system of farms comprising 23,640 acres near Tarkio, Mo., has some philosophy on this subject. He likes to feel the pull of reins and sticks to the old fashioned buggy himself, but he gives his foremen automobiles. This is simply part of his business policy: "Get the best and latest farming implements. They are the cheapest in the end."

To say, as writers for certain automobile journals do, that the farmers are hostile to automobiles is rank nonsense. The greatest difference of opinion on motorcars may be found among the farmers in the same state or even in the same county. As correspondent for the Kansas City Star I toured Missouri with Governor Joseph W. Folk when he was campaigning for the senatorship in the fall of 1908. In the more progressive towns the farmers had their motorcars waiting at the hitching posts around the courthouse square as evidence of the progressive spirit and the prosperity of the community more patent than fat sheep or bulging corncribs.

In Kansas hundreds of farmers have bought automobiles. That is not a newspaper "feature story" for the delectation of the gullible and the amusement of editorial satirists. It is plain fact.

Do not jump to the conclusion from this, however, that many farmers have bought blindly. The farmer's familiarity with tools and farm machinery and gasoline engines is a far better preparation for intelligent selection of a car and intelligent care of it afterward than the ordinary city man's superficial knowledge gained from catalogues and gossip or from watching a thousand "makes" whir past him on the streets.

At a motorcar show in Kansas City there was an example of this point. Isaac Page of Dickinson county, Kan., had just traded his runabout for a touring car. The deal was finished as quickly and as calmly as the purchase of a washing machine. Mr. Page's manner was that of a city business man, though he wore a black felt cheese box hat with a huge brim, a white hickory shirt without a necktie, and his suit was the plainest of "store clothes."

UP TO DATE AUTO MILKMAN.

"Don't get it into your head that I'm old. I'm only fifty-seven," he warned when I introduced myself as a reporter. "And don't think that there's anything unusual in a farmer from Dickinson county, Kan., buying a new motorcar. I always say we older people can't afford to get into ruts. Things change, and we've got to keep up. There are a dozen other farmers in my neighborhood who own cars. We need 'em. Now, I live eight miles out of Abilene. With a car I can run in in twenty-two minutes. See?"

If Distilleries Should Close.

The secretary of agriculture is authoritatively quoted as saying that if every distillery and brewery in the United States was to close and never use another bushel of grain in the manufacture of intoxicating liquors the American farmers, as a class, would not know it as far as the effect would show itself on the markets for grain.

When anything you have been cooking has been heated to the boiling point turn the blaze low enough to keep the heat just at that point.

Sufferers from indigestion should take the white of an egg beaten to a stiff froth and stirred into a wineglassful of cold water after each meal.

FLOWERS IN HISTORY.

Some Costly Bouquets and Floral Wreaths—Queen Victoria's Rose.

It is stated that over $250,000 was paid to Covent Garden alone for flowers to be made into wreaths for Queen Victoria's funeral. It is safe to say that this large sum has been more than doubled in the purchase of floral mementoes for that of our late King, for many of the wreaths—like that of the Sultan of Zanzibar, which was 14 feet by 7 feet and contained over 500 chosen orchids, and that of the Emperor of Japan, which measured 5 1-2 feet in diameter—cost considerably over $500 apiece.

Flowers have played an important part in the world's history.

In the national insignia see what a place they take—the rose standing for England, the thistle representing Scotland, and the shamrock Ireland.

For a flower the late Count de Chambord lost France. There came a moment when the throne was offered "King" Henry. But he must accept, with the sceptre and the gilded chair, the tri-colored flag. Another man would have taken the bauble and the seat, the crown and all its troubles; but Henri Cinq was not that sort of pretender. "Either I have the lilies and the white flag, or I remain an exile," he said, and with this he crushed all the hopes of the Bourbons.

It was with a white rose that Queen Victoria wooed and won Prince Albert. "I gave him a flower," she writes in her diary. "It was a white rose." As the monarch of a great country, she could receive no proposal from a prince of a small state, and till she gave him the rose he could not aspire to her hand. With what feelings he received it is told in the story of his life.

Flowers have played a great part in politics. There were the Wars of the Roses—red and white; and Lord Beaconsfield's flower, the primrose, has a million devotees to-day in England.

A fight took place not many years ago over an artificial forget-me-not. A gentleman sent it to a damsel whom he knew, and it fell into the hands of the elder brother of the lady. There was nothing in the letter that contained the flower to indicate why it was forwarded, not a word of all the epistle alluded to it, but the brother challenged the sender. Each fired at the same moment, both fell dead, and to this day no one knows why the artificial forget-me-not was sent.

The First Aviator.

Was Harold the last of the Saxon Kings, our first aviator? This is a point seriously maintained by ancient biographers of the Saxon King who perished in the Battle of Hastings. In the course of an article in The Windsor Magazine a writer recalls a tradition which cannot of course be either disputed or disproved to-day, but was of sufficient interest to be retold even by the poet Milton in his "History of the Anglo-Saxons," where the poet-historian says: "Harold was, in his youth, strangely aspiring had made and fitted wings to his hands and feet; with these on the top of a tower, spread out to gather air, he flew more than a furlong; but the wind being too high, came fluttering down, to the maiming of all his limbs; yet so conceited of his art, that he attributed the cause of his fall to the want of a tail, as birds have, which he forgot to make to his hinder parts. This story, though seeming otherwise too light in the midst of a sad narration, yet for the strangeness thereof, I thought worthy enough the placing."

An Extraordinary Shower.

Daniel O'Connell, the Irish agitator, once complained in the House of Commons of a report of a speech in a London newspaper which, he said, put into his mouth opinions he had never expressed. He vowed that if the editor did not apologize he would move that he be brought to the bar for a breach of privilege. Next day the reporter of the speech waited upon O'Connell and gave a most remarkable explanation. He stated that during his walk from the House to his office in Fleet street the rain streamed into his pockets and obliterated the notes of his speech.

"I accept the explanation," said O'Connell good humoredly, "but let me say that it must have been a very extraordinary shower of rain, for it not only washed out of your notebook the speech I delivered, but washed in another of an entirely different character."

Kangaroos.

Kangaroos use their hands very readily to hold food in and to put it to their mouths. As their fore legs are so short that they have to browse in a stooping position, they seem pleased when able to secure a large bunch of cabbage or other vegetable provender and to hold it in their hands to eat. Sometimes the young kangaroo, looking out of the pouch, catches one or two of the leaves which the old one drops, and the pair may be seen each nibbling at the salad held in their hands, one, so to speak, "one floor" above the other.

Survival of a Custom.

On gateposts you will frequently find a stone ball. Who would ever suppose that the balls on the gateposts were the heads of family enemies? It was once the custom to stick your enemy's gory head as a trophy on the gatepost. On the gates of towns were stuck the heads of traitorous persons. In old London, for instance, the bridge gate and Temple Bar were always decorated with ghastly relics of the kind, and the memory of the custom survives on the gateposts of modern suburban villas.

Church Becomes Theatre.

A number of workmen are transforming an old building in Praed street, Paddington, London, into a "luxurious cinematograph theatre"—as the notice-board has it. The transformation is of somewhat unusual interest, notwithstanding the number of derelict chapels that have shared a similar fate. The building is the chapel where Dr. Clifford first commenced his ministrations.

A fort built on a long, narrow island, at the entrance to Manilla Bay, is called the "concrete battleship", because of its shape, and because it carries two ship's turrets, each with two 12-inch guns.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of native American medical forest plants. "You fix this awkward thing up!" Gordon went away, leaving the ring in Maxwell's hand.

The Engineer was rooted to the spot in horror. "My God; is it not some hideous dream?" he murmured. In ten minutes Seaton re-appeared.

"Well!" he said anxiously. Maxwell was at his wits' ends for words.

"Beverly!" said Maxwell, "here's the ring! Gordon obtained it in St. Louis by chance. It had passed through several hands. He knows nothing of its origin!"

"He must never know who owned it!" cried Seaton, grasping Maxwell's hands. They were now as cold as ice! —The officer threw himself wearily on a lounge. His hands were pressed over his eyes as if to shut out some haunting horror!

"I have it! There is a five-thirty train! You can tell Gordon that I had to return to New York, summoned by telegraph! I'll write to him! He will go to his regiment soon! I will wait till Jack has reported! Then I will quietly go over to St. Louis and find out who handled that ring! But Gordon must never know."

"Then tell me nothing more of this, Beverly!" said Maxwell, rising. "Don't do it! Abandon the idea! It looks like questioning Jack's honor. He evidently thinks it is some ring you may have given to a woman. Don't forget that he believes your sister dead. What good will it do to mix this in the old story?"

"I will find her by this ring, I swear! Now, Maxwell! I will write to the War Department! I see your position between Gordon and myself. You are tired of us both, cranky Southerners! I shall never forget you; but this clue I follow to St. Louis."

"You will do so against my prayers; it will come to no good!" Maxwell too earnestly asserted.

"Look here, Vinton!" said Seaton, "I have not had the whole story of this; but I will find it out if it kills me! I will not burden you with this part of my weary life any longer!" In sad silence, Maxwell, justly offended, wrung Beverly Seaton's hands as the New York train moved out.

Jack Gordon, in open-eyed amazement, dejectedly groaned, finding Seaton gone. "Curse the ring and the woman who wore it! It has broken up our friendship with its devil luck." Two days later, Jack Gordon sadly left Washington for Belvoir.

Vinton did not urge him to say; he feared a second difference over the ring. "Maxwell!" Gordon said, "there is trouble in my heart, and sorrow and doubt all around me. I won't disguise it; we may not meet again. My call to duty is clear!"

"Can't you tell me all, Gordon?" Maxwell pleaded.

"Not now, dear old fellow! but you are the only one who ever will know, if it falls out as I fear! Don't let this unfortunate matter change a single heart-throb!"

"It never will, Jack!" cheerily responded the Engineer.

"God bless and guard you, my dear classmate! I shall stay a day at Belvoir, one at St. Louis, and then straight to Fort Hays! By the way, I wrote poor old Bev. Seaton, and he has just sent me a nice letter. His heart is all right." And the friends clasped hands with moistened eyes at parting.

Maxwell mused as he walked down from the station. The tall officer jostled the wayfarers, and absently puffed his cigar. "A half-way house for secrets and other people's troubles! I will finish by losing both these friends. What devilish spell is on us all? I suppose I too know only half the story!"

It was indeed so! For on a tossing steamer, battling with wild winter storms, a lonely woman, wondrously beautiful, sad at heart, and torn with myriad fears, harassed with vain regrets, heard the shout of the pursuer, the cry of the avenger in every wind gust blown from her native shores! "That negro on my track,—and Beverly in New York! Great God; before me, the implacable Jenks with his untiring hatred of one whom he knows not. I heard him swear to follow me to the death; and my heart breaks to have to flee from noble John Gordon,—to lie to him,—to be driven on like a leaf in the storm! Whither! I'll sink my shame so far that Beverly Seaton shall never fathom it. He will forget in time. But Gordon! my boy husband,"—she shuddered. "If I were dead,—dead to him, to the world,—it were mercy! If he thought me dead; ah! his proud wounded heart might soon forget me. I am nameless! —I cannot, I will not drag his name down!" Lying in her lonely room, pressing her throbbing temples, she studied a way out. Looking over into the wild tossing green waves, she wondered would this unavenged crime follow beyond the grave. "I shall go mad."

"Show the gentleman in!" said Seaton, ten days later, to the boy at the Lindell House in St. Louis. Beverly Seaton scanned his visitor closely. "Be seated, Sir!" the Southerner politely remarked.

"Thanks!" said the visitor. Phineas Orton handed Seaton a little slip cut from the St. Louis Republican. "You inserted that advertisement?" the detective carelessly remarked.

"I did!" replied Seaton gravely.

"What does it mean?" pointedly said Orton.

"It means just what it says! 'One thousand dollars reward for information of the whereabouts of an antique intaglio ring, head of Venus, with inscribed name. Lost in St. Louis, December, 1868. Address A. B., Lindell House, St. Louis.'"

"Are you A. B.?" the visitor asked.

"I am," replied Seaton; "and what can I do for you? Do you think you have handled the ring?"

"I am sure of it," the stranger said.

"Then how shall we proceed?" Seaton asked with some concern.

"First show me the thousand dollars and then tell me of your right to know what you wish?" firmly said the stranger.

"The cash is in the hotel safe! Are you connected with justice or the police?" said Seaton. The visitor briefly nodded. "Then Inspector Walling's official word would satisfy you, if he answered your telegram from New York?" The visitor's eyes gleamed.

"My theory," he whispered to himself. "Some stranger! Most certainly," he said cheerfully! "Have you any credentials from him" Seaton handed the detective a letter addressed to the St. Louis Chief of Police, in the well-known hand of the New York inspector.

"That's good enough! and now if you will tell me who you are, I will tell you who I am!" The stranger was perfectly unconcerned. "I know the business you are here on! You need not go to the Chief; I alone know the whole story! You are authorized to pay over the money at once?"

"Yes! if the information is right!" Seaton was growing anxious.

"Then don't look further; I can help you and you can help me! I am Phineas Orton, of Pinkerton's Chicago Agency; and you?"

"I am Alfred Brayton, of New York, on special service with Inspector Walling! I came out here to make some researches for the Inspector!"

"You can get your money ready, Brayton!" said Orton gaily. "I'll tell you the whole story! I don't wish the Chief here to know of this, for I outwitted him! I was the person who found the ring, and gave it to Lieut. Gordon!"

His listener bounded from his chair. "You!" he exclaimed.

"Why, certainly! Gordon paid me liberally to help hound down the guilty party!"

"See here, Orton! Is this the ring?" quietly said Seaton, placing it in the hand of the astonished detective.

The amazed visitor examined it thoroughly. "Yes! it is, and there's the name 'Baldwin' or something of that kind, engraved inside. I put a private mark on it! But Gordon has played me false! He promised to be silent, and give me time! Yes! Brayton! the woman who wore that ring last, murdered Colonel Neill."

"Murdered Colonel who?" Beverly gasped.

"Why, Egbert Neill, Gordon's agent here!" He had been a Lieut. Colonel of Sheridan's Cavalry in the Shenandoah. He was wounded at Winchester and lay in the rebel lines hidden till the war was nearly over! I heard the story the other day from one of Neill's brother officers who came here to see him! Poor fellow! so soon to be married! I tell you, Brayton; Gordon has acted strangely about this. He couldn't have killed Neill; he was lying wounded at Selfridge's here! That's sure! But he could have duped him, and set the woman on to kill him!—The reason! 'That's the thing,—the motive? Now you send down for your money, and put in on the table; I'll tell you the whole story from first to last! Let me look at my notes! I have a theory that Gordon helped that woman either to come or to get away!"

Beverly rang the bell. "Brandy and cigars," he cried.

"Now, Orton! I'll go to the office; you will have time to thing the whole matter up!" As he slowly returned Beverly Seaton's face was ghastly pale. "Who knows that was Beatrice Seaton's ring? Only Maxwell! My God! he must never meet this man. My sister! and where is she! Gordon lied to me!" His face lowered. In an hour, Phineas Orton had told every detail of his every action at St. Louis to Seaton.

"Now, Mr. Brayton! this Horace Jenks has sworn a deadly oath to follow and hound down the murderess. Gordon does not know that I am under Jenks' secret orders. There's a great mystery here to unravel! I'll post Jenks about Gordon's singular behavior! These letters,—that strange accident of the fire,—and he paid me off at that time! I have only the copies of the originals! I would swear to the handwriting, but it's gone forever!"

"Look here, Orton! Did it look like this?" said Seaton, his voice trembling with eagerness.

"That's the woman's handwriting, for my life." He was gazing at the Baltimore letter, from which Seaton had cut away the signature. "I have it, by Heaven!" Orton cried! "This woman did not know where Neill was till some accident revealed it! His forthcoming marriage may have reached the papers, or Gordon may have told her. I would like to get at the interior of Selfridge's house and see the picture of the beauty who lived there! But then, she sang here two years, and would have run against Neill any day! Gordon's coming seems to have precipitated the killing yet Neill was exposed all the while!"

It was late that night when the two men separated. "A word to Gordon, or any of his friends, and we are lost! Our interests are the same, Brayton! We must run this woman down and see her suffer the penalty! I will remain here till Jenks orders me off! Shall I write you, care of Walling?"

"Yes!"

"And you?"

"I am going to Paris to see Horace Jenks, and to keep out of Gordon's way!" answered Seaton, with a peculiar smile. "There's your money! You have earned it! You will give me every pointer! If you trace the woman, telegraph me, care of Walling, and I'll come at once! Now give me Jenks' Paris address, and your Chicago residence; I will communicate regularly!" And they separated for the night.

"Dare I trust myself?" Beverly Seaton ruminated next day. He had said good-bye to Orton, and had copies of the letters found on Neill, and also the Jenks epistle. All his belongings sent to the depot, he lingered near Dr. Selfridge's. At the usual professional hour, the Doctor drove away, piloted by the driver. An hour later Mrs. Selfridge stepped into her carriage for Anglican Prelates Disagree With Priest's Statements.

Churchmen at Halifax Say That the Reformation, So Far From Being a Plunge Into Materialism Was a Reaction From It—Honorary Degrees Are Conferred Upon Several Bishops and Mrs. Cummings.

Halifax, Sept. 9.—"Balmoral Castle, —I have read with much satisfaction the telegram which you have sent me on behalf of the Church of England in Canada, holding congress in Halifax, and I thank you most warmly for the assurance of loyalty to my throne, to which it gives expression.

(Sgd.) "George R.I."

This telegram was received at the conclusion of the luncheon given in Edge Hill College for Girls, at Windsor yesterday, to the members of the church congress, who went to attend the special convocation of King's College.

The reports of some of the speeches at the Montreal congress have aroused criticism, especially the statement that one-half of the Church of England was occupied with agnostics and politics, and the other half was going over to Rome as fast as it could.

"Not a word of truth in it," said one indignant Canadian bishop, not long elevated. The Bishop of London was seen but he laughingly put it aside as unworthy of serious notice. "It was Bishop Creighton, who was a much better scholar than I can profess to be," he remarked, "who said the reformation was a return to sound learning, and it will be found to be so. I heartily agree with him."

Dr. Ingram, perhaps, bore the matter in mind, for in his address after convocation, said: "We are not ashamed of the truths of the Church of England," was one of three points he dwelt upon. "I think I saw in the papers something about the Church of England going back to Rome. I couldn't help smiling. There is about as much chance of the church going back to Rome as there is of it going back to the Druids."

He thought there was more and more a turning of the sections of the church to each other, and they were learning to teach the great catholic, not Roman Catholic, truths.

After luncheon, Bishop Worrell called on Bishop Perrin of British Columbia, who made a strong appeal for holding the general synod in the west as soon as possible.

A petition has been circulated and largely signed, asking that next year's synod be held in Victoria. Dr. Perrin was positive that after the opening of the Panama Canal the Pacific coast would become the centre of Canadian life.

Canon Powell, formerly of North Toronto, the new president of King's College, looked the youngest man in the room, and a more picturesque ceremony than the convocation proceedings has never been enacted. A commencement had just been made, when the whole audience rose, and the aged Archbishop of Ottawa, clothed in purple and scarlet, crowned with his great mitre, and preceded by his cross-bearer, came in. This venerable prelate presently kneeled before the youthful array of color, in which scarlet predominated.

Degrees were conferred on Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts, in absentia; Bishop Alfred Harding, Washington; Bishop Brent, Philippine Islands; Chaplain-General Taylor Smith, Archbishop Matheson, primate of all Canada; Bishop Perrin, British Columbia; Hon. Edward Lyttelton, headmaster of Eton, in absentia; Archbishop Hamilton of Ottawa; the Bishops of London and Glasgow.

Two of the degrees conferred were of interest to Ontario people. Hubert Carlton was described as a leader of men, and Canon Powell referred to the fact that he had been of the same year at Trinity College. The degree of most unusual interest was that conferred on Mrs. Willoughby Cummings, and she was heartily cheered.

No Injury to Crops.

Brandon, Man., Sept. 9.—After one solid week of showers, each following in quick succession, the weather has cleared and the first warm sunshine since Sept. 1, was seen yesterday. By Monday next threshing operations will be resumed. Supt. Murray of the experimental farm, said that, while the grain was pretty well soaked, they did not anticipate any real injury.

Stockers and Feeders.

Harry Murby reports the trade for feeders as being brisk, and more choice steers around 900 to 1000 lbs. each would have sold. The stockers trade, that is, light weight steers around 600 to 700 lbs., was not as good as it might be, and several loads of this class were left unsold in the dealers' hands. Prospects point to a slightly easier trade this coming week, as the presence of a lot of farmer visitors at the market, who are attending the exhibition, had a tendency to inflate prices for the day. Mr. Murby bought 100 cattle as follows: Best steers, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, $5 to $5.40; best steers, 800 to 900 lbs. each, $4.85 to $5.25; best stockers, 600 to 700 lbs. each, $4 to $4.50.

Despite the efforts of the fire brigade this building was destroyed, together with the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Cheesewright. The Bank of Hamilton was almost burned. The buildings are partially covered by insurance. The fire is supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

Recalls Phoenix Park Murder.

Dublin, Sept. 9.—James FitzHarris, known as "Skin the Goat," who drove the cab containing the assassins of Lord Frederick Cavendish and T. H Burke to the scene of the crime in Phoenix Park, May 6, 1882, died in the workhouse yesterday.

The argument advanced in favor of a new phonograph which has its records in the form of endless belts is that it is possible to provide much longer selections than by the older methods.

WORKBAG AS A PRIZE.

It's Made of Chiffon and Is Very Dainty.

Have you seen the new chiffon workbags? They are novel, good looking and, more surprising yet, wear better than do silk ones. A girl has given one hard use for a year and a half, and it is still in good condition.

To make such a bag for a prize at a bridge party cut an oval bottom of stiff cardboard, dimensions 11 by 7 inches, with rounding ends. If the board is heavy enough one piece will answer. Generally two ovals are better. Cover first with cotton batting, then with white satin, and overcast the edges neatly together. Put under a weight to prevent warping.

The top is made from white chiffon over a color. Three-quarters of a yard of each color is required. Cut the pieces across from selvage to selvage and sew into the seams at each end.

Put the colored chiffon underneath and turn in the edge at the top to the depth of a quarter of an inch. Turn the bottom up into a quarter inch hem to give more body for the overcasting. Selvage is placed to selvage, but the chiffons are not sewed together.

Two inches from the top run an inch wide casing, sewed by hand, in silk to match the lining. Leave an opening through the selvage of white chiffon to insert drawstrings of inch wide double faced white satin ribbon. To open the bag to its full extent allow five yards of ribbon cut into two yard lengths.

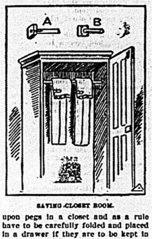
Overcast the bottom of the bag to the oval bottom and finish the top with half inch white cluny or valenciennes lace.

For a card party of half a dozen tables such bags would form handsome prizes if each one were made up in a different color, such as lavender and white, yellow and white, green, pink, blue and coral color, with ribbon and outer layer white.

Chiffon is used rather than chiffon cloth, but the latter will probably wear better, though not so fluffy. In selecting the chiffon get a good quality and make sure that both are the same width, as it simplifies the joining and lets the parts fall in more graceful folds when drawn up.

A Trouser Rail.

A handy contrivance that may be fitted up in a bedroom cupboard is illustrated here, and it will be found a great convenience and save considerable time and trouble. Trousers, like other garments, cannot well be hung upon pegs in a closet and as a rule have to be carefully folded and placed in a drawer if they are to be kept in shape and in good condition. This serves very well for those clothes that are not continually in use, but for garments that are often required it is an excellent plan to fix a rail across the top of a closet, over which the trousers may be folded and hung and kept in shape and free from dust and dirt.



SAVING CLOSET ROOM.

In an ordinary closet the rail may be easily fixed, and an old broom handle may be used for the purpose. It must, of course, be cut to fit across the inside of the cupboard, and then two screws run through the sides of the closet (the heads of the screws can be painted and not be visible) and into the ends of the rail will hold it firmly in its place, and the trousers may be hung over it in the manner shown in the picture and be ready at hand whenever they are required.

In a closet that is perhaps made in a recess in the wall it is a little more difficult to fix up a bar, but it may be done in the manner shown in the two small diagrams at the top of the sketch. A square block of wood should be screwed on to either end of the rail. The bar can then be fitted into its place and nails run through the block of wood and into the wall. A glance at the diagram will explain this.

A New Food Fad.

Are you drinking sour milk?

"Certainly not. That is food for pigs, not human beings," say you.

Professor Metchinkoff of Paris, with Dr. Osler to back him, says differently. These gentlemen declare drinking of sour milk will prolong life and cite the longevity of the people of eastern Europe, who live largely on this diet, to back them.

So every one is drinking sour milk, for life is a precious commodity, and the latest means of achieving it is cheap and convenient.

Like all other fads, moderation is desirable. An exclusive diet of sour milk is not to be advised. Indeed, do not start it without consulting your physician, as it may be just the food you should not take under any circumstances.

This diet is supposed to be beneficial to the kidneys and the stomach and to act as a sort of tonic.

A swimming suit for beginners which a Washington man has invented has a life preserver around the body, elastic bands to pull the legs forward and fins at the ankles that open as the feet are pushed backward.

BEST RATION FOR COACH STALLIONS.

According to a prominent breeder, there is nothing better than the usual stallion ration of oats and bran. Crushed oats mixed with about one-fourth as much bran by weight make a good combination. It is bulky, safe, nutritious and agreeable to the stallion's taste, digestion and requirements. A bran mash once or twice a week has for years been deemed desirable for its laxative effect unless the stallion has access to grass, but some of the leading practitioners condemn the weekly bran mash as conducive to colic.

Some owners prefer to depend entirely on cured feed throughout the season, but others equally successful esteem a few minutes' grazing daily at the halter or the run of a grass lot as very essential to the health and vigor of their stallions. The freedom of a roomy lot with a high strong fence is a splendid thing, grass or no grass.

The essential thing in the feeding is to furnish the horse abundant nourishment, keeping his system in vigorous, healthy form. Whatever grass is fed should be grazed by the horse. It is not safe to feed it in the barn, for almost surely some of it will at some time sour in the manger and produce trouble. It is better to graze the horse in the evening rather than in the morning.

Timothy hay is the safest kind to feed, and most of it should be fed long. If the horse bolts his grain cut some hay short and mix about two quarts of that with each feed of grain. The total amount of the grain feed per day should be about one pound for each hundred pounds that the horse weighs, but more should be given if he has a large amount of road work or is a hard keeper.

There is great variation in the requirements of different horses in this respect. Of hay he should have about a pound a day for each hundred pounds that he weighs, and little variation need be made from this rule unless he gets considerable grass.

Give the grain in three equal feeds, and give about half the hay at night and the rest divided between morning and noon. If strictly first class clover or alfalfa hay is available a little of it may be fed with evident benefit. A little oilmeal, not over a pound a day, is fed by some successful stallioners with good results.

FINE SET COACH STALLION.
[By courtesy of Iowa State college.]

It is doubtful if sufficient benefit follows the use of eggs to make it worth while to use them in most cases. If the horse appears to be poorly nourished and has a very large patronage there may be something gained by feeding them.

Men who feed eggs generally give two to four eggs beaten up in as many quarts of milk. To this may be added a double handful of oilmeal, first scalded, and the whole fed warm after supper.

Butter Hints.

In some parts of the country during the last fifteen years the price of grain has increased from 50 to 150 per cent, while dairy products have gone up only 25 per cent. It is not the dairyman who overcharges.

Pure bred cows pay the best, but not every pure bred cow is a good one. You must select among them the same as among scrubs, but the general average is higher and the pay better.

The sire is often said to be half the herd. If so, he should be a good one, and you can afford to have no other. Nor can you stand back on a little more cost. If the true value is there, money saved in cost is money lost.

The trouble with inbreeding is that without care it perpetuates the bad as well as the good points of the breed. This should be obviated by careful mating.

Lumps on Horses' Legs.

On the appearance of any lump about the legs of a horse it should be bathed diligently with water as hot as can be borne. What might develop into a spavin may sometimes in this way be checked at the start.

Oilmeal Is Valuable.

Two tablespoonfuls of oilmeal put in the horse's ground feed each time will keep the bowels relaxed and healthy, the appetite and spirit keen and the coat sleek. It is better than any condition powder.

To get the best results from shredded cocoanut when it is to be used in cake icing or candy, soak it for a half hour in warm water before adding.

Regular Habits

An Absolute Necessity For Good Health

You might as well expect to find a man or woman healthy with constipated bowels as to find a city healthy when its sewers are blocked with refuse.

Nature demands that the indigestible food and waste matter which collects in the lower bowels shall be got rid of at least once in twenty-four hours. If this is not done it decomposes, filling the bowels with poison, which is taken up into the blood and carried all through the body.

Naturally, this poison affects the work of every organ. The liver is deranged, digestion is upset, and biliousness, headaches, lassitude and dizzy spells follow.

Literally millions of people suffer these results of constipation without realizing the cause, or doing anything to remove it. Yet it can be removed, easily and with certainty, by using Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Take, for example, the case of Mr. George Andrews, Halifax, N.S., as he himself describes it:

"For many years I have been troubled with chronic constipation. This ailment never comes single handed, and I have been a victim to the many illnesses that constipation brings in its train. Medicine after medicine I have taken in order to find relief, but one and all left me in the same hopeless condition. At last I read about these Indian Root Pills. That was indeed a lucky day for me, for I was so impressed by the statements contained therein that I determined to give them a fair trial. They have regulated my stomach and bowels. I am cured of constipation and claim they have no equal as a medicine."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were first taken to cure constipation nearly a hundred years ago, and during the last half century they have been very extensively and very successfully used throughout the world. They are entirely vegetable in composition and do not sicken, weaken or gripe like mineral purgatives.

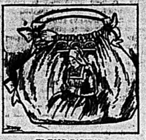
DELFT EMBROIDERY.

Smart Effects For Use in Summer Cottages.

Delft embroidery is new and is most attractive in its cool dullness of tone for the summer room. It is nearly all worked in dull blue of several shades upon a sort of coarse butcher's linen so nearly white that it can scarcely be called cream.

All of these bags are faced with the lighter of the three shades of blue and drawn up with corresponding ribbons.

It must be remembered that the choice of color is as important a factor in this work as is the design if the finished product is to resemble delft ware.



TO HOLD DARNING.

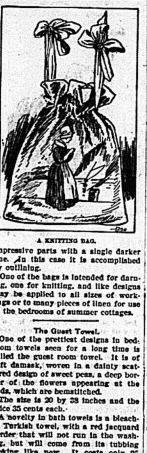
Varying but slightly in idea and general effect, the two bags show each a different little Dutch figure, one of them knitting, the other merely a face and both of them done in a combination of stitches, including outline, solid, skeleton, cat stitch and laid work.

They are used to their best advantage in the carrying out of each part of the design, as are also the several shades of blue.

Dutch figures similar to these are carried out in a whole line of art needlework, including larger bags for the family mending, laundry bags, bedroom hangings and couch cushions.

A prominent feature throughout the whole lot of this delft blue fancy work is the standing or seated figure of a woman knitting. She is characteristic of her country—a thrifty housemother providing for her family by primitive means.

All of these figures are treated by that method known to the decorative artist, a method that outlines its most impressive parts with a single darker line. In this case it is accomplished by outlining.



A KNITTING BAG.

One of the bags is intended for darning, one for knitting, and like designs may be applied to all sizes of workbags or to many pieces of linen for use in the bedrooms of summer cottages.

The Guest Towel.

One of the prettiest designs in bedroom towels seen for a long time is called the guest room towel. It is of soft damask, woven in a dainty scattered design of sweet peas, a deep border of the flowers appearing at the ends, which are hemstitched.

The size is 20 by 38 inches and the price 35 cents each.

A novelty in bath towels is a bleached Turkish towel, with a red jacquard border that will not run in the washing, but will come from its tubbing looking like new. It costs only 25 cents and measures 20 by 44 inches, a reasonable price.

The crossbar dimities and the self checked lawns are responsible for some of the daintiest looking pillowshams designed especially for summer use.

A rather large checked lawn, decorated with water lilies above a scalloped border, is thirty-two inches square and costs 85 cents. The scarf, 18 by 34, is the same price.

A second design is a grouping of daisies and bowknots set on above a pretty scroll pattern edge buttonholed, the material crossbar dimity. This is thirty-two inches square and costs 50 cents. The scarf is the same price.

Another pretty idea is a pillowsham of fine dotted swiss hemstitched to a wide border of sheer crossbar. Price 85 cents.

For the Tea Drinker.

Those women who are fastidious in regard to their tea will be interested in a new teapot that seems to have reached perfection. It is simple too. Inside the pot there is a tea ball, its chain passing through the knob on the cover of the pot. This ball is filled with tea and is drawn up into a hollow in the cover.

Freshly boiled water is poured into the pot, and the steam arising from it moistens the tea. After a few minutes the ball is lowered into the water, then raised when sufficient strength has been extracted—all this without lifting the lid of the pot.

Price in polished copper or nickel, $5.

Points for Mothers

What becomes of precocious children when they grow up? Nobody knows. It is a good thing that average gets hold of them or we would be a land overflowing with geniuses. There would be so many of them that common people would not be missed from the directory, says an exchange.

As a matter of fact, the men and women who are doing things when they are fifty years old are not the ones who were pointed out on children's day. Very often precocity is a flower that blooms early and withers early. Even the big men and women who stand out in history were commonplace children, while their precocious companions sleep in obscure graves. The most precocious thing George Washington did was to lay low the historic cherry tree, and this is more than duplicated each day by boys who never rise to dizzier pinnacles than school directors.

Too often the boy who stood at the head of the spelling class comes when he is forty years old to the boy who stood next to the end for a job. Congress has within its halls today men who didn't learn to read until twelve years of age. Life is not a dash and sprint, with the prize to the child who gets away from the starting line first, but is a day in day out Marathon, with the laurel to the one who keeps plugging along. More life meets are won by plugging than by sprinting.

So let the mother of the ordinary child up and clear her looks. Do not envy the precocious child of your neighbor. Rest secure in the knowledge that the precocious child across the street may be only a morning glory to dazzle for an hour, while your own child, with its glories yet unrevealed, may be a lily of the valley to gladden hearts for many days.

Overattention to Children.

Few mothers realize the risk of overcaution and overattention to their children after they are old enough to play and romp about. A child is happier with few and simple playthings than with a multitude of complicated toys. There is no such good fun or good training as making oneself useful in doing little things like work, and it is cruelty to deprive the child of this pleasure and stimulus. Let the brain and body be trained through hand, foot and eye. Give the boy a carpenter's bench; encourage the girls to do housework. Where possible let both boy and girl have a little garden patch, if only a few feet square, and the care of a few plants. A woman in her home, a man in his garden—this seems to be a fundamental type from which we cannot entirely depart without risk to body and mind. Cheerfulness, sincerity, industry, perseverance and unselfishness may be acquired by practice and constant repetition as much as the art of correct speaking or of playing the piano and are far more necessary to health.

The Manifestations Of Eye-Strain

Continued.

Iritis and cyclitis.—The intimate connection of the ciliary muscle with the iris would lead one to expect that strain of the former would have a perceptible effect on the causation of aggravation of iritis, and such is found to be the case. In recurrent iritis the deposit of exudate and the formation of fresh synechiae leave the eye worse off after each attack. Iridectomy, although much vaunted as the proper treatment, is not always successful. Removal of the eye-strain by correcting any existing errors is much better treatment, because the tendency to recurrence is diminished and often abolished, and in case of failure there is always the iridectomy to fall back upon.

Wedding of Popular Young Couple.

At 10 o'clock this morning a pretty wedding took place at the Baptist Church in this city and many, especially of the fair sex, were in attendance to witness the interesting ceremony. The bride was Miss Dora E. Wallace, daughter of Rev. R. Wallace of the Marchmont Home in this city, and the groom was Mr. Leonard H. Wilkes, who was for some time the popular physical director of the local Y. M. C. A. Rev. V. H. Cowsert, of Toronto, a former pastor of the Baptist Church, performed the ceremony. To the sweet strains of a wedding march played by Mrs. W. B. Deeton, the pianist of the church, the bride entered the sacred edifice leaning upon the arm of her father. She looked beautiful in a gown of cream silk colleine, tastefully trimmed. She also wore the traditional bridal veil adorned with orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. Whilst a bridesmaid and groomsman were dispensed with, little Miss Mary Hess, daughter of Mr. J. L. Hess of this city, was flower girl. She looked very pretty in a dress of white silk. She carried a basket of pink carnations. At the conclusion of the ceremony Miss Wanda Riggs sang sweetly and with much effect a solo entitled "Because." The wedding party then repaired to the home of the bride, where a sumptuous repast was partaken of. The popularity of the bride was evidenced by the large and varied gifts she was the recipient of. Many were handsome and costly. Mr. and Mrs. Wilkes left for a trip in the eastern part of the Province. They will return to the city for a few days before leaving for their future home at Lethbridge, Alberta. The numerous friends of the young couple in this city will unite with the Intelligencer in wishing for them a long, happy and prosperous voyage through life.

Wedding Bells

Willow Lodge, the home of Mr. R. E. Vivian, brother-in-law of the bride Shannonville, Ont. was the scene of a quiet wedding at 3 o'clock on Wednesday, Sept. 7th, when Mr. J. Geo Scroggie of Montreal, was united in marriage to Grace Irene Huff, youngest daughter of the late G. D. Huff, Prince Edward Co., by Rev. F. J. Anderson of Ameliasburg. The bride was tastefully attired in white silk trimmed with Irish crochet lace, and wore the traditional bridal veil and orange blossoms, her only ornament being a handsome chain and locket, the gift of the groom, and she carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The young couple were unattended. The wedding march was very capably rendered by Mrs. Jas. D. Ford, of Belleville, an intimate friend of the family. Congratulations being over, a dainty repast was partaken of, after which the bridal party left on the five o'clock train for Toronto and points west. Later on they will take up their residence in Westmount, Montreal.

The guests from a distance were Mr. Ernest Scrogie, of Montreal and Dr. D. H. Houston, of Seattle.

The bride was attended by her two sisters, Misses Bessie and Olive as bridesmaids, while Mr. Charles W. Thorley attended the groom as best man. After the ceremony the happy couple left for Belleville to spend a few days with the bride's parents, after which Mr. and Mrs. Gardner will return to Toronto, to take up their future home.

Oldest Married Couple In Prince Edward Co.

James Barker Cronk, born June 26, 1818, and Mincha Vanhorn, born April 19, 1823, were married over sixty five years ago. They have lived on the old Abram Cronk homestead in Grassy Point ever since their marriage. Two sons were born to them, A. W. Cronk, being born January 21st, 1847, and H. S., eleven years later. All are alive and enjoying good health except the mother, who fell two years ago injuring her right hip badly and since has had to use a crutch, otherwise they are enjoying life grandly for people of their age, both mentally and physically. It is doubtful if there is another couple living in Ontario who have enjoyed companionship so long.

EVILS OF MODERNITY

Father Vaughan Addresses Large Assembly of Women.

Popular English Cleric Flays Society For Its Departure From Church—Line of Cleavage Is Between Catholicism and Materialism—Civic Reception to Prelates In Montreal Is a Splendid Affair.

Montreal, Sept. 9.—One of the most interesting meetings of the congress was that at which Rev. Father Vaughan, Miss Sadlier and others addressed the women yesterday. The hour scheduled was 2.30 p.m., but for an hour and a half prior to that time the ladies began to pour in.

Admission was by ticket, and hundreds were disappointed in not being able to secure the desired parchment. Brothers of the Christian schools performed the no easy task of collecting the tickets of the on-coming women, but so patient and courteous were the guardians of the inner precincts that things ran on smoothly, despite the eagerness of the ladies. Father Vaughan is easily one of the chief attractions of the congress, and the desire to hear him is almost as keen as that with which the thousands seeks for a glimpse of the greater ecclesiastics now gathered.

The fact that the meeting was under the auspices of the weaker sex was guarantee for the tastefulness of its environment. The pretty platform was draped with the papal flag, and potted ferns and foliage adorned the footlights. While the seating was in progress the ladies, true to their reputation, chatted incessantly and tried to squeeze themselves into every available cogn of vantage.

CARDINAL GIBBONS.

When the meeting opened the platform contained a goodly number of churchmen, amongst whom were several bishops and archbishops, wearing their long red cloaks, and adding to the picturesqueness of the scene. In the audience were many of the visiting and resident priests and members of the different teaching communities, the black garb and quaint head-dress of the sisters making striking though sombre notes amongst the brighter dresses and becoming coifures of the ladies who composed the greater part of the audience.

Some of the things that Father Vaughan said were: "We are living in a day when high ideals are yielding to the pressure of creature comforts, when principle is being exchanged for expediency; in a day when self-sacrificing Catholicism is being bartered for self-centered materialism, and the Christian sense of sin is regarded as a bygone superstition, in a day when it matters not what you believe, but only what you do, and when you may do what you like, provided you are not found out; in a day when the relationship between the sexes takes one back to pagan times, while the garbage over which they gloat is more foul and loathing than the stuff about which they chatter; in a day when there is no empty place but in the cradle, no room in which to move but the churches.

"In a word, the cleavage to-day, as in no previous time since the dawn of Christianity, is between God and mammon, or, shall I say in language more definite, between Catholicism and agnosticism, if not materialism."

If numbers and enthusiasm are tests of loyalty, then was the reception of the Pope's legate at the City Hall last night one of the most loyal that can be grasped by even the most vivid imagination. The hour appointed was 8.30 o'clock, but long before that time, the square and avenue surrounding the great civic institution presented an appearance comparable to nothing but a sea of living humanity.

Cardinal Gibbons, who arrived yesterday from Baltimore, Md., was present during the first part of the evening and, leaving early, was escorted by police and uniformed officers down one of the grand stairways. At first the cardinal was not recognized, red caps and crimson cloaks are so common in Montreal just now, but when someone whispered "There's Cardinal Gibbons" the whisper went round, and a cheer for America's Cardinal was given.

Mgr. Gibbons extends an invitation to the Eucharistic Congress to visit New York City when it next meets.

A sight probably never before witnessed by those who were present in the vicinity of St. James' Church yesterday morning, was that of fully three thousand members of religious orders, who filled the church at the solemn mass said for their special benefit. Curious to many, though not to Montreal, must have been the numerous black robed and white bonneted sisters of charity, the grey-gowned nuns of the Hotel Dieu, the brown-garbed Franciscan, with the cord of St. Francis girding his habit and the sandals alone covering the bare feet. The seminary, in their picturesque cloak and round hat, were out in force, so too were the secular priests from all over the American continent.

From the sanctuary the papal legate addressed the multitude, every ear being bent to receive his message. His grace of Montreal also added encouraging words of appreciation and encouragement. The sanctuary was a scene of beauty, the gorgeous scarlet and gold of the vestments and the costly appointments of the altar being in strong contrast with the sombre garbed congregation, who feasted on its beauty.

There was a very successful demonstration yesterday at the church of the Italian colony, Dorchester street east, some 2,000 sons and daughters of sunny Italy gathered to do honor to the Pope's legate. Cardinal Vannutelli was moved to tears as a little school girl presented a bouquet.

His eminence, speaking in Italian, declared that at no recent eucharistic congress held in the old world, had the Pope's representative been received with such open-handed enthusiasm as has been the case since the legate landed on Canadian shores.

Two Captains Have Typhoid.

London, Sept. 9.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In concluding his address to the Queen's Own Rifles of Toronto, at Winchester, the Duke of Connaught said:

"In his Majesty's name, I assure you of the very great pleasure and satisfaction it has been to him to know that you have been the first of his troops from over the seas to take part with his regular troops in peace manoeuvres. I wish you every success here and hope you will have a happy return to Canada, to be welcomed with open arms there."

A $60,000 Wedding Dress.

Newport, R.I., Sept. 9.—A mere trifle of $60,000 for a wedding dress is by no means an extraordinary expenditure, according to Miss Irene Sherman, who will become the bride of Lawrence L. Gillespie to-day. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Watts Sherman of Ochre Point, leading members of the millionaire set, and her wedding will be one of the events of the waning season here.

The wonderful dress is made in princess style of ivory satin aurore, with a profusion of almost priceless Alencon lace. She has already received wedding presents valued at upwards of a million dollars.

Gasoline Exploded in Boathouse.

Windsor, Sept. 9.—As the result of a gasoline explosion in a boathouse Wednesday night, a launch owned by William Humphries and Clark Deneau was badly damaged by fire, and several members of a boating party narrowly escaped serious injury.

Deneau and Humphries were making some repairs to the launch preparatory to taking it out on the river, when the explosion occurred. Two members of the party were scorched by the flames and saved themselves by plunging into the river. The fire department extinguished the flames.

Transcontinental for Australia.

Melbourne, Sept. 9.—Hon. Mr. Fisher, in delivering his budget speech announced the construction of a great transcontinental railway, to cost $200,000,000. Incidentally, he extended a cordial welcome to British immigrants.

Pressing Need for Workers.

London, Sept. 9.—Rev. Douglas Ellison of Regina has sent a pressing letter asking for workers, and pointing out the difficulty the archbishops' council is encountering in finding men who can go immediately.

Locke on the Empire.

London, Sept. 9.—At the librarians' conference in Exeter, Dr. Locke of Toronto made an interesting speech on "The Empire," urging that Canada should be more closely allied to the Mother Country.

Bread or potatoes should never be put in the mouth at the same time as fish, especially by children, or it will be difficult to detect bones in the fish, and they may be swallowed by mistake.

For the Children

Boy Horsemen Who Took a Long Ride.

Louis and Temple Abernathy, aged nine and six respectively, recently completed a horseback trip that extended most of the way across the continent. The boys are sons of Jack Abernathy of Oklahoma, noted wolf catcher and friend of former President Roosevelt. They made the trip from Oklahoma to New York to greet Mr. Roosevelt on his return to this country. They covered about 2,000 miles and arrived at New York in good health and fine spirits. On their way they stopped at Washington and were received by President Taft.

The youngsters are expert horsemen and made the trip without a mishap. When it is remembered that Temple Abernathy is only six years old, hardly more than a baby, the feat seems truly a remarkable one.

The Menagerie Man.

Each of the players except two takes the name of an animal, such as lion, leopard, panther, monkey, etc. One of the two remaining is called the buyer and the other the seller. The seller is supposed to own a menagerie, so he traces an imaginary cage upon the ground and puts his beasts into it. The buyer then comes to the menagerie and pretends to knock at the door.

The seller asks, "Who knocks?" The buyer replies, "A merchant." The seller asks, "What do you want?" The buyer says, "To buy an animal." The seller then asks, "How much will you pay for it?" The buyer then mentions some price, say $10.

The seller then invites the buyer to enter, asking him at the same time what kind of an animal he wishes to buy. If an animal is mentioned that the showman has he tells it to run out, at which it runs away from the cage. Before the buyer may run after it he has to pay the price agreed upon, and this he does by giving as many taps on the hand of the seller as he has mentioned dollars. He then pursues the animal he has bought. If it can get back to the cage without being caught it takes a new name. If it is caught the buyer pretends to cut off its ears, after which it is considered to be a dog. The dogs have to help catch the other animals. The game ends when all the players have been caught and become dogs.

It is hardly necessary to say that this is a boys' game and should be played out of doors.

GREAT CROWD ATTENDS MASS IN THE OPEN AIR.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 10.—Seventy-five thousand persons attended the Pontifical Mass Celebration in the open air in Fletcher's Field this morning. SIR FREDERICK AGREES.

He Approves of Suggestions In Gen. French's Report.

Toronto, Sept. 10.—Gen. French's report on the condition of the Canadian militia meets with the approval of Sir Frederick Borden, and in the latter's opinion, it will be as warmly endorsed by the members of the militia themselves.

The Minister of Militia so declared himself at the Exhibition directors' luncheon.

Sir Frederick, referring to the fore cast of Gen. French's report published yesterday, said the report had not yet been given to the press.

"Not having read this particular report, I cannot say how good a guess has been made. I believe it has been kept strictly within the knowledge of four gentlemen besides myself, and no one connected with the press or outside has seen it."

The speaker added that the reason for withholding the report was to await the return of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The Governor-General, before starting on his northern trip had said, "Of course the report cannot be given out until the Prime Minister returns," will prove satisfactory.

"The only thing I have to say in advance is that I approve of every word, and certainly every idea expressed in that report, and I believe that the militia generally will approve of it," he continued. "Gen. French was not brought here for the purpose of handing us taffy, but for the purpose of looking at the militia from an independent standpoint, and for the purpose of pointing out weak points of the militia so that they might be corrected and the militia made stronger."

In some quarters it was charged that Canada was given to undue militarism, but the country was only spending 18 cents per head of population on the militia. Others complained of militarism in the schools, but the training was limited to physical drill and a little rifle practice. Militarism consisted of a great standing army.

Shakespeare's Irishman.

An Englishman and an Irishman were having an argument on the subject of Shakespeare. "I defy you," said the former, "to find a single Irish character in the whole of his works."

"Well, I can give you two, at all events," replied the Irishman—"Miss O'Phelia and Corry O'Lanus."

He forgot Hamlet's intimate friend, who stood beside him while he was contemplating his uncle in devotion, and observed, "How could I do it, Pat, while he was praying?"

LOCAL OPTION PLANK.

Ontario Grits Adopt It at Their Annual Meeting.

Toronto, Sept. 10.—There will be no provincial Liberal convention for some time, but meanwhile Hon. A. G. MacKay is willing to do all that he can to put life into the party in this province.

"We can't win in the elections unless we have our candidates in the field in reasonably good time," he told the Ontario General Reform Association, in annual meeting yesterday. "And I will personally agree, if necessary, to attend conventions in every one of the 106 ridings before the next election. My time will be at the disposal of the party. But above all things, the party, in or out of power, should take solid and emphatic ground upon every question, and it will be inevitable that good results will accrue to its members and adherents, and to the province at large.

"I should like to see every Liberal candidate in the field before we meet next year. Indeed all ought to be on hand before the printing of the lists in June."

Mr. MacKay, referring to matters of policy, favored standing by local option as against a campaign for prohibition of the liquor traffic.

"The local option movement," said he, "which is a Liberal measure, is admitted by temperance men to be the best thing that the province has ever had. It insures a union of all temperance factors. There has been a slight demand in Ontario for the provincial convention to create a provincial issue on the question of temperance, and on the local option side of the case the candidate can stand on solid ground."

Must Not Read Newspapers.

Rome, Sept. 10.—Pope Piux X. has issued a motu proprio giving new and practical measures to be adopted against the growing modernist campaign. The pontiff reiterates all of the rules previously set forth against modernism, especially in the encyclical pascendi, and adds that the bishops and the rectors of the Catholic colleges must watch attentively the development of the young clergy, seeing to it that they are well prepared to fight error, forbidding them to read newspapers and periodicals, and avoid distracting them from their studies.

Do you know that sometimes the most careful washing will not remove the flavor and odor of food from the utensil in which it was cooked?

This is frequently the case with fish, onion, cabbage, etc., but there is a remedy which may be a little trouble and yet is well worth trying. After any of these articles have been cooked wash the utensil well with soap and water. Then nearly fill it with cold water and for each quart of water add one tablespoonful of dissolved washing soda.

Place on the fire and let the water get boiling hot. Now pour the water into the sink. Rinse the utensil with clean water, and on wiping it dry it will be found perfectly sweet.

BRAKEMAN IS BLAMED

Durand Wreck Laid at Door of George W. Graham.

As Result of Coroner's Inquest Into Disaster to Chicago Train, Either Trainman or the Railroad May Be Prosecuted on Manslaughter Charge —Engineer Spencer Is Censured, But No Blame Is Attached to Him.

Durand, Mich., Sept. 10.—The coroner's jury sitting on the Grand Trunk wreck of Aug. 24, in which ten lives were lost, brought in a verdict charging Brakeman George W. Graham of train No. 14 with gross negligence and laying on his shoulders the responsibility for the wreck.

Engineer Spencer of train No. 4 was censured for not having seen the lights of train No. 14, but no blame was attached to him.

The jury accused Graham of not properly flagging train No. 4 and not taking proper precautions to prevent a wreck.

It is not known what further steps will be taken, but the State Railway Commission will now probably take up the matter and may accuse either the G.T.R. or Graham of manslaughter.

Old Law Revived.

Quebec, Sept. 10.—The Provincial Treasury was increased by $1,500, fifteen women having been fined each $100 and costs for selling liquor without a license.

A sensation has just been sprung among the liquor license-holders of the City of Quebec. A law very old, yet never put into force, prescribes that licenses are only granted to hotel-keepers and restaurant-keepers, and the law respecting the latter is as follows:

"A restaurant is an establishment where, in consideration of payment, food (without lodging) is habitually provided, and where intoxicating liquors are sold." Section 100 of the license law provides that every restaurant must be suitably furnished to provide meals for at least ten persons at the time."

Defending Winchester.

Passmore, Corporals Freeman and New, Privates H. M. Dunn, P. Newton, Hammond, McRae, W. P. Muir, Stickney, Forsythe and J. Scroggie.

The Queen's Own, with the second division, arrived for manoeuvres on Thursday. Not a man fell out during the whole march despite the heat.

It is a fact, however, that several were very footsore. On Wednesday night one officer's feet were almost raw, but he marched again next day.

At every centre of population the Canadians got a hearty reception.

Yesterday the Queen's Own participated in the defence of Winchester.

Tried to Import Aliens.

Niagara Falls, Sept. 10—Morris Landenski, Hamilton, was given the alternative of paying a $300 fine or spending three months in jail at hard labor by Magistrate Fraser yesterday, upon conviction on a charge of aiding immigrants to enter Canada illegally. Three men he attempted to bring in, Sam Greenburk, Henry Handelsmann and William Schmitmann, were dismissed. Later they were charged with attempting to gain an entrance to the country after having been rejected by the immigration official Thursday.

Landenski swore that he had been sent from Hamilton Thursday to bring men into the country to act as strike-breakers for the Copley Co. of Hamilton, whose employes are now out on strike with the garment workers.

Halifax Congress Ends.

Annapolis, N.S., Sept. 10.—Here, on the very spot where the lilies of France and the leopards of Britain contended two hundred years ago for the sovereignty of the western world, on the spot where the English history and the civilization of Canada began, were celebrated yesterday the culminating ceremonies of the magnificent bicentenary celebration, that has made the present week an historical landmark not less important, if less outwardly spectacular, than the gorgeous and ever-memorable tercentenary of Quebec.

An Amorous Magistrate.

New York, Sept. 10.—On charges that he caressed 18-year-old May Hickey, who visited his chambers in connection with a case on trial, Police Magistrate E. Gaston Higginbotham was yesterday held for trial in $1,000 bail.

Higginbotham denied the girl's accusations, and when the district attorney began to cross-examine, refused to answer, claiming that he was exempt under the law.

The Claims Were Absurd.

Our neighbors have been defeated in their main contentions on the fishery question. Those who have followed their arguments as discussed from time to time in The Mail and Empire will not be surprised that such is the case. The two principal claims advanced by them were most extraordinary from whatever standpoint they were viewed. In the first place, it was declared that, because Britain has granted United States fishermen the right to fish in certain Canadian and Newfoundland waters, she has renounced the power to regulate the fishing operations in those waters by United States citizens.

Thus, while Canada and Newfoundland are at liberty to order their own people to be careful of the industry, to avoid the use of destructive machines, and to fish at certain times, and within certain limits, they cannot ask the United States fishermen to observe these rules. The voluntary grant to the United States fishermen of the privilege of catching fish in British waters places these people above the law, and takes from the owners of the fisheries all right to regulate the manner in which the operations shall be conducted. This pretension is so preposterous that it is surprising it should have been put forward. Its absurdity is all the more noticeable when it is pointed out that it is at variance with the instructions issued from Washington, in other days, to the fishermen of the United States. These advices invariably stated most distinctly that the citizens taking fish in British waters were subject to the rules which the native fishermen were required to observe. It is not at all astonishing that the Hague Tribunal should have refused to treat the United States' claim seriously. The second point—that in which Canada is chiefly interested—had to do with what is known as the headland question. Along the coast of the United States the great bays and gulfs are regarded as belonging to that country, and not as open sea. Chesapeake Bay, Delaware Bay, Cape Cod Bay, in fact all the arms of the sea, are territorial waters of the Republic. But, according to the Washington contention, the same rule does not apply to Canada. All the bays and gulfs in Canada are parts of the sea, and not territorial waters, and being parts of the sea, United States fishermen are free to enter them and to carry on their fishing operations there. This claim, in view of the position of the United States towards the gulfs and bays of that country, was entirely unjustified, and it is strange that it should have been insisted upon.

On the two points mentioned Canada is victorious. The victory, however, is not really one of to-day. It dates back to the year 1888, when Mr. Joseph Chamberlain and Sir Charles Tupper negotiated the fishery treaty which the Senate of the United States rejected. That treaty deals with the question of gulfs and bays in language that is identical with that now employed on the same subject by The Hague Tribunal. Apparently the acceptance by the United States diplomats who helped to frame that treaty of the view advanced by Mr. Chamberlain, and notably by Sir Charles Tupper, helped to bring about the judgment that establishes the Canadian contention.—Mail and Empire.

PATTERSON—CARTWRIGHT.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Cartwright, of Reid, Township of Thurlow, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 7, when their eldest daughter, Myrtle Claire was united in marriage to Mr. John B. Patterson, of Stirling, by the Rev Mr. Kemp. The drawing-room was beautifully arranged with flowers and an arch of white and green decorations. To the strains of the Wedding March, played by Miss Fern Reid, of Tweed, the bride entered with her father, passing down an aisle of white ribbons held by two dainty tots—Miss Theda Mott and Master Russell Pitman. The bride wore a beautiful white silk gown, trimmed with lace and ribbon, tulle veil and orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. Miss Wanda Reid, sister of the bride, was prettily gowned in pink mull, and carried an ornamental basket of pink and white asters. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold crescent brooch set with pearls, and to the flower girl a gold ring. After the ceremony the guests, about sixty in all, repaired to a large tent on the lawn, which was nicely decorated with flowers and foliage, where a delightful repast was served, the waiters, dressed in white, being several of the girl friends of the bride. The guests included several from a distance—Mr. and Mrs. Albert Reid, of Oakland, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Bailey, of Anson. Mr. and Mrs. Martin Reid, of Thurlow, and other friends from Rawdon Mr. and Mrs. Patterson left that evening for Toronto and Niagara. The bride's travelling costume was old rose with hat to match. They will reside in Sterling.

A NEW DEPARTURE IN STEEL.

To those who avocation necessitates the use of steel tools probably the most unique and interesting exhibit at the Toronto International Exhibition was that made by the Canadian Malleable Iron and Steel Company in the machinery building. It consisted of a large variety of wood-working steel tools, from a small chisel to the huge planer knife, made from the new Henderson Process steel. The exhibit was daily thronged by tool-workers, metal-experts and others interested in scientific progress, and wonderment at the marvellous achievement and the possibilities of the process was freely expressed.

All previous processes for the production of steel from mined ore are of an indirect nature, requiring a vast amount of time, labor and money expenditure, but by the Henderson New Method the iron is treated intact and transformed into the highest grade of steel in about four hours. This is not a case-hardening process, as some who have not tested the tools might suppose, but the genuine elimation of impurities and the impregnation of the necessary carbon to the highest degree of perfection.

The uses of high-grade steels, whether carbon or alloy, are almost innumerable, comprising hundreds of different wood-working tools, taps, dies, drills, etc. The steel from which they are used is refined from pig iron at a great expense of labor and fuel. The makers of fine steels begin with the pig, smelted from the best ore possible, which costs about 5 per cent more than coke pig. This is smelted in a reverberatory furnace and puddled, that is stirred up by puddlers while molten in order to expose the metal to the oxygen of the blast. This puddling is continued until the material becomes pasty, then tough, and finally pulverulent. The air is then shut off and the furnace raised to a sufficient temperature to render the metal pasty. It is then taken out on the end of rods called blooms and rolled into muck bars. These bars are re-heated in a reverberatory furnace and rolled into longer, thinner bars. These again are cut up, re-heated and forged, and the operation is repeated as often as three or four times, when it is assumed that the metal is sufficiently free from sulphur and phosperous to be cut up into small sections, placed in crucibles with a definite quantity of carbon, or alloy, melted and poured into ingots for forging into the required forms. The cost of this operation, including, as it does the value of the pig, the puddling fuel, the fuel for the several re-heatings, the crucible melting, and the labor that the process requires, is excessive, but only adequate to the means necessarily employed in the production. Is it any wonder then that the price of high grade steels, including carbon and alloy, ranges from 25c to 75c per pound, and even higher when adapted to special uses.

With the Henderson Method the iron is purified and recarbonized with one process in about four hours time "What does this mean?" It will revolutionize the steel manufacture of the world.

Since the days of Tuban Cain it has been the dream of metallurgists and scientists to evolve a more simple and less expensive method of steel production than has hitherto been known. Millions have been spent on experiments and chemical laboratory resources have been exhausted without attaining the desired result, until the Henderson Process, so recently discovered, has brought realization to the dream of centuries in the time-saving simplicity of manufacture and the superiority of the product.

The original experiments with this new method were commenced less than one year ago, but with almost the first trial perfection was reached. Exhaustive and crucial tests have since been made with the tools manufactured from the new steel and the result has been of the most satisfactory nature, the achievements showing a greater degree of perfection than was ever conceived by the discoverer of the process. There is practically no limit to the uses to which the new steel can be put and the natural reduction which this process will make in the cost will introduce steel into many operations where other materials is now used.

For wood-working tools and machinery it is specially adaptable and the tests made in this direction have fully demonstrated to those who were at first skeptical that the tools produced will perform all that is claimed for them, outlasting and requiring less frequent sharpening than those made from any other steel. Planer-knives made from this steel have been in constant use for several months in some of the largest wood-working establishments in Toronto and have not shown the slightest degree of impairment, a fact fully substantiated by testimonials of the users. These facts are rapidly becoming known and since the opening of the Toronto Exhibition orders have been taken to equip upwards of one hundred Canadian wood working establishments were planer knives.

All other wood-working tools down to the finest chisel are just as efficient. Interesting tests were made during the Exhibition. Chisels made from ordinary railway spikes were driven into hemlock and hardwood knots and when withdrawn the edge was keen enough to shave hairs from the back of the hand with the same ease as a freshly honed razor. Tools made from this steel can be so finely tempered that they will cut glass with the facility of a diamond, yet despite their great hardness they are in no wise brittle.

The same satisfactory result has been reached with iron-working tools of all descriptions, and in fact any edged tool, no matter what material it may be required for, has been found to be equally efficient when treated with the Henderson Process.

The works and laboratories of the Company are at 32 Humberside Avenue, Toronto, where demonstrations are made daily. Those interested are cordially invited to visit the establishment. If they will bring their own iron, and have time to remain for four hours, they can take away the piece of steel into which it has been converted and subject it to any reasonable test they may choose. Everything that is claimed for these goods has been accomplished and a thorough examination and investigation by tool-users and machinery workers is invited.

Prospects For The Fair Are Promising.

That the Belleville Fair which will be held here on Tuesday and Wednesday next, will be one of the best, if not the best ever held here, seems to be an assumed fact. The entries already received are far in excess of any previous year, so we are informed by Mr. R. H. Ketcheson, the Secretary. The merchants of the city are also taking an active interest and will no doubt, make a most creditable display in the main building.

At Rest.

The funeral of Miss Dorothy E. R Parker took place yesterday afternoon from the residence of her grandmother, Mrs. C. J. Bowell, Albert street. The Rev. Rural Dean Beamish conducted the services, during which Miss Jessie Phillips sang "Angels Ever Bright and Fair" and Mrs. A. P. Allen, "Till We Meet Again."

The pall bearers were—Master Gordon Murray, Master Jas. Lindsay, Master Earl Graham and Master Horace E. Yeomans.

The floral tributes to this popular and much-beloved little Miss were as follows:

Roberts, Cross; Miss C. Rose, Spray; Mr. and Mrs. Sulman Spray; Mrs. and Miss Murdoff, Bowmanville, Spray; Mr. Bowell "Gates Ajar" and Wreath; Miss F. Cocuret; Spray. Summer Time A Time of Danger

Summer time is a time of danger to all babies—but more especially to those living in the towns and cities where the heat is so excessive so as to make it almost impossible to keep baby's food in proper condition. It is then that the little one suffers from those stomach and bowel troubles that carry off so many precious little lives During the summer the mother must be especially careful to keep baby's stomach sweet and pure and his bowels moving regularly. No other medicine will be of such great aid to mothers in summer as Baby's Own Tablets These little Tablets never fail to regulate the bowels; sweeten the stomach and make baby well and happy. Mrs. D. Delvin, St. Sylvester East, Que., says: "Ithink Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine for little ones for stomach and bowel troubles and I would not be without them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

An Attractive Store.

Symons' Ladies Store, situated on Front Street, opposite Victoria Avenue is certainly attractive in appearance and will no doubt receive the liberal patronage which it justly deserves. Coats, Suits, Skirts, Waists, etc., for ladies' wear are to be seen in the best of material and up-to-date in style and manufacture. In addition to the above the firm carries a complete and well assorted line of infants' and children's wear. A visit to this new store will no doubt repay intending purchasers.

No hypodermic injections, no bad after effects, no poisonous drugs, no substitutive stimulants—a treatment so harmless that any child could take it.

The food for all folks

For old and young, in any season, in any clime, Shredded Wheat is the one perfect food. It contains all the rich, body-building nutriment of the whole wheat, made digestible by steam-cooking, shredding and baking. In the summer is a healthful and satisfying substitute for heavy meats and soggy pastries. It costs much less, tastes good, and is far more nourishing. Its continued daily use keeps the system in perfect trim and the brain clear and active.

SHREDDED WHEAT BISCUIT

Because of its porous shreds and its biscuit form, Shredded Wheat makes delicious combinations with berries, grated pineapple, sliced peaches, bananas, baked apples or other fruit, fresh or preserved. For breakfast heat the biscuit in the oven to restore crispness and serve with milk or cream, adding salt or sugar to taste. It is far better than mushy porridges or ordinary breakfast foods.

The ...Veiled Lady...

an afternoon drive. In ten minutes Beverly Seaton sent in his new professional card to Dr. Selfridge. "Mr. Arthur Brayton."

"Out, Sah!" the pompous colored butler replied, recognizing a southern gentleman in Beverly's manner.

"I'll wait a little while,—the Doctor might return!"

"Oh, yes, Sah!" and Beverly gazed at the interior of the drawing-rooms. Here, poor Neill came to his last interview with Gordon. Here, in some way, a secret lurked; tying him to the awful mystery of the unpunished murder!"

Suddenly his eye rested on a photograph of a royally beautiful woman. Traced on the back was the word "Irene." The lovely singer, yes! Now if another were in the room! Quietly turning over the mass of decorative articles at hand, Seaton found a second picture! The first in evening costume—the second in walking dress. "It's disgraceful, but I must have this," and he thrust the last under his hat. He took his leave shortly. Half an hour later Beverly Seaton left St. Louis on the first available train. "Orton might be spying on me! I must throw him off? Does Jenks know anything of Neill's past life? How could Gordon be entangled in this mystery? He deems my sister dead!

Arriving wearied and harassed at New York, Seaton sought repose. "Hannibal! Give me my letters!" He turned them over idly. A few constrained words from Gordon at his regimental headquarters, and a hearty "good-bye" from Maxwell awaited him. "I go to the Platte in six months,—you must come and see me, Beverly, and forget any past coolness!" Throwing himself on his bed, he lay with half-closed eyes, watching Hannibal arranging his travelling effects.

"Yes, Sah! Dat's jest de way Miss Beatrice looked the other night! It's her picture, shu'ah, every inch!" Seaton grasped the negro by the hand, and quietly took the picture away from him. Locking it in a dispatch box, he buried his throbbing temples in the pillows. "Fool that I am to dream that Irene Hope could be Beatrice Seaton,—now lost forever. But Gordon was a stranger to Irene Hope, —the mere friend of a few weeks! And know both these women?" Seaton woke to weariness and a return of his fever; while far away, Gordon, in winter quarters, with dismay in his heart, read Selfridge's letter: "Mrs. Mason writes me that she has not even heard of Irene in Paris! It is astounding! I fear some serious happening!" Jack Gordon, dropping the letter, murmured: "God help me! Am I going mad?"

CHAPTER VII.

"Hannibal!" said Seaton, three weeks later, as he wearily looked out of a window of the Brevoort House. "I am strong enough now to travel! I am going to send you back to Seaton Hall. Colonel Lomax will take care of you till I return. I am going to Europe! It's no place for you! You cannot speak the language! you'd be no use there! You would be lost in New York!"

The obedient black rolled his eyes, and humbly said: "Yes, Sah! I guess he's gwing to make it up with Miss Beatrice," the unsuspicious negro thought. He was glad to go home to "ole Virginny."

Seaton directed the negro in the packing of his extra luggage, and in two days his preparations were finished. Seated alone, the night before he sailed, he gazed into the fire. Hannibal had just mailed a letter from him to Maxwell, and one to Gordon, briefly announcing his departure for an extended European tour, giving his address as "The American Exchange, Paris." Hannibal would bear his final instructions to Colonel Lomax.

Leaning his head on his thin hands, he ruminated: "I must find my poor sister! I must guard and save her!" He gazed earnestly on the stolen picture of Irene Hope. "This cannot be she! Yet, eight years ago she was a child. If I could only hear her voice; if I could meet her! But this negro must be kept in the dark! I am rid of him now; one danger the less! I must keep close to this Jenks! If he finds Irene Hope, I will be there to protect my sister! Are there two women; one a stranger, one the singer? Did Irene Hope get the ring from my sister? Can she be the little Beatrice I left nine years ago?" The faded primitive protograph showed him no positive sign. It was blurred and shaded. "Why did Jack Gordon lie about this ring? Had he met the woman who really owned it last? Did my sister sell it? Was it stolen? Right or wrong, I'll stay by Jenks!"

To the sound of Hannibal's blubbering, "Good-bye, Massa!" Seaton went out on the wilds of waste waters, in search of a singer, a murderess and a lost sister. While Seaton daily neared the shores of France, Jack Gordon, gloomy and silent, in his quarters, read a hundred times a brief letter from Paris, and coupled it with Dr. Selfridge's despondent complaints. Gordon knew not that the Regimental Surgeon had full private advices from his brother at St. Louis.

"I can't make out what's come over Gordon,' the genial Doctor wrote, "He was gloomy as the grave the last day he was here. We have no letter yet from Irene! Mrs. Mason has failed to find her! Was there any bitter estrangement between these two young hot-heads? Watch Gordon, and let me know!" The officers of the rollicking "Mess" deplored Jack Gordon's self-isolation! Stern and attentive, he missed no punctilio of duty, and gravely folded his life in a cloak of silence. Jovial Gordon was a changed man. Even the merry Jackson lamented his masters' strange manner.

"Mass' John's been mightily soured by that long sick spell!" The dark foster-brother redoubled his culinary efforts, and all his small arts of pleasing. No smile broke over Gordon's clouded face; for as weeks rolled on, he had but one brief letter, now crumpled with manifold reading. Its words of little cheer were:—

"I am going to Dresden, Berlin and Milan, to examine the systems of local instruction. I may not remain here. The climate is trying to the voice. I will decide soon. Write to the Bank. There are many eyes on any American student here. Remember we have a secret to keep. Remember, you solemn promise. Bear with me a little while. You knew all I would say. I

Blackie's Litany.

A GEM DESTINED TO IMMORTALITY.

The following production by John Stuart Blackie, the Scotch educator, is a remarkable exposition of contemporaneous Scotch religious character, of a deep humor, of a fine critical sense and of a broad charity. It is a gem to file away in ones scrap book. It is destined to immortality, if anything of the last decade be so destined. You'll find in it something of Carlyle, Dr. Samuel Johnson, Robert Louis Stevenson, Jowett, Bagehot. Within a decade it will be the most widely quoted of all modern philosophies.

1.—From denying God who created me, from cursing the Christ that died for me, and from flouting the Holy Spirit that breathes upon me,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

2.—From the conceit of knowledge that knows no reverence, from the envious egotism that knows no love, and from the fear of man that lames all manhood,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

3.—From the presumption of orthodox theology to define God in scholastic terms, from the degrading superstition that worships God with blind ends and the negative self,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

4.—From beggars for my clients, from fools for my worshipers, and from sluts for my servants,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

5.—From the impertinence of youthful critics, from the vanity of small poets, and from the unreasoned giggle of silly young ladies,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

6.—From the barren subtlety of lawyers, from the shiftiness of politicians, and from the blind restlessness or calculated selfishness of commercial speculators,
Good Lord, deliver me.

7.—From the man that simpers sweetly, from a woman that laughs loudly, and from a young woman ambitious to play the man,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

8.—From the scholar who smells of books, from the sportsman who smells of horses, and a mother who smells of babies,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

9.—From genius without sense, from talent without love and from creeds without humanity,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

10.—From a spinner of fine phrases, a spinner of senseless rhymes, and a woman who paints,
Good Lord, deliver me.

11.—From eyes that see only what they wish to see, from fingers that itch to put the buttons into other people's buttonholes, and from feet that love to tramp on others people's toes,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

12.—From wits that deluge the table with puns, from square pates that cannot understand a joke, and from sour souls that will not admit them,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

13.—From the three infallibles, the Roman pope, the editor of a party newspaper, and a woman when she is in the wrong.—
Good Lord, deliver me.

14.—From a man that refrains from talking in order to appear wise, from a man that talks too much in order to display his wisdom, and from a man who talks fluently without any wisdom to display,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

Good Lord, deliver me.

16.—From a man without brains, from a woman without religion, and from a poet without sense,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

17.—From a fair face with an unmeaning smile, from the lips that curl into scorn, and from knowing looks in a smart young man,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

18.—From three tyrants, from custom that murders conscience, from fashion that strangles nature, and from priests that steal Jove's thunder,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

19.—From three affectations, the affectation of learning, which we call pedantry, the affectation of gentility, which we call vulgarity, and the affectation of religion, which we call hypocrisy,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

20.—From three kinds of weather, from a Scotch spring that smells like winter, from an Egyptian summer that glows like a furnace, and from a rainy day in Skye,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

21.—From three kinds of wives, from an extravagant, showy, equestrain wife that ruins her husband by milliners' and drapers' bills; from an ambitious wife that makes her husband ridiculous by pushing him into situations for which he is not fitted, and from a fond and motherly wife who is forward to nurse and prescribe for her husband like a sick baby,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

22.—From an idle son that hangs on his mother's skirts, from a dashing daughter who marries a penniless fool, and from an old family servant who controls my life,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

23.—From a Highlander who is fluent on Celtic etymology, from a young metaphysician, fresh from Germany, expounding Hegel's philosophy, and from a Scotchman who draws his theology direct from the Shorter Catechism,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

24.—From a Tory without sense, a Liberal without sentiment, and a Radical without reverence,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

25.—From three great baits of the devil, pleasure, which sacrifices permanent enjoyment for the lust of the moment; money, which measures a man not by what he is, but by what he has; and from power, which dethrones love and enthrones selfishness as the bond of social unity,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

26.—From an idle woman who fills up the emptiness of her life by fussing about other people, a vain woman whose grand business in life is to parade her charms, and from a nervous woman who creates real sorrows by contemplating imaginary dangers,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

27.—From the black devil, if there be one; from blue devils, of whom there are many; and from the devil that took King David, in the shape of another man's wife,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

28.—From a fair woman when she weeps, and from a false woman when she smiles, and from a clever woman when she talks,
Good Lord, deliver me.

29.—From prejudice that blinds the truth, from sophistry that juggles with truth, and from factions that poison truth,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

30.—From the sensibility that shrinks from everything, from the stolidity that is pleased with anything, and from the apathy that is touched by nothing,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

31.—From the easy charity that covers all faults, from the hasty hatred that magnifies all faults, and from the intellectual despotism that bears down all contradictions,—
Good Lord, deliver me.

Appendicitis Cured By "Fruit-a-tives"

NEWBURGH, ONT., Feb. 12th. 1910.

'Just about a year ago, our daughter Ellas (fourteen years), was taken with terrible pains in the right side The pain was so severe that we had to carry her to bed. We at once put her under the care of a first-class doctor, who pronounced it a case of Appendicitis and advised an operation.

We took her to a hospital in Kingston where she was again examined by an eminent specialist. He said she had Appendicitis and must be operated on at once if we wanted to save her life. As we had taken her to Kingston to have this done we were ready but our daughter was afraid and cried and begged so pitifully, that we postponed it for that day. Luckily for us and for her an uncle came in with some 'Fruit-a-tives' and insisted on Ella taking them. Good results were apparent almost from the first dose, and the continuous treatment cured her.

'Fruit-a-tives' saved our daughter from the surgeon's knife and to-day she is enjoying the best of health."

A Real Ruction.

Dublin, Sept. 10.—Irish factionists in Tim Healey's county, Louth constituency, are nursing bruised heads to-day as the result of a regular Kilkenny clash Thursday night at a political meeting in Dundalk. Followers of John Redmond mustered a heavy force early in the evening, and took possession of the hall where the meeting was to have been held. When the Healeyites tried to enter the hall, a free-for-all fight ensued.

Looks Like Disastrous Struggle.

Newcastle-on-Tyne, Eng., Sept. 10.—Reports to-day from the various union centres involved in the present lock-out of boilermakers engaged in the shipping industry indicate that the men are voting against the proposal of giving assurances to the Shipbuilding Employers' Federation that the national agreement of 1909 will henceforth be regarded as inviolable.

The Price of Coffee.

(Washington Post.)

When your American housewife goes to the corner grocery and buys a pound of ground or pulverized mixed Java and Mocha grown in Brazil, it is put up in a tin canister with gorgeous label and she pays 38 cents for the package. On the other hand, the German housewife gets the same coffee, prepared in the same way, for 23 cents. And that is not all, for in Germany every pound of coffee yields to the imperial treasury 6 cents in way of traffic taxation. Coffee is on the free list in our country, and thus, all things considered, a cup of coffee on an American breakfast table costs nearly twice as much as the same beverage on the German breakfast table.

This is one secret of the high and almost intolerable cost of living. In this country there are more "middle men," each exacting a profit between the South American who grows coffee and the North America who drinks coffee than in any other branch of commercial economy, bar none.

Senator Edmunds, that inveterate protectionist, fought like Trojan to retain the duty on coffee, which was "tariff for revenue only." He told precisely what did happen—that the treasury would lose millions of revenue and not an ounce of coffee would be sold cheaper to the American consumer. But they overcame him, and for nearly forty years coffee has been on the free list.

The Standard Oil Company deals directly with the consumer. It has practically abolished "the middle man." The coffee producer should learn that lesson, and if he should put it in practice our housewives would buy that 38-cent coffee for less than 20 cents.

$3.50 RECIPE CURES WEAK KIDNEYS

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, etc.—Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say good-bye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back, the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes, yellow skin; sluggish bowels, swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps, unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency? I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K 1793 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power. It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

ACOMIA

MANY MEN HAVE IT AND MOST OF THEM WORRY ABOUT IT.

ACOMIA—it's a magic word—what does it mean? Simply absence of hair.

A baldheaded man has ACOMIA—absence of hair.

A million more men will have ACOMIA a year from now if they do not get rid of disgusting dandruff.

Dandruff is caused by a germ. This germ is a persistent sort of germ. He works while you sleep and when you awake. He breakfasts, dines and sups on the vitality stored in the hair roots, and the longer you tolerate his presence the surer you are of displaying a shiny headpiece later on.

Kill the dandruff germs; that's the only way to keep from growing bald. Any capable doctor will tell you so.

How can you be sure that you are killing the dandruff germs? Simply by using daily for two weeks Parisian Sage, the most pleasant tonic for the hair the world has ever known.

Parisian Sage is the most pleasant and invigorating hair dressing in the world. It is not sticky or greasy. It will make women's hair soft, silky and luxuriant in a few days. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle. Fifty cents a large bottle at druggists everywhere and at J. S. McKeown's, who guarantees it. Mail orders filled, all charges prepaid, by the Canadian makers, Giroux Mfg Co., Fort Erie, Ont.

When boiling milk for a custard powder, sprinkle the bottom of the saucepan with sugar; this dissolves and forms a layer, and so prevents the milk from burning, no matter how long it boils. It applies to any sweetened milk.

The Modern Beauty.

HOW TO REGAIN BEAUTY OF FORM.

The vagaries of fashion are a great trial to ladies inclined to overstoutness; but it is a great mistake to go in for physical repression in the shape of special stays. Fasting and violent exercising are also dangerous. One very soon becomes limp, depressed and sallow of complexion when such methods of getting thin are adopted. There is absolutely no necessity to study dietetics or deprive one's self of wholesome rest and bodily comforts.

The following is a prescription which will restore beauty of form without any sacrifice of health or strength. Any druggist will make it up for you or supply the harmless ingredients, viz: 1-2 oz. Marmola, 3-4 oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and 4 3-4 oz. Peppermint Water. The dose is one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

Don't be afraid of a good appetite, especially as the digestive system will be much benefit by this simple treatment. Indeed, the whole body is beautified, and the reduction of weight occasions no wrinkles. The skin and complexion are rebeautified.

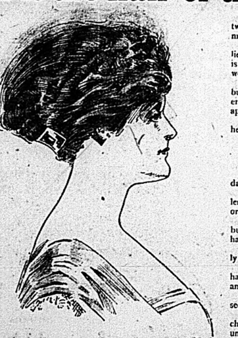
Is it the Hair or the Face that makes the Woman?



If you think it is the face, take another look at the two heads pictured here. One shows a girl which the most critical would pronounce beautiful.

While her feautere are fairly perfect her greatest charm lies in a mass of fine lustrous hair. The opposite picture is identical as to features and other detail except that the wealth of hair is wanting.

Both of these ladies would attract attention anywhere but each for a different reason, one on account of her superb beauty and the other on account of her comical appearance.

The hair makes all the difference. A woman loses her good looks in exact proportion as she loses her hair.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE Saves the Hair

There is nothing which is so destructive to the hair as dandruff.

This annoying trouble to which everyone is more or less exposed is due to the working of an invisible growth or microbe called the Dandruff Germ.

It robs the hair of the snap and luster of health, burrows down into the follicle and eventually loosens the hair, allowing it to fall out.

Newbro's Herpicide applied regularly and intelligently kills this germ, keeps the scalp clean and hair healthy.

Falling hair is thus prevented and, if the hair follicles have not become atrophied, a new growth or hair may be anticipated.

The life and luster of Herpicide hair is beautiful to see, is unmistakable.

An abundance of fluffy, glitering hair is woman's chiefest beauty and to permit its needless destruction is unpardonable.

The Manifestations Of Eye-Strain

Continued.

Glaucoma.—As long ago as 1881, Walker, and later, in 1888, Shoer, suggested that hyperopia might start an attack of glaucoma through the strain on the accommodation.

According to Priestly Smith's tables the liability to glaucoma begins to rise rapidly after thirty, and reaches its maximum about forty, and these are the ages when the uncorrected hyperope is most likely to suffer from eye-strain.

Eye-strain may bring on an attack of glaucoma in an eye that is, so to speak, ready for it, that is, in a small eye with a hypertrophied ciliary muscle.

The congestion caused by the eye-strain leads to hyper-secretion, perhaps to a mild form of cyclitis, obstruction at the filtration angle takes place, tension goes up, and a vicious circle is established. If the eye-strain be removed by correcting the error the attack may be indefinitely postponed.

Board of Education.

MANY MATTERS OF IMPORTANCE DISPOSED OF — SHERIFF MORRISON APPOINTED ARBITRATOR RE THE NEW SCHOOL SITE -- HALF HOLIDAY FOR THE CHILDREN ON WEDNESDAY.

A regular meeting of the Board of Education was held last evening. The members present were Messrs. J. F. Wills, J. H. Anderson, J. Wallace, C. F. Sharpe, C. M. Reid, W. P. Hudson, T. E. Ketcheson, E. J. Butler W. S. Smith, S. S. Moore, B. Mallory W. N. Ponton and P. Harrison.

Mr. J. F. Wills was voted to the chair in the absence of the chairman Mr W. S. Morden.

COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

From Messrs. D. Barragar and C F. Simpkins, thanking the Board for an increase in salary.

From Mr. P. C. McLaurin, Science Master, stating that he desired to be relieved from his duties at the Christmas holidays, and his successor could commence his duties after the holidays.

From Mr. Barragar, Principal of Octavia street school, informing the Board that Master Harold Weese was the winner of the Board medal for general proficiency at the entrance examinations.

REPORTS.

A report was presented by Mr. H J. Clarke, School Inspector, detailing the opening of the schools in the city. All the rooms were being well filled up. The report showed that some supplies for the kindergarten departments of Octavia and Pinnacle street schools were needed. The report recommended the improvement by better lighting of certain rooms in Octavia street school. He recommended that a certain number of readers recommended by the Minister of Education be secured for the several schools.

Mr. W. J. Diamond, Sec.-Treas. of the Board, also its legal adviser, read a lengthy document detailing what the Board had to do in the matter of expropriating land for a school site from the St. Agnes School, Limited. An arbitrator would have to be appointed by the Board, and if one was not satisfactory Mr. Lingham would appoint one and the two select a third.

On motion the Board went into committee of the whole on reports, etc., Mr. Reid in the chair.

The Finance committee recommended the payment of the following accounts, which were passed:

J. Lang	$127.57
Ritchie Co.	.48
S. Russell	.50
G. N. W. Telegraph Co.	.95

The report of the School Inspector was referred to the Sites, Building and Repairs and the Printing and Supplies Committees, to consider the procuring of the necessary supplies and make the necessary improvements recommended in the report.

The communication of Mr. P. C. McLaurin regarding his resignation was referred to the School Management Committee.

The question of procuring a silver medal for Master Harold Weese for general proficiency at the entrance examination, was referred to the Printing and Supplies Committee to procure the same and report when it has been procured.

Mr. Smith moved, seconded by Mr. Moore, that the matter of procuring two acres of land on Pine street for a school site be referred to the Sites, Building and Repairs committee to make measurements of same, location, etc.

Carried.

Mr. Smith moved, seconded by Mr. Moore that the Board notify the City Council of a vacancy upon the Board and have the same filled.

In answer to an enquiry the Secretary stated that if the vacancy had occurred within three months of the municipal election it would not be necessary to fill it till then It occurred some four months before the election, hence it would be necessary to fill the vacancy.

The motion prevailed.

Col. Ponton desired to know if any further communication had been received from Mr. Lingham in reference to the proposed land to be secured for a school site. If it was possible to avoid the litigation he, and in fact the Board, desired to avoid same.

Mr. Wills said that there had been no further communication, and it seemed impossible to avoid litigation which the Board did not desire.

MOTIONS.

Col. Ponton moved seconded by Mr. Smith that the Board be represented at the meeting of the commission on technical education during its session in this city on the 1st of October by the Chairman of the Board, Chairmen of the Standing Committees, who may be able to attend, and Messrs. W. S. Smith, F. S. Deacon, and H. J. Clarke, Inspector. Also that the Principals of the High and Public schools be requested to attend, the chairman of the Finance Committee to be convenor.

Carried.

Moved by P. Harrison, seconded by Col. Ponton, that on Wednesday afternoon next, 14th inst., a half holiday be granted the High and Public Schools, to enable the teachers and pupils to attend the Belleville Fair

Carried.

APPOINTING AN ARBITRATOR.

Mr. Anderson moved, seconded by Mr. Wallace, that Sheriff Morrison be appointed an arbitrator on behalf of the Board in regard to expropriation proceedings.

Mr. Hudson moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Reid, that Mr. J. M. Farley be appointed arbitrator.

Mr. Smith moved an amendment to the amendment, that Mr. D. V. Sinclair be appointed arbitrator.

After the latter amendment had been defeated, Mr. Ketcheson moved in amendment to the amendment, that Mr. J. E. Walmsley be appointed.

Both amendments were defeated and the original motion that Sheriff Morrison be appointed was unanimously adopted.

A motion prevailed rescinding the motion passed on Monday, August 22nd, offering Mr. Lingham $7 per foot for the proposed property for a public school.

Mr. Reid moved, seconded by Mr. Sharpe, that the Secretary be instructed to notify the St. Agnes School Limited, that they, having refused to sell the site required, the Board has appointed an arbitrator to act on its behalf in this matter.

Carried.

Board adjourned.

Police Court.

Wm. McDonald, who claims Glengarry County as his home, was this morning before Magistrate Masson, charged with a serious offence. He was arrested here on Thursday on account of complaints made to the proper authorities.

It appears that on Thursday McDonald, under the pretence of being an employee of the city Water Works Department, entered two houses on George street, alleging that there was something wrong with the water works in the houses, and he desired to fix the same. He was allowed in the house, going about from cellar to garret. It was afterwards learned that his statements were false, hence his arrest.

He was charged with entering the two residences with intent to steal therefrom, and as the Magistrate intimated after evidence had been submitted, the accused was in the eye of the law guilty. McDonald alleged that he was under the influence of liquor and did not know what he was doing. He was remanded to jail until the 30th inst., when sentence will be meted out. Mr. Anderson appeared for the Crown. The accused conducted his own case.

Epidemic of Infant Paralysis Spreads In Hamilton.

Hamilton, Sept. 10.—The dread epidemic, infantile paralysis, which is spreading over Ontario, is growing in Hamilton, and it is estimated that there are over a hundred cases here now.

Thursday the disease claimed another adult, and yesterday two more adult cases were reported.

In Mount Hope and vicinity three adults have died within the past few days.

In Hamilton the health department is placarding all houses where the disease is known to exist.

Outbreak In Quebec.

Sherbrooke, Que., Sept. 10.—Considerable concern is being felt in this city regarding the outbreak of what is diagnosed to be infantile paralysis. A number of cases have developed but not only children but older persons are attacked. This disease has appeared in the New England States.

Toronto, Too.

Toronto, Sept. 10.—Another case of infant paralysis, that of a child three years old, was reported yesterday.

"Medical men are reporting all forms of infant paralysis to me," said Dr. Sheard. "These may result from many affections of the spinal cord. There is no occasion for alarm; no indications of any contagious disease have been discovered. The form of the disease in Toronto is quite different from that existing in Hamilton."

Nova Scotians Pleased.

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 10.—The fishing decision of The Hague is looked upon here as a striking vindication of the colonial legislature to enact and enforce regulations for the prosecution of the fisheries in its own territorial waters, and the principle, it is thought, can be advantageously applied to Nova Scotia.

As to the fifth point, the tribunal has made authoritative pronouncement upon a much-contested question of territorial delimitation of bays and inlets. From Nova Scotia's point of view this was the most important question before the tribunal. The decision of the tribunal places beyond dispute the right of Canada and Newfoundland to exercise territorial control over small bays and inlets on the coast. Americans will thus be excluded from prosecuting fishing operations inside the headlands, even where they would be beyond the limit of three marine miles from shore. This is of special interest to Nova Scotians, for it will prevent American seiners from operating in many bays along the coast.

Jealous of Wife, Shoots Her.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 10.—Bloodhounds are being used in an effort to run down George Reid, wanted for the murder of his wife in a farm house near Clayburn. A reward of $500 is also offered. Tuesday was the murdered woman's birthday and the day of the murder. She was 25 years old. Reid left a letter declaring that he killed his wife because he believed she paid attention to other men and he was insanely jealous of her.

The couple were married thirteen months ago near Midland, Ont., where Reid worked in a sawmill. They then went west, stopping for several months in Moose Jaw.

Reid is about 35 years old and was formerly employed in Chew Bros.' mills at Midland. He was regarded as quiet and industrious, and was a member of the Salvation Army. His parents live near Wyevale. His wife was Agnes, daughter of W. J. Houden, Midland.

A Horrible Death.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Two women and a man were burned to death in South Chicago Thursday night when the automobile in which they were riding, and which was speeding at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour, collided with a train of three moving caldrons of molten metal and slag on 104th street, near an entrance to the Illinois Steel Co.'s plant. A third woman was seriously, but not fatally burned.

Committed for Trial.

St. Catharines, Sept. 10.—John R. Shea was committed for trial yesterday afternoon on a charge of making false entry with the Williams Sewing Machine Co., regarding the sale of a sewing machine, made by Shea, when in the company's employ. It is alleged that Shea sold the machine for $20 and filed a lease with the company for $40, in order to obtain a larger commission.

Fear Tug Was Lost.

Ashtabula, Ohio, Sept. 10.—Fear prevailed here yesterday that the fishing tug Ciscoe of Cleveland was lost in the northwester which swept Lake Erie Thursday and Thursday night. CAR FERRY FOUNDERS

Pere Marquette Boat Goes Down on Way to Milwaukee.

Number 18, While on Her Way From Ludington, Mich., to the Wisconsin Side, Begins to Sink and Before Help Arrives Thirty of Her Crew Have Lost Their Lives—Relatives Await Friends.

Ludington, Mich., Sept. 10.—Thirty lives were lost yesterday when Pere Marquette car ferry No. 18, bound from Ludington to Milwaukee, went to the bottom of Lake Michigan half way across the lake.

The dead include Capt. Peter Kilty of Ludington, S. F. Sezpanek of Chicago, purser and wireless operator, whose signals of distress brought assistance to the sinking steamer, and two members of the crew of car ferry No. 17, who lost their lives in an effort to rescue the crew of No. 18.

Elicott Bean of Saginaw, Mich., a member of the crew of No. 18, would make a thirty-first victim, but it is believed he was not on board when No. 18 set out from here Thursday night on her fatal trip.

The steamship company issued a list of 35 names of survivors of the wreck, all members of the crew, and most of whom were brought here last night aboard car ferry No. 17. Eight bodies were recovered.

With her flag floating at half-mast, and thousands of anxious watchers waiting at the pier, ferry No. 17 steamed into this harbor last night. There was a moment of tense silence as the steamer came through the piers into the harbor. Then men and women struggled with insane eagerness to get first tidings of the fate of relatives who went away from here Thursday night, as members of the crew of the ill-fated car ferry.

The cause of the disaster is enveloped in mystery. F. F. Potvin, cabin watch, said that the boat was very low at the stern when the first alarm was given. He said they pushed 29 railroad cars into the lake to ease the vessel, but without avail.

Seymour Cochrane of Chicago, another survivor, said he was reading a magazine in his berth, when a cabin boy rapped on his door about 4.30 a.m., and shouted that the boat was sinking. Cochrane floated on a cabin door, until picked up by No. 17. The purser had given him $1,000, which was due Cochrane's employers. Cochrane would not load himself down with the coin, and tied the money to the steamer's rail as the boat went down.

Many of the lifeboats were stove in by wreckage stumbling in every direction on the tossing sea, the occupants of the small boats being thrown into the water, and many of them drowned.

The sum total of the catastrophe is 29 lives lost and a financial loss exceeding half a million dollars.

Ferry No. 18 left Ludington Thursday night at 11.30 o'clock with 29 loaded cars on deck. At 4.30 o'clock word was sent to Captain Kilty that his boat was rapidly making water aft and that pumps were unable to keep even.

The captain promptly headed his ship toward Sheboygan on the Wisconsin shore. In spite of every effort it became evident that the boat was gradually but surely sinking.

At 7.30 yesterday morning, without warning and before the horrified gaze of the men on board Pere Marquette car No. 17, which had just arrived on the scene, in response to a distress signal, the great black bow of the flagship rose high in the air, the stern settled swiftly toward the bottom and with a roar the ship shot downward and was lost to view.

The crew of number 17 rushed overboard with a lifeboat with four men. The waves picked it up in an instant and crushed it against the ferry's side. Two of the sailors were rescued by those on board, while the other two immediately sank.

Another lifeboat was successfully launched. This boat did heroic work and in less than an hour picked up fourteen survivors who were floating about and clinging to bits of wreckage.

Then another lifeboat was manned, and in the face of great danger, more than thirty persons were saved.

C.N.R. Balked.

Winnipeg, Sept. 10.—The Canadian Northern Railway is again balked in its efforts to locate its line west from Edmonton towards the Yellow Head Pass Unless the C.N.R. can convince the Railway Commission of the necessity for running parallel to the G.T.P., material change in plans will be required. It is probable that the C.N.R. may find it necessary to run south of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Interesting and vigorous representations are to be made to the Railway Commission on behalf of the C.N.R. In the meantime, work on the line west of St. Albert is abandoned, although the company is under contract with the Alberta Government to build a certain distance this year.

Not Guilty of Bribery.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Lee O'Neil Browne, minority leader in the Illinois Legislature, charged with bribery in connection with the election of Wm. Lorimer to the United States Senate, was found not guilty by a jury in the Criminal Court yesterday. This was Browne's second trial. The jury disagreed in the first trial.

NOTRE DAME THRONGED

Twelve Thousand Succeed in Gaining Admittance.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Makes an Address to His Countrymen — Visitors to Congress Are Not Pleased With Father Vaughan's Polemic Methods —Children's Celebration Is a Great Success—250,000 Enter Montreal.

Montreal, Sept. 10.—It now looks as if a quarter of a million strangers would be in the city on Sunday next. Whole parishes are buying tickets at the railway stations along the line of the C.P.R and the G.T.R., and it may be that when the great procession starts there will be at least a million people in the city or thereabouts.

Father Vaughan is still whacking the non-Catholic, and in fact leading Canadian members of the congress to say that the learned Jesuit did not show good taste in attacking those who have done so much to help along the demonstration.

In the midst of it all comes the announcement that an ex-Italian ecclesiastic, Miraglia Guillotti, will preach here in the Italian Methodist Church on Sunday afternoon, the sermon to be preached on "The True Religion of the Eucharist: Destroy the Vatican or Destroy Italy."

Indeed, the history of the congress is a history of crowds. Last night the great temple of Notre Dame, which seats 15,000, was turned for the nonce into a vast amphitheatre, given over to the speech of the laity equally with that of the clergy.

Fully an hour was taken up in seating the assemblage, and at the close ground floor, gallery and side aisles were packed. The speakers addressed their audience from within the space railed off by a brass railing, and rows of chairs within the sanctuary accommodated the principals in the action of this long-to-be-remembered night.

A triumphal peal from the organ announced the coming of the long chain of bishops and archbishops who preceded the cardinal legate, who, as he moved along continually waved his hands, partly in blessing, partly in greeting.

His appearance was the signal for clapping and cheers, renewed again and again as other prominent figures, such as Cardinal Logue and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, came into view. For some time the feelings of the assembly refused to be subdued, and handkerchiefs waved from the standing audience and cheers and clapping continued until the dignitaries were seated.

Bishop Heluyn of Belgium also spoke and declared that Canada had given an example for Christian tolerance the world over, after which Mgr. Bruchesi introduced the Prime Minister of the Dominion, saying that although many congresses had been held, this was the first one addressed by the Premier of the country, which was certainly a good omen for the future of Canada and her citizens.

Sir Wilfrid, who was received with continued applause, appeared to be at his best and nothing indicated that he was tired. The Prime Minister proclaimed himself, not only a Catholic, but a fervent Catholic, and he said the eucharist was the fundamental basis of the Catholic faith, consequently it was right that the faithful of this country should strive for the triumph of that faith.

This has been a day of clouds and sunshine. Beginning with the disappointment occasioned by the inability of having the grand mass at the foot of the mountain, to which so many had looked forward, the day developed, as the morning wore on, with buoyancy and brightness. Though so unpropitious as far as the weather was concerned, the early hours found pedestrians making for Fletcher's Field, where the altar, majestic in its beauty, is erected. By 8.30 a.m., the hour appointed for the mass, thousands covered the field adjacent. Nine hundred singers, members of thirty-nine choirs, had joined for the singing of the plain chant mass of the 2nd tone, but their services were not required that day. An hour after the time appointed word went round that the mass was postponed until the following morning, weather permitting.

By noon the clouds had dispersed, and the sun showed its face. Meantime, on all the streets leading into St. James' square, the children of the city schools were deploying into line to attend the cardinal legate in a special reception given for their benefit.

By two o'clock the congestion about St. James' Cathedral was something wonderful.

As day succeeds day the wonder of the transpiring events becomes more marked, and the children's opportunity of showing their fealty to the Pope's representative, is, in some respects, the most marvelous yet. Thirty thousand is perhaps a conservative estimate of the number of boys and girls in line.

On they came in schools, the boys carrying banners, and the girls in white, many wearing white veils, and carrying small flags and flowers. The youth of Canada's commercial metropolis filled the streets for miles, the last of the children being far away when the first lines received greetings from the cardinal.

To attempt to get into the cathedral would have been folly. So the scarlet canopy was placed outside, before the door, and here the legate smilingly received the little ones. Probably nothing since his coming has pleased him more than the magnificent showing made by the schools of Montreal. From the outskirts of the crowd the voices of the children sounded sweetly in the open air, and the numberless spectators looked with justifiable pride upon the children who form so large a percentage of the future important citizens of Canada.

Lung Telescope.

By the use of a newly-invented miniature searchlight-telescope, passing down the windpipe and into the bronchial tubes of a patient who has swallowed a shawl-pin, one of the surgeons of King's College hospital was recently able to see a pin, to remove it with forceps, and so save the life of the patient, who was apparently beyond human aid.

The instrument, called a bronchoscope, resembles a small bent telescope fitted with lenses at different angles, and has a tiny electric light which can be passed deep into the lung.

The day after the pin was swallowed, an X-rays examination showed its position beneath the sixth rib, about an inch to the right of the breastbone. The patient was chloroformed, and then a 20 per cent. solution of cocaine was sprayed over the larynx and windpipe. The telescope tube was then passed through the mouth and larynx down the windpipe.

Peering down the tube, the surgeon finally located the pin, fixed head downward in one of the branches of the windpipe, at a distance of thirteen inches from the mouth. A pair of very fine forceps on the end of a long, flexible wire, passed down the hollow telescope tube was then made to grasp the pin, and the pin, forceps and telescope were withdrawn together. Within a few hours the patient was able to return to her home none the worse for an accident which, before the invention of the lung telescope, would almost inevitably have proved fatal.—London Daily Mail.

A Change in Furniture Covers.

There is a change in the materials selected for loose summer coverings for furniture. The pale tans and grays that have concealed or protected, as the case may be, chairs and sofas for a number of years may have the quality of coolness to recommend them, but they were certainly depressing.

Now it is the fashion to make the slip covers of pretty cretonnes, not necessarily light, but in cool looking greens and browns, soft blues and dull pinks. These are much prettier than the linen and will last an entire summer without a visit to the laundry.

READ this OPINION Of the Largest Jack Manufacturer in the Whole World About Zutoo Tablets

"I have been a sufferer from headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all, of the so-called "cures" on the market. Some months since my attention was called to your Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a "sick" or "nervous" headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effect. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I find them a good remedy for "sour" stomach as well as headache. I always carry them in my grip on the road and would not be without them at any cost."

Thousands of People Walked the Streets Of Montreal Last Night Without A Place to Sleep.

Intelligencer Special.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 12.—Tens of thousands of people, who came here to see the great Eucharistic Congress procession yesterday, had to walk the streets last night without a place to lay their heads, and in many cases without food to eat. The trains which left all the stations at intervals of a few minutes couldn't get the crowds away, and in some cases excursionists scheduled to leave here before midnight were still here at daylight this morning.

Fatal Accident to A Reverend Father.

(Intelligencer Special.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 12.—After telling a relative that he had a strong presentment of approaching death, Rev. Father Verrett, of St. Sylvester, Que., left for the Eucharistic meeting. He was run down by a fast horse, and his skull was fractured. He died in the Hotel Dieu this morning. So far, this is the only fatal one of many accidents at the big Congress celebration.

Big Labor Congress In England.

Intelligencer Special.

LONDON, Eng., Sept. 12.—With the opening this morning of the British Labor Congress, the industrial situation becomes denser. One hundred and fifty-five organizations, which include nearly two millions of men, are represented. The chief topic in the inaugural speeches to-day was the decision of the Privy Council, which adjudged it illegal for unions to tax members for the support of labor members in the House of Commons. Open defiance and contempt of the Court's order was advocated to-day, and this afternoon it looked as if the Congress would adopt a resolution along these lines, and, unless the Government revised the Act, call out the entire two million men, thus tying up the industry and commerce of the nation. The situation is most alarmingly critical.

Mr. Alexander Sil's has returned home from a trip to Niagara district and Hamilton.

Bandits Take Toll From Touring Car.

(Intelligencer Special.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y., Sept. 12.—In broad daylight, on a much travelled river road, just a few miles out of here and less than fifty miles from New York City, three prominent residents of this city were held up in a touring car by masked bandits this morning and robbed of $175 in cash, all the rings, watches and any other jewellry they possessed, also valuable papers. They were bowling along merrily when three men stepped out and signalled danger with red lanterns. The owner of the car slammed on the brakes; then they were all relieved of their cash. There have been several such robberies around here lately, and these gentlemanly masked highwaymen have been getting lots of loot.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Veterinaries and animal fanciers from various parts of the United States are here on a clinic over a Bronx Zoo python, valued at fifteen thousand dollars, which has a serious attack of bronchitis. It seems the doctors differ regarding the length of the python's bronchial tubes, and are fearful that treatment may bring on stomach trouble. However, they have encased six feet of alleged neck in porous plasters and are patiently watching developments.

Posse of Police are Looking for Taggart.

(Intelligencer Special.)

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 12.—Following rumors that Taggart, who escaped from the Hamilton Asylum, is in the district south of this city, operating on the Pere Marquette Railway, robbing freight trains and attempting to wreck passenger trains, a posse of Provincial and railway police is to-day scouring the country. William Hayes, aged 24, of London, has been arrested, charged with robbing freight cars of goods belonging to firms in various Ontario cities.

LEVEL CROSSING WATCHMAN KILLED BY LIGHT ENGINE.

(Intelligencer Special.)

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 12.—Edward T. Crane, aged 68, a watchman on Dunn Avenue level crossing of the Grand Trunk Railway in this city, was instantly killed at six o'clock this morning, when he was struck by a light engine when flagging an approaching milkman warning of a train. Crane had been on a long shift, having been on duty since nine o'clock yesterday morning. The crossing is on the main line of the Grand Trunk going west, and is a very busy place. There are no gates. The only relief the aged man had was for a short time yesterday afternoon, when his wife came over and did the flagging for him.

ANOTHER DEATH AT HAMILTON FROM INFANT PARALYSIS.

(Intelligencer Special.)

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 12.—There was another death this morning from pocomyelitus, or infantile paralysis. Dr. Roberts, medical health officer, who has just returned from a conference of doctors at Milwaukee, says that the disease is communicable through animals. Cold weather will likely bring relief. Isolation and placarding of houses are at present all that can be done.

RUMORS OF CHANGES IN CATHOLIC EPISCOPATE.

(Intelligencer Special.)

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 12.—While there is no official confirmation, it is generally thought that Archbishop Gauthier, the much-loved Catholic prelate here, will be transferred to the vacant Archbishopric of Ottawa, as rumored some time ago, and that Bishop O'Connor, of Peterboro, or Bishop MacDonnell, of Alexandria, will come here.

The Crippen Case

Intelligencer Special.

LONDON, Eng., Sept. 12.—During the investigation into the Crippen case this morning, the lawyers for the defence made capital out of the evidence of the undertaker and morgue keeper to the effect that large quantities of carbolic acid had to be used when the remains were being removed. This, they said, would absolutely prevent identification of the remains. The prisoners were not brought to court this morning, much to the disappointment of the curious audience.

$17,000 WORTH OF STOLEN SILVER RECOVERED.

(Intelligencer Special.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 12.—Word reached here to-day that the police have recovered seventeen thousand dollars in silver bars, which was stolen from the Nova Scotia mine at Cobalt. James Connelly, a hotel keeper at Cobalt, and Patrick Ryan, an employee, are under arrest. The ore was found buried in a water ditch, and some of the silver bars had apparently been pounded into the mud with clubs. A man named Willey, who claims the heavyweight lifting championship of Canada, is a Crown witness.

BRITISH ARMY AT WORK

The Forces Are Now Holding a Grand Series of Manoeuvres.

Hon. Mr. Haldane's System of Reorganization Is Being Tested by Sham War In Which 70,000 Men Are Pitted Against Each Other—Queen's Own of Toronto Will Take Part After a Couple of Weeks.

London, Sept. 12.—The autumn army manoeuvres now in progress are Mr. Haldane's convincing defence of the efficiency of his system of reorganization. These have opened with the operations of two divisions and a cavalry brigade massed in two camps and numbering 20,000 men, in mimic warfare. The theatre of war will be enlarged this week until it comprises an area of 100 by 50 miles in four counties — Hants, Wilts, Dorset and Somerset—with 70,000 troops under arms. These manoeuvres, while rivalled annually in Germany and France, have never been approached in England in time of peace.

The reserves have rejoined their battalions in order to make up one division to its absolute war strength, and four divisions with cavalry brigades will be commanded by veteran officers. Three brigades of the territorial army will be mustered with the regulars, and all branches of the service will be brought into the field as if an actual campaign were going on.

It is a thorough training for the regulars and home guards, and it is costly. Not less than $1,250,000 will be the extra expense of these manoeuvres. Full use will be made of the resources of invention and science. Aeroplanes will be employed for carrying despatches, and airships will be tested, medical and general stores will be moved by motor transport and field telegraphs will be filled out with wireless messages.

The general staff has been allowed full play for proving that it is not behind the times. The Queen's Own Rifles of Toronto, Can., after a fortnight of training at Aldershot, will take an active part in the manoeuvres, and will represent with fine mettle the quality of the soldiers of the Empire beyond the seas.

Teddy Has a Guard.

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 12.—Coming Saturday to the scene of the street car strike riots, which kept Columbus in a state of disorder for weeks, former President Roosevelt, in a speech here, denounced in strongest terms acts of lawlessness and men who committed them. The state capitol is still being guarded by militia, and Col. Roosevelt himself was escorted by United States troops from the Columbus barracks.

As the strike is still on, J. A. Metcalfe, chairman of the Roosevelt reception committee, asked President Taft to assign the regular troops, to guard the former President, and the President consented.

It has been announced that after today Governor Harmon will withdraw his control of the situation here, and the municipal government, under Mayor Marshall, will have full charge.

Tobacco Goes Up.

Leamington, Sept. 12—Farmers within the Essex country tobacco belt will reap a rich harvest this year from a war between two rival companies, which are trying to buy in the crop and have forced prices up to the highest mark known in years. The price has gone up to 17 and 18 cents, while some of the growers believe in will eventually go as high as 20 cents.

Last year the growers sold their crops at the rate of 15 cents, and this was considered unusually high. In former years the price has been as low as 6 cents. The crop this year is considered quite as good as last. Growers will receive more than half a million dollars for it.

Alberta Bye-Elections.

Edmonton, Sept. 12.—At a meeting of the Provincial Cabinet on Saturday, the issuing of writs for bye-elections in MacLeod and Gleichen were authorized. Election will be held in both constituencies on Monday, Oct. 3. The date of the next session of the Legislature is practically settled for Nov. 3. It was also decided by the council that the report of the Great Waterways Royal Commission would be laid before the Legislature without previous publication.

S.O.E. Protest.

Montreal, Sept. 12.—The Montreal District Council of the Sons of England, representing 2,700 Englishmen members of fourteen lodges in the city, meeting in Westmount lodge rooms in Victoria Hall, entered a formal protest against the statements of Father Bernard Vaughan, made in the Monument Nationale on Tuesday evening last. The protest was embodied in a motion.

End of War in Nicaragua.

Managua, Nicaragua, Sept. 12.—The last armed opposition to the new regime under Gen. Estrada, the provisional President, has ceased with the surrender of Gen. Fernando Marti Rivas with 1,000 men and 11 cannon

UNIONS ARE IN CHAOS

British Labor Men Are Involved in Series of Troubles.

Strife Chiefly Within the Organizations Themselves Is Causing Great Deal of Unrest Throughout United Kingdom—Boilermakers Are Locked Out Because They Have No Responsible Leaders to Make Terms.

London, Sept. 12.—The labor crisis impending in the shipyards, railways, mines and cotton factories affects the relations of the workingmen and the trade union officials rather than the relations of the employers and employed. It is civil war within the unions and not an aggressive campaign against capital.

The locked-out boilermakers, by a vote of 2 to 1, have thrown over their leaders and have declined to empower them to make peace with the Employers' Federation by offering guarantees that breaches of the agreement shall not be repeated.

The employers, not having any responsible trade union leaders to treat with will be forced to lock out 17,000 men in addition to the 38,000 already suspended. About twenty-five other unions are involved in the federated shipbuilding industry, and if there are fresh lockouts or strikes vast congeries of trades will be paralyzed, from the inability of the labor leaders to enforce discipline and carry out their engagements with the employers.

There are signs of a similar revolt against the conciliation scheme adopted by the railway corporations and the Amalgamated Society of Railway servants. Something like a deadlock has arisen on the Great Northern Railway, and there are other indications that the railway servants dislike an agreement which binds them to keep the peace for a term of years, according to David Lloyd-George's arrangement.

The Welsh miners are also agitating for a labor revolt in defiance of the agreement made with the federation of employers, and the Lancashire cotton mill owners, emboldened by the decisive action of the employers in the shipbuilding trade, are also threatening to order a general lockout unless a small body of Oldham strikers accept arbitration.

These various revolts, if the worst comes to the worst, will involve about three-quarters of a million workmen and cause a general prostration of industrial activities. The most obvious moral to be drawn from these later conflicts is that the trade union officials have got out of touch with organized labor. They are overwhelmed with routine work and are not allowed to employ an adequate staff of secretaries, and their duties have multiplied until they are unable to keep themselves informed respecting the real feeling of the unions on important questions.

Shot His Ledge Brother.

Philadelphia, Sept. 12.—Declaring that his victim was a member of the blackhand, who had been following him around this country for two years, Francesco Scagtio, aged 21 years, yesterday shot and fatally wounded Guiseppe Ceraclo. The shooting occurred in the heart of the Italian district and was witnessed. Scagtio was captured aftere a chase of several squares. Ceraclo was taken to a hospital and died shortly after being admitted.

Scagtio, in his statement to the police, said that Ceraclo and he had been members of the same secret society in Italy. He failed to obey the command of the order, and came to this country to escape punishment. He was followed by Ceraclo, who, he says, dogged him through several towns in the mining regions of this state, and followed him to this city.

Determined to end the suspense, Scagtio yesterday sought Ceraclo, and saying, "I'll get you first," shot him.

Was Drunk on the Job.

Winnipeg, Sept. 12.—Because Towerman Leland at Woods' Siding on the C.P.R., seven miles east, was drunk on duty, the Kenora local was derailed, the engine, baggage car and three passenger coaches leaving the rails, and Fireman S. Pattison of Winnipeg was killed, while Engineer T. Elliott of Winnipeg was injured in the back and leg. Both men jumped. The passengers escaped with a severe shaking up. Pattison, who leaves a wife and child, had only moved here a month from Fort William. Leland is under arrest in the city jail, pending enquiry.

CURRENT EVENTS.

Thanks to the efforts of Mayor Marsh, the river and harbor has been cleared of the weeds and filth that was such an eye sore. We hope that another year this work will be accomplished earlier in the season.

Public drinking cups are prohibited by law in Massachusetts after October 1.

It is estimated that the annual cost of screening in the United States to keep flies and mosquitoes out of habitations is $10,000,000.

Writer says he can shave himself (lathering, stropping, shaving, washing and putting away razors, &c." in seven minutes and four seconds. We presume the "&c." means that he mows the lawn, sweeps out the basement, paints the back porch, shines his shoes and buttons up his wife's dress while awaiting for the shaving water to get hot.—New York Telegram.

So the commander of the 65th regiment is going to ignore the militia department and participate in a religious procession on Sunday. Now we'll see what will happen. This is not any more a religious question. It is a clear and flagrant breach of discipline, an uncalled for act of disobedience. Either Col. Labelle or Sir Frederick Borden must go.—Kingston Whig.

It is Not in the Blood

MEDICINE TAKEN INTERNALLY CANNOT CURE ECZEMA. IT IS CAUSED BY GERMS.

Eczema cannot be overcome by ordinary treatment and the old-fashioned way of dosing the system with drugs. Eczema is caused by a parasitic germ that bores into the skin. It is generally a contagious disease. Until the parasite is completely destroyed and removed, eczema cannot be cured. Fully one-third of skin diseases are in the form of eczema.

We so thoroughly believe that Rexall Eczema Ointment will overcome eczema and allied skin ailments, that we unhesitatingly promise to promptly return the money paid us for it should it in any way be unsatisfactory to the user.

Because of its remarkable cleansing, antiseptic germicidal, soothing and healing influence, Rexall Eczema Ointment has a very pronounced value in the treatment of skin diseases especially where the form of ailment is of the chronic, aggravating sort. We highrecommend it for the dry scaly form or the weeping type, where there is a constant flow of ill-smelling excretion.

Rexall Eczema Ointment is very prompt in relieving pimples, blotches, skin discolorations, ringworm, acne, nettle rash, tetter, hives, ulcers, insect bites and for healing sores and wounds. It is a pleasant smelling, grayish-white ointment and is very cleanly for use. Two sizes, 50c. and $1.00. Sold only at our store.—The Rexall Store. J. S. McKeown.

Electric lamps are inserted in the floors of pasenger elevators so a person entering a car at night will know just where he is to step. The light is switched on or off automatically as a car stops at or leaves a floor.

The Rev. George M. Meacham, D.D., of Toronto, is a visitor in our city and may be seen every day visiting different parties of his native city, recalling the scenes of his childhood. Dr. Meacham is the oldest son of the late J. H. Meacham, Esq., Postmaster for forty years of Belleville. Since his twenty years spent in Japan in the missionary work of the Methodist Church in the Flowery Kingdom, he has been on the retired list of Methodist clergymen. He is still intensely interested in Belleville and in the spread of the Gospel in Japan. Yesterday morning he spoke in Bridge St. Church for a short time, expressing his joy at being back in the church so intimately associated with the lives of his family for three generations, and to which he was so much indebted. The incident and what the Rev. Doctor said were of great interest to the congregation.

Making Iced Tea.

Iced tea sounds like the simplest of beverages, and most women think they can prepare it without even a thought of care. Yet the difference between a delightfully refreshing drink and a nondescript, tasteless liquid lies in just the little forethought.

If you live in a place where ice is plentiful and cheap, by all means make your tea fresh when you are to use it, and pour it, seaming hot, into a tumbler of chopped ice, adding more ice from a bowl as it is needed. If, however, ice is scarce and you must make a small piece do a day's work, brew your tea some hours before you want it and stand the pitcher containing it near the ice to grow thoroughly cold You will get almost as good a result with much less waste of the precious ice.

To make iced tea in the first way have your water boiled, but not having boiled for some minutes. Put the tea into a cheesecloth bag and pour the boiling water on it. Let it stand, covered, for ten minutes, and then pour over the ice. Use enough tea to make the brew quite strong, as the ice dilutes it. Have ready to serve with this tea plenty of lemon sliced very thin, and powdered sugar. Straws may be used as for lemonade.

To the second method of making the same rules apply up to the point of pouring the tea over the cracked ice. If you are to use the tea later, let it stand the same length of time, then take out the tea in the cheesecloth and stand the teapot where the contents will grow cold—in a breezy window, perhaps Later, put it against the ice until needed —Harper's Bazar.

An Auto Suggestion.

I sat in my auto
One day in the shade,
To rest for a while,
When a sweet rustic maid,
In a pretty red bonnet,
Came walking my way,
With a smile in his eyes
Like the sunshine in May.

"Ah, Little Riding Hood,"
"Greeting, quoth I,
A very bold knight,
To a maiden so shy,
"Beg, pardon, I'm not,"
She shook her small head.
"I'm little red walking rood,
"Sir," she said.
—William J. Lampton.

Honors For Sir Wilfrid,

It is expected that in recognition of his services in connection with the Eucharistic Congress Sir Wilfrid Laurier will be ennobled by His Holiness. Several distinctions are given by the Pope to eminent men one of them being the Grand Cross of St. Gregory the Great, and the higher title of Count of the Holy Roman Empire. The Grand Cross is given for service. The title is not so freely distributed, and is a special honor. Hon. Honore Mercier was ennobled after the settlement by him of a Jesuit estate question and became a Count. The success of the present conference, it is believed, will call for some mark of favor from high quarters, and Sir Wilfrid may be its recipient.

"Go to Blazes."

It was stated at the County of London Licensing Sessions lately that the expression "Go to blazes!" had no reference to the infernal regions, but was a memorial to a Bishop Blaize, whose advice was so good that everyone sought it. At the South-western Court, a solicitor used the slang term "curling your finger," to indicate drunkenness, and was rebuked by the magistrate.

Arrest a Cuban Who Gave $100,000 Drafts

HAD ORDERED $14,000 OF PICTURE FILMS AND $5,000 IN CLOTHING OF NEW YORK FIRMS.—PRESENTS $1,000 CHECK TO HOTEL MARTINIQUE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Arraigned in the Jefferson Market Court was a prosperous looking Cuban, who, the police charge, was arrested just as he had completed plans to turn about a quarter million dollars in alleged spurious drafts into cash. Posing as a leader in a revolutionary party in Cuba, the man has been here under the name of Manuel Alvarez, but his real name is supposed to be B. Menendez. Orders for $14,000 worth of moving picture films and for clothing and watches amounting to several thousand dollars were given by the man before his arrest.

William J. Burns, who made the arrest, said that Menendez left Cuba for New York about a month ago. He went to the Hotel Martinque, where he registered as Manuel Alvarez, Cuba.

"The man's first move," said Burns, "was to go to the United States Film Brokers and Importers, at No. 41 Union square West, where he told the manager, James C. Coglan, that he was a big Havana merchant and, being impressed with the possibilities of the moving picture business in his native city, he desired to enter upon it on a large scale.

"Having placed an order for $14,000 worth of films, he asked Mr. Coglan to take him to his bankers, showing a draft for 20,000 pounds on the Union Discount Company of London, with the alleged signiture of the Banco Espagnol de la Isle, Cuba. The draft was deposited in the Savoy Trust Company."

Then, according to Mr. Burns, Menendez was entertained royally by the men with whom he was intending to do business. Menendez went to Saks & Co., where he placed an order for $5,000 worth of goods, buying entire assortments of clothing and watches. Then he went to the Hub Clothing Co., where he also placed a large order. Both firms received in payment checks on the Savoy Trust Company.

Menendez finally presented a check to the Hotel Martinique for $1,000, asking for $200 cash and the remainder when the check could be certified by the trust company. The hotel manager called up the trust company's officers, who communicated by cable with the London and Havana banks. Both institutions promptly repudiated the drafts, and the Cuban bank sent back word that the man was seeking to cash drafts of $20,000 and $25,000 with the forged signature of their institution, and that he be apprehended.

When the trust company placed the matter in the hands of the detectives, Menendez or Alvarez as he was known at that time, had disappeared. He was traced by means of his baggage, which a messenger had taken to No. 304 West Twenty-eight street. Detectives from the agency traced the man to the boarding house and there placed him under arrest.

One of The Fathers.

Mail and Empire.

The erection of a monument to Sir Leonard Tilley at St. John is a tardy, yet well deserved, recognition of one of the Fathers of Confederation. Sir Leonard became prominent in the public life of New Brunswick in the 50. At that time the Maritime provinces were experiencing a depression, and were not progressing. It was uphill work for the political leaders, and the issues were small. Many men looked abroad for some means of relief, and Maritime union with railway development, was one of the schemes projected. Out of the Maritime union the Confederation policy was evolved. Here Sir Leonard made his mark. He became the leader of the union forces. In an election having Confederation as a great question to be settled Sir Leonard and his friends were woefully beaten. New Brunswick would have nothing to do with the novel idea. Just at that moment a Fenian invasion took place, and the entire province swung round to the Confederation policy, with the result that Sir Leonard triumphed.

After pushing through the union, Sir Leonard Tilley joined the Administration of Sir John A. Macdonald and remained in the government until his appointment to the Governorship of his native province. He held this position during the entire Mackenzie regime. When the National Policy general election was impending, the Liberal Cabinet began to fear the influence of the Governor in the East, and in order to nullify it offered Sir Leonard another term in the gubernatorial chair. The inducement was resisted, and the Governor, resigning his position, became the National Policy leader in New Brunswick. Success at the polls led to his selection for the post of Finance Minister, in which capacity he framed the National Policy tariff, and carried it through. Sir Leonard subsequently retired to Government House at Fredericton, thus holding the office of Governor a second time. The country ought to preserve the memories and dwell upon the labors of its great public servants. For this reason the memorial to Sir Leonard is a welcome addition to the statuary of the Dominion.

Teeth Unnecessary.

New York Tribune.

To persons who have spent much money and endured much pain to preserve their teeth and expect still to spend and endure in that cause, it may be cheering to hear from a recent speaker at the odontological section of the British Association, one J. G. Turner by name, that teeth are really quite unnecessary. Mr. Turner told of a toothless relative who masticated his food perfectly with his gums, but added that mastication was not necessary, since our foods could now be minced and shredded beyond the powers of the most efficient mastication. The only real value of teeth to the civilized human being, he said, was their contribution to the attractiveness of the human countenance, and that, he admitted, outweighed a good many other considerations.

A Legal Wonder.

Case and Comment.

There was a prosecuting attorney in Texas whose methods were so dramatic and uniformly successful that he not only became the terror of evildoers, but an object of admiration, especially among the negroes. Upon retirement from office he was at once much sought after by those charged with crime. The first two cases which he defended resulted in conviction, much to his chagrin. An old ngro who had watched his prosecution in admiring wonder and looked on with equal interest when he conducted the defence, accosted him just after his defeat, and said: "Mars Earle, you sho' is a wonder. No matter which side you's on, they go to the pen just the same."

Weekly Intelligencer.

This country has no complaint to make of the amount of attention it is receiving at the hands of British authors and journalists. Nor has it much reason to find fault with the quality of the matter that is thus written about it. It is true letters and articles in detraction of the country are sometimes admitted into British newspapers, and of the many British books of which Canada is the subject, some few are disparaging, but in nearly all such adverse writing the animus is so plain that not even the most casual reader can miss it.

The man who has a fling at Canada in a British newspaper may be able to keep to himself the cause of the grudge he bears, but he usually betrays the fact that he has a grudge. Unthrifts, fakers, schemers of one kind and another do sometimes fail to make a living by their wits out of the easy-going, unsuspecting Canadians, and the disappointment gives rise to spite that occasionally is vented by publishing mean letters or books about the country. In the London Times, the other day, some "Traveller," who said he had recently visited Canada, was allowed to give a very depressing account of our Western crop prospects, which account he felt constrained to give, he said, because so much British capital was being drawn to Canada. British newspapers should require every man who resorts to their columns for the purpose of giving Canada a "black eye" to publish his name and address at the foot of his letter. The law of Canada makes the publishing of false reports about the country a penal offence, and British newspapers should be cautious in the matter of giving space to anti-Canadian communications whose writers do not want their names to appear. It is by no means improbable that the conductors of the campaign for the defaming of Canada throughout the United States have succeeded in making a British newspaper here and there an unwitting agent in their service. We may be sure the "sore head" who is fortunate enough to get a malicious letter inserted in an influential newspaper in the Old Country will take pains to have copies forwarded to the anti-Canada press bureau across the line. Of the books written in rancor about Canada, we know of none that is likely to influence any circle of British readers, or indeed to get into any circle, for they are not written in a style or spirit that appeals to anybody. Of British books written with the warmest good-will towards the country and with a desire to serve it, some will do us more good than others. In some of the cases where the heart of the writer is manifestly in the right place, his art is at fault. Pro Canada writers who speak extravagantly, or are too statistical, or are tedious, fail to win the interest or confidence of readers.

A book has recently appeared that should forward Canada's interests in the Old Country. The title of it is "Canada For British Gold and British Enterprise." It is the work of Mr. C. Keith Morris, special commissioner to the Canadian Gazette. The object, as stated in the preface, "is to show how and where "British money "and brains may best be employed— "the money and brains of British man"ufacturers seeking fresh outlets in "highly progressive industrial coun"try, and of British investors seeking "a safe and profitable return." In an introduction to the book, Lord Strathcona writes:—"The commercial "classes of the United States have tak"en brain and experience as well as "capital into Canadian industry, with "ample reward. They are, of course, "nearer the spot; but it is not to be "supposed that the business men of "Great Britain will refrain from tak"ing their part in Canadian enter"prise, once the facts are brought "home to them."—Mail and Empire.

German Africa Is Dissatisfied.

COLONISTS TALK OF SECESSION THAT THEY MAY UNITE WITH BRITISH SOUTH AFRICA.

Berlin, September 12.—Herr Maximillian Harden, and Dr. Carl Peters the founder of Germany's African empire, have aroused the wrath of the Kaiser by stating publicly that the inhabitants of German Southwest Africa are so discontented with German rule that they contemplate abandoning the German flag and joining the British South African Federation. These colonists are dissatisfied, presumably, with the bureaucratic control which is exercised over them by the officials One German colony contains more Government officials than white inhabitatnts and it is a matter of common knowledge that Germans, when they emigrate, go preferably to any place but to one of their own possessions. Dr. Carl Peters declares: "I gave expression to my views during my last visit to German Southwest Africa. I had plenty of opportunities to come in contact with all classes of the population, and I can assert that there exists a strong feeling in favor of secession from Germany. Apart from general commercial reasons which induce the colonists of German Southwest Africa to emigrate, the bureaucratic policy pursued by the German Government towards the colonists is the principal cause of the discontent of the population." After citing various cases of bureaucratic blunders which excited the colonists' resentment, Dr. Peters adds: "Great efforts will be necessary on Germany's part and a policy more adapted to the colonists' interests will be necessary to assure our permanent supremacy over German Southwest Africa."

Forest Fires—A National Menace

During the past summer forest fires have been devouring the growth of centuries with ruthless rapacity. Northern Ontario, Manitoba and British Columbia have suffered most. Fine tracts of merchantable timber worth millions of dollars have been destroyed. Square mile upon square mile of young growth coming on to supply the demands of the future has been wiped out of existence. In Northern Ontario, where but a thin layer of vegetable mould covers the rocks, the soft, oozy forest floor, the only hope of vegetation and equable stream flow has been completely destroyed, leaving a cheerless rocky waste for generations to come. Even if no thought be given to the number of lives lost, it must be admitted that the loss occasioned this year by forest fires has been nothing short of appalling.

Can nothing be done, then, to prevent this loss The answer is that much can be done. The solution of the problem is indicated in two words—public sentiment. The two principal causes of forest fires are campers and railways, and public opinion must be brought to bear upon these. The tourist-camper does not at all realize the extent of the damage which his unextinguished camp fire may do. Laws against leaving camp fires burning are already on the statue books, but it is quite evident that their observance rests mainly with the tourist himself. He must be impressed with the very serious nature of his offense. If a man sets fire to a building, he is convicted of arson and sent to prison as a felon, but if his unextinguished camp fire burns down millions of dollars worth of timber and perhaps destroys human life as well, he is, at best, made to pay a small fine. When public opinion views this carelessness of the camper as a criminal act and frowns upon him accordingly, considerable progress will have been made in lessening the number of forest fires from this cause.

But it is the railways that spread the most destruction. Traversing, as they do, the great lone stretches of uninhabited timber areas, the sparks from their locomotives start numerous fires that gain great headway before being detected. Too often the right-of-way, piled thick with inflammable rubbish, furnishes a tinder-box for these conflagrations. The owner of destroyed property along the line has found it almost impossible under the present laws to get damages from the railway company, so difficult it is to fix the responsibility, and so expensive is the process of litigation. In order to lessen the number of fires due to this cause, the Committee on Forests of the Commission of Conservation has proposed to make the railways pecuniarily responsibile. It has recommended that there be added to the Railway Act a clause making them liable to a fine of $1,000, recoverable by summary prosecution before a stipendiary magistrate or two justices of the peace, for every fire started by sparks from their locomotives. It makes no difference whether the fire begins outside the right-of-way or spreads therefrom to adjoining land. The railways are exempt from this fine if they can show that they have the best modern appliances on their locomotives to prevent the emission of sparks, that their employees have not shown negligence in conducing to the start of the fire, and that they have maintained an efficient and properly staff of fire-rangers. In other words, the Committee proposes to lessen the number of fiires caused by sparks from locomotives by having the railways fined for the damage they do, unless they take every precaution to prevent such damage. This is obviously a fair recommendation as regards both the railways and the public, and the effort to have it made law is worthy of public support. Every Canadian is deeply interested in the protection of our forests; for each forest fire means that he and his children will have to pay higher prices for every foot of lumber they use. Such a measure, for the preservation of our forests, as that recommended by the Committee on Forests of the Commission of Conservation should, therefore, commend itself to every public-spirited citizen and newspaper in Canada.

HOW HE LOST THE BET.

One on the Arkansas Man Who Knew All Pests.

A St. Louisan who makes a specialty of Ozark stories tells this one of an old colonel who went down into Arkansas a great deal when the railroads were building through there to Texas.

He was not a sweet tempered man, and what he thought of Arkansas he was not soft to remark. One day he was particularly abusing the state, its mosquitoes, bugs and myriad pests. It was a little too strong for the natives, and one of them retorted:

"Don't see why yuh cain't stand it. We live down hyar all right."

"Do you call it livin' down here all right to set aroun' an' slap bugs all day?" the colonel retorted.

"Don't slap bugs all day," the native answered.

"Yes, you do too. I'll bet $5 you can't set there where you are five minutes with your hands folded in your lap."

It was a bet, and the colonel moved around behind the native as that worthy undertook the ordeal. There were a few bugs of one kind and another, but the colonel placed his reliance upon something that was easier calculated to make an impression.

Standing where his adversary could not observe him, he took a small sun glass from his pocket and focused its beam upon the back of the native's neck. It was not very long until the red hair on the neck began to curl up and smoke, and after about two minutes and a half the yellow skin began to squirm. The native gritted his teeth and stood it for three minutes and a half. Then he spoke.

"Colonel," he said, "Ah don' want to seem to hedge on this bet, but Ah'll compromise right now for two dollahs an' a half if you'll let me brush that bald tailed hornet off'n the back o' my neck."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Where They Missed It.

It was their first baby.

The mother was in a perfect rapture.

It was an ugly baby, but she did not know it.

Happy young mother!

All of them are like her.

But the father had dark misgivings. His salary was only two-ten a week, and babies are expensive luxuries.

Her father was rich, but he had frowned upon their union and had heterodox and heretical notions as to supporting a son-in-law besides.

Cruel old man!

One day when the baby was a month old the father came home from his office in the city and found his wife radiant.

She was not happy when the baby was out of her sight.

"What is it, Jennie?" asked her husband gloomily, for he was yet uncertain as to the blessings conferred by the baby.

He was also sleepy.

"Oh, Charlie!" she chirruped. "I heard from papa today."

Charlie looked gloomier than ever.

"Don't say anything, dear," she pleaded, for she knew her husband's opinion of her father. "He has heard of our baby, and, though he has not yet determined to forgive us, he has sent us a check for £50 for dear baby's sake."

At first the young husband's face lit up with pleasure, then it shadowed again.

"Are you glad, Charlie?' she asked, with a quivering lip.

Then he smiled joyfully.

"Yes, darling," he whispered; "but what a pity it wasn't twins!"—Ally Sloper.

Her Game.

"Your father despises that young man you are engaged to."

"I know it, and so do I."

"Then why in the world are you going to marry him?'

"I wouldn't marry him if he was the last man on earth."

"Then why"—

The Skeeters Return.

Night time, and the skeeters come.
Round and round they're winging.
Whew! Where are they coming from?
Listen to their singing.

"B-z-z-z-z!" the skeeters say,
Bite all night and sleep all day.
Never can keep them away—
Nets, smoke or kerosene—
Even nip you through a screen.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. The ...Veiled Lady...

must be alone a little while.—Isabel Percy."

The lonely husband could not see, while he mourned, (buried in the lonely, defiant woman, in Paris, living seldom, save in the evening, and even then, heavily veiled!

Tied by fear; by the haunting desire to find out Horace Jenks and his doings, Irene Gordon—(in defence of her life)—pondered every ruse of a woman's wit. Yet amply supplied with funds,—the proceeds of Gordon's generosity, and her own sales of jewels—she gazed, night after night, in the fire of vine roots, crackling on her lonely hearth. Her future was only a fight against Fate. "How to stay here unknown, how to watch Jenks, and yet wear out the days! I must find a way!" With bitter sorrow, she daily thought of Gordon. Alas! He was only a bridge over one past danger. "He is suffering with me now! It is the dark future I fear!' She pressed her hands over her aching eyes, and strove to recall honest Jack Gordon, as he clasped her to his bosom the night of parting.

Ah! There was a red veil between her and the husband of a week. It was the stain of Egbert Neill's blood! Two weeks after her arrival, she returned from a conference with "Duprez," one of the leading music teachers. She sat down and gazed out of the window. A settled expression of resolve was on her lovely face. "Saved by my music; my only treasure now!" she pondered. "Thanks for the power of money; I have a valid reason for the closest retirement in my musical studies. Duprez (securing me a quiet apartment), with piano and giving me private lessons, will be a powerful protector. I will bury myself! His admiration of my voice has made the good old man charge himself with selecting a reliable maid. Il connait bien son Paris!

"My French is good enough to mislead him; he evidently does not take me for an American; and she smiled, in spite of her sorrows. "Should I be followed, I can run over to Switzerland or Italy. I will have no friend; no confidant! And Horace Jenks!" she shuddered at his sworn vengeance, for a commissionaire, discreetly dispatched to the "American Exchange," brought her his address: "Cercle des Etranges, 117 Boulevard Haussman." "He is almost at my door; I must change my abode! I must avoid him! He will never recognize dark-haired Irene Hope, in fair Isabel Percy!" The care-haunted woman glanced at her mirror. "No! with my own golden hair, he will not find Irene Hope in Isabel Percy! Three weeks will make that all safe!

"And Duprez! Liberal payment and hard study will satisfy him! I will find out Jenks' pursuits, his location, and watch him! It is a game for a life! I dare not leave Paris yet! Thank God, he does not know Beverly!"

In four days, Isabel Percy was installed in an upper apartment of a cosmopolitan house, where gossip would be idle, as its inmates came and went unnoticed. Merchant princes, Russian nobles, and wealthy strangers were on the bel etage, with artists, students and literary men in varied grades of pecuniary ease, who abode in the higher rooms. The old "maestro," charmed with her voice, had secured for her every comfort and absolute retirement. In her own name, he had, by her wish, secured the rooms. "She will be a meteor in the musical world!" he cried. Victorine, a sleek, neat-handed maid, with the soft voice and nameless graces of the Parisienne, deftly provided for the wants of "Mees' Isabel;" so much the more willingly, as Irene allowed her to reap ample commissions on the menage, without complaint. "C'est un ange de ciel!" exclaimed Victorine, as she contrasted her lovely mistress with certain shrill-voiced American women whom she had formerly served. Yet Victorine, (fond of mystery), was determined to find out all the history of her beautiful employer.

While several weeks passed quietly, Beverly Seaton, domiciled at the Hotel Athenee, masqueraded under the name of Alfred Brayton. It was not long till he was familiar with the floating Americans of the gay city. At the "American Buffet," the "Exchange," and other places, he casually brought up Horace Jenks' name. "Ah, Mr. Jenks, of California?" said the proprietor of the Buffet. "Know him well! Comes in here often! Find him at the 'Cercle des Etranges,' 117 Boulevard Haussman, when there's no races! Great man, Sir! Plunger! If you mind a high game, he's the man for you!" said the Boniface, lowering his voice; "it's really a quiet club for high play; but he rolls the highest game of all! He's around all the theatres and operas too! I'll show him to you some day! He makes big books on the races!"

Seaton abstractedly drank a glass of wine and wandered away "I must keep close to him and checkmate his pursuit. I alone have a right to either punish or protect Beatrice Seaton, innocent or guilty. I must save the family honor, even at the cost of life. But between this Irene Hope and Jack Gordon is a secret of crime, or its concealment! Shall I approach Jenks?"

While Seaton debated his future course for days, the mysterious prima donna, under Duprez's tuition, became the lionne of her abode. Her magnificent voice echoed through the corridors. Unknown admirers sighed for her in vein. At night, with her maid, she would go abroad, or, heavily veiled, drive in a close coupe to the Bois. It was only ascertained that she was rich, a nun in her seclusion, and that with the charms of blooming youth and a Venus-like form, she possessed a superb coronal of golden hair. While the ardent cavaliers around her swore to storm the battlements of the Veiled Beauty, she pondered anxiously over details, as to Horace Jenks and his life, cautiously obtained by Duprez. "He will forget his vengeance in the mad excitement of play," she thought. For Jenks' feats at baccarat and all games of skill and chance, blew his name abroad. Russian nobles, continental blue bloods, and the jeunesse doree went down before the lance of the gray-eyed Californian.

Resolutely silent, and having avoided the Bank, where Jack Gordon's impassioned letters lay awaiting her, Irene held back her second letter. "If I am chased away from this haven," said the defiant woman, "I will bury myself forever from the pursuer. Then, Gordon must never know! He shall think me dead! I swear it! I will wait till I know my ground,—but, my future. . . . I dare not sing openly; my personality might betray me! Gordon, I cannot meet again, if Beverly lingers near him! And the untiring pursuers!" she shuddered. "Of what avail my voice, if I dare not sing in Europe? My gallant husband is lost to me if I dare not return! As for me, there is only the river; or"—(she saw her face reflected in beauty, in the glass)—"the dark oblivion—of—infamy!"

Irene Gordon, in the years since her light foot passed over the threshold of Seaton Hall, had learned the devil-chase of men for lonely beauty. "Even here," she sighed, "are other dangers!" Irene realized this, when, day after day, a magnificent basket of flowers was delivered to Victorine, bearing a simple card: "To the Unknown Diva." The Frenchwoman shrugged her shoulders, as Irene protested. The fugitive wife little dreamed that Victorine had golden reasons for silence. It was true!

Pacing his splendid apartments, beneath, Max, Count Stahrenstein, (a haughty Austrian), listened, day by day, to Irene's music. Lord of manors and castles in his storied land, Max Stahrenstein, at forty-seven, was as wild and untamed as the eagles soaring over his eyrie at Furstenfeld, in far-away Styria, where the Raab breaks from its purpled mountains to join the "Beautiful Blue Danube."

Eagle-eyed, wicked, witty, and with the refined insolence of his caste, Stahrenstein knew but one good, Pleasure; but one law, his will!—Regal in profusion, polished by court life, at once voluptuary and veteran, his eagle eye and Roman face told of the sensual weakness of a Caesar, as surely as his stormy youth had shown the desperate gallantry of his ancient race. The imperious Count directly accosted Victorine, as she flitted by his superb apartment.

The Count's valet has discreetly paved the way. When Victorine demurely glided from the morning-room, (princely in its adornments) she clutched several crisp blue billets de banque which thrilled in their touch her nervous fingers. Her "secret master" was the donor of the flowers, whose loveliness and delicate fragrance daily mocked Irene's sombre moods.

"All will go on,—with time,—with time," the Count murmured, as he toyed with his letters, and the unread journals. "I must find her out; her secrets; her reasons for seclusion! A lover? No! this maid has told the truth." Stahrenstein gaily hummed a lyric of love, as he took his hat, cane and gloves for his morning drive. "I'll give Josef money, and let him entertain the maid. He's a devil of a fellow! Yes! a devil of a fellow!" The high blood mounted into Stahrenstein's martial face, and the red sabre slash he received at Sadowa, burned more brightly.

"Yes! Decidedly! It will go on now!" he murmured, as he sank back in the carriage cushions and departed.

On this memorable morning, Mr. Horace Jenks was calmly breakfasting at the Cercle des Etranges. The obsequious head steward watched the great "plunger" as he methodically disposed of the choicest dainties of the season. One of two habitues gazed respectfully on the king of the green cloth. Gathering up a bundle of letters, Jenks selected one, and choosing a cigar from his case, sauntered into the smoking room. Choosing the most pleasant angle of the cosy room, Jenks opened his letters.

"Ah! from Orton!" he ruminated, and a serious shade flitted over his calm face. He read it with eagerness. The letter was a long one. Finishing it with deep attention, he drew forth from the envelope a woman's picture. "So now, this is the missing singer! Yes, by Jove! It's the very girl who was at Selfridge's." He read over the closing lines: "I obtained this photograph by sending the old organist to Selfridge with a request for the picture of the Queen of the Choir. The old Doctor courteously loaned his original, and I have had them copied for the choir. This is said to be very good. He sent us two, and I send you the one in walking costume. I flatter myself this was neatly done."

"So it was, friend Orton!" said Jenks to himself. "I will glance at these others, and I will have Paris scoured to find this sharp-witted woman. She shall not give me the slip now, and, by Jove, I'll have her belongings neatly fingered. If I can get the missing proofs, God help her! She will rue the day when she butchered poor Neill!"

In half an hour, Jenks strolled into the salle a manger. The room was deserted. At his desk, the head steward was checking up his papers.

"Come to the smoking room, Baptiste! I want you!" said Jenks. His manner was confidential.

"All right," said the grave-faced servant.

In a few moments the two were in a corner exchanging confidences. The "Star" member and the steward were associate thieves. "Everything all right for to-night, Baptiste?" said Jenks in a low voice. "Have you plenty of cards?"

"All is ready, Sir!" rejoined the steward.

"You had better watch that American army fellow, and Dennis! I'll play against them, if no fresh fish come in! We have taken a good deal out of Count Stahrenstein lately. He is apt

CAPTAIN DID NOT KNOW.

Master of Ferry 18 Did Not Realize His Plight.

Ludington, Mich., Sept. 12.—That the cause of the disaster will never be fully known is the conclusion reached by General Superintendent Trump of the Pere Marquette Railroad, who came here Saturday to investigate the wreck of the Pere Marquette Car Ferry No. 18 here Friday.

According to the report sent by Mr. Trump to Pere Marquette headquarters in Detroit Saturday, Capt. Russell of steamer No. 17 was merely asked by Capt. Kilty of No. 18 to stand by when he arrived at the scene, Capt. Kilty evidently not believing that his vessel was in imminent danger. Capt. Russell, however, observed that No. 18 was sinking and lowered his lifeboats just before No. 18 went to the bottom.

According to Mr. Trump, there were 62 people on the steamer No. 18. The 16 above the regular crew were employes of the Chicago Navigation Co., with Seymour E. Cochrane, vice-president of that company, and a corps of extra scrubbers, carpet layers, etc., who were working while the boat was moving, in order to save time. Mr. Cochrane was saved, but his four men were lost. The first intimation those on board No. 18 had that anything was wrong was when the helmsman, about 4 o'clock a.m., found that the vessel was not responding quickly.

The compartment aft of the engine room was then found to contain a considerable amount of water, though not enough to disturb the firemen and deck hands sleeping there.

Distress signals were given as the vessel continued to sink, and the lifeboats on the port side were lowered, but not cut away from the ship. Capt. Kilty continued to head the steamer for the west shore of Lake Michigan. All of the survivors jumped or were thrown from the boat when she sank, and were picked up by boats from steamer No. 17.

NINE MEN KILLED.

Erie Tunnel Collapses on Workmen In Jersey City.

New York, Sept. 12.—At least nine laborers were killed outright yesterday and ten others injured, one of them critically, and all seriously, in the collapse of an overhanging shoulder of rock above the western mouth of the old Erie tunnel under Bergen Hill, connecting the Erie terminal in Jersey City with its westward divisions.

Of the known dead, four were Americans, three were unidentified, and two were foreigners. The American dead are: James Feshan, 60 years old; Fred. Shuver, 20; Wm. Halliday, 28; Joseph Bewmann, 19; all living in the near vicinity of the accident.

Of the known injured, the only one in immediate danger is John James, an American, 30 years. Surgeons had to cut the flesh from his right thigh to free him from the debris.

Several years the Erie has been working at the task of cutting an open cut for its passenger trains through the solid rock of Bergen Hill, which in some spots is 300 feet high. The cut was opened for travel not long ago, but there still remains the task of hewing a common portal for the old tunnel, and the new cut out of the ledge where they will meet west of the boulevard. It was there that the fall came yesterday.

A wall of rock from four to ten feet thick still separated the two sets of tracks, and eight sets of drills were pounding away at it yesterday. Their jar loosened a strip of rock from this wall forty feet wide and twenty feet high. It peeled off like wallpaper and crashed upon the gang which was tearing down the brickwork at the mouth of the old tunnel.

A Victory For U. S.

Washington, Sept. 12.—The general result of the fisheries award by The Hague tribunal is regarded as a substantial victory for the contentions of the United States, according to an unofficial, tentative analysis of the decision given out by the Department of State. As to question one, wherein the British claim of inherent sovereignty power to make the fishery regulations without the United States Government's consent was sustained, the department says that while the United States thus lost its extreme contention that the 1818 treaty established an international servitude, exempting American fishermen absolutely from British fishing regulations, the decision in practical effect appears to secure the same measure of protection against unfair exemption which this contention was designed to secure.

Regarding the decision on question five, defining "bays," the Department says: "It cannot be regarded as laying down any general rule regarding the determination of the extent of bays in other waters than the bays on the non-treaty coasts, or regarding the extent of bays in those waters, except as to the fishing rights renounced by the United States."

Stricken In the Pulpit.

Leamington, Sept. 12.—Rev. Jasper Wilson of Hespeler, was stricken with paralysis while occupying the pulpit of the Methodist Church here yesterday morning, and is now lying in a dangerous condition. Rev. Mr. Wilson is a former much loved pastor of the local church, and had been invited to conduct the harvest home services, which were to have taken place yesterday.

He had just finished the opening prayer when he sank unconscious into the pulpit chair. He was carried to the home of a member of the congregation, where his condition was found to be so critical that his family was summoned to his bedside.

Boston's Population.

Washington, Sept. 12.—The population of Boston, Mass., is 670,585, an increase of 109,693, or 19.6 per cent. as compared with 560,892 in 1900.

This announcement leaves Boston the fifth city in the United States.

An Old Salt.

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 12.—Conrad Vandelsen, a centenarian, for many years a vessel owner and captain on the great lakes, died Saturday at his home near Joliet. He sailed the great lakes for sixty years.

RIDING THE AIR.

The First Sensation That Comes In an Aeroplane Trip.

"All who have had the good fortune to ride in an aeroplane," said one of 'em the other day, "unite in their description of their first sensation. There is no jerk in the starting, though the machine may leap forward with a powerful swoop. Then comes—with some—a brief sense of nausea, a feeling as if the ground were dropping away from beneath.

"A slight thrust of the lever lifts the flying machine's head; the ground drops away still faster. Then, as the aeroplane soars higher, its occupant's eyes adjust themselves to the proper focus, and the surface of the earth below seems to be ripping past at railway speed.

"By this time you have forgotten the clack of the noisy motor, the flap and whir of the propellers, the grinding of the chain and sprocket gear that drives them. All vibration has practically ceased, and you float along with a sense of springy ease and buoyancy such as you can gain from no other means of locomotion. That you are flying fast you know only from the roar of the wind in your ears and the slight difficulty you have in filling your lungs with air—the same sensation one gets in racing against the wind in an automobile on a good highway.

"Then comes the first turn. The machine rises to it, taking its own angle sideways, just as an automobile leans on the banked curve of a racing track. You have no sense of leaning sideways, though—no feeling that you must tilt yourself as you do when an automobile turns a corner, for you sit upright, the aeroplane slanting of its own volition to the necessary angle and slanting you with it.

"A glass of water set on the floor of the flier could be carried round curve after curve and still not lose a drop."—New York Telegraph.

COTTONSEED FLOUR.

The Wonderful Qualities Claimed For the New Product.

A Texan writer says cottonseed flour is to be added to the nation's dietary. It has been tried, and it is said to be an excellent food. It contains 54 per cent protein, 7.17 per cent starch and practically no fat. It is alleged it has a nutritive value more than five times that of wheat flour, nearly three times that of lean round of beef and from three to thirty times that of many of the best known and most commonly used articles of food.

By the addition of cottonseed flour to the national dietary millions of dollars will be added to the income of southern cotton growers and the tendency of some of the wheat operators to interfere with the price of bread will be checked. To the discovery of the nutritive values in cotton the country is indebted to Patten, whose attempt to monopolize "the staff of life" led many scientists to make inquiries and conduct experiments with a view to obtaining a food that might be a substitute for wheat or an auxiliary of the wheat supply. That it should have been found in cotton is somewhat surprising to those who thought the possibilities of this wonderful plant had been exhausted when cottonseed oil had been introduced. Great is King Cotton, that can both clothe and feed mankind.—Los Angeles Herald.

Her Baby Boy.

"If you have any doubt as to the healthfulness of Bulgaria and the sturdiness of its people, look at this picture." This message was inscribed on a picture postcard received a few days ago from Pavelsko, a little village in that country. The picture shows a peasant woman standing at a rustic hedge, spinning flax by the most ancient method, with the fiber held over her shoulder by a forked branch. Behind the woman stands a stout man of more than the average height, wearing a full gray beard. Under this picture is the legend: "Baba Vasilka, 120 years old, and her baby boy, Todor, who is now 101 years old. They have always lived in Pavelsko."—New York Tribune.

Forbidden Tinder Boxes.

Six large factories and three smaller workshops in Austria are working at high pressure, writes our Vienna correspondent, to meet the orders for the tiny pocket tinder box which many smokers are now using instead of matches. The production is between 8,000 and 10,000 daily. In Spain, Portugal, France and Roumania the import of the tinder boxes is forbidden. Italy puts a tax of 1s. 3d. on each box in order to make the price of the tinder box equal to that of the number of matches, estimated at 3,000, that would be needed to replace the new apparatus. The minister of finance in Austria is considering the question of taxing the boxes.—London Mail.

The Right Way to Water a Lawn.

Lawns are frequently damaged by the droughts of summer, and they are also badly injured by the pernicious watering they too frequently receive. There is only one way to water a lawn. That is to soak it so that the soil will be moistened for a foot or more deep and watering will not be needed for a week. Most people water a lawn every day whether the grounds need it or not, but they give only enough water to wet the surface. This practice results in the plants producing their working roots near the surface, and when the family goes away for the customary two weeks' vacation in the summer the lawn burns up brown.—Suburban Life.

The argument advanced in favor of a new phonograph which has its records in the form of endless belts is that it is possible to provide much longer selections than by the older methods.

FOOLS THE BATTERS.

The Celebrated Fadeaway Ball Pitched by Mathewson.

Hugh S. Fullerton, writing of the wonders of pitching in the American Magazine, says:

"Before Mathewson learned the trick of pitching his 'fader' there was one man who pitched the same ball in even more wonderful style. He was Virgil Garvin, now dead, and if he had possessed baseball intelligence enough to use other balls to mix with it he probably would have been another Mathewson. Garvin was a tall, slender young Texan with extremely long fingers, and he pitched the ball with the middle finger lapped over the index finger, turning his hand almost upside down, allowing the ball to slip over the sides and ends of the first two and between the second and third fingers. As he released the ball from his hand he jerked it sharply backward. The result was that the ball appeared to be moving with great speed. As it came near the batter the ball seemed to hesitate in the air and then suddenly curve down and in, just as a left hander's slow curve does. The ball was a freak. Garvin did not understand its full worth, and it remained for Mathewson to develop and use it intelligently. He achieved the fadeaway by holding the ball precisely as if for a fast outcurve and by releasing it over the side of the middle finger. By the sharp holding pressure at the moment of release he put 'reverse English' on the ball, causing it to revolve rapidly up to a point where it suddenly lost force and dropped, rather than curved, down and in toward the right handed batter and away from the left handed one. Not content with that achievement, Mathewson trained the ball so that by jerking or turning his wrist sharply at the instant he let go of it he could make it 'fade' either way and, even more, could regulate its speed at will.

"The fadeaway operates exactly on the same principle as a billiard ball struck low can be 'drawn.' When the 'draw English' begins to take effect upon the ball it attempts to return to the pitcher, and if the friction surface was solid instead of air it would do so."

Personal Honesty In England.

In his annual report the chief constable of Liverpool says that "in every relation of life there are indications that there is a general decay of personal honesty." He argues that crime, instead of decreasing, is actually increasing in England. The crimes of the animal and the savage crimes against the person he admits have lessened, but crimes against property—the crimes of civilized man—have increased. Further, he says, "There is more of that disregard for the truth which is the initial stage of dishonesty, more carelessness about the honesty of the means employed in getting the better of somebody else which is the principal object of so many transactions between man and man."

Title of Queen Mother.

It is many years since the title of queen mother, by which Queen Alexandra will in future be known, has been borne by the widow of an English king. The consort of William IV. became, of course, at his death queen dowager, while the wives of the four Georges all died before their husbands. The last queen mother, in fact, was Henrietta Maria, wife of Charles I., who lived for years after her son's restoration to the throne. For a previous instance we have to go back to Queen Elizabeth Woodville, widow of Edward IV. and mother of the infant king who was murdered with his brother in the Tower of London.—Dundee Advertiser.

The Wheat Ears.

Edward H. Crump, mayor of Memphis, praised in a recent address those charities that send slum children to the country in the hot weather.

"The pale, lean urchins of the slums," said Mayor Crump, "show in quaint ways how strange they are to the country and its charms. Thus a little country weeker on leaving the train at Green Willows ran ahead of his companions over the meadows. He soon came running back again, shouting excitedly:

"'Hey, fellers, come here quick! Here's a field of shrimps!'

"The field to which he pointed was planted in wheat."—Washington Star.

Books In China.

Missionaries say, according to the Homiletic Review, London, that it is becoming difficult to procure at the bookshops in China any copies of the works of Confucius. Formerly the Confucian classics, with voluminous commentaries, formed the chief stock in trade, the remaining supplies being chiefly composed of fantastic novels which read grotesquely when translated. The change which has taken place is revolutionary, for scientific and mathematical works, translated from English, French and German, together with the stories of Doyle, Dickens, Dumas and Scott, fill the bookstores.

The New Paris.

Not less than $300,000,000 is to be raised by the municipal council of Paris to be spent on the improvement of the city. The Haussmannization of Paris is to be completed. The housebreaker is already at work where the Boulevard Haussmann is to cut its way through to the Boulevard Montmartre and thus make a broad thoroughfare the whole way from the Bois de Boulogne to Pere Lachaise. The region of the Halles is to be improved out of recognition, while a new bridge is to be thrown across the Seine. And these are only examples.

A swimming suit for beginners which a Washington man has invented has a life preserver around the body, elastic bands to pull the legs forward and fins at the ankles that open as the feet are pushed backward.

VOLNEY E. ROSCO, A RESIDENT OF CHICAGO, ESTABLISHED RECORDS AT MARRIAGE BUREAU—TALKES ABOUT MENTAL WAVES AND PSYCHIC SUGGESTION.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 10.—Volney E. Rosco has established a record in the marriage license department in the county building. Mr. Rosco lacks two months of being ninety-two years old. He applied for a license to marry Miss Helen Conger, forty-four years old. Mr. Salmonson, the clerk, immediately after the archives and announced all recth archives and announced that all records had been smashed. Eighty-five years had before been the age of the oldest applicant for a marriage license.

Mr. Rosco, who is a veteran of the Civil War and a resident of Chicago for sixty years, was born in Waterloo, N.Y., on November 9, 1818. He married at the age of twenty and his first wife lived to celebrate her sixty-seventh anniversary. She died five years ago. Mr. Rosco explained his reason for taking the latest step.

"I grieved a lot over the death of my first wife," he said. "It got to be lonesome with nothing but my parrot to keep me company. I don't believe in the Robinson Crusoe style of existence as long as you don't live on a desert isle.

"Since meeting Miss Conger two years ago, I felt that we were created for each other. Call it mental waves or psychic suggestion, or whatever you want.

"There was no formal proposal. I did not ask her if she would be mine. I knew she would, and she knew I wanted her. I remarked to her the other day—:

"'It's about time we were applying for a license,' and she said any time I was ready she was."

THE READY SWEDISH WIT.

A Swede one day was asked if he was going to see the play, "Ole Olson," which was underlined to appear at one of the theatres in a northwestern city that evening. "Ay note tank so," said the quick-witted son of the north. "And why not?" was the surprised inquiry. "Val oy yust tal you. Avery morning ay see dat feller ven oy comb ma hair, an ef hai luk any tang lak det, hai bane darn homely cuss." It goes without saying that the unsophisticated "Ole Olson" of the stage was not appreciated by the Ole Olson of the simple life.

The Trolley in Japan.

Japan has been invaded by the trolley. Shades of the samurai! From misty dawn until the fireflies are astir one may now trolley around Tokyo and from there to Yokohama. No other trolley system on earth offers a more tempting and diversified program for its guests than this trolley ramble, for instance, which visitors to the Japanese capital are now taking at a cost of less than 50 cents. From any corner of Tokyo the trolley deposits one at the Shinagawa suburb, where the rural lines have their city terminus. The equipment is made up of heavy high powered cars, quite similar to those used in the same service in the United States. The different devices about the cars bear the names of patentees and manufacturers familiar to those who overhaul the rolling stock of any American company—Travel Magazine

A New Rifle Muffler.

The stir created by Maxim's murderous rifle silencer, which is really a muffler, not a silencer, has brought other inventors into the field. A Moore silencer is chronicled that is said to have many advantages over that of Maxim, not the least of which is its relative cheapness. The ordnance department of the army is now giving it a test. With a considerable crop of "silencers" it is probable that a really effective eliminator of the report of a rifle will eventually be evolved. The next war is thus likely to be fought in a deadly silence, far more terrifying than the roaring of the unmuzzled gunpowder of historic battlefields.—New York Press.

A Consul for Regina.

Even the city states in German Europe have diplomatic corps—gentlemen with Vandyke beards and monocles, whose main function is to dance and dine and, on the side, keep the ice to the heated brows of rambunctious nationalists. Regina has gone in for a consulate—quite a new sign of progressiveness indeed. Dr. Jones, American Consul-General for Canada, has told Washington to despatch a diplomat instantly to Saskatchewan's capital. As yet, the name of this diplomat of the plains has not been announced. He will have at least one distinction — he will be first in the business west of Winnipeg.

ARTIST HAS NO LIMBS

C. J. SHIRLEY SHOOTS, RIDES, AND PLAYS CRICKET.

Englishman, Now In London, Was Born Without Arms or Legs and For Thirty Years Has Been Fighting a Hard Battle to Keep Abreast of His Fellows—He Has Even Won Races as an Amateur Jockey.

Born without arms and legs. Can anyone imagine a greater handicap in life? To be pitied in the struggle for existence against millions of men who, even though sound in body and limb, find it difficult to gain a livelihood. Can anything seem more hopeless? And yet optimism is the keynote of the character of Mr. Cecil J. Shirley, a man who for thirty years has been bravely fighting the battle of life against heavy odds.

"It is true," he remarked to an interviewer, "that lately I have met with some misfortunes. They commenced in South Africa, where a man with whom I had entered into partnership on a farm played me false and left me stranded. I found it necessary to come to England again, and have since been endeavoring to sell my pictures. I must confess I have not so far met with much success in that direction, but I have great hopes of my book, which gives the story of my life."

And never was a more absorbing story unfolded. Mr. Shirley's career has been as varied as it is interesting. For several years he worked in South Africa and Australia on farms and sheep stations, gaining practical knowledge which he hopes to put to good use in the future; for it is his ambition to obtain sufficient money to purchase a small holding in England, and live the quiet, happy life of a farmer.

Many were Mr. Shirley's adventures in the backblocks of Australia and amongst the Boers of South Africa. He learnt the Dutch language, lived amongst the men who fought against us during the South African war, interviewed President Kruger, acted as clerk, overseer, storekeeper, and in other capacities on farms, rode thousands of miles alone through the bush—in a word, he followed the rough life of the thousands of Englishmen who have gone out to the colonies and earned their living by strenuous labor.

"But surely, Mr. Shirley," I remarked, as he talked of his colonial experiences, "you found the work difficult?"

"Not so much as you might imagine. In the first place, I have always endeavored, as far as possible, to avoid thinking of my physical deformities, and I have so accustomed myself to using the stumps of my arms as hands that what may seem to you almost impossible feats are really quite easy. For instance, you see I can fill my pipe,"—and Mr. Shirley picked his pouch off the table with his arms, opened it, rubbed some tobacco, and, placing the latter in a little pile on the table, filled his pipe as neatly as any other man could do. Then he took up a box of matches, pushed it open with the stem of his pipe, shook out a match, and struck it by holding the box firmly on the table with the pipe pressed on it, and gripping the match between his two arms.

It is equally amazing to see Mr. Shirley using the typewriter with the aid of a pencil, or writing a note in ordinary handwriting—or, rather, armwriting—the legibility of which, by the way, would be a credit to a Civil Service clerk. A splendid horseman, Mr. Shirley is never so happy as when he can go for a ride, and the most mettlesome steed has no terrors for him. As a matter of fact, Mr. Shirley won several horse-races in the colonies and carried off one or two prizes for rifle-shooting. And he demonstrated to the reporter in a game of billiards that it is not always necessary to have hands in order to make runs of fifteen or twenty.

It is his pictures, however, which illustrate more forcibly than anything else the astonishing manner in which Mr. Shirley has overcome his great deformity. He paints in oils and water color, and, in addition, does a great deal of black-and-white work.

"I can hold my brush or pencil," he remarked, "as delicately between the two stumps of my arms as you can between your thumb and finger. I am a keen student of entomology and botany, and delight in painting pictures of insects, butterflies, leaves and flowers. Here are some specimens of my work," and Mr. Shirley brought out for my inspection some wonderful paintings of butterflies, insects and leaves, every vein and tiny detail of which was faithfully depicted.

"Would it not be helpful, Mr. Shirley, if you had artificial forearms?"

"I do not think so. In fact, they would probably prove cumbersome to me now. I find I can accomplish all I require to do, even to shaving, putting my collar on, and tying my tie with the stumps of my arms. Of course, it is necessary for me to have artificial legs.

"I am very fond of a long walk. Of course, I cannot run," he added, laughing; "and that reminds me of a rather amusing incident which occurred to me in Cape Town. One day I was walking in the main street, when there was a sudden shout of 'Mad dog!' and everybody scooted as fast as they could. Unfortunately I could not get out of the way quick enough, the dog gripped my leg. But he was a sadly disappointed dog, for he must have broken one or two teeth on the artificial calf, while the kick which I gave him with the other foot could not have been altogether pleasant.

"The astonishment of the people when they saw the animal run away howling was almost as amusing as that of the Cape Town policeman who rushed to my rescue when I was knocked down by a vehicle which passed over my legs. He stood gaping with astonishment when, instead of collapsing, I got up on the remains of my legs and asked him to be kind enough to help me to the nearest [illegible] appliance establishment."

Initial Exhibition of Fashionable Fall Models.

Our garment section is now featuring an exhibition of new Fall suits and coats, the latest whims and vagaries of fashion are represented, even to the finish of the sleeves, the styles, and the size of the buttons, these garments are correct and strictly up to the minute.

Suit styles this season are distinctive short coats and skirts of narrow width are the characteristic features, which however have been subjected to almost infinite variations by clever designers, for instance, jaunty models intended for more practical wear border somewhat on what was previous know as the "box coats" in more elaborate styles upon which rich trimmings have been employed the Empire note is accentuated, In separate coats, long garments which envelope the entirely figure are in the lead.

Rich soft tones appear in the materials which are of exceptionally fine quality. Tailoring that is skillfully executed adds distinctly to their attraction. We make a specialty of smart, well made garments for women.

Women's costumes $12.50 to $35.00

Women's coats $7.50 to $38.50

"COUNTESS OF DUFFERIN."

Manitoba's First Locomotive to Adorn Park.

The locomotive, "Countess of Dufferin" famed as being the first locomotive ever seen in Manitoba arrived in the Winnipeg early in May from Golden, B.C. It was expected that the engine would be brought from Golden on its own wheelbase but this was found to be impracticable. It was therefore raised on to a flat car which was duly billed to General Manager George J. Bury, at Winnipeg. The car arrived in the local freight sheds in due time and it was unloaded in the yards and removed to the Winnipeg shops. Here it will undergo a thorough overhauling and will be put in as good condition as its age permits. It will be re-painted and made attractive in appearance and then in all probability will this summer find a last resting-place in the park facing the Canadian Pacific depot on Higgins avenue, Winnipeg. It will call up many an old reminiscence to the pioneers who were opening up the West when this old-timer appeared on the scene to make transportation easier. Its coming marked a new era, the passing of the old ox-cart and the advent of railroads. Supt. John McLellan, in speaking of the Countess of Dufferin said that he saw the old locomotive first in 1878. It had been brought to Winnipeg two years before, in 1876. It was brought down the Red River on a barge as at that time there was no rail leading into the city. The locomotive was intended for use in construction work on the line running from St. Boniface to Selkirk, Mr. McLellan added that the locomotive was built in 1871 and although it is much smaller than the huge locomotives of to-day it was of a fair size and did excellent service.

For a number of years the locomotive was used at the lumber plant of Mackenzie and Mann at Golden, B.C., but latterly it has been comparatively little used and last year it was not used at all.

Ontario Gets Most.

Western Canada naturally attracts most immigrants. Free land is the lodestone, as is evidenced by the fact that in the fiscal year 1910 58 per cent. of our total immigration settled there. The propaganda carried on by the Government is not, however, confined to settling the West. The exodus of farmers and farmers' sons from Eastern Canada to the West—last fiscal year, 11,600 homesteads being granted to Canadians alone — leaves tremendous gaps in the East, and the success of the effort to fill these gaps is clearly shown by the fact that 58 per cent. of the British arrivals—the best agricultural class of immigrants—remain in Eastern Canada. Of the Western Provinces Alberta seems to be the favorite, gaining 42,509 settlers; British Columbia, 30,532; and Saskatchewan third, 29,218, which was more than Quebec secured. Ontario received the largest number of any individual province, East or West.

Canada's Population.

Optimists estimate that the population of Canada will reach eight millions when the census is taken next year. The Census Bureau estimated our population at 7,184,744 on March 31, 1909, and of this number, 1,430,000 are in the West. Last year, 209,000 immigrants reached our shores, and, assuming that practically all of these are now west of the Great Lakes, the population there would equal 1,639,000. The effect of the upbuilding of the West is shown nowhere more strikingly than in the representation of the House of Commons. In 1867 the House numbered 181 members, all Easterners; in 1875, there were 196 Eastern representatives and 10 Western; in 1895 the proportions were 196 and 17 respectively, and at present they stand 186 to 35.

The Manifestations Of Eye-Strain

Continued.

Cataract.—Twelve years ago I pointed out the association of cataract with astigmatism. Examining 200 cataract eyes, all under homatropine, and accepting only those lenses as showing cataract that had distinct opaque striae in their substance, or with opaque nuclei, and excluding all forms of congenital cataract, only reckoning as an error of refraction any astigmatism over 0.25 and any hyperopia over 1, I found that 150, or 75 per cent., had astigmatism, 49 had hyperopia or presbyopia, and 1 simply myopia. In other words, eyestrain must have been present in 99 per cent. of these cases].

If one accepts the theory that in low forms of astigmatism there is a dynamic astigmatism of the lens correcting the astigmatism of the cornea, it is easy to see how the constant irregular corrective astigmatism of the lens must interfere with its nutrition and lead to the senile changes we call cataract.

Found Guilty of a Most Serious Offence.

Before Judge Fraleck this morning James C. Palmer, who is about 20 years of age, was charged with a most serious offence, namely, indecently assaulting two little girls. The accused lives in the Township of Madoc, and was at a farm residence when it is alleged the offence charged took place. The evidence given by the two girls aged 11 and 14 years, aws of a most damaging nature. The accused denied that he did what the girls accused him of. The case excited much interest. Mr. Anderson appeared for the Crown and Mr. W. J. Moore of Madoc village defended the accused.

Palmer was found guilty of the charges preferred against him and sentence was deferred for one week.

Wedding Bells

IRWIN—NORTON.

A quiet wedding took place in Emmanuel Rectory on Saturday when Mr. Arthur Isaac Irwin was united in marriage to Miss Mabel Julia Norton the cermeony being performed by the Rev. A. M. Hubly. Both are residents of this city.

BACON—SULLIVAN.

A large and most interesting home wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sullivan, of Plainfeld, on Sept. 7th, when about one hundred guests assembled to witness the marriage of their only daughter, Ethel Pearl, to Mr. Luther M. Bacon, of Corbyville. While the wedding march was being played by Miss Keitha Moor, at 8 p.m. the bridal party took their places on the verandah under an arch of evergreens, beautifully decorated with bunting and Chinese lanterns. The bride was given away by her father. The bride was tastefully attired in a gown of cream satin trimmed with overlace and ribbon, wearing a bridal veil caught with a chaplet of carnations and smilax, and she also carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

The bridesmaid was Miss Laura Bacon, sister of the groom, and was gowned in pale blue silk, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

The groom was attended by Mr. Raymond Sullivan, brother of the bride.

Little Miss Valena Reavie performed the duties of flower girl. She was daintily dressed in a pink silk frock.

After the ceremony was performed by Rev. McConnell, of Roslin, a sumptuous supper was served in a large tent on the lawn which was decorated for the occasion.

The presents were beautiful and numerous, showing the esteem in which the bride and groom were held by their many friends.

The groom's present to the bride was a gold brooch set with pearls; to the bridesmaid and little flower girl a ring, while the groomsman received a set of cuff links.

The bride's going away dress was navy blue Panama, with hat to match.

Amid showers of rice, the happy couple left in an auto for Belleville to take the 2 a.m. train for Toronto, Port Huron, Flint and other western points. On their return they will reside at Corbyville.

An Expensive Drunk

Wm. Sero, an Indian, was arrested on Saturday evening for being drunk. This morning the Magistrate imposed upon him a fine of $10 and costs.

Was in a Fighting Mood

A stranger named R. Copeland was in the city on Saturday and partook too freely of intoxicants, with the result that he not only became intoxicated but was in a fighting mood. The result was he was locked up and had to contribute $10 to the city treasury for being drunk and fighting.

The Grim Reaper.

SAMUEL SYMONS.

On Sunday morning death claimed as a victim, Mr. Samuel Symons, who resided on Octavia street. For the past five years the deceased had been a sufferer from rheumatism and at times suffered excruciating pains. Mr. Symons, who was 58 years of age, was born in this city, being a son of the late Mr. Wm. Symons. All his life aws spent in this city, where he was well and favorably known. By occupation he was a tailor, but of late, had been owing to illness unable to follow his occupation. "Sam," as he was familiarly called, had a host of friends in this city, who will regret his demise. Deceased was a member of Mizpah Lodge, I. O. O. F., and attended St. John's Anglican church. Some years ago he married Miss Belle Fleming, daughter of the late Mr. James Fleming of this city. In addition to the widow two daughters, Mrs. J. Joslin, of Lacombe, Alta., and Mrs. W. Parry, of Toronto, survive, besides three brothers, Thomas and Robert of this city and John of Oswego, and two sisters, Henrietta and Bessie of this city. To the bereaved ones will be extended the sincere sympathy of all friends.

Our Annual Fair.

The Belleville Fair will open tomorrow and continue on Wednesday. It promises to be one of the best, if not the best, in the history of the Association. The entries in all the various classes are large, and special features of an entertaining nature have been provided. The grounds will be open to-morrow evening and special attractions will be presented in front of the grand stand.

A Quiet Decoration

A goodly number of the members of Mizpah Lodge, I. O. O. F. yesterday morning visited the Belleville cemetery and decorated with flowers the graves of the deceased members of the Order. The ceremony, whilst conducted unostentatiously, was of a solemn nature.

Where The Italian Beats The Yankee.

The Italian immigrant is finding a field of usefulness and of opportunity on the abandoned farms of the north-eastern states that have figured a good deal in current literature of late years. The Worcester, Mass., Telegram says of the arrivals of immigrants at Boston by the direct Italian steamship line that most of them have found places in New England and Northern New York, and, taking up the abandoned farms, are proving that the soil was not exhausted. They pay their own way and ask no favors, work hard and get more than a living from the soil. Men who had not been educated to despise hard work with their hands made this continent what it is, and the opportunities for their improving it are always presenting themselves.

Theology Course Will be Modified.

NEW SCHEME TO SECURE MEN FOR MINISTRY.—STUDENTS TO WORK IN THE FIELD.

Believing that modifications to the present theological course for candidates for the ministry presented the most efficacious means of recruiting the supply of men, and of meeting the immediate emergency after discussing the problem in all its various phrases, the special committee of the Presbyterian Church of Canada recently drafted a provisional report in which it outlined a special course for students in theology. The course, it felt, should be provided under the following conditions: A college term of three months to taken each year in the first four or five years of service in the field; second, ordination to be conferred at end of four or five years, with full priveleges of the ministry, except eligibility for a call, the latter to be conditional upon four or five years further probationary service, which must be efficient, under the Home Missions Committee, and upon taking such extra-mural study as may hereafter be decided upon.

The Committee will recommend to the General Assembly the appointment of a Board of Education, whose duty it will be to secure uniformity of standards in the curricula, and promote co-operation among the various colleges.

With the view of carrying on a brisk educational movement along the line of securing recruits, a sub-committee will act, in conjunction with the Home Missions Department, in appointing a special agent to have charge of this branch of the matter, and to arrange for its presentation before the churches throughout the Dominion.

Was Much Impressed By Baden-Powell.

Colonel and Mrs. Lazier have returned from a two weeks' visit to Caledonia Springs.

Since the property has been purchased by the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Colonel says, the hotel and baths have been conducted in the same excellent manner in which all their hotels are run.

While at the Springs, Col. Lazier attended a luncheon given at the Country Club by Col. Biggar in honor of General Sir Baden-Powell, an informal affair, no speeches being made and the guests limited to twenty.

The Colonel was greatly impressed with the General's enthusiasm in his Boy Scout movement, and says he is very unassuming and dislikes speech-making.

What is believed to be the largest playable band instrument in the world is a tuba owned in Los Angeles, weighing 90 pounds and standing more than five feet high.

More Than 1,000 Years Ago.

A correspondent of the London Times writes of the discovery by himself on a "pillar of victory" in Lhasa of an edict which chronicles the conquest by Tibet of a great part of China. The date of it is some years later than the middle of the 8th century—the events recorded occurring ebtween 755 and 764. Although the characters of the memorial have been in some places defaced, the correspondent has succeeded in deciphering and translating the greater part of it. The edict does not give any clear reason for the invasion of China, simply alleging that the Minister, Klukong, in whom the king of Tibet had perfect confidence, feared the growing domination of the Chinese. There are really two wars, separated by at least half a dozen years. For, at the close of the first, the victorious Tibetans imposed a large tribute on the Chinese, which for some time the Emperor's Government paid. But on that monarch's death, his son, who succeeded him either would not or could not pay the tribute, and, therefore, the Tibetans sent an army to enforce it. A great battle was fought, and the Chinese were thoroughly defeated.

The trouble between Tibet and China which thus culminated had not ripened in a day. Ever since the followers of the Arabian Prophet had begun to spread his doctrines eastward and northward there had been agitation in Central Asia. As in Northern Africa, but more irregularly, the sword of Mohammed, wielded by fearless warriors, urged nation upon nation, until a vague apprehension was felt in the very heart of the continent. Towards the end of the 7th century a rebellious discontent seems to have overrun a great part of the Chinese Empire. From time immemorial it was the policy of the Emperors to demand tribute from the smaller nations adjacent to their own dominions. Some of them paid such tribute in consideration of a pledge to help in case of attack. At any rate, it was given to be understood, even in our own days—as in relation to Kuldja, Tonquin and Corea—that when China regarded any country as tributary, no other power should interfere with it. In only one instance—that of Kuldja—was the claim effectually enforced in recent times. This has been the policy of the makers and masters of China for ages. The history of China is largely made up of revolutions, secessions and revolts of so-called vassal princes or states. The changes of dynasty were frequent, but the members of all claimed to be Emperors by the favor of the powers above. Then, as in modern times, there were examples of the loyalty that is faithful unto death When the Liang or some other dynasty succeeded in power, a grandee who had held office under the later monarchs of that which had preceded it, starved himself to death, as if, in Cicero's words, he missed that which alone gave zest to human life. When the reigning Emperor was informed of the manner and cause of his death he deplored what he considered a foolish act, inasmuch as heaven alone was responsible for raising him to the throne.

Long—at least a century—before the date assigned by the Times correspondent for the Tibetan conquest of China, the Chinese monarchy had included Tibet in the enumeration of their vassal or tributary states. Nevertheless, when a conflict arose between them the Imperial arms did not always triumph. Early in the latter half of the 7th century the great mass of the Empire was so agitated that the central power had to put forth extraordinary efforts to restore order. In 668 a Chinese army entered Kaoli, or Korea, and besieged the too presumptuous King of that country in his capital. Having restored tranquility the suzerain power then inaugurated desirable reforms, establishing some measure of local government, weeding the tribunals of certain vices, set up a Chinese Supreme Court in the capital, and permitting a select number of the native Coreans to enter the civil and military service of the Empire. But, continues Pauthier, the imperial forces were far from being so successful in attempting to repress the disturbances that prevailed in Tibet. Two generals sent in charge of the forces despatched against Tibet disagreed so sadly as to the plan of campaign that the Tibetans defeated and destroyed them one after the other. Nevertheless, three years later, a Tibetan army paid tribute to the Emperor. When the latter inquired how his prince and people were getting on, the ambassador spoke earnestly of the patriotic spirit, sincerity and sacrifice of private interests to the public weal that prevailed among all classes of his fellow-citizens.

We now come to an incident in the relations between China and Tibet which is not without significance for the powers of the West that may have interests in Asia, and especially, perhaps, for Britain in India. In the first quarter of the 8th century, not long after one of the recurrent revolts, the King of Tibet sent an envoy to the Emperor to ask for the fulfilment of his promise of the gift of a princess of the imperial house. At the same time he expressed a wish for copies of the Chou-King, the Li-Ki the Chi-King and others of the famous sacred books of China. The Emperor was willing to grant the request, but deemed it well to lay the matter before his council. An antiquary, attached to the Imperial Library, being like a great many others, shocked at the presumption of the Tibetans in making such a request, cited from the old memorials in his keeping a letter which disclosed very clearly the attitude of the Crown's advisers in earlier ages towards a question so fraught with peril. The King of Tonquin, a kinsman of the reigning Emperor, besought His Majesty for copies of the works of poetry, history and philosophy, which were among the most precious treasures of the Empire. The Emperor consulted his wise men, and with one voice they counselled refusal. Why so ungenerous a role? Because, it was urged, when the princes and statesmen and soldiers and merchants and artisans of Tibet had mastered these inestimable works they would have keys to all the branches of knowledge which, in thoughtful and laborious generations, the Chinese had been acquiring in many ages, and thus would learn the art of conquering those who were now their superiors In fact, by making the Tibetans such a present, His Majesty would be simply putting in the hands of enemies a weapon for his own destruction and that of his people. During the forty years ensuing the Emperor received many embassies, including one from the Arabs and others from the Khans of Turkestan, whose dominions they had overrun. He had also learned of a practical alliance between the Caliph and the King of Tibet. By and by Pauthier's pages describe the wild agitation that had broken out all over the Empire. It was then that, while the imperial forces were defending other endangered points, and were distributed over a vast area, the Tibetans found their opportunity. They invaded Western China with an army of 300,000 men, and ended by taking the capital and burning the Emperor's palace. When at last they were forced to retire, they carried off unmeasured wealth. Entire tranquility was not attained till 821, when a solemn treaty of peace was ratified. Engraved on a tablet of white marble in the Chinese language, and signed by both Emperors, it was placed at the entrance to the great temple of Y-Ke, in Lhasa.

Noted Authoress Going Blind.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 12.—That Mrs Reinehart, the noted authoress and dramatist, of this city, who is now at her country home near Chautuqua N.Y., for the summer, is going blind and that specialists extend very little hope, is the statement made by a friend of Mrs. Reinehart here yesterday, following the receipt of a letter from the noted woman.

Robert Kerr to Resign.

Montreal, Sept. 12.—Robert Kerr passenger traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway and steamship lines, having attained the age when he deems it wise to give up the active duties of his position, has asked to be relieved. He will retire on Oct. 1 to be succeeded by C. E. E. Ussher.

No Creed, No Confinement.

St. Catharines, Sept. 12.—What is to become of George Cook, the young indian lad convicted of the theft of a bicycle and sentenced to two years in St. John's Industrial School at East Toronto by County Judge Carman. He has been refused there because he is not a Catholic, and previously Victoria Industrial School would not have him because he is not a Protestant.

EXIT THE REDMAN.

The Indians of West Selkirk Must Go Farther Into the Wilds.

There was a day when the town of West Selkirk, pitched out in the fertile valley of the Red River, was the pioneer West in epitome—shacks, traders, saloons, and Indians. Its picturesqueness has gone out with the wheat. There are still a few shacks—more stores and banks; traders there are, calling themselves business men, not bartering, but selling for cash; the whisky is still there in tall gleaming bottles sold at long bars by white-aproned drawers. The last vestige of raw Selkirk went out recently when the redmen, Crees and Sauteaux moved their camp.

The passing of these Indians of Selkirk is the same story as that of the Songhees in Victoria, who have got orders to leave their happy hunting grounds because the simple life they exemplify in the middle of the jumping British Columbia town does not agree with the live ethics of the city fathers. The benevolent white gentlemen of Selkirk have come to the same conclusion. They have discovered that their whisky and other vicious traits are bad for primitive natures; so 1,200 remnants of warriors have been told to close up their whitewashed cabins, pack up their tepees at St. Peter's, from which reserve for many moons they have seen Fate whistling close by on the shrieking railway, and beat their way to Fisher River, a stream far off on Lake Winnipeg. The young chieftains have set their faces toward Canaan. But the wrinkled, royal bloods of the Crees live with the memories of the tomahawk—the freebooting days. The mighty grandson of Apechancon, friend of Pontiac and Tecumseth, sorrows in his wigwam and drones: "The Indian knew no reserve, no confines then." The venerable Thomas Bunyan, patting his Victorian medal, is alive with anecdote, tale-telling to the wondering youths around his campfire, of the Battle of Seven Oaks and the prodigies of valor performed therein, and the butchery of Governor Semple—ninety-four years ago. Readily recalls William Ashum, second chief of the reserve, the bullets singing in the Black Hills, the massacres in Minnesota, and Senator Sutherland's son shot by sneaking marksmen on the Kildonan trail sent out by the half-breed Riel.

Fifty Thousand Persons Accompany Host Through Montreal.

Splendid Procession of Prelates, Clerics, Dignitaries, Sisters and Societies Takes Four Hours to Pass—Parade Ends at Electrically Lighted Altar in Fletcher's Field at Dusk—To Be Held Next Year In Spain.

Montreal, Sept. 12.—The cardinal legate was seen at night by your correspondent and stated that the Montreal Eucharistic Congress has been the greatest gathering of the kind ever seen in the world, and that not only was the congress the most important event in the history of the Catholic Church in Canada, but perhaps throughout the world. His eminence will go to Ottawa on Thursday, calling on Mgr. Emard en route, after which he will be received at the capital by the Ministers, and then the legate will go to St. Paul, and thence to New York, sailing for Europe early in October. Owing to the brief time at his disposition, it is not the legate's present intention to visit Toronto.

It was announced here yesterday that the congress will meet in Seville, Spain, next year; in Vienna in 1912, in Lyons in 1913 and four years hence it will probably come back to America, New York or Baltimore being the prospective place of gathering.

Never has such a spectacle been witnessed in Montreal as the procession of the Blessed Sacrament yesterday. It is estimated that over 50,000 people took part in the procession, and that fully half a million witnessed it. People poured into the city from all parts of the Dominion and United States, and Montreal yesterday had within its gates more people than it ever had before.

Some idea of the size of the procession may be got from the fact that it took nearly four hours to pass a given point. In the procession walked cardinals, archbishops, bishops, thousands of priests and sisters, besides members of the religious institutions, judges, members of Parliament, mayor and aldermen, and thousands of others. The route of the procession, which was over the three principle streets of the east end of the city, was three miles long. The principal figure in the procession was the papal legate, Cardinal Vannutelli, who carried the Host, the 65th Regiment of Montreal forming the escort.

As the Host passed through the crowded streets thousands of people knelt in adoration. The procession passed off without accident or hitch, the weather being ideal.

From early dawn contingents and parishes were arriving from many parts of the United States and Canada. And during the morning hours thee great churches of Notre Dame, St. James and St. Patrick's, as well as the many minor churches, were filled several times over with citizens and visitors.

At 12.15 p.m. the societies began to muster. On came the hosts, gathering in the streets and avenues, until miles of massed men who had as their centre the Cathedral of Notre Dame, stretched out and covered the City of Montreal. Everything had been outlined previously, and so it was in an orderly and systematic way that the different bodies deployed, every one to its allotted place.

At 2.30, the hour appointed for the body to begin to move, people stood lining the entire route from Notre Dame to Fletcher's Field. Grand stands, twenty-five in number, were arranged at intervals, and ten choirs were stationed ready to play their part in the final setting of the marvelous event. Above, miles of roofs, steps and windows were filled with thousands of faces.

Societies were there from New York, New Jersey, Brooklyn, Toronto, Ottawa, Quebec, and all the surrounding parishes of Montreal, and from the city itself. Italians, Poles Chinese, Indians, Japanese, French, Irish, English, the church, the bar, sailors, soldiers, the Government, none were lacking. As the societies marched to the field they deployed and covered the great area, until acres of living humanity covered the green sward.

The sun sank to rest in the blue heavens and the moon has risen above the mountain, that now showed darkly against the sky, before the first rocket announced that the great concourse of ecclesiastics, having in their midst the papal legate, carrying carrying the sacred Host under the golden canopy and guarded by officers with drawn swords and the 65th Rifle Regiment of the Canadian militia, and accompanied by the highest church dignitaries, had arrived.

At the moment the country around presented the appearance of the historic field of gold, the numerous silken flags and standards giving a weath of coloring indescribable.

The fair white altar was now outlined with electric bulbs, the cross of light towering above all. A thousand singers sung the chants and thousands joined in the salutations and hymns.

The solemn benediction given by the cardinal legate was heralded by a blare of trumpets, the peal of bells and flights of rockets, then the procession reformed for its final goal, the adjacent Hotel Dieu.

Tons of flowers, sent from all over Canada, were scattered along the route, and the close found many carrying one or more blossoms as souvenirs to preserve forever.

The last scene was one of inspiration and majesty. Mounted police preceded the 65th Regiment, then came dozens of acolytes in red cassocks and white surplices. Then the canopy, covering Cardinal Vannutelli, in vestments of gold and walking, despite his years and the length he had already traveled, as straight and commanding as a general at the head of an army. Lastly, one hundred and forty bishops and archbishops in cope and mitra marching, and singing—these were the last pictures that the dispersing thousands carried with them, pictures to live in memory throughout even the longest life time.

Young Men Parade.

Another of the mammoth processions took place in the afternoon, when the young men's societies, massed in companies and brigades, and to the accompaniment of bands and waving flags, paraded and deployed through the streets. Their rendezvous was in the Arena, on St. Catharine street, where their special reception by Cardinal Vannutelli took place.

In his address to the women in Stanley Hall, Archbishop Bourne of Westminster dwelt on the systematization of work amongst women, as helpers in the needs and carrying on of church energies. The local press, commenting on the address, said the remarks of his grace were full of good pointers, irrespective of creed or sect.

His grace told of the work of the women of London amongst the poor. "Thanks be to God," he said, "you do not know here the depth of poverty which obtains in England."

Referring to the many ways by which the church provides avenues for women's activities, Archbishop Bourne said: "I think perhaps you will agree with me that the Catholic Church is able to fit women for any circumstances in which they may have to live in the future. God forbid that circumstances should ever be such as to take away from them the gentleness and the charm of every womanly character, for women who are devout are the very salt of the earth; they can go in and out in paths which others may find difficult, and go unscathed."

If proposed legislation be enacted into law in Sweden the importation of proprietary medicines will be limited to those bearing a list of their ingredients on the label and sold within a price fixed by the government.

Fifty-seven men, the greater part of them young men and but a few years out of the seminary, will quit the ministry at this time. The complaint is that the salary paid is not sufficient to maintain a decent standard of living for the minister and his family and to educate the children. The salaries average between $450 and $1,200 yearly.

HIS EDITORIAL POLICY.

Mark Twain Made a Clean Breast of it to His Readers.

Mark Twain took the editorial chair on the Buffalo Express in August, 1869, and this is the paragraph in which he made the readers acquainted with his new responsibility:

"I only wish to assure parties having a friendly interest in the prosperity of this journal that I am not going to hurt the paper deliberately and intentionally at any time. I am not going to introduce any startling reform or in any way attempt to make trouble. I am simply going to do my plain, unpretending duty—when I cannot get out of it. I shall work diligently and honestly and faithfully at all times and upon all occasions—when privation and want shall compel me to do so. In writing I shall always confine myself to the truth, except when it is attended with inconvenience. I shall witheringly rebuke all forms of crime and misconduct, except when committed by the party inhabiting my own vest. I shall not make any use of slang or vulgarity upon any occasion or in any circumstances and shall never use profanity except in discussing house rent and taxes. Indeed, upon second thought, I will not even then, for it is inelegant, un-Christian and degrading. I shall not often meddle with politics, because we have a political editor who is already excellent and only needs a term in the penitentiary to be perfect. I shall not write any poetry unless I conceive a spite against the subscribers."

Taking a Tumble.

PELLATT DINES WITH KING.

His Majesty Decorates His Guests From the Q.O.R.

London, Sept. 13.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The King yesterday at Balmoral inspected a detachment of the Q.O.R., under command of Col. Sir Henry Pellatt. The Queen and Princess Mary were present. His Majesty was attended by Col. Hon. Sir Harry Legge and Major Clive Wigram, equerries-in-waiting. Lady Katherine Coke was in attendance upon her Majesty. Gen. Sir Hanbury-Williams was also present.

After the inspection the King addressed the detachment in the following terms: "Sir Henry Pellatt, it gives me great pleasure to receive you and this deputation from your regiment at my Highland home here today. As I was unable to see the whole regiment on parade, I deputed H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught to inspect you He has told me how pleased he was with your smart appearance. I am very glad that the Q.O.R. should have been the first regiment to cross the seas to take part in the home manoeuvres of the Mother Country. I trust your good example will be followed by many regiments from other dominions in future. I hope you will spend a very pleasant time in England and enjoy your visit to London, and that on your return to Canada you will take back with you the happiest recollections of the old country."

Sir Henry replied: "Your Majesty, on behalf of the Q.O.R., I beg to thank you, sir, for this most gracious reception of a detachment of the regiment which I have the honor to command. If any success has attended us during our visit to the Mother Country, much of it has been inspired by the kind telegram of welcome which you, as King, were good enough to send. This day will be a red letter one in the annals of the regiment. We, as Canadians, humbly hope and believe that our visit will serve to strengthen those links which bind us as an Empire. We may add, sir, the expression of our deep, abiding loyalty to your Majesty and to your gracious Queen."

After the parade the King conferred upon Sir Henry Pellatt and Lt.-Col. Mason the Royal Victorian Order of the third class; on Major Rennie and Capt. Higginbotham, the fourth class of the same order, and the silver medal of the order on Col.-Sergt Macdonald, the senior non-commissioned officer.

Failed 605 Times.

New York, Sept. 13.—The first authentic information given to an American newspaper by those associated with Dr. Paul Ehrlich, director of the Royal Institute for Experimental Therapeutics, at Frankfort-on-the-Main, concerning Prof. Ehrlich's remarkable discovery of a specific for a widespread blood disease of great antiquity, deemed for centuries well-nigh unconquerable, has been furnished to The Times by Dr. Lewis Hart Marks. Dr. Marks, who is an American, is first assistant to Prof. Ehrlich.

The chemical name of this curative agent is dioxydiamidoarsenobenzol. It is popularly called "606" by Prof. Ehrlich, for the reason that it was the 606th preparation compounded by him in an effort to find a cure. The first 605 preparations proved to be failures.

A small supply of the drug has been placed in the hands of Dr. Simon Flexner, director of the Rockefeller Institute for Research, in this city, and in the hands of Prof. L. P. Barker of John Hopkins University, Baltimore. Within a few days, however, limited supplies of the curative agent, which is not a serum but a definite chemical compound, will be furnished to Prof. Anders of the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia; Prof. Simon, Baltimore, and Dr. William Kohlmann, New Orleans.

Wholesale Thefts.

London, Ont., Sept. 13.—Toronto and Hamilton wholesale firms are largely interested in robberies in Pere Marquette cars which came to light with the arrest by local detectives of William Hayes.

Hayes was committed for trial yesterday on the charge of stealing a quantity of umbrellas, underwear, valises and other articles. He has made statements implicating other youths who have left the city.

Technical Education Commission.

Woodstock, Sept. 13.—Two members of the Royal Commission on Technical Education, Dr. Bryce and James Simpson, spent yesterday in the city. They were entertained by representatives of the City Council and Board of Trade, and during the day visited the factories and schools. Last night a public meeting was held in the public library building, when evidence was taken from prominent manufacturers and educational authorities.

C.M.A. Western Trip.

Port Arthur, Sept. 13.—Two trains are required to carry the members of the Canadian Manufacturers Association in their observation trip through Western Canada.

The party, which arrived at Port Arthur yesterday morning, consists of two hundred and fifty members.

INQUEST IS RESUMED

Crippen's Lawyer Will Attack the Poisoning Theory.

He Wants to Show That Testimony of Chemists Could Never Have Been Reached by Analysis—Witness Tells of Dream In Which Mrs. Crippen Imagined She Was Being Strangled by Husband—Expert's Opinion.

London, Sept. 13.—The inquest over the remains taken from the cellar of Dr. Crippen's residence was resumed yesterday. Arthur Newton, attorney for Crippen, went after the undertaker and his assistant, in an attempt to show that they shoveled the remains into a box, taking little care to keep dirt and stones separate. Both men denied this, saying there was neither stones nor dirt in the coffin when it was taken to the morgue. They admitted, however, that there was a great deal of carbolic acid used, and said they had to use it in order to approach where the body was buried.

It was plain from the questions that Newton put to these two witnesses that he hopes to demonstrate that the testimony of the chemists that hyoscin poisoning caused the death of the person whose body was taken from the Crippen cellar was a conclusion that could not have been reached by an analysis.

Miss May, secretary of the Music Hall Guild, swore that Mrs. Crippen had told her early in January of a dream she had at Christmas time. In it, Mrs. Crippen said, she imagined she was being strangled by the doctor.

Mrs. Paul Martinetto, an intimate friend of Mrs. Crippen, had seen her Jan. 31, when she seemed in excellent spirits, and had said nothing about going away.

Says Crippen Will Escape.

New York, Sept. 13.—John F. McIntyre, who has participated as counsel in 700 murder trials, acting in 614 as prosecutor; who in his service of 14 years in the district attorney's office here, secured 580 convictions for various degrees of homicides, including 44 at one assize sittings, believes Crippen will escape British law. McIntyre has himself appeared as counsel before a British court, being the first American lawyer so permitted. He was engaged by the New York Irish societies to go to England and defend Edward Ivory, charged with plotting to dynamite the House of Parliament and assassinate Queen Victoria. In this case McIntyre employed the tactics of the expert. Instead of attempting to make a case for Ivory, he admitted that the dynamite plot existed, but contended before Lord Justice Sir Henry Hawkins that the plot was completed in Rotterdam, and hence not in the jurisdiction of English courts. It was purely a point of law, but it won the case.

"In my opinion Dr. Crippen will be acquitted of the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore," he said yesterday. "The principle of law known as Lord Hale's rule will save him. The crown attorneys will fail to establish by direct proof the basic part of the corpus delicti, the body of the crime—the fact that Belle Elmore is actually dead or that Dr. Crippen used violence upon her sufficient to cause death.

"Crippen's case will never go to the jury. It will be argued on bloodless legal principles before the icy reason of a judge. No sentiment will have part in that argument. It will be a marshalling of legal precepts, impersonal as rock, rigid from their crust of centuries of custom."

Not a Soulless Religion.

Kingston, Sept. 13.—Mayor Couper laid the corner-stone of the addition to the Protestant Orphans' Home yesterday afternoon.

In his address Rev. Dr. Mackie of St. Andrew's Church said: "This ceremony ought to be a sign that the religion we profess is not a soulless religion. The religion we profess is a religion that has a soul; anyone with eyes and wants to see can see what is being done by sweet charity. In Kingstone alone it can be seen what the churches have done for the city, for the education of the young, providing protection for the orphan, relieving the suffering, caring for the strangers within our gates. The religion with all this at its back could not be denounced as dead."

Three Fatal Train Wrecks.

Toledo, O., Sept. 13.—Three were killed and as many hurt in a Hocking Valley passenger train wreck near Lemoyne, Ohio, yesterday. A broken rail was the cause.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 13.—Passenger train No. 34, on the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, was wrecked yesterday. The engineer and fireman were killed.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 13.—Two persons were killed, two severely injured and a dozen slightly hurt near Brightwood in a wreck of Big Four train No. 9 from Louisville, carrying Kentucky National Guardsmen to Fort Harrison.

Attacked With Hammer.

Quebec, Sept. 13.—News has reached this city from St. Philemon, Bellechasse County, that a woman named Fourner has died as the result of injuries received from her husband, who is said to have atacked her with a hammer, while in a jealous rage. It is further stated that the man's mind had become so unbalanced that he had to be taken to Beauport Asylum, where he is now a patient.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY.

Montcalm and Wolfe on the Plains of Abraham, 1759.

CURRENT EVENTS.

Robnovish, residing near Winnipeg who traded one of his wife's twins off for a yearling pig, found that Canadian authorities did not approve of that sort of a deal, having to return the porker and take back the child Certainly Canada must undoubtedly be growing under Liberal administration, but she is getting a queer set of citizens in some portions of our western country.

Some Liberal papers are already talking about defeating the Ontario Goverment at the next elections. Not yet thank you. Whitney on the Square is good enough for this province.

One hundred municipalities will vote on local option in January. We will give one pail of filtered bay water to any one guessing the nearest to the number of wins. All get busy.

No matter where the new school is built citizens should remember that the school building and grounds will in no wise be a detriment to adjacent property. Instead of decreasing the value of near-by property it will increase it, as in front of the school flower beds and other ornamental effects will be used to beautify the grounds.

Boil your drinking water. Belleville's supply is at present bad. Any water containing Colon bacilli is unpleasant to think of.

Three great natural tonics that do much to restore and maintain health are fresh air, sunlight and good water.

An enterprising landlord advertises "Honeymoon Flats—Furnished" for rent. It doesn't take much to furnish a honeymoon flat—her mother's picture and a sugar bowl.

It is the farmers' innings all over the world. All Europe is complaining of the prices of everything that comes from the farm. But the farmer is not complaining a bit about it.

The gold output of the world for the year 1909 amounted to $487,560,000, the largest in the world's history.

A burglary of a daring and skilful nature has been attempted in the jewellery quarter of Birmingham. A gang of thieves with an extraordinary equipment cut through a wall into premises occupied by Messrs. Wright and Hodgkiss, goldsmiths, and attacked the metal strong room. By means of oxy-hydrogen blow-pipes they had penetrated the steel door to a depth of over two inches when they were disturbed. An electric signalling apparatus had been installed on the premises, and across the top of the main staircase ropes were stretched.

Among the exhibits loaned by the King to the Japan-British Exhibition is the actual bullet that killed Nelson at Trafalgar. The bullet is a circular musket ball of lead. On one side of it are embedded portions of the gold lace from the admiral's uniform, which together with other fragments of the uniform, were forced into the wound The bullet is suspended in a plate glass casket which at night is lowered into a pedestal lined with the finest steel.

Thieves Get Virgin Gold

INGOT STOLEN FROM STRONG-BOX ON A STEAMER FROM ALASKA—THEFT WAS DISCOVERED IN FEDERAL ASSAY OFFICE IN SEATTLE—LEAD WAS SUBSTITUTED.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 11.—Gold bullion valued at $57,500, part of a consignment of $170,000 from the Washington-Alaska Bank, of Fairbanks, to the Dexter-Horton National Bank, at Seattle, on the steamship Humboldt, was stolen in transit. Lead was substituted in the strong-box that contained it.

Discovery of the theft was announced to-day. The stolen gold weighed 250 pounds. When it left Fairbanks on a Yukon River steamer for Dawson, the gold was packed in three wooden boxes and was in the care of the Alaska Pacific Express Company. When the boxes were opened by Canadian customs officers at Dawson the golden bars were found to be as stated in the express company papers.

The boxes were opened again at the United States assay office in Seattle on Friday, and it was found one box contained pigs of lead instead of gold. The seals of the box were intact when they reached the assay office. The gold was insured against loss by the express company.

The boxes were received at the assay office on Thursday morning and remained there until the agents of the consignee came the next day to check up the ingots. It is supposed the gold was stolen on the Yukon steamer between Wayson and White Horse, or on the steamer Humboldt between Skagway and Seattle. The gold was in the purser's cabin.

Detectives say they have no clue. The robbery was much like one of four years ago, when $69,000, consigned to Seattle by the Washington-Alaska Bank, of Fairbanks, over the Yukon River-Skagway route, was stolen from a wooden strong-box, lead being substituted. That theft was committed by a night watchman named Miller on a Tanana River steamer which was carrying the gold from Fairbanks to the Yukon steamer that was to convey it to White Horse.

Miller concealed the gold in his stateroom, got it back to Fairbanks, and secreted it so well that after his arrest the owners of the bullion were glad to make terms with him. He was promised a short prison sentence if he returned the gold, and he produced $50,000, alleging that the other $19,000 had been stolen from him.

Celebrated Their Annual Thanksgiving.

St. Luke's Church, Kingston, held its annual Harvest Festival Service on Sunday, Sept. 11th. The church was tastefully decorated with flowers, fruit and grain. The white floral crosses on the altar were much admired There were celebrations of the Holy Communion at 8 a.m. and 11 a.m. The Rector, R. S. Forneri, was celebrant and was assisted by Rev. J. W Forster. The sermons at Matins and Evensong were delivered by Rural Dean Beamish of St. Thomas' church Belleville. At Matins his subject was "The Cleansing of the Leper," and at Evensong "The Vision of Jacob's Ladder." He showed the congregations the duty and need of thankfulness of being willing to acknowledge their dependence upon God and to prove their gratitude by faithful personal service. The congregations were good and the offerings devoted to the church debt. Special praise is due to the choir for their share in this beautiful service of praise and thanksgiving for the blessings of the harvest.

DON'T BUY A TIRE BY ITS LOOKS.

All Automobile Tires look very much alike, they can't be judged by their appearance when new, nor can they be judged by their appearance after having gone one or two thousand miles. The Tire you want is the tire that will give the lowest average cost per mile, while in use on a car. The tire that will do this is the Dunlop Tire, because, besides the quality there is in the tire itself, you may rely upon the ready willingness of the Dunlop Company to thoroughly satisfy every user of Dunlop Automobile Tires.

We understand it is the intention to convert the present meat market into an up-to-date police station, for which the necessary plans and specifications are being prepared by the City Engineer. His Worship the Mayor and Ald. Wallace, chairman of the City Property Committee, have the matter in hand, and the City Engineer expects to have blue prints for Thursday's committee meeting.

Albertite.

Forty years or more ago the Geological Survey of Canada distributed to Museums throughout the country specimens of so-called coal to which they gave the name of Albertite, as being found in Albert County, New Brunswick. This mineral had a fresh glittering fracture, and far exceeded in pure carbon any other known coal. It was so pure that 98 per cent. of it was fully consumed. As it had no layering it bade defiance to the geologists to determine how it could have been formed or under what conditions it had been originated. The discovery of the petroleum in Albert County, which is now being developed, has supplied the clue wanting for its determination. The mine was largely exhausted, although it is said to contain a quantity of unmined mineral yet. The Albertite mine is on an anticlinal six miles south and parallel to that where oil wells are being successfully sunk to-day. The Albertite mine is found in a narrow fissure in the rocks some two thousand feet deep and twenty-four feet wide. It is now quite clearly a great fissure into which the petroleum oozed itself, and that this having evaporated its gas, solidified and formed the the substance formerly mined. The fact that Albertite is precisely of the same composition as the petroleum being pumped up to-day, minus its gas, has solved the question which was formerly asked in vain—what is Albertite?

Weekly Intelligencer.

Hammered It In.

The Economist of London England, is a financial weekly journal of high repute. It is a journal of strong free-trade views. In a recent issue it published a letter from Edmonton, Alberta, in which it discusses Sir Wilfrid Laurier's troubles in his western tour. In the course of this letter the correspondent of the Economist says:—

Sir Wilfrid's position is uncomfortably vulnerable. When the Liberal party was in Opposition, it promised to eliminate every particle of protection from the Canadian Tariff and introduce free trade "as they have it in England." Sir Wilfrid toured the West on the subject, and gave his personal assurance that this should be done. The farmer delegates now dig up those old speeches of his, and bluntly ask them to live up to them or they disemtomb the Liberal platform of 1893, and warn him that he and his Liberal friends have broken faith with the people. The Liberals to be sure, have put a number of farmers' articles on the free list and reduced the duties on others, but the reduction has in many instances been nullified in whole or in part by increases in the valuation of the imported article under the Dumping Act, a Liberal measure. The operation of the Act renders the tariff higher than it appears to be. For example, the duty on buggies is 35 per cent., but the Customs House fixes the value of every imported American buggy at $40, though the true value may be only $30. Similiarly, while the duty on the larger farm implements, such as binders or mowers, was reduced by the Protectionist Conservative Government from 35 to 17 1-2 per cent., the excessive valuation now imposed upon American binders greatly diminishes the amount of the apparent relief."

Later in his letter the correspondent of the Economist adds:—

"There is no gainsaying, of course that the Liberals have signally failed to reform the tariff in the root and branch manner promised. Taken all round, the reductions they have made are insignificant, and delegation after delegation hammers this in to Sir Wilfrid."

Mexico's Cooler.

ICE WATER FROM SUNSHINE A MIRACLE OF THE SUNBAKED DESERT.

Manufacturing a drink of ice water with nothing cooler than the sun's rays and dry, tropical air would probably seem under the province of the magician to an easterner who had never traveled further southwest over his native land than the plains of Colorado. It is nevertheless a fact, says the New York Times, that by these ever available agencies the greater part of the population of Texas, Arizona and New Mexico manufacture their ice water. This not only serves for drinking purposes, but also provides an efficient medium for the ordinary requirements of refrigeration—for in the cruder sections of the great southwest the artificial production of ice is still a trifle too costly to be feasible.

Picture a cattle ranch squatted in the center of hundreds of miles of dry, sunbaked, semi-desert land. There is just enough growth of wild grass about to satisfy the far-wandering herds, which drink from the thick warm waters of some artificial oasis.

A cowboy returns to the ranch after an all-day's exposure to the blistering heat. With parched lips he rides quickly up to a little red oval-shaped earthen jar suspended by a rope behind the house.

He takes off the cover, which is merely there to keep out the blowing sand, and dips forth a cup of ice water which has never come in contact with anything but the sun-exposed sides of the earthen receptacle which encloses it. The water is always there and it is practically effortless and costless in the making of it.

The secret lies wholly in the construction of the little red receptacles. This is a simple Mexican creation, and in that language is called an olla, the two l's being silent according to the Spanish pronunciation of the word.

In northern Mexico olla making is a very profitable industry to the inhabitants, who carry them over into Arizona on the backs of burros. A good olla can be purchased from the proprietor of one of these little caravans for 50 or 75 cents.

The olla is made from a crude clayish mortar, composed of burro manure and sand. This with the use of a little water, is worked into a pliable mass by the Mexican, and when dry and thick enough moulded into the desired shape of the vessel. In drying the composition becomes very porous, and it is this essential characteristic which contains the secret of the cooling process.

After having been painted over, both inside and out, by a solution of harmless vegetable dye, the olla is ready for use. It is then filled with water and hung up, preferably in some place which is exposed to the wind, if there be any.

In a few minutes the exterior of the jar grows slightly dark with the moisture which has seeped through the porous composition. The seeping process, however, is very slow, and the moisture which exudes evaporates into the receptive, dry atmosphere in such equable proportion that scarcely more than a drop a minute trickles away from the bottom of the olla.

It is this continuous and fairly rapid evaporation which produces the cold. Immediately the sides of the olla become chilled and the water within grows gradually cooler.

In less than an hour from the time the phenomenon is begun the water is cold enough for drinking purposes, no matter how warm it might have been when poured into the receptacle. Two or three hours later it is cold enough to fill the ordinary requirements of refrigeration for bottled milk, butter and other culinary necessities.

Both Sides Pleased

Mail and Empire.

The comments of the United States press upon the decision of The Hague Tribunal are, on the whole, friendly. Thus it would appear that our neighbors are satisfied. This is a gratifying situation. The frank acceptance of the judgment of the tribunal makes for the peaceful settlement of International disputes and thus contributes to the good feeling that ought to be reciprocally entertained by both countries. It is especially interesting to learn now that on the points in respect of which the United States suffered a reverse the case put forward by the Republic was not strong, and was not seriously regarded by those responsible for it.

An illustration is given by the Springfield Republican from the head-land dispute. The United States has claimed the right to enter all Canadian bays that are more than nine miles wide at the mouth for fishery purposes. Thus the great inlets have been said to be arms of the sea and not territorial waters. Upon this subject the controversy has been on some occasions bitter. Whenever United States fishermen have been captured while prosecuting their callings within these larger bays the outcry from Washington has been very pronounced. Canada, on her part has responded with equal vigor. The Springfield Republican now says of the rejected United States pretension: "The American claim of the right to "fish within three miles of the inner "shores of those bays was obviously "strained and far stretched." This is an acknowledgment that leads one to ask why a claim of this nature was insisted upon, especially in view of the fact that the doctrine the United States wished to impose upon us one which that country repudiates in so far as its own coast line is concerned. The claim of the Republic to the right to use the territorial waters that are open to United States fishermen regardless of the local regulations adopted for the protection of the fisheries is also pronounced by the press of the country that made it as extreme and unwarranted. To say that a nation can make no laws governing its own property, simply because another country has been given the privilege of using the property, is now viewed as going too far. Again, it may be asked why, if the claim was unjust, was it so vigorously pressed? Is it the duty of a State to seek for that to which it is not entitled?

It is a matter of history that in the Behring Sea case the United States put forth the mare clausum claim without believing that it was well founded, and even seized Canadian vessels in the sea that was said to be closed, knowing that mare clausum might not hold. For this revelation Mr. Foster, the eminent lawyer, who managed the case for the United States, is responsible. Thus it would appear that the presentation of the largest claim that can be imagined is not a new thing. It is but right to acknowledge the good feeling with which the rejection of an unwarranted proposition is received. This justifies The Hague Tribunal and gives it every encouragement to be impartial and fearless in the making of its decisions.

The Arizona Road Runner.

Arizona Republican.

Eastern readers are likely to be puzzled by the despatch from Douglas printed in yesterday's Republican descriptive of the initial failure of an aeroplane from which great things are expected down Douglas way. It was stated that "the aeroplane ran over the ground like a yellow road-runner, but refused to fly." Outside of Arizona the reply will naturally be, "What is a road-runner?"

The road-runner is one of Arizona's distinctive ornithological institutions. It is a long-legged, long-billed bird, slender of build and standing some ten inches high. It is not often seen in the farming districts, but is a familiar sight on the desert.

It has gained the name of road-runner from its habit of taking the road in front of travellers, be they on horseback or wheeled conveyance, and running swiftly or slowly as occasion requires, showing off its neighborly spirit and running qualities. It is not uncommon for it to keep in company of the traveller for several hundred yards.

No resident of Arizona would kill a road-runner. It is firmly believed that the bird is a deadly enemy of that monster of the desert, the rattlesnake. We don't know whether any of our readers ever saw a road-runner kill a rattlesnake; if there is any authentic story of such a thing we would be glad to publish it. But the accepted tradition is that the road-runner and rattlesnake are deadly enemies and that the rattlesnake fears the road-runner beyond anything else.

It is told that the bird drives the snake into a coil and then darting around the serpent like lightning pecks it to death. Whatever truth there may be in the stories of the road-runners accomplishments as a disciple of St. Patrick, it deserves the friendly protection it receives—its quaint sociallility is always a diversion for the lonesome desert traveller.

CHEAPEST TIRE IN THE END.

Every experienced automobilist knows that, on the whole, Dunlop Automobile Tires cost less per mile because besides the quality which is in the tire in the first place, there stands back of it the ready willingness of the Dunlop Company to thoroughly satisfy every user of Dunlop Automobile Tires.

JOHN BULL AND TRUSTS.

Americans Who Found the Tight Little Island Too Much for Them.

What is a trade-war?

It is a battle in which no blood is spilt, but which can bear results every bit as serious as those which occur on the actual field of war. Two great organizations are pitted against each other. Silently, with scarcely a sound above the scratching of a pen, the more powerful faction presses its opponent back, and upon the issues depends the welfare of thousands, many of whom have no idea that any kind of battle is being fought at all.

In the present trade-war between Lord Cowdray and the Standard Oil Co., John Bull is standing in the ring with Uncle Sam, and is knocking him out. They are fighting over the great oil-fields of Mexico, and, although the Standard Oil Co. have used every means in their power to outwit their English rival, and even employed spies to shadow him in New York, they have found their match. The British Oil magnate is beating them at their own game.

The Standard Oil Co. have not had many such reverses. Forty-five years ago, Mr. John D. Rockefeller realized the great possibilities that lay in oil, formed a syndicate, and proceeded to buy up every rival syndicate. He often paid absurdly high prices to his rivals in order to gain absolute control. If they refused to sell, he either retailed oil in their districts at a loss, or else actually gave it away, until they were forced, through lack of business, to admit themselves beaten.

A particularly interesting trade-war was that fought recently between the English and American tobacconists. The American Tobacco Co. was one of the most formidable syndicates that ever threatened our chalky cliffs.

It was an amalgamation of five separate companies, which, previously, had tried to cut each other's throats in their own country. They had placed wonderful "Surprise Packets" and other advertising dodges upon the market. They had blazoned the walls with enormous posters. One company had spent $1,500,000 annually in advertising its principal feature, "Battle Axe Plug," the price of which underwent tremendous reductions. For the small price of fivepence, the American elastic-jawed chewer could buy a plug of "Battle Axe" three inches broad, over half-an-inch thick, and a foot long.

But when these old rivals banded together, and invaded England under the banner of The American Tobacco, Co., they found themselves absolutely out-classed. By offering a bonus of $1,000,000 a year for four years to all the English retailers who would supply their cigarettes, and nobody else's, at a certain low figure, they hoped to get the entire monopoly of the tobacco custom in England. Before the temptation had spread too far, however, the English tobacconists joined forces, and formed themselves into The Imperial Tobacco Co. The Americans, instead of dealing with a host of small, independent merchants, found themselves face to face with a solid organization representing almost the entire tobacco interest of the British Isles. So they packed up their cheap cigarettes, and took the next boat home.

But the matter did not end there. The tobacconists who had been promised their big bonuses, and who had received only one half year's payment, sued the American Company for the balance. At the first the Americans refused to pay, arguing that, as their company had been liquidated, their liabilities had also ceased to exist. A test case was decided against them, however, and they wished more than ever that they had left the English bull-dog alone.—London Answers.

Toole's Tears.

Sallies of almost childlike high spirits endeared the late J. L. Toole, the lifelong friend of Henry Irving, to all who knew him. On one occasion, when the author of "Some Eminent Victorians" was spending a day in the innocent adventures which Toole was a genius in originating, they went to the Tower, where they found themselves among a party of eager sightseers in the chamber where the crown jewels are on view.

It was a woman who was explaining to the eager throng the history of the articles displayed. At the end of a long catalogue she said:—

"And this is Anne Boleyn's crown."

Toole, apparently suddenly overcome, burst into a flood of tears, and leaned against the wall in seemingly uncontrollable grief.

"Oh, sir," inquired the poor woman, in distress, "what is the matter?"

"Nothing! Nothing!" replied Toole, in broken accents. "Don't mind me; but the fact is, I have known the family so long."

A Weighty Family.

William Snell, of Nar-Nar Goon, Victoria, sends to us some particulars of his own family which he thinks will be of interest as showing that Victoria holds the world's record for family giants. Mr. Snell's family consists of two girls and a boy, and the total weight of the three is over half a ton.

Clara, the eldest of the trio, is 23 years of age, and weighs 514, being the heaviest female known of in the world. Tom, her brother, is 19 years old, and weighs 266; and Anna, the youngest of this remarkable family, is only 16, and already weighs 355. For these particulars, readers can see that Mr. Snell's talk of being able to challenge the world is no idle boast.—World's News.

An Equine Epicure.

A Sydney delivery-van owner has a unique horse, which displays a decidedly carnivorous appetite. The animal is frequently given pieces of cold cooked beefsteak, mutton-chops, stale saveloys, meat-pies, and sausages, together with stale bread and buns—a menu which he discusses with marked and manifest gusto. When the above-named flesh food, which comes from a ham-and-beef shop, at the rear of which his stable is situated, is placed before this horse, possessing such an extraordinary equine taste, he immediately turns away from chaff and maize he may be eating at the time to partake of it.—World's News.

MONTREAL, 22nd February, 1909.

I HEREBY CERTIFY that I have drawn by my own hand ten samples of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co's EXTRA STANDARD GRANULATED SUGAR, indiscriminately taken from four lots of about 150 barrels each and six lots of about 450 bags each. I have analyzed same and find them uniformly to contain 99-99/100 to 100 per cent of pure cane sugar, with no impurities whatever.

to be dangerous. Don't follow up De Brissac; I will let him win a little. He's a Frenchman, and on his own ground! I want to clean out the passing strangers."

"Yes! but Stahrenstein will play!" the accomplice of the gambler prince answered; "De Brissac will stop when he has made a fair winning! French wit; he is no miser!"

"We'll get it all back from him; he brings in many rich fools; I will ease him along! Don't forget your signals!"

"I will be careful, Sir," Baptiste replied.

"Good!" said Jenks! "Now I have a neat bit of outside work for you. Look at this picture!" He handed the photograph of Irene Hope to the steward.

"Pas mal!" said the listener. "She's an American?"

"Yes!" replied Jenks. "She is music mad, and has run away from a good home. She has some money, I think. Now, I believe that woman is lurking around Paris. I want to find her quietly. She will probably have applied to some of the leading masters. She has only been here a month or so. Do you know any of these conservatoire people?"

"Oh, yes! Jean, (my second steward here), has a wife who was with old Duprez a long time. Jean used to serve in these places, and he can easily run her down. He used to be messenger and valet for Duprez. He is just the man!"

"Good! Let him go around town! Give him the picture! His wife can also be put on the scent! Detail a man in his place; and you report results to me. Don't let him know me in this. You can give him the idea that she is a runaway heiress. Send him out at once! I want to find out her whereabouts quietly. I'll pay him well." The noiseless Baptiste vanished. Jenks rubbed his hands as he sipped his brandy and soda.

"That fellow is a gold mine!" the gambler chuckled. "I wonder when some fool will stumble on our plan of action! Never mind! Baptiste has his share laid safely away! Thank God! mine is safe in London! I can snap my fingers at 'Johnny Crapaud!'"

For the Cercle des Etranges, (decorous and conservative by day), was the gilded hell par excellence, of Paris! None of the desperate punters against the varied games of chance knew that the gentleman, Jenks, and the carefully trained head servant, Baptiste, were fellow swindlers. Marked cards, doctored wines, signals of carefully devised movements, and other private devices enabled this precious pair to rob the unsuspicious gamesters at will. Horace Jenks had bought Baptiste with a high price, and an equal division of their current profits. The superb discipline, and professional skill of Baptiste made him welcome to all, as he glided around the rooms, silently ministering to the players, yet by a hundred apparently innocent movements telegraphing to Jenks the details of the games.

Beverly Seaton, lounging in the courtyard of the Hotel Athenee, was exchanging a few words of greeting with a fellow passenger, Colonel Henry Pelham, (a world wanderer and an habitue of Paris), as Jenks and Baptiste planned this raid in search of Irene Hope. Seaton was still "Alfred Brayton," as he knew that his sister (now on her guard), would have easy access to the usual information as to travellers.

"If you have nothing else on for tonight, Brayton, come and dine with me at my Club," said Pelham.

"I go out very little, Colonel!" said Brayton, doubtfully.

"You will find the best fellows in Paris at the Cercle des Etrangers, Brayton! There's Jenks and Stahrenstein, and a whole lot of rattling good livers! Don't be too old for your years! Don't mope!"

"I'll go with you, Colonel," said Seaton, his eye lighting up. This would disarm Jenks' natural suspicions. Before the piles of gold and crisp notes were ranged on the green table in the "secret room," (after a superb dinner), Beverly Seaton had measured Horace Jenks mentally. When Pelham presented him as "Alfred Brayton," Jenks cautiously said, "Have you been in St. Louis lately, Sir! I have a correspondent there!"

"I know him," replied Seaton briefly.

"I wish you would dine with me here day after to-morrow," said Jenks. "I wish to have a talk with you."—Seaton assented, and they exchanged cards.

The mad demon of Play soon seized on the motley throng. Dark Cubans, cool, fair-haired Englishmen, a Turkish attache, a wandering Russian Prince, the reckless Count Stahrenstein, (looking in after an opera act), and Fenton Dennis, the Nestor of New York club men, thronged around the tables. Jenks (hawk-eyed and calm), played with a sang-froid which startled even Seaton. The stakes were sometimes astounding; Baptiste's mental telegrams directed these. There was a gleam of lambent light in the Californian's eye, as Stahrenstein hoarsely muttered, "I demand my revenge, after supper!"

"Certainly, Count!" Jenks cautiously said, for he always stood like a stone wall in gaming. Stahrenstein's pride was cut, but for his pocket he cared not. His Styrian principalities were vastly rich; his millions stood impregnable to mere chance follies. Jenks quietly pocketed his heavy winnings.

At the supper, spread at 2 o'clock, the initiates of the "secret salon" chatted gaily. Fenton Dennis, as "Doyen," in this Devil's Dance of Life, presided. Wine and wit were not wanting. Wrinkled brows smoothed,—tingling nerves relaxed,—and the vulture-like expectancy of the gamblers, was veiled by the convenances of the table. Fenton Dennis, (Mephisto of these not innocent Fausts), poured forth his habitual caustic comments, and yet ruled his convives gaily. As the supper ended, grave Baptiste handed Jenks a note. With an inclination of his head, Jenks read it. His calm face flushed slightly, "Gentleman," he said, "I have an important summons; one I can not disregard; will you excuse me? I will be here to-morrow evening."

"You have played in great luck," said Dennis.

"I'm playing in higher luck elsewhere!" said Jenks incautiously.

"And my revenge," growled Stahrenstein, his forehead veins purpled. The Austrian magnate was nettled.

"Count! I will meet you anywhere within the limits of Europe! I never decline play while I remain a winner!" Stahrenstein was silent, yet morose. Jenks was in the right.

Jovial Baron De Brissac gaily said as Jenks left (with a whispered goodbye to "Alfred Brayton"), "Femina, femina."

"Oh! no!" said Fenton Dennis (anxious to restore good humor). "Jenks is too sensible 'to be caught in the tangles of 'Neæra's hair.'"

Gray Gustav Mollenhaupt (the Swedish minister), laughed: "Dennis, mon ami! you surely have not done with love?"

"Done with it" growled Dennis (glad of the diversion). "Stick to the painted ladies on the cards; the women of our day love only themselves."

"How o!" lisped Wilson Walsingham, a beardless English diplomat, with a rosy cheek and a jaded sin-hardened eye.

"Because," said the New Yorker, defiantly, "we are entering into the reign of feminine egoism! Woman has hitherto been tied down by law and trammelled by custom. The increase of modern luxury, the looser forms of social life, the weakening of the family ties, and almost total legal liberty, indicate a new era of wild personal enjoyment for the beau sexe. Even in America, recent fortunes, settled individually, on our bright, hard-hearted women, enabel them to follow out this modern creed!" He balanced his knife and fork thoughtfully. "Depraved by luxury, many of our well-to-do women are to-day only hidden Cleopatras, and when able, they deliberately break into a reckless career. The worship of their own handsome bodies is their code! Our women (free to roam over the world), without brothers or fathers (lightly swinging the chain of the 'absent husband') seek only two rewards for what you are pleased to call 'Love!'" He sneered as he slowly said: "They seek . . Money and Pleasure! The men stay at home and work."

"You are severe on the fair sex!" Brayton remarked; "Do you believe in womanly virtue!"

Dennis laughed mockingly, as he drained his champagne. "Virtue is a myth! Pride is the best safeguard for a woman! I think women generally lack honor; at least, I have found it so! The personal vices of the rich women of this era are as unfettered as those of the men!"

"Ah! you old Timon," said De Brissac. "You risked your own life to save a lot of women on a sinking ship last year."

"So I did!" said Dennis, rising. "I accepted their gratitude, but not their love! Modern love is perishable,—and expensive! You wait twenty years, De Brissac, and you will see the haughty dames of old Rome rivalled by our emancipated 'smart set!' Heart! They have as much heart as a trip-hammer! Gentlemen! the game waits!"

"What do you think of the 'Coming Woman,' Colonel?" said Brayton, as they edged to the tables.

"Dennis is nearly right!" said Henry Pelham, "One by one the old barriers go down! The 'individual check book' does the business now! There is too much laissez aller about our untrammelled elegantes. They, 'American-like,' go to the dogs at a gallop. I dare not admit it openly, dear boy!" he softly said. "I have too many women friends, (who might call the past back), to risk a bold opinion. I have been no Joseph!" said the good Colonel, and he twirled his moustache in sentimental revery. "What do you think, Brayton?"

The Virginian said: "I am not a society man, but I fear that fashionable women (when occasion offers), take the keenest delight in forbidden pleasures. Habit chains them at once,—and a woman never seems to know when and where to stop!" He checked himself, for he thought of a lost one, dear to him alone, driven by the storms of life on the reef of Ruin!

The merry rattle of the gold resounded. Mock morality gave way to the deadly battle of avarice. "Alfred Brayton" dropped a few napoleons for dumb show; and long after the methodical Colonel Henry Pelham was sleeping soundly, (veteran philosopher as he was), Beverly Seaton paced the courtyard of the Athenee, burning unnumbered cigars.

The web of the Fates was closing up. Horace Jenks, seated in an adjoining cafe, enjoyed a cigar, as he read Baptiste's note. A devilish smile of triumph was on his thin lips. "By Heavens! Baptiste is cool and adroit! I'll get a fiacre and take a run up there! I will know the ground! This is a 'royal flush' hand! I have her now!" As he sent a boy for the vehicle, he re-read the lines:

"The lady you seek is a pupil of Duprez, and lives at 217 Avenue de Jena, under the name of 'Miss Isabel.' She is alone; seems rich; and sings wonderfully. Duprez has arranged her menage; au troisieme, front suite.—Jean's wife Victorine is her maid. You can do anything with her through him. Be here early to-morrow, and I will have Jean watch her till then."

Horace Jenks' heart was light, as he returned from a reconnoissance en voiture. He examined the surroundings, and saw the light gleaming in the windows where the women he hunted to the death lived all unconscious of her impending doom.

A shadow moving across the semi-transparent shades, made him quiver. "Ah Irene Hope! I will examine your little nest!" he said.

ROYAL THEATRICALS.

Britain's Reigning House Frequently "Put on a Little Show."

Several royal stage representations have taken place in Britain's palaces since the late Queen Victoria ascended the throne, and although descriptive accounts of them have appeared in the press on one or two occasions, they have not been the work of writers invited to the performances, owing to the fact that newspaper representatives are never invited to such functions.

King Edward is said to have arranged more than one private theatrical performance when he was Prince of Wales, and the actors and actresses who took part in them were all of royal rank. Queen Victoria was very fond of these little functions during her early years, and took part in more than one stage production. Princess Louise is a very capable amateur actress, and has appeared, not only at the royal palaces, but at the houses of well-known society people. Princess Beatrice acted a good deal at Windsor, and Prince Henry of Battenberg was once given a part. He had such a poor opinion of his own talents, however, that after the first rehearsal he resigned in favor of another royal personage.

The royal plays have a considerable amount of money spent on them, and Queen Victoria's little secret performances generally cost about $2,500 each. As a rule Her Majesty acted as stage-manager, while Princess Louise, when not on the stage, did the prompting.

It has always been the practice of having not only new clothes but also new wigs specially made for each performance, and to employ a certain gentleman, who is pledged to secrecy, to assist the royal actors and actresses in "making-up" for the characters they are to portray.

Private concerts are, of course, very common in the royal palaces, and on these occasions it is not unusual for the members of the royal family to sing and play.

Queen Victoria was very fond of music and often sang Mendelssohn's songs. When the great musician visited Buckingham Palace in 1842 both Prince Albert and Queen Victoria sang and played. Her Majesty sang two songs, and Mendelssohn said that she rendered "the Pilgerspruch, 'Lass dich nur,' really quite faultlessly, and with charming feeling and expression."

Prince Albert was an excellent musician, and to Mendelssohn he played a chorale by heart with the pedals so clearly and so perfectly that it would have done credit to any professional. When Mendelssohn began his chorus from "St. Paul" Prince Albert and Queen Victoria joined in the chorus, and, says Mendelssohn, "all the time Prince Albert managed the stops for me so cleverly —first a flute, at the forte the great organ, at the D major part the whole, then he made a lovely diminuendo with the stops, and so on to the end of the piece, and all by heart—that I was really quite enchanted."

Posed as a Man.

Death has just brought to light a most astounding story of an elderly woman who had for twenty-five years successfully and without suspicion masqueraded as a man. She was known as Harry Lloyd, and was seventy years of age. For many years Lloyd had lived in Alma Road, London, with Miss Lloyd, a school teacher, who always referred to her as father. Lloyd had been ill for some weeks, but for an unaccountable reason which is now, however, made plain, refused to see a medical man. About 4 feet 10 inches in height, quietly dressed in masculine attire, with dark grey hair kept fairly short, and using a monocle, she was frequently to be seen in the streets, and no one seemed to have had any suspicion as to her sex. Apparently French in extraction, she was well educated and gave lessons in French. When Dr. Foote was called after her death he found to his surprise that the "man" was in reality a woman, and Miss Lloyd appeared profoundly astonished when he communicated his discovery to her. An amazing feature in the case is that about twenty-one years ago Dr. Foote's partner attended a woman who was said to be Harry Lloyd's wife.

Arrested as a Spy.

Some remarkable experiences have fallen to the lot of Mr. Alan H. Burgoyne, M.P. for North Kensington. He has walked through Manchuria from Pekin to Port Arthur, knows the heart of China, and during the last Russian War was imprisoned for five days in a fortress as a spy. He climbed the Japanese sacred mountain, Fujiyama, in the record time of seven hours, has journeyed through New Guinea, Siam, Ceylon, and Mexico, interviewed cannibals, and written thrilling war stories for boys. He is interested in maritime subjects, and is a prominent member of the Navy League.

The New Tennis Champion.

No form of athletics seems to come amiss to Anthony Wilding, who recently carried off the lawn-tennis championship of the world. As a motor-cylist he has won the medal for the run from Land's End to John o' Groat's and he is also a capital cricketer. He is all bone and muscle, and certainly no man who plays lawn tennis keeps himself in such perfect physical condition. Mr. Wilding, who is a New Zealander, learnt tennis as a boy from his father, and has confessed that his youthful ambition was to win the tennis championship.

King's 'Phone Privileges.

The King has certain privileges when using the telephone which no one else enjoys. For instance, when he requires to speak over a trunk line, instead of waiting, as others often have to do, for at least half an hour, he has priority over all who may be waiting to use the same line. Also, while for all the others three minutes ies the limit allowed for a call, the King can speak as long as he likes. As a matter of fact, however, he practically never exceeds the time limit.

When boiling milk for a custard powder, sprinkle the bottom of the saucepan with sugar; this dissolves and forms a layer, and so prevents the milk from burning, no matter how long it boils. It applies to any sweetened milk.

WANTED.

When the Whole Country Has Taken Up Hue and Cry.

Electricity, the post, and the press are the three great enemies of the modern criminal fleeing from justice, as has been seen in the triumphant capture of Dr. Crippen. Within half an hour of the discovery of a great crime, detectives at every port are on the look-out for the criminal. Within a very few hours the police of the Continental and American ports are also watching, while the description and portraits in the newspapers turn the reading world into a corps of amateur detectives.

One of the most sensational pursuits in the history of crime was that after Franz Muller, who, in a London railway train, killed a man called Briggs. In his haste he left his hat behind him in the compartment —a hat with the maker's name on the band. All England was soon on the hunt for him. Within a few days, a cabman came forward, saying he had bought that very hat for a lodger of his, a man named Muller. Soon after a jeweller, of the ominous name of Death, said he had in his possession a gold chain of the dead man's, having taken it in exchange from a man of German appearance. This fixed the crime on Muller, but many days passed before the right clue sent detectives, jeweller, and cabman on board a swift Atlantic liner, which caught the slow sailing ship Muller was on just before she reached port.

In the autumn of 1901 there was the famous case of the Liverpool bank clerk, Goudie, who, by means of forged checks, swindled his employers —the Bank of Liverpool—out of $800,000. When suspicion fastened on him, he escaped in the coolest possible manner. Asked to account for the absence of an entry about a certain check, he said it was to be found in a ledger in another room. A fellow-clerk was told off to watch him as he went to the other room, but Goudie dodged him in the simplest possible way, and walked bareheaded into the street. The alarm was given in a few minutes, but for eleven days he escaped his pursuers.

Then he was found in a squalid street in Bottle, a Liverpool suburb, where he was lodging, dressed as a common seaman.

The case of Miss Charlesworth is still fresh in everyone's mind. Hardly a soul in England was uninterested in the whereabouts of the woman who is now undergoing penal servitude. To escape $135,000 worth of debts, she pretended to have been hurled through the glass screen of her motor and down over a cliff.

One of the most hideous of murders was that of Miss Hogg, at Camberley, England, one of two rich and eccentric sisters.

The murder raised the whole countryside. Other senseless and brutal outrages pointed to the criminal's being still in the neighborhood. The country round, especially the pine woods near, was searched with the utmost care by a party of 500. Scores of detectives—some on cycles, some disguised as tramps—watched every yard of the roads. For a long time there was a reign of terror in Camberley. People peered out of the window before answering a knock. The whole neighborhood was hemmed in by a ring of police. But the maniac-murderer escaped.

A Popular Recorder.

For ten years Sir Forrest Fulton, who recently celebrated his sixty-fourth birthday, has been Recorder of London. Thoroughly outspoken and businesslike, he is very popular with barristers, juries, and court officials, while even criminals acknowledge how just he is. His judicial principal is to be severe on the hardened criminal and merciful to the first offender. Sir Forrest has been associated with many famous cases, notably the Whitaker Wright and the Beck cases. He declares that he finds little difficulty in deciding on a sentence immediately the verdict is returned. Says he: "The object of a public trial is that the public may see how justice is administered. If you postpone sentence the entire effect is taken away."

A Veteran Singer.

In spite of the fact that he recently celebrated his seventieth birthday, Mr. Robert Hilton, the well-known bass singer and vicar-choral of Westminster Abbey, may still be heard from his place in the choir, which he has occupied for forty years. Born in Preston, where his father and grandfather were famous local singers before him, he became a chorister at Salisbury Cathedral, and went thence to Westminster. During his forty years' service at the Abbey Mr. Hilton has taken part in many historic ceremonies, and as a singer has been present at the graveside of every eminent man buried in the Abbey since the funeral of Sir John Herschel, the astronomer, in 1871.

An Historic English Castle.

Longleat Castle, which is said to be the first well built house in England, was erected by Sir John Thynne, and its construction occupied twelve years, from January, 1567, until 1579. The first royal visitor to Sir John's noble mansion was Queen Elizabeth, and the story runs that the owner was not very anxious for his sovereign to see his home, as she might ask him where he obtained the money to build so stately a house. Sir John Thynne, who was knighted after the battle of Pinkie, was the factotum of the Protector Somerset, and it is said that he built Longleat from designs prepared by his fallen master for a house of his own.

Cooked Their Own Grub.

There was no Kitchen Committee at the House of Commons in the days when Pitt was Premier. Members of those times used to buy a chop or steak on their way to the House, and cook it for themselves over a big fire in Westminster Hall. Members who were averse to strong meats went to the House with their pockets stuffed full of oranges and nuts, which they sucked and cracked during the debate.

How the Concrete Fence Post Came

The Travelling Agent Tells About Improved Farm Conditions Back Home

"ONE of the most striking changes amongst the farmers in the vicinity of my old home," said the travelling agent of a large Canadian firm of agricultural implement manufacturers, upon his return from a visit to his birthplace, in the State of New York, recently, "is the better and more permanent character of the buildings and various farm improvements."

"I remember how, years ago, it took my father and all three of us boys one whole day to harvest a certain field. The present owner of the place says that his young son now does that work in a single day, and so far as he can see he never even has to mop his brow.

"Talking with some of the farmers in that section, regarding the methods of the present day, as compared with the past, I find that a very great saving has been effected by the introduction of the use of cement. The price of this article, when I was a boy, was almost prohibitive. In fact, we had hardly ever heard of cement at all, and when we did, it was more as a luxury—an article to mend the dishes in mother's kitchen—rather than as an article to be used out on the farm. Nowadays, most of the boys have been learning how to use it, and no matter where you go you are sure to see something made of it."

"I was particularly struck with a fence which my brother put up on his place, some years ago. My brother and I, you must know, particularly hated looking after fences. We used to prop the posts up mainly by aid of the stones we had picked off the property. Somehow these stones would get removed, and down would come the fence. Father used to be a little hard on us sometimes we thought. When the other boys were off playing he used to set us at work repairing these fences. As the stones wouldn't hold the posts up, he made us dig holes deep in the ground, and drive the posts down into them. These held fairly well, but the trouble was that the posts would rot. That did not matter so much those days, for posts were cheap. The trouble was that we had to go over the fence and repair it and waste all sorts of time over it. In fact, the fence was the bane of our lives, and must have cost a lot to keep in repair.

"A good many accidents took place, one way and another, with those fences, which it seems to me now must have cost father even more than the fences did. I remember one night the horses got tearing around the fields and bumped into a part of the fence which had been neglected for some time past, for the reason that we were busy harvesting the hay. There was a field of green grain. The horses got into it and trampled all over it; but worse than that they gorged themselves with it, with the result that two of them died the following day, and the other two were barely pulled through by the aid of a veterinary from the nearest town.

"As I was about to say, my brother, who lives on part of the old farm, took me down to the old line fence, just to look at the place where the horses broke through that time. He told me that when he saw cement being used so much he wondered if it wouldn't be a good thing to make fence posts of, so that they would not rot or break. He got into touch with a cement firm, without further delay, with the result that they sent him full instructions regarding the making of cement fence posts.

"Jack was very proud of his fence, and it struck me, when he showed it to me, that I had never seen anything nicer. It was as straight as a die, and there wasn't a sign of a break in it from end to end. The posts were all upright, and the wire—it was smooth wire—was as tight and as trim as it used to be on Judge Foster's lawn. Jack asked me how long I thought it was since the fence was built. I told him perhaps a few months—four or five months. 'Well,' said he, 'make it years instead of months and you would be nearer it.'

"It was a fact that for half a dozen years that fence had stood there, and that during that time not a break had taken place and Jack had not spent five minutes looking after it.

"I asked my brother if the fence had not been a little costly.

"Said he: 'That's the cheapest fence I ever had on my farm. It cost more to begin with than the old kind we used to have so much trouble with when we were boys, but once put up it is there forever. These posts can never rot. The longer they are up, the harder and the stronger they become. I made a few little mistakes when I began the work, but they were not serious, and I now know how to provide against them. One of the great advantages of this sort of fence is that it never needs to be repaired. I suppose, in the course of time, the wire will rust out and break, but that will not be the fault of the posts; and as you will remember, it was always the posts that used to give us the worry when we were boys.'

"I asked him if the posts never loosened and fell over to one side in the way that used to make so much work for us in the old days.

"'Well,' said he, 'they do loosen sometimes. But do you remember how solid the wooden posts used to be after they had been in the ground a good while and before they began to rot. The longer they remained there the solider they became. That's the way with these posts. I never have to tinker with them, so that they are never disturbed, but are allowed to become imbedded in the earth. I have sunk them pretty deep, so that the frost will not affect them, and the result is that the fence is always just as you see it now. The strongest man on this farm could hardly move one of those posts. I am just now completing the last fence on my farm, and after it is finished the fence problem on this place will be settled forever. No more time will be wasted looking after them, and there will be no danger of the horses breaking in like they did at this spot thirty years ago, or so—as you may remember.'

"I remembered all right, and as we stood there laughing, we instinctively began rubbing the sore spots once more, which father left on us upon that memorable occasion.."

To Turn Roads into Farm.

ONE-THIRD OF PRESENT 60 FEET WIDTH COULD CE UTILIZED.

Gov. Carroll, of Iowa, proposes to lop off ten feet from each side of the highways of that state and turn it over to corn growing. He thinks that a road very rarely needs to be more than forty feet wide for the service of the public, and that anything wider than that is simply so much land given over to weeds.

The Iowa law does not compel the laying out of roads sixty feet wide, although that is generally the custom. There are 100,000 miles of roads in this single state of Iowa, and it is a fact that they are mainly neglected.

There are over 800,000 acres of land belonging to the highways, and if the people resume the cultivation of one-third they will have added a good deal over 200,000 acres of food production. The annual net revenue per acre in Iowa is set down at $15, a very modest estimate, but this would make the income of the restored land at least $4,000,000

"We believe that Gov. Carroll's proposition is alright, and that it stands good for every state in the union," says the Independent. "We are confirmed in this by the correspondence called out by his own article advocating road economics. There is no reason why there should be broad strips of waste land running in every direction across our states. The roads that we do have should be better made, and whatever land belongs to the public on either side of the road should be made gardenlike.

"At present the weed-breeding strips called roads are a nuisance and a preventive to good farming. They sow down adjacent lands and make fine cropping more difficult. The worst weeds we have to contend with have mainly traveled across the country by way of the roads. But with proper culture these same land strips could be made beneficent models of culture and beauty.

"Gov. Carrell talks like a farmer, and his proposition stands in with the economics of the coming civilization: Larger crops, no waste land, no weed-breeding roads.' A large portion of Iowans agree with their governor in all expect the disposition that should be made of the reserved lands. They would have it cultivated by the public, and the proceeds applied to making better driveways of the portion not withdrawn for tillage."

If proposed legislation be enacted into law in Sweden the importation of proprietary medicines will be limited to those bearing a list of their ingredients on the label and sold within a price fixed by the government.

The New Sanitary Milk Pails.

THE NEW SANITARY MILK PAIL.

Here you are again—a sanitary milk pail of heavy tinned wire that will be of interest to the farmer's wife. The top of the pail is formed with a gradual rise for about three inches on the sides and back, and from this point an oval shaped hood is formed with a total rise of four inches from the level of the top of the pail, which covers the entire top of the pail with the exception of eight inches on the front rim of the pail and five and a half in height, made without seams, which makes a lower milk pail than any on the market. It has a rounding hood which is not in the way when used. There are no corners or cracks, says the Hardware Magazine, for milk or moisture to collect and sour or cause rust.

Take Warning!

"Take warning!" is a motto that should be pasted in large letters on every bottle and can of gasoline that is kept in the house.

This cleansing fluid is as useful as it is dangerous under careless handling. Here are a few precautions which observed will reduce danger to a minimum:

Keep it outdoors when not in use, as in many cases fire insurance is lost if it can be proved that gasoline was on the premises.

Be careful how you clean gloves on the arm. Dreadful accidents have happened in this way.

Never keep the gasoline can near the coal oil can. They look too much alike.

A woman went to light a lamp and discovered that it flamed in a curious way—indeed, shot up almost to the ceiling. It was discovered later that the maid had filled the lamp with oil until one can was exhausted, then had taken the gasoline can, which looked exactly like it. A slightly smaller proportion of the oil and great would have been the tragedy.

Do not close a house for the summer with gasoline or coal oil in it, though you may think it is securely put away.

A Summery Hat.

Paris is growing crazy over everything that is reminiscent of the North American Indian's attire. Why? Well, that is one of the modistic licenses that the gay French capital appropriates without any apparent reason. The Apache hat is the latest eccentricity—a high turban of chiffon or tulle adorned with an upstanding headdress of feathers that slopes and gradually declines toward the back of the hat.

THE EVER POPULAR LINGERIE EFFECT.

Then we have the oriental turban, a swathed affair that will be a modish shape in the fall with the addition of a narrow ruffle of lace extending beyond the frame all around the face. But, with all these freaky specimens of millinery, the lingerie hat for summer is ever a favorite. The model illustrated is a chic example of the large lingerie hat on the bowl shape order. Swiss embroidered muslin is the material used, edged with lace. The trimming is lace edged mauve satin.

A Simple Prize.

A woman who was limited in her prize giving in a club to 25 cents a prize bought three sheets of blotters and a yard of ribbon to match. The former cost 5 cents apiece, the latter 10 cents.

Each of the blotters was cut into four round mats large enough to extend slightly beyond the bottom of a dinner plate. The twelve pieces were neatly tied together with ribbon, with a fluffy bow on top, and the mats were ready for the careful housekeeper to slip between her fine china plates to prevent scratching.

For White Spots.

If the varnished surface of a piece of furniture is injured by chloroform, camphor or any other liquid which dissolves varnish, rub the spot at once with olive oil or linseed oil.

A wood graining machine invented by two Pennsylvanians consists of an endless rubber band, on which is a raised design, held in contact with a roller fed from a paint or varnish fountain.

Points For Mothers

Nervousness in a child may be either inherited or brought about by, or it may be derived from, causes purely physical or mental, or of these allied. But, however occasioned, it is a malady of a peculiarly sad kind and one which makes it beholden on those having charge of children so afflicted to treat them with special care. One of the commonest forms is fear of darkness, which as time progresses becomes tantamount to mental torture. In some cases this may be inherited, but it far oftener comes from stupid people talking in the hearing of very young children of newspaper and other reports of horrors or from brainless nurses telling the wondering and fearful child tales of bogies and goblins and witches. It is no wonder that the active brain of the nervous child exaggerates all this nonsense in the loneliness of the darkened room. Timidity in the presence of strangers is perhaps the least serious symptom of the nervous child. It is rarely more than a sign of supersensitiveness and can soon be cured by care and kindness and the gradual accustoming of the child to the presence of those other than its relatives and friends. The use of nerve tonics and foods may have an appreciable benefit, for undoubtedly the brain becomes weakened by the continued process of exhaustion, but in a large percentage of cases moral measures are of more utility than physical. When the primary seat of mischief is the brain the evil is seldom due to chemical or structural defects. More frequently there obtains that which may be expressed in the words—wrong action. The mental state of a child who is afraid of the darkness is a quite natural result of very wrong influence. It is to be a greater coward than the child to threaten it and leave it alone with conjured up horrors. Let it be played with in the dark and told tales to make it laugh before it settles down to sleep and let his dulling ears hear known and beloved footsteps in and near the room. Never at any time of the day, by any chance, talk of any horrifying happening which took place in the dark in the hearing of a nervous child.

Five P's For the Mother.

A trained nurse gave to a mother what she called her "five p's" for keeping children well. Here they are:

Pure milk, pure air, plenty of sleep, proper clothing and perfect cleanliness.

Those few rules cover most of the necessities in hygienic child rearing.

The importance of pure milk cannot be overestimated. Except for infants, cows' milk should answer every need, but mothers should know where it comes from and how it is cared for after it enters the house. The best milk is quickly contaminated if left without a cover in a hot place.

The strongest children are those who live most in the open air. Naps in daytime can be taken in a sheltered porch. Well wrapped, a child does not take cold, even in cold weather. At night every window should be open wide. See that enough bedclothing is supplied or colds may result.

Plenty of sleep is essential. Babies should be put to bed by 6 o'clock each evening and sleep through until the next morning at 7. A nap during the day should be given.

Not all children are amenable to such rules, but they should be trained into better sleeping habits.

Proper clothing includes that which keeps a child warm without overheating. Less bundling is thought necessary than formerly. Wool should be worn next the skin for the first two years, but it should be light weight.

Perfect cleanliness is a matter of daintiness as well as hygiene. Nothing is more shocking than a dingy infant or child.

Cooling Lemonade For the Children.

It is an excellent plan in warm weather to keep some lemons always on hand and allow the children to make lemonade for themselves. From eight years or even somewhat less they can easily do this. A mother I know, when she feared her little folks were playing too long in the sun and heat, instead of calling them to come stay indoors, would suggest their having some lemonade. They thought it great fun to make it themselves, and this occupied, with the drinking of it, considerable time. Two or three lemons often served for a large pitcher of the cooling drink.

Mother Goose Primer.

A departure from the ordinary primer

A departure from the ordinary primer which follows along lines similar to those of advanced kindergarten principles is "The Mother Goose Primer." Twelve Mother Goose rhymes are given, each accompanied by a full page colored illustration and each analyzed and repeated in the following pages with more illustrations, giving a whole series of variations on the rhyme, so that practice on the words is given and they may be used in new constructions.

A fort built on a long, narrow island, at the entrance to Manilla Bay, is called the "concrete battleship", because of its shape, and because it carries two ship's turrets, each with two 12-inch guns.

New Fall Suits and Coats on View at This Store

Initial Exhibition of Fashionable Fall Models.

Our garment section is now featuring an exhibition of new Fall suits and coats, the latest whims and vagaries of fashion are represented, even to the finish of the sleeves, the styles, and the size of the buttons, these garments are correct and strictly up to the minute.

Suit styles this season are distinctive short coats and skirts of narrow width are the characteristic features, which however have been subjected to almost infinite variations by clever designers, for instance, jaunty models intended for more practical wear border somewhat on what was previous know as the "box coats" in more elaborate styles upon which rich trimmings have been employed the Empire note is accentuated, In separate coats, long garments which envelope the entirely figure are in the lead.

Rich soft tones appear in the materials which are of exceptionally fine quality. Tailoring that is skillfully executed adds distinctly to their attraction. We make a specialty of smart, well made garments for women.

Women's costumes $12.50 to $35.00

Women's coats $7.50 to $38.50

Dry Goods SINCLAIR'S Ladies' Garments

Styles That Will Lead Later In the Season.

A SMART TAILORED SUIT.

Women are much interested in the tailored suit for fall and early winter wear. How is the new tailored suit to be made? This is the problem. We have been "hobbled" and tied in until the limit of discomfort and ugliness has been reached, so that it is refreshing to hear that lines are to be relaxed and hobble bands discarded when fashion settles down for the autumn season.

That coats will be short is an established fact. Skirts will be straight, but comfortably built. Of course many women will follow the extreme styles and wear the narrow tied in skirt, but as a rule the new skirt will show a wider knee girth. The best tailors say the popular six piece skirt is the one to be desired and the simplest to make. This skirt should have heavily welded seams and be worn short, well above the ankle.

The new tailored suit, according to accepted lines, is a typical model of what a mannish suit should be—more so than any that has been worn for several seasons. Less material is required for this suit than for the plaited model. The salesman will tell you to buy seven yards of double width material, but this is nearly a yard more than is needed if the material is well cut. The suit illustrated is a smart example of the new tailor made.

How to Stop Drinking.

It was formerly customary for the habitual drinker to take the pledge regularly, sometimes once a year, and sometimes in every fit of remorse that followed his debauches, and then—break it.

But now it is gradually dawning on the world that pledges do not stop drunkenness. The nervous system of the habitual drinker is diseased and he must have treatment that will cure this condition. Orrine is sold under a positive guarantee to cure the drink habit or the money will be returned. Can be given secretly.

The Manifestations Of Eye-Strain

Continued.

In these statistics I did not include the 0.25 astigmatism, not because I doubted the effect of it in the causation of the changes, but because it is a very prevalent error, and moreover is a very difficult error to estimate correctly in a slightly opaque lens.

Apart from any theory as to how eye-strain, especially astigmatism may cause cataract, the clinical fact remains that by giving the patient glasses to correct the defect the lens changes remain in statu quo ante for many years, and if the patient is seen and this treatment adopted in the early stage of the disease when vision is very little less than normal, glasses will prove of enormous value to the patient.

In the same manner that a decayed molar may produce neuralgia by peripheral irritation so eye-strain may produce headaches or any other form

Belleville Fair Is Now in Full Swing.

FINE DISPLAY BY BELLEVILLE MERCHANTS — LARGE NUMBER OF ENTRIES IN HORSES, CATTLE, SHEEP AND SWINE—MANY FINE SPECIMENS OF FRUIT AND GRAIN.

Again the gates of the Belleville Fair grounds are open and another annual exhibition is in progress, and it is one that promises to surpass its many predecessors. The officers and Board of Directors each year seek to maintain the splendid standing achieved by past efforts, looking forward to the future with an eye single to keep at the top of the heap. Without any vain boasting it can be safely said that the exhibition of 1910 is easily one of the best presented since its reorganization a few years ago. To the officers and especially the indefatiguable secretary, Mr. R. H. Ketcheson, is due much credit and praise, and if the financial returns do not show a balance on the right side of the books it will be no fault on their part. The grounds are in superb condition; the buildings looking their best; the race track just to the fancy of the horsemen, and exhibits galore The latter features must appeal strongly to those who regard the exhibition as an educator as well as furnishing a reasonable share of pastime and enjoyment.

This morning, opening day, was chiefly devoted to the placing of exhibits in their proper places. By noon this had not only been accomplished, but judges were busy in many departments making their awards. A ramble through the grounds was not without interest. The main building, always a centre of attraction, was found particularly inviting this year. Some merchants of the city had taken an active interest in the fair and made excellent exhibits of their merchandise. Ladies work, domestic manufacturers and fine art which fills a large portion of the main building, is shown in profusion. The display is exceptional in quality and far greater than in former years.

The merchants making exhibits in the main building are Ritchie and Co., Thompson and Co., C. B. Scantlebury, Stroud Bros. and D. V. Sinclair

The Holton Lumber Company have an exhibit of their manufacture.

The exhibit of horses is exceptionally large. Amongst the exhibitors are the following—Ashley Stock farm, W Haggerty, Lowey, A. C. Dafoe, E. W Brooks, A. Farnsworth, A. Anderson, H Boyce, G. W. Collins, H. Sinfield, F. Smith, H. Pitman, R. O. Morrow, W. P. Buckley, W. J. Orr and L. C. Mc Caul.

Cattle, sheep and swine are shown in large numbers and some fine specimens are to be seen. In these classes a few of the contributors are as follows—

Cattle—E. W. Brooks, J. Hambly, Little Creek, T. D. Creighton, Hambly P. O., R. O. Morrow, G. W. Collins and H. K. Denyes.

Sheep—E. W. Brooks, R. O. Morrow, and R. J. Garbutt.

Hogs—J. Hambly, T. D. Creighton, R. O. Morrow and R. J. Garbutt.

The poultry exhibit is the largest ever seen here, embracing all kinds of fowls. A number of pigeons and rabbits are also shown.

The fruit exhibit is both large and varied, apples especially being fine also grapes. The principal exhibitors are W. W. Anderson, A. W. Anderson, A. H. Anderson, R. J. Garbutt, F. Shewbridge, R. Williamson, M. Weese and J. Aris.

In grain the exhibit embraces all kinds, including many fine specimens.

Sad Death of A Rawdon Farmer

Mr. Samuel Forestal, a well known and highly respected yeoman of Rawdon Township, on Friday evening last met his death in a rather tragic manner.

It appears that during the day he visited the village of Madoc on business, and drove a rather spirited team of horses. After completing his business towards evening he started for home and it was whilst en route to his domicile that the distressing accident occurred. Whilst it is not known as an actual fact it is said that the horses became frightened at a dog which ran out and barked at them The animals got completely beyond the control of Mr. Forestal, and in their mad career swerved the vehicle to such an extent that the occupant was thrown violently to the ground. From appearance Mr. Forestal struck upon his head with such force as to break his neck, causing instant death. His body was found on the roadside shortly after the distressing affair.

The victim of the accident was about 55 years of age and had lived in Rawdon Township virtually all his life He was a member of the Roman Catholic Church. Those who are acquainted with the deceased speak in the highest terms of him as a neighbor and friend, and his untimely death is sincerely regretted. A widow and large family survive.

Hunks Before the Cadi

Two Hungarians, Milco Terzinlah and S. Bochirstz, were this morning before Magistrate Masson charged with assaulting a fellow countryman named Toco Militezev. The men are employed at the Cement Works, and it appears were engaged in an altercation with the result that the complainant claims he was roughly handled. The case was enlarged until tomorrow and the accused were remanded to jail. Mr. Anderson for Crown and Mr. P. McL. Forin for the accused.

Capture of Fish Nets.

Fish and Game Overseer Toner made another haul on Saturday, when he captured four more large nets, almost opposite Gananoque. This makes eight in two days. Fishermen who do not obey the laws are certainly finding things exciting these days.

Millinery Opening

MISS CAMPBELL'S PARLORS PROVE A STRONG ATTRACTION TO THE FAIR SEX.

The millinery parlors of Miss M. Campbell were to-day besieged by the fair sex, who were more than delighted with the creations to be seen. Some of the hats this year are extremely large. One which was exhibited measures 81 inches in circumference. It is a large black pattern and hemmed with large black plumes. Large hats with low crowns and small hats with high crowns predominate. The inverted flower pot hat is, if possible, more exaggerated than ever. Zebeline and bear skin plush hats are a successful and pretty creation. The new brass color is popular and black beaver hats with bright colored crowns are decidedly in vogue. Black and white ideas were never more prevalent than they are this season. Paisley and Dresden silk and chiffon are deservedly popular. A very popular hat is what is called the Turkish cap, with a black velvet band and a Persian crown. In this well known establishment the taste of the most fastidious person can no doubt be suited.

If boiled water is used for drinking purposes, care should be taken that the water boils for 15 minutes before it is poured off.

Carrier Pigeon Was Killed on the Track.

At least one of the pigeons which were released here recently did not arrive at its destination. By some means it was killed on the Grand Trunk track. Yesterday Mr. James Carr, who resides on the 2nd concession of Thurlow, picked up the foot and part of the leg about three miles east of the station. On it was a leg band stamped with the following inscription: "Montreal 10—138."

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

BASEBALL.

At a meeting of the Executive of the City League held last evening at the Ontario House parlors, the business of season 1910 was finally closed.

The League was most successful, especially from a financial standpoint.

The total amount of receipts was $479.10.; the total amount of expenses was $148.60; Balance $330.50, which is to be divided between the five teams of the League.

After Mr. Ed. O'Flynn had been congratulated upon his team winning the championship and kind words had been spoken of for the members of the Executive one and all, the meeting adjourned.

The City Baseball League has this year proven to be one of the best sporting organizations ever formed in this city.

A Surprise Party.

Mrs. A. E. Fish, William st., was agreeably surprised last evening by about 30 of her most intimate friends The biggest surprise of the evening was the presentation of a beautiful brooch, which will always be a remembrance of her dear friends.

WANTS HER LETTER PUBLISHED

For Benefit of Women who Suffer from Female Ills

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. My pains all left me, I grew stronger, and within three months I was a perfectly well woman.

"I want this letter made public to show the benefit women may derive from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JOHN G. MOLDAN, 2115 Second St., North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

WALKED THE STREETS

Thousands Unable to Find Beds or Food in Montreal.

Wind-Up of Eucharistic Congress Finds Montreal In a State of Unparalleled Congestion — French-Canadians Raise a Cry Over Prominence of Irish Flag—English as All-Canadian Language.

Montreal, Sept. 13.—Ten thousand people walked the streets of Montreal Sunday night unable to find lodgings. The food ran short in the restaurants, and crowds flocked to the fruit stores, and made meals from bananas and candy.

All night long the Grand Trunk station was packed to suffocation, policemen refusing to let any more in, and this caused scores to lose their trains. The Canadian Pacific ran seven trains to Quebec Sunday evening, and other lines were, likewise, choked with specials.

The wind-up of the eucharistic congress left about 200,000 strangers in Montreal, all of whom had wanted to get away home as soon as possible. The result is said to be a tie-up at the stations that is practically complete.

The only fatality in connection with the eucharistic demonstration so far reported is the death of Abbe Verrett, cure of St. Sylvestre, Que., who was crushed by a team while getting off a car on St. Lawrence street, Saturday, and died Sunday morning at the Hotel Dieu.

Some of the French-Canadian aldermen are after Mayor Guerin for having the Irish flag in a superior place to the Union Jack on the City Hall, and his worship declared that he had told them if they could not agree on the flag question, that he would have them all hauled down except the Union Jack, which he had taken care to place always in the centre.

Ald. Larrivire, who has not evidently heard of this, stated that the French race had been insulted by the mayor, and that the tri-color had the right to fly in Canada, because it was the first flag in this country.

The city is talking to-day of the reception given some time since to a delegation from the French-Canadian artisans, which asked the Archbishop of Kingston to permit the establishment of a branch in his diocese. His grace replied that he did not want any French organization in his diocese. Also, he said that everybody would soon have to speak English in Canada, and the sooner they realized the fact the better.

The greatest possible interest is felt here over the rumored appointment of Archbishop Gauthier of Kingston to the vacant episcopal seat at Ottawa, as successor to the late Mgr. Duhamel. It has been known for months past that while the French bishops have been united on Canon Gauthier of the archbishop's palace here, the papal delegate has championed the appointment of an English-speaking prelate to the Ottawa vacancy. If the report be true, and that is not quite sure, that the Kingston prelate goes to Ottawa, there will be no end to the comment in this province, as such a nomination would be a very signal victory for the Irish over the French-Canadian contention.

Bold Bandits Rob Auto.

Poughkeepsie, Sept. 13.—Just outside this city an automobile was held up Sunday night by two masked men.

"Get out here while we search you," said one of the men, as he swung open the door of the car.

"Up with your hands—and no fooling," was the next command. Then, while one of the highwaymen stood on the seat of the car, the other went through a score or so of pockets, missing nothing in his search. He took out a bandana handkerchief and carefully tied up in it his booty—$175 in cash, three watches worth $400 and some negotiable papers, the value of which is not stated.

As the highwayman stepped back to allow his victims to return to the car, one of the trio, J. W. Towsley of New York, stooped quickly, picked up a huge rock and sprang upon one of the masked men. The second highwayman was afraid to fire, but seized Towsley and hurled him against the car. Then he and his confederate bolted. Deputy sheriffs are in pursuit.

Killed by His Wagon.

Plattsville, Sept. 13.—Charles Pratt, sr., proprietor of the Plattsville Brick and Tile Works, was killed yesterday morning. He was returning with a load of coal, and while descending the steep grade at Farrow's Hill he accidentally fell from the load to the ground, the hind wheel of the wagon passing over his body.

Preferred Pigs to Children.

Winnipeg, Sept. 13.—Mrs. Michael Robnovish, living five miles north of this city, gave birth to twins Sunday. The husband, who was displeased at the arrival of two children at the same time, traded one of the infants off to a neighbor whose wife has no children, for a yearling pig.

A Record Attendance.

Ottawa, Sept. 13.—The 23rd annual Central Canada Exhibition opened yesterday morning with an exceptionally large attendance. There will be no official opening by a speaker of note this year, the directors having failed in their effort to get ex-President Roosevelt.

Fight Between Gamblers and Robbers.

Reno, Nev., Sept. 13.—As a result of a pitched battle between employes of a gambling resort at Ely, Nev., and five robbers, who held up the place yesterday morning, one man was fatally shot and two others seriously wounded. The robbers escaped with about $1,000.

Cholera Situation Serious.

Paris, Sept. 13.—A telephone message from Rome yesterday describes the cholera situation at Naples as growing more serious. There were 12 new cases and eight deaths from the disease in that city on Sunday.

In Nuremburg, Germany, there still are in use more than 1700 houses that were built in the sixteenth century and more than 3500 erected in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

In the Nursery.

Better than chairs are low, broad seats built in all around the wall of the room. The seat should be eight or nine inches high and from one to two feet broad and may be put up by a carpenter at slight expense. The children may slide all along these and draw their toys up beside them, and there will be less danger of bumped noses and bruised elbows from tipping over of the chairs. Little pillows with durable covers may be strewn about for small, sleepy heads or to make the seat less hard. Such a seat is best made of hard wood if the floor is hard wood; if not it should be made very smooth and varnished, so that there may be no danger of splinters.

The Value of Laughter.

A famous doctor once said: "Encourage your child to be merry and to laugh aloud. A good, hearty laugh expands the chest and makes the blood bound merrily along. Commend me to a good laugh—not to a little, sniggling laugh, but to one that will sound right through the house. It will not only do your child good, but will be a benefit to all who hear and be an important means of driving the blues away from a dwelling. Merriment is very catching and spreads in a remarkable manner, few being able to resist the contagion. A hearty laugh is delightful harmony—indeed, it is the best of all music."

Experience Sufficient.

"What arctic experience have you ever had?" was asked of an aspirant for a place in a polar expedition.

"I once courted a Rochester girl."

ATTACK NAVAL POLICY

Labor Congress of Canada Criticizes Both Parties.

President Glockling's Address to Delegates at Fort William Contains Strong References to "Vast Expenditure For War Purposes" — New Immigration Policy Is Assailed and Suggested Arbitration Is Described.

Fort William, Sept. 13.—William Glockling of Toronto, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, presented his address to the delegates in the form of an executive report. In this communication both political parties were assailed for the position they assumed in regard to the formation of the Canadian navy. It attacked the new immigration policy of the Government, and described suggested compulsory arbitration legislation.

Attached to the executive report for the Dominion were reports for individual provinces. All these went to show that labor interests in Canada had been fairly well conserved during the year, and that some progress had been made towards the ends the congress ultimately hoped to attain.

The executive report was in part as follows: "The past year has been one of great activity in industrial circles. The country's prosperity continues, and workers are in a position to be sharers in the material advancement to which their labors so extensively contribute. On every hand industry is expanding, and the danger is not of retrogression, but an oversight of those precautions that will make for permanent, rather than speedy betterment."

Passing on, the report expressed regret that the efforts of the congress and of those similarly inclined to preserve the peace of nations and conserve the autonomy of the country had been of little avail. The old parties were denounced for voting away the moneys of the people in the creation of a navy, and thereby making a useless effort to demonstrate loyalty that was not in question.

"Whether it is a tin-pot navy or a tin-can opposition proposal, the result is the same. We are committed to a vast expenditure for war purposes. And the same jingo element that foisted the new policy upon the Canadian people will, no doubt, in the same way rush into the wars of the Mother Country. Your executive recommends that continued efforts be made to promote the efforts of those who believe in international peace."

The report of the campaign at Ottawa last session of Parliament is mentioned, and special reference is made to the Belcourt bill in the Senate to have labor unions declared illegal, and to the agitation in favor of a general eight-hour day. The appointment of a commission of enquiry on the subject of technical education is commended. Delegates are urged not to be misled by declarations that further importations of cheap labor are necessary to insure proper development of the country, and the lowering of restrictions on immigration is viewed with misgiving.

The executive protests against the custom of the American Federation of Labor in classing the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress as a state federation. It also issues a warning against haste in enacting legislation to secure compulsory arbitration.

"Your executive believes that the almost unanimous position of the organized workers of Canada at the present juncture is emphatically opposed to compulsory arbitration. Canada has taken a long step forward in the adoption of the principle of compulsory investigation, as worked out under the Lemieux Act. Although the principle is working out fairly satisfactory, it is yet too early to pass finally upon it, and it would be madness to make the final jump to compulsory arbitration before compulsory investigation has been thoroughly tested.

"Nor do we believe that compulsory arbitration would for years and years to come be acceptable, either to workers or employers in this country. It is a right that belongs to every man to cease work, or to refuse to work for any employer when he sees fit to do so, subject to any contract made in that regard. So, too, it must be the right and privilege of any employer to refuse to continue in his service any workman he does not desire to employ or to whom he does not need, subject again to contractual rights."

It is supposed to be the same gang which recently made a systematic looting of railway hotels all along the line. It is believed they have escaped across the border.

Continuation of The Crippen Case

(Intelligencer Special.)

LONDON, Eng., Sept. 4.—During the continuation of the Crippen investigation this morning, Dr. Pepper, Government analyist, made an admission that startled the crowd in the courtroom and threatened to wreck the very foundation of the Crown's case against Crippen and Miss Leneve. Dr. Pepper candidly admitted, and agreed with the medical witness for the defence, that, owing to the state of the remains, it was impossible to determine the sex of same by anatomical observation. Solicitor Newton, the lawyer for Crippen, made witness repeat this admission. This leaves the fate of Crippen hanging literally by a hair, the Crown endeavoring to prove that the hair on the head of the body was Mrs. Crippen's. Dr. Crippen, in the dock this morning, was noticeably more cheerful after the admission of Dr. Pepper. Miss Leneve seems to be on the point of a collapse.

The aviators miraculously escaped.

DOG MUZZLING REGULATIONS HARD ON HUNTERS.

(Intelligencer Special.)

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 14.—Hunters from Ontario who usually take to the tall timbers in October are very much concerned about the muzzling order, which will prohibit the use of dogs this year. Game Warden Tinsley, of Ontario, has written the Dominion Government regarding it, but the Dominion authorities put it up to the Ontario officials. Indications are that hunters must go without dogs or stay at home.

Mexican Prisoner Swindle.

Ottawa, Sept. 14.—The Postoffice Department issues the following statement: "Communications on the lines of the celebrated 'Spanish prisoner' fraud are being received by prominent persons in Canada from Mexico. These communications purport to come from a person who has been arrested in Mexico for bankruptcy, and whose baggage, containing a sum of 1,200,000 francs, is lying 'checked' at some railway station in the United States. The Mexican prisoner is willing to give one-third of this sum to any person who will wire him sufficient money to pay the costs of the judgment against him in the Mexican court under which he is held.

This is a very plain swindle, but in view of the fact that quite a number of persons in Canada were deceived by the Spanish prisoner fraud and inveigled out of considerable sums of money, it is thought advisable to warn the public against this Mexican variation of the same fraud."

Black Handers Resort to Bombs.

New York, Sept. 14.—After writing several threatening letters and waiting in vain to a response to their demands for $5,000, Black Handers yesterday exploded a bomb in front of the wine store of Enrico Casabianca on Sixth avenue. The explosion demolished part of the front of the five-storey building and created a panic in the neighborhood. Occupants of big apartment hotels and residences of millionaires a block away were aroused by the terrific shock, but no one was injured.

Ran After the Girl.

London, Ont., Sept. 14.—Nelson H. Stebbins of Toronto, who is running some amusements at the Western Fair, was fined $10 by Mayor Beattie yesterday for chasing a young London girl through the streets Monday night.

UNITE BY PROVINCES

This Is Suggestion to Come Up at Labor Congress.

Resolution Favoring Provincial Federations of Working Men Is to Come Up at Fort William Gathering—Legislation Will Be Asked For Several Things, Including Weekly Pay Day for Workers.

Fort William, Sept. 14.—Yesterday several matters at the session of the Trades and Labor Congress were deferred pending the arrival of Solicitor J. G. O'Donoghue of Toronto. Several other resolutions were considered, one to secure federal legislation for weekly pay instead of semi-monthly or monthly; another, by James Watt of the Toronto tailors' union, opposed to home work and open shop in Ontario; others to amend the compensation for workingmen's injuries act of Quebec; re-arrangement of taxation on land values and not on improvements and industry; to increase postmen's pay for Sunday labor, and an eight-hour day for postmen, and denouncing the present heavy postmen's uniforms for summer year, and one calling for suitable car sheds for railway carmen to eat and dry their clothes in when on duty.

The most important resolution yet to come up is one to organize provincial federations of labor chartered by the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

A resolution which will precipitate a lengthy debate is one asking that an amendment to the liquor act be sought to have saloons and bars in hotels close on Labor Day. The bartenders, brewery workers, cigar workers, as well as other trades, are opposed to this resolution when it comes up to-day.

The election of officers takes place on Friday. It is said Wm. Glockling of Toronto will be opposed as president by James Somerville of Moose Jaw. The west is depending, it is said, on the entire delegation supporting Somerville, while the east will support Glockling. Port Arthur and Fort William, with over thirty delegates, appear to be in favor of no change and will support Glockling, which means he will be elected unless Somerville withdraws before Friday and Glockling is elected by acclamation.

Immigration was the principal theme of discussion at the morning session. W. R. Trotter of Winnipeg presented a long report on the subject, in which he laid special stress upon the necessity for restriction, and for provision against exploitation.

He severely criticized some of the schemes of immigration and emigration followed in the past, and in the concluding portion of his report, said in part: "It should be understood that no scheme detrimental to the interest of the Canadian citizenship will be tolerated, and Canadian citizenship must be held to include more than manufacturing associations and their allied press.

"No scheme of imperial labor exchange can possibly be agreed to which is not preceded by a system of provincial and Dominion exchanges. Any other arrangement would be open to a repetition of the scandalous shipping by the Salvation Army to British Columbia of 11,000 persons, when there were 7,500 unemployed people in Toronto alone. It should be clear that our fight from now on is not so much against numbers of discredited societies as against many schemes of the crowd of dividend-hunting corporations which has descended upon Canada, and whose agents, titled and otherwise, are much in evidence during the summer months."

An invitation from the mayor of Vancouver to meet in that city next year will be considered with other invitations later on.

Concealed Loans.

Washington, Sept. 14.—A system by which banks in small cities in the west have been fooling national bank examiners and concealing loans in their reserve bank in a large city, has been discovered, and is under investigation. A keen examiner had found an instance where as many as a dozen banks in small cities had been concealing loans in one reserve bank in Chicago.

There is authority for the statement that the whole system of national bank examination and regulation is to receive great attention during the next few months.

A Tribute From Earl Grey.

Quebec, Sept. 14.—On behalf of His Excellency the Governor-General, a wreath of lilies and a wreath of roses were laid at the foot of the monument to Wolfe and Montcalm in the governor's garden yesterday morning. A card on each bore the inscription, "In respected memory, from Earl Grey." Yesterday was the anniversary of the battle of the Plains of Abraham, which cost the two generals their lives.

Wage War on Jobbers.

Brandon, Sept. 14.—The Western Retail Merchants' Co-Operative Association, in session here, has practically decided to wage war against the jobbers. They have been pooling their orders, to obtain goods in carlots, but the jobbers object. The merchants claim they can cut out the middleman and reduce prices to consumers.

Not in the Agreement.

Daniel had been cast into the lions' den.

"My main objection," he said as he playfully tweaked a lion's mane, "is that I get no moving picture royalties."—Puck.

CURRENT EVENTS.

The council is moving along the right line in preparing to reconstruct the old meat market into an up-to-date police station. The present station is simply a disgrace to Belleville.

How and why is it, that an automobile can go over the lower or upper bridge at a rapid speed while the most miserable horse and cart must not go faster than a walk, and if they do, are liable to a fine? Perhaps the City Solicitor will rise and explain

Having managed all of man's accomplishments such as polo, tennis baseball, yachting and swimming, a famous American beauty cut herself when she tried to shave. Moral.

"The vestibule of hell" is the term used by a Boston preacher to describe Newport, the summer home of many of the greatly rich people of the United States. This sort of denunciation for a day attracts wide attention which is possibly one reason why from time to time there comes forward somebody to indulge in it. It can hardly be said that it ever does any good; and it may at times do harm. The unwise man in the pulpit is one of the factors that do not help the cause of religion.—Montreal Gazette.

A fool is unable to see his own faults. A wise man, seeing his own faults, is able to keep other people from noticing them. —Chicago Record Herald.

Last week the Huntingdon Gleaner said: "The sooner Sir Wilfrid gets home the better. If he stays much longer West he will have pledged the country into bankruptcy."—Orillia Packet.

It is refreshing to see Britain secure a diplomatic victory in a dispute with the United States.—Guelph Mercury.

A New York woman sprinkled a magic powder over her sleeping hubby to charm him into kissing her, but got a beating instead. Another woman gets a divorce because her husband insisted upon kissing their sterilized baby in the old fashioned way. Dangerous business any way you look at it.

For each person in the United States one-third of a pound of tea and a dozen paper napkins are imported from Japan each year.

By injecting large doses of tuberculin a Vienna physician says he has arrested progressive paralysis.

The first cold storage warehouse in the modern acceptance of the term was opened in Chicago in 1889.

If a teaspoonful of sugar is put into the teapot the tea will infuse in one-half the time.

If boiled water is used for drinking purposes, care should be taken that the water boils for 15 minutes before it is poured off.

A Big Show At Popular Prices.

The theatrical season is on with the advent of the "Ole Olson Co." Manager Hurley of the Griffin Opera House has secured this meritorious attraction at very attractive prices. His past experiences in the large theatres of the leading American cities will be a valuable asset to him, when it comes to arranging prices for the visiting attractions, and he wishes to assure the citizens of Belleville that he will use that knowledge to the best advantage, as he is a firm believer in popular prices.

There is no reason why the theatre should not be filled to capacity on Thursday night as the prices are within reach of all.

The prices are as follows—First two rows of the dress circle are 75c. The next two rows of the dress circle, the whole orchestra and the first row in the balcony are 50c.

The Parquet and the balance of the balcony are thirty-five cents, the Family circle is twenty-five and the entire gallery is fifteen cents.

The plan, which opened yesterday is on view at Doyle's Drug Store.

Millinery Opening

Misses McCrodan and Sills held their fall millinery display to-day and their parlors were besieged with the fair sex who were more than delighted with the head gear which was shown in profusion. It was certainly a most creditable display for the firm. A great contrast is found in this season's hats in that the Suit Hats are very small, while the Dress Hats are enormous. The greatest divergence is shown in shapes also, from the High Set Busby shape to the low wide spreading mushroom. The outstanding features in this Autumn's Millinery are beaver and velvet with wings strong, ostrich and osprey mounts, buckles and velvet flowers also considerably used. The new colors are not dissimilar to those of recent seasons, rather a blending and retinting of the ever-popular multitude of blue and grey shades, with a new copper shade, possibly the most pronounced novelty. The Collapsable or Suit Sase Hat is one of the newest and most convenient features of the season.

DO NOT FAIL TO VISIT GRIFFIN'S TO-NIGHT.

To those who have not visited Griffin's Opera House on Monday or last night, a word would not be amiss.

The "Real Quartette," which is the star attraction there this week are meeting with the same volume of hearty public favor that has ensued from their engagement in the large cities.

They are, without doubt, the best artists in their line that have appeared at this play house.

On their opening night, their act called for repeated encores.

Visitors to the Fair should not fail to see the bill and take home pleasant recollections of an enjoyable visit.

A complete change of pictures to-night.

The Late Herbert L. Eggleton.

The death of Herbert Eggleton, with its peculiarly sad circumstances, has caused the most widespread sorrow and regret among his many friends in Madoc. At a comparatively young age, in all the vigor of manhood, he was cut off without a moment's warning. But it was characteristic of the man that death came to him where he would most wish it—during the quiet and uncomplaining performance of his duty, and the loss to others was for him a sudden and painless entrance into greater happiness.

The deceased's grandfather, Thomas Eggleton, came from Norfolk County, England, and was one of the earliest and best known pioneers of Sidney Township. Mr. Eggleton's mother died when the family was still young, and upon him, as the eldest son, devolved a considerable part of the care of the younger children. His thoughtfulness for others was shown here as at so many other times.

He married Miss Harris, of Bannockburn, and the first years of their married life were spent in Madoc village, where he was in charge of the electric light plant. The young couple gained many friends, and were held in the highest esteem. In his work Mr. Eggleton was known as thorough and efficient, and a man of scrupulous honesty. All the children of the neighborhood were the especial friends of the man with the cheerful smile for everyone.

Our sympathy is extended to his widow and his two little children. He also leaves to mourn his death, his father, two sisters, Mrs. Fred Douglas, of Stockton, Cal.; Mrs. Andrews, of Madoc Junction; and three brothers, A. T. Eggleton, Marmora; Stanley, of Leslie, Sask.; and Harford, of Seattle, Wash.

TRACK CHAMPIONSHIPS.

The entry of Buist, of the Pastime A. C., of New York, for the 880 yards in the Canadian track championships to be decided a week from Saturday, was received yesterday. The entries close next Monday, and between this and then they will be coming in daily from all parts of the country.

Dr. Johnson, the eastern representative on the championship committee of the A. A. U. of C., wrote yesterday from Charlottetown, stating that the entry of at least five men from the Maritime Provinces was assured. Cameron, of Amherst, winner of the Boston Marathon, will be here for the distance run. Schaeffer, of Halifax, will be in the sprints, and Ross, of the same place, in the 880 yards. Hooper and Stanley are two other athletes who will measure speed with other Canadian cracks at the meet.

The five-mile run, in which Cameron is entered, has attracted an entry from Revelstoke, B.C., in C. D. Palmer, considered one of the best men at the distance on the coast.

LAWRENCE–SHARP.

A very pretty and pleasing event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Sharp. Fourth concession of Sidney, on Tuesday, Sept. 6, it being the occasion of the marriage of their youngest daughter, Roseanna E., to Mr. Richard Lawrence. The ceremony was performed by the Rev W. D. P. Wilson in the presence of over one hundred friends and relatives of the contracting parties. At half past two o'clock, the bride who was daintily dressed in white silk, entered the parlor leaning on the arm of her father, while the sweet strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Nobes of Wallbridge, added much to the occasion. The bride was attended by Miss May Tucker, while Mr. Willie Detlor did the honors of best man. The bride was the recipient of many valuable and useful presents, evincing the esteem in which she was held by her many friends. Among those present from a distance were Miss McGlenn and Mr. Murphy of Memphis, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Gray, of Buffalo and Mrs. and Miss Simmons of Toronto. The many friends of the young couple wish them bon voyage through life.

Weekly Intelligencer.

An Old Problem.

According to advance information of the 1910 United States census the cities of the Union are increasing in population at a tremendous rate. As a sample there is Schenectady, with a ten year increase of 129.9 per cent.; Houston, Texas, 76 per cent.; Atlanta, Ga., 72.3 per cent. and Detroit with a jump in ten years of no less than 180,062 in its population, which now stands at 465,766.

The question here arises, where do these additional city thousands come from Not until the rural population statistics are available will it be possible to tell definitely, but already there is sufficient evidence in to warrant the belief that it will be found they have come largely from the country districts. Which shows that the old problem, upon which many of the best minds of the century have been working for years, has not yet been successfully solved: how to keep the people on the farms.

If only the cities were to be considered it might be well to let things remain as they are, for there is no denying the fact that, go where you will, either in Canada or the United States, you will find the biggest and brainiest men of the cities have migrated at some time in their lives from the farms. But, unfortunately, these biggest and brainiest are not the only ones who come. Along with them are the thousands who belong to the great class of ordinaries to which most of us belong, and when these ordinaries leave the farm, where they have had training, and are the best qualified to make successful battle in life, and come to the cities, they step into a new life and one with which they are altogether unacquainted. The glare brought them and now the grind holds them along with the glare, and while they are struggling to make ends meet in an environment that must ever be foreign to their natures, the great open stretches of land call to them in vain.

In the cases of these thousands it would be well both for the cities and for the country, too, if the lure of the former could be counteracted in some way successfully. Across the border it has been found that the electric car, good roads, the automobile and rural free delivery have all joined in producing a counteracting effect. These same agencies have done their part in making certain country districts in the vicinity of Hamilton and Toronto as pleasant to live in as are the cities themselves. Neither should the rural telephone, electric light and natural gas be left out of the accounting, for there can be nothing more calculated to remove the disagreeableness of country life at any and all seasons than these. But meanwhile all country districts are not thus favored and the trek to the cities continues while the call from the land for workers grows ever more insistent and pleading.—Hamilton Spectator.

Baby's Terrible Eczema,

HANDS TIED TO PREVENT SCRATCHING.

Five Doctors Failed to Relieve, but Zam-Buk Worked a Cure.

Mrs. Chas. Levere, of Prescott, North Channel, Ont., tells how Zam-Buk cured her baby. She says:—"My baby's head and face was one complete mass of sores. The itching and irritation were fearful, and the little one's plight was so serious that at one time we feared her ears would be eaten off by the disease.

"We had to keep her hands tied for days to prevent her rubbing and scratching the sores. Doctor after doctor treated her in vain, until we had five doctors. They all agreed it was a frightful case of eczema, but none of them did any permanent good.

As a last resource we were advised to try Zam-Buk. The first box did so much good that we felt sure we were at last working in the right direction. We persevered with the treatment until we had used thirteen boxes, and at the end of that time I am glad to say Zam-Buk had effected a complete cure."

Mrs. Holmes, of 30 Guise Street, Hamilton, is quite as eloquent in her praise. She says:—"Zam-Buk cured my boy of boils and eruptions when he was so bad that he had been unable to mix with other children. Zam Buk is a wonderful preparation, and mothers throughout the land should always keep it handy."

For eczema, eruptions, rashes, tetter, itch, ringworm, and similar skin diseases, Zam-Buk is without equal. It also cures cuts, burns, scalds, piles abscesses, chronic sores, blood poisoning, etc. All druggists and stores at 50 cents a box, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Helped to Save Two Hundred Lives.

VETERAN LIFEBOATMAN IS RETIRING — TELLS THRILLING STORIES OF GOODWIN RESCUES

After being connected with the Goodwin Sands lifeboat service for forty-four years, during thirty of which he has been coxswain of the Kingsdown lifeboat, Mr. James Laming is retiring. The largest number of rescued people brought ashore at one time in his lifeboat was twenty-seven from a wreck on the South Goodwins, and the actual number of lives saved by Laming and his crew has been 211. His most severe experience, he said, was in 1901, when the boat was out for seventy hours at a stretch in a blinding snowstorm in attendance on a large steamer which was wrecked near the South Sands Head. They went out on Boxing Day, and it was almost six times round the clock before they got back again, the weather all the time being intensely cold with snow blizzards driving off the land and making the work extremely difficult.

He is the proud possessor of the Lifeboat Institution's silver medal and two certificates, both being signed by the present King, who, as Prince of Wales, was president of the Lifeboat Institution.

WHITE MAN KING OF SAVAGE RACE.

INTREPID AFRICAN EXPLORER RETURNS TO ENGLAND AND RELATES HIS EXPERIENCES.

After eight years' adventures in the heart of Africa, a British explorer and huntsman, John Boyes, returned recently to his home at Hull.

In an interview he gave some interesting particulars of his experiences.

In 1896, when he was about 21 years old, he went to British East Africa, where he traversed then unknown regions, and ultimately was made white king of a savage tribe called the Kikuras. He commanded, he says, 5,000 fighting troops, and at one time was recognized by the British Government, but after three years of regality he left the tribe owing to differences with the British Government.

In 1902 he returned to England, but the same year he left for Africa again, this time in search of big game and ivory, in company with Mr. Macmillan Major Ringer and a German professor named Grote.

This expedition over, he took some farms in British East Africa and tried to settle down, but in six months was again on the move and travelled with the aid of a steamer to Abyssinia which he passed right through. He travelled 1,200 miles alone, but for his natives, and underwent fearful hardships through lack of water. On three different occasions he had no drinking water for three days. Ultimately Boyes got through to British East Africa.

In 1908 he heard of gold discoveries in the Congo region and started off, but on arrival at the goldfields he found Belgian soldiers guarding them so he turned his attention to big game and ivory trading, at which he spent eighteen months.

He met Mr. Roosevelt at Kobo, and was asked where rhinoceros could be found. Boyes informed the ex-President of the only place where they existed in the district, and Mr. Roosevelt, acting on the information, shot eight.

WITH THE SOOTHSAYERS.

Quaint Horoscopes of King George and Queen Mary.

The stars are favorable to a glorious reign by King George and Queen Mary. At least, that is the conclusion come to by the editor of "Modern Astrology," who has been casting the horoscopes of their Majesties. Apparently King George has one defect, however. This is his lack of diplomacy.

"He loves the straight and direct road," says the astrological expert, "and can rely sufficiently upon his own judgment, but this necessary quality of diplomacy will need to be supplied by his admirable wife, whose gift in this direction is shown by the moon in conjunction with Jupiter at her birth. He will suffer from severe headaches at times, also stomachic troubles, but have no real organic disease. He loves temperance, is passionately fond of his children, and firmly believes in spiritual things."

Queen Mary will make an ideal queen. Here is her character and future as indicated by the stars: "The Queen has a strong will and decided opinions, with a quiet, firm, and determined nature. In disposition she ies open, frank, truthful, and self-contained. She is very faithful in all her friendships, constant in her attachments, a shrewd judge of human nature, and rarely deceived in her estimate of the character of others. The poor and all who suffer will be glad to know that Queen Mary's chief concern will be the welfare of her people. A good nurse and an excellent mother, she is sympathetic towards the sorrows of others.

"Queen Mary will in many respects be a remarkable Queen, and the nation is fortunate in having one so capable and competent to help the King through his great responsibilities."

Regarding the young Prince of Wales, it is prophesied that his marriage will take place in his twenty-third year. "He will thus marry under the most favorable auspices," says the same authority, "and will be blessed with a beautiful and good wife. The horoscope denotes exceptional ability, and the mind being so very intuitive and receptive he will absorb knowledge quickly, turning his attention to original and unconventional thought, and cultivating a love of music and the fine arts, also metaphysics and mysticism."

A Strenuous Life.

A remarkable career has been that of Captain Pentecost, commander of the Cunard liner Saxonia, who has retired from the company's service. He was born in Sydney, N.S.W., joined the Cunard in 1896, being appointed commander in 1904. While in Burma he was attached to the Irrawaddi flotilla. He holds the Brazilian captain's certificate, also a first master's certificate for the inland waters of Bermuda. Captain Pentecost's escapes from death have been as varied as his nautical career. On three occasions he fell from aloft while at sea, was washed overboard twice during gales, and once, off the Cape of Good Hope, he had a narrow escape from drowning. The damage to his body in these accidents included the breaking of all the lower ribs on his left side and the fracture of one of his arms three times. Notwithstanding these experiences, the captain, who is now in the prime of life, looks robust and fit for many more strenuous years.

King of Missabotti.

Toby, an old and decrepit aboriginal, said to be 125 years of age, recently died in the blacks' camp at Bowraville, N.S.W. The deceased was a very old man. To the oldest inhabitants of the Nambucca River he has always been regarded as exceptionally ancient. When the sixties were young, Mr. W. F. Sullivan, who claims to be the first white settler in the district, selected an area of land in Bowraville. Toby was then worn with age, and was fully 70 or 80 years old. A quarter of a century ago the gentleman mentioned presented Toby with a brass plate, on which was engraved, "Toby, King of Missabotti," and he wore that plate continuously until the day of his death. At the time of the presentation the deceased was the head man amongst the local blacks, and henceforth he was known as the "King of Missabotti." Local rumor weaves quite a tale of romance about the old man.

Presenting Cullinan Jewels.

Sir Richard Solomon, High Commissioner of the Union of South Africa, had the honor the other week, on behalf of the Government and people of the Union of South Africa, of presenting to Her Majesty the Queen, in commemoration of the Union of the South African colonies, six diamonds mounted as ornaments and cut out of the well-known Cullinan stone, which was discovered early in 1905 in the Premier Diamond mine, near Pretoria. The two largest of these diamonds, which are considered by experts to be of matchless quality, one weighing 92 and the other 62 carats, have been mounted as a pendant. Three, averaging about 10 carats each, have been mounted as a small pendant, and the sixth diamond as a ring.

It Generally Is.

Greatly to the pride and pleasure of his father, Lord Rosebery's second son, the Hon. Neil Primrose, was elected to Parliament for a division in Cambridgeshire.

During the contest, however, reference was constantly made to Lord Rosebery's opposition to the budget, which his son supported.

On one occasion the candidate was asked whether this action on the part of his father did not amount to "hitting below the belt."

"Exactly," said Mr. Primrose, "But when one's father does hit one, it is generally below the belt."

An Asiatic Railway.

The hope of Singapore is for a great trunk line railway running from this southern point of the Malay peninsula northward through Siam to Burma and on to India and a branch line through Cambodia into China. Some day that hope will be realized. Within a radius of 2,000 miles of the little island on which Singapore is built there is a population of 700,000,000.

The German military authorities will use the services of 120 civilian motor cyclists in the army manoeuvres

The ...Veiled Lady...

After a conference at eight next day, with his fellow scoundrel, Jenks placed two men, selected by Baptiste, to shadow Victorine and the Hidden Prima Donna. The steward explained that Jean had visited a dozen conservatories in vain, and wearied out, wishing to enlist his wife's services, had luckily learned from Duprez that "Mees Isabel" was Victorine's new mistress.

"I don't want this Jean to know too much. Let him talk discreetly with his wife," said Jenks, as he pocketed the picture. "Don't let him excite, or alarm his wife; I need time!"

Yes! He needed time for an examination of her rooms,—a burglary of her effects; then, if proof were found, three to six weeks for an extradition. In the meantime, she must be lulled to rest. "The blow must not fall till I can hold her! By Jove! this Brayton may be able to help me! We will see! I must win over Victorine, and carefully examine the singer's rooms, luring her out some way; but how?"

Victorine, watching her beautiful mistress, pondered over her husband's visit, late in the night. "Bah! I can handle Jean as I wish!" and she snapped her fingers at an imaginery husband. "The money! I can make Jean give me half! Monsieur le Count Stahrenstein, I must handle myself!" The next morning Victorine, who had now resolved on her course, demurely glided into the breakfast room, where Stahrenstein, cursing his disastrous revenge of the night before (wherein Jenks had, by his confederate's aid, despoiled him once more), was in gown and slippers.

"I have some very important news, Monsieur le Comte!" said the woman.

"Well!" gruffly said Stahrenstein; he thought of the motto, "Unlucky at cards, lucky at love!' The woman dropped her eyes, and hesitated: "I should lose my place—and—and—"

"Ah! I see!" said the Count, drily. "Out with it! Tell me all!" as he crammed her hand full of notes. Victorine told him frankly of the search, and her husband's conferences.

"Good!" the Austrian chuckled. "Now! Keep your eyes open! Tell me all instantly. Don't lose your mistress from sight for a moment! I will see that you are handsomely rewarded!" As the woman left, he rang for his valet. "Dress me at once! Josef!" he commanded. In his self-commune, he mused on the mystery. "I'll have Josef watch them both!"

On his return from the theatre, Josef reported that two men were shadowing Victorine and the Diva. One had followed them on an evening ride in the dusk! "There's the other!" said the spy, as he drew the curtain, indicating a loiterer opposite.

"Shall I lose, or win, her by this intrigue? I must make Victorine frighten her!" He slept the sleep of the just, as men in his vicious pursuits usually do; notwithstanding the Sunday School books. As he closed his burning eyes, the picture of the beautiful Diva danced before them! "She shall be mine!" he swore.

In a private room at the Cercle des Etranges, Jenks and "Alfred Brayton" lingered late. The Californian for once wooed not the Goddess of Fortune and lesser knights lingered around the green cloth. Stahrenstein was recruiting his battalions.

When the whole case had been frankly discussed, up to the arrival of Brayton in Paris, Jenks calmly lit a fresh cigar, and gazed at Alfred Brayton.

"See here, Brayton! you are a superior man! What is your real motive for following up this woman? Who pays you?"

"That I cannot tell you, but I have sworn to follow her to the death!" His voice had a ring of sincerity.

Jenks extended his hand. "Will you swear to help me find her, and aid me?"

"I will join you in the chase!" the young man solemnly sai...

"Is that the woman you seek?" said Jenks, suddenly thrusting the photograph of Irene Hope under his eyes.

The Virginian turned ghastly pale, but he took the picture with a firm hand, and said: "The very one!" The gambler fixed a Parthian glance on him.

"Then I have her located here!"

"Where?" cried Seaton, springing up.

"Softly," cried Jenks. "I have two men watching her night and day! I will do nothing to annoy her now. I will have to wait four or six weeks for extradition papers, but before that, I must have her rooms quietly examined!" And Jenks, relying on Inspector Walling's references, and Orton's letters, gleefully told Seaton how he proposed ultimately to bribe Victorine to cautiously examine the whole belongings of the hidden beauty.

"It's often done in Paris!" Jenks said, "but I don't wish to put myself in the power of any underlings. They must give the warning and this smart woman, (if guilty), would soon be far away."—"Che va piano, va sano," said Seaton, his voice sounding hollow. Before they parted, Jenks had given Seaton the address, and a rendezvous for next morning at eight. "I will have the reports from my watchers, then. She might recognize me; although she only saw me once. You, she has never seen."

Beverly Seaton groaned in spirit, as he walked home to his hotel. He wrestled with his sorrow. "I must stay with this avenging fiend on her track. I must be familiar with his every thought! Yet how can I warn her if he meditates sudden action? Shall I approach her boldly? Can this black-haired western beauty be my lost sister? Her voice! Her voice! If I could only hear it! Can I trust a negro's memory? For time has torn my girl-sister from my heart." Seaton tossed uneasily on his pillow. Morning, gray and murky, dawned on Paris. Beverly Seaton, hollow-eyed, joined the immutable Jenks.

'Thanks! No!" said he, declining any refreshment. "And you news?" His voice trembled.

"It is our woman!" Jenks sternly said. "One of my men has sounded the driver, who took them to the Bois. He showed him the picture. The driver laughed, as he handed it back. "Right you are!" said he, as he pocketed his blood money. 'But the lady is now a beautiful blonde. Ca se fait souvent ici en Paris.'"

Seaton swallowed a half glass of brandy. "A beautiful blonde! Then I must see her at once! The voice! I will force my way in, if necessary, and solve the riddle," he mentally concluded.

"What are you thinking over, Brayton?" said Jenks.

"I will take a coupe and familiarize myself with the place, and come back and meet you at noon; then we will agree on a plan of action."

While Seaton, with the curtains drawn, drove to the Avenue de Jena, Victorine was noiselessly arranging the morning coffee of the Hidden Prima Donna. Escaping for a few moments, she met Josef on the stair below.

"I must see the Count at once!" he grinned, and returning, showed in. Stahrenstein was seated in an easy chair.

"Well! be brief!" he said.

"We are watched, betrayed, lost!" the woman faltered.

"Why so?" said the Count, eagerly.

"I noticed two men prowling around, and when I went to the shops this morning, I was followed! I have not told my unsuspecting mistress!" The woman was greatly agitated "They are even now on guard!"

"Don't inform her till I tell you to. I knew it! I have had Josef watch all day yesterday. Now, I have to go to the Opera Ball to-night; I never miss it; but I will be here up to ten o'clock. If there is any danger, come down here to me. I can conceal and protect your mistress, if necessary. Josef will be on watch all day. Leave me now; I must dress."

Victorine, returning to her apartments, busied herself with the morning toilet of the beauty, whose now natural golden hair framed an exquisite face. "Ciel! what a Venus!" murmured the maid, as Irene Gordon leisurely finished her toilet.

"Is it a pleasant day, Victorine?" said "Mees Isabel," carelessly looking out of the front windows. Suddenly she froze, as if rooted to the spot in horror.

"My God! Mademoiselle, what is the matter?" cried the frightened traitress as Irene sank trembling in a chair. For five minutes, sobs and convulsive shudders shook the cowering woman's frame.

"Bring me a glass of wine! quick! I feel suddenly ill. Let the door be locked! Ah! it is lesson day! I cannot sing to-day! I will see no one!"

Victorine hastened back with the wine. "I must get you a cordial! You are faint! Will you have a doctor?"

"No! No! No one!" Irene almost screamed.

Victorine stook aghast. "Shall I tell her? Does she know? I must see the Count!" She schemed to gain a few moments.

"I must get you a cordial! I insist! I am afraid to take the responsibility! Will Mademoiselle permit me? I know what to get!"

"Don't remain long away, Victorine; I wish you to pack up my luggage! I am going away to the country for a few days."

"Do I go with you, Mademoiselle?" the spy asked, with trembling voice.

"I will tell you when you return! Go!" said Irene.

As the woman closed the door, Irene dropped the curtains. Throwing herself back in a chair, she cried "Beverly Seaton! My brother! In Paris, and watching this house! Great God! My sin, my crime, has found me out! I cannot face him! I cannot stay here, to be dragged home to die! I must fly! Where? How? Anywhere! Switzerland first! I will leave this girl and some of my belongings! And yet, I must outwit her! She must not know! Beverly! Oh, God! I cannot face him! Has Gordon, too, found me out? This is a hell on earth!"

For in truth, Beverly Seaton, shaven, and unchanged in facial expression, was easily recognizable by the frantic woman whose heart was now beating like that of a stag at bay.

"Anywhere! Anywhere! Only not to meet him face to face." While Irene racked her brain for a plan of safely leaving Paris, she at once decided: "I must wait till evening! He may be still on watch! I'll take a late train, a few stations away, and then go on to the Swiss frontier to-morrow!"

Below her, in Stahrenstein's splendid rooms, the Count, his eyes aflame, was giving Victorine her orders. ("She is mine, mine at last, this proud beauty!" he thought, with bounding pulses.) "Victorine!" he said, "you shall never want, if you obey me now!" His mad thirst for the love of this mysterious Venus-like beauty, was whetted by stolen glimpses of her su-

Cause and Cure of Headache

The cause of headache as you know, is the stoppage of the circulation resulting in pressure on the delicate nerves of the head. In time nature will start the blood going again, but meanwhile we suffer and are unfit for duty.

Assisted by two ZUTOO Tablets, which by the way are as harmless as the soda they contain, nature will remove the pressure and stop the headache in twenty minutes. Why continue to suffer? Why be unfit?

It is really remarkable how many people now use ZUTOO to cure their headaches. Do you? If not, why not?

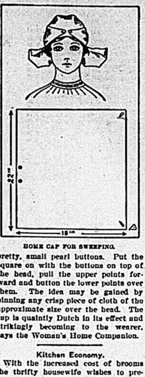
IT HELPS TOWARD NEATNESS

A Vollendam Sweeping Cap and How to Make It.

To make a very becoming and practical sweeping cap take a piece of crossbar lawn or swiss 18 by 22 inches and edge it with inexpensive valenciennes. In each lower corner of the lengthwise edge work a buttonhole and on the upper edge, about as far apart as one's eyes and about two inches from the edge of the lawn, sew pretty, small pearl buttons. Put the square on with the buttons on top of the head, pull the upper points forward and button the lower points over them. The idea may be gained by pinning any crisp piece of cloth of the approximate size over the head. The cap is quaintly Dutch in its effect and strikingly becoming to the wearer, says the Woman's Home Companion.



HOME CAP FOR SWEEPING.

Kitchen Economy.

With the increased cost of brooms the thrifty housewife wishes to preserve their usefulness as long as possible. Soak a new broom for several minutes in hot suds. This not only toughens, but tightens, the broom wisps. Then hang it up to dry. A broom when not in use should always be hung up. Cut a groove around the handle and tie a cord around it, leaving a loop for hanging, or use one of the patent fasteners which screw to a door. These may be bought for a few cents. The soaking process should be repeated every fortnight.

Another housewife washes her brooms in cold soap water, rinses thoroughly in cold water, snaps off all moisture possible and, pressing the corns into shape, places them where they will dry slowly. All matting will also last longer when occasionally wiped up with salt and water.

First, hang up clothes by the thicker part, waist or neck band, etc., because if hung by the thinner part the water would run into the thick part, lodge there and take longer to dry; second, hang up everything wrong side out, so that any accidental soiling will not do so much damage as if it appeared on the right side.

Many people have been annoyed at finding their irons quite rusty after they have been put away a few days. The way to prevent this happening is before you put them away to rub a little warm grease over them and then wrap them up in brown paper. When you take them out to use dip them into hot water that has had a small piece of soda dissolved in it, rubbing and then putting them to heat in the usual way. When they are ready to be used on the ironing board have a piece of brown paper with a little powdered bath brick on it and rub the surface of your iron with this. It seems rather a lengthy process, but it really does not take long to do, and housewives will be rewarded for the trouble they have taken by finding the irons delightfully smooth and easy to use, and when they are like this the ironing can be done twice as quickly.

The Danger of Overeating.

The lectures on the danger of overeating to which the public has been treated of late years have not only grown a trifle wearisome, but are also a trifle dangerous. No doubt many idle and well to do people do eat too much, but there are larger numbers of people also who systematically undereat. Especially is this true of women. There are lonely women to whom "something on a tray" seems less desolate than a properly spread meal to which they have to sit down alone. There are vain ones, too, not a few, who dread stoutness above everything else, and there are poor ones who hate to spend money on food when they want other things—hats, gloves, books or theater tickets—so much more. To all these various members of the starving brigade any reference to the danger of overeating is an incitement to continuance in evildoing.

To Keep Centerpieces.

A large tube or roll of art cardboard or heavy paper covered with linen and embroidered—or, rather, covered with linen that has been embroidered—will keep centerpieces and like embroideries from showing the wrinkles of careless use. Book cloth lines this tube, and the whole is fastened and bound with inch wide satin ribbon, which ends in strings, wherewith to fasten the tube after rolling. Place a sheet of blue tissue paper between each two pieces after laying them within. This will keep their color from turning yellow if they are laid away for any considerable length of time.

When boiling milk for a custard powder, sprinkle the bottom of the saucepan with sugar; this dissolves and forms a layer, and so prevents the milk from burning, no matter how long it boils. It applies to any sweetened milk.

WHY DON'T YOU TRY IT?

Wood Block Printing For Your Home Decorations.

HOW THE WORK IS DONE.

Printing Is Placed on Right Side of the Fabric—As to the Paints, Any of the Dyes on the Market May Be Used Artists' Tube Paint Preferred.

Wood block printing is exactly what its name implies—printing from a block of wood. The block may be square or rectangular. For a round block a spool may be utilized. Some blocks are carved by hand into attractive designs. A child's set of ordinary building blocks will give any number of shapes which can be combined into good patterns, writes a contributor in the Woman's Home Companion. There are only two things to bear in mind about the block. For blocks three inches in length or over the thickness should be at least one inch, while smaller blocks need be no thicker than five-eighths of an inch. That is one thing to remember. The other is that the block must be of close grained hard wood. Gum wood is especially good for general work, but pine must be avoided as too soft.

The printing side of the block must be thoroughly sandpapered to insure a smooth surface and then painted thoroughly with white shellac to prevent the wood from absorbing too much paint.

As to the paints, ordinary house paint thinned with turpentine to the consistency of cream gives good results. Any of the dyes on the market may be used, but probably the most satisfactory colors are made from artists' tube paints, mixed with two-thirds turpentine and one-third japan drier to form a creamy liquid.

DINING ROOM CURTAINS MADE OF WHITE CHEESECLOTH, HEMSTITCHED AND PRINTED IN DULL GRAY GREEN.

Now, this is the method of the work: Prepare the paint according to the directions given above and apply to the sandpapered and shellacked block, putting the paint on the block with a brush, evenly and thick enough so that the wood does not show through, but not so thick that it will ooze over the edges. The printing is done on the right side of the fabric. Place the goods on a well padded board—an ironing board is fine—and directly under the part which is to receive the design put a large white blotter. Then, taking the block in your left hand, apply it, painted side down, to the proper place on the goods and hold it in place with your fingers to prevent it from slipping while you hit the upper side several sharp blows with a wooden mallet. An old fashioned wooden potato masher will serve in place of the mallet. Distribute the blows over the surface of the block so that all parts will receive the same amount of pressure. A very little experimenting of various odds and ends of cloth and linen will soon tell you just how much force you need to apply. After hammering the block as described lift it up and there will be the design printed on the material.

Showering a Bride.

Instead of the telltale rice or sticky confetti, friends of the summer bride should shower her with real rose petals. These should be gathered in quantities the day of the wedding.

They may be passed on large trays, or if the party that remains to see the bride go off is small supply a number of small baskets, each one tied with a bow of white ribbon and filled with pink and white rose petals.

Where it is hard to get enough real roses the supply can be increased by making petals of tissue paper. Cut them into shape and curl with dull edge of knife. If baskets are not used the petals can be tied into square packages with white tissue paper and white ribbon.

A Hemming Party.

A bride to be is going to give a hemming party soon. She called her best girl friends over the telephone and invited them to pass an afternoon on her porch and incidentally remarked: "Everybody is to bring her thimble. The hostess will provide needles, thread and hemming." And in the meantime she has bought material for her kitchen towels, and the girls will have the privilege of hemming them, and each girl may put her own initials in the corner if she chooses. This is a clever idea and one which the guests will doubtless enjoy.

Electrical signs may be automatically turned on and off at night by inserting in the street lighting circuits solenoids to operate switches in the sign circuits when the current in the former is turned on or off.

DESSERTS GIRLS CAN MAKE.

During Vacation Time Try Some of These Recipes.

For a good dessert make a rich, soft chocolate cornstarch and flavor further with a tablespoonful or two of sherry. Chill in the ice chest, serve in tall, cone shaped glasses with whipped cream on each. Decorate the individual portions with halves of blanched almonds, candied cherries and tiny bits of angelica.

A quick dainty to whip up in the chafing dish is toasted cheese sandwiches, which are not widely known. Wheaten bread is used for these. Cut it in rather thick slices and trim off the crusts.

Between each two slices put a thick slice of cheese. Season if liked with salt and paprika. Melt in the blazer a tablespoonful of butter, and when it reaches bubbling point lay in as many sandwiches as the dish will hold at one time conveniently. There must be room to turn them. Have the hot plates ready near by. When the bread is brown on one side turn and brown on the other. By this time the cheese will be melted between them and the sandwiches are ready to be enjoyed.

A good way to make use of canned fruit while this remains necessarily one of the resources of the home caterer is in combination with rice, as follows:

Wash clean one cupful of rice and cook it in a little milk instead of water, using a double boiler. Dissolve in cold water a tablespoonful of gelatin, and beat this into the rice while the latter is still on the fire, the milk being practically absorbed. Add four or five tablespoonfuls of sugar to taste, set it to cool, and when cool add a scant half pint or less of whipped cream, stiffly beaten, and mold it. Drain away most of the juice of a can of peaches, and to what remains add sugar to form a sirup. Simmer until the fruit is tender and until the liquor has disappeared. Chill the fruit pleasantly, and group the halves around the rice mold when this is turned out on the platter.

Many good puddings are possible with the popular breakfast foods. It is a suggestion that may be taken up when more elaborate ideas fail. Here is a formula by which to prepare a wheaten cereal in dessert form: Cook the cereal in milk instead of water and sweeten to taste. Mold in cups and serve with chocolate custard sauce, decorated with candied cherries and bits of angelica.

The fruit salad combination usually served with French dressing is tasty by way of a change with "white mayonnaise." A nice combination for it are cubes of ripe pineapple, Malaga grapes, a few English walnut or pecan meats, some candied cherries, some carefully seeded and cut up oranges or part oranges and part shaddock. Mix this combination with a little mayonnaise, with lemon juice instead of vinegar, and just before combining it with the fruit add half the amount of stiffly whipped cream.

Starchmaking.

To make starch allow one-half pint of cold water and one quart of boiling water to every two tablespoonfuls of starch. Put the starch in a large saucepan and pour on the cold water, stirring all the while with a spoon to remove all lumps. When the mixture is smooth place the pan on the hot stove and pour boiling hot water over the starch, continuing the stirring. If made properly the starch will thicken immediately. It very often happens that the water is not at boiling point when being poured on the starch, and in this case it will not thicken and must therefore be emptied into a clean vessel and placed on the fire to boil. When smooth remove from the stove and strain. Set aside to cool, taking care that it is covered so that a skin will not form over the top. To give a shiny and smooth appearance to the linen when ironed stir a piece of wax candle three or four times in the starch. This will also prevent the iron from sticking.

Do You Know That—

A tablespoonful of gelatin dissolved in a tablespoonful of hot water and added to two cupfuls of thin cream will make it whip successfully?

That rind from a strip of bacon or salt pork is one of the handiest things with which to grease griddles and pans?

That the rubber part of a clothes wringer will last much longer if the screws which hold the rollers are loosened before the wringer is put away?

That half a lemon put in the cake box will keep the cake from drying?

A Delicious Cake.

Beat one cup of butter to a cream and gradually beat in three cups of sugar, says the Boston Cooking School Magazine. Sift together, three times, four cupfuls of sifted pastry flour and three rounding teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Add one cup of milk to the butter and sugar, alternately, with the flour mixture; lastly, beat in the whites of one dozen eggs, beaten dry. Bake in layers and put together with a boiled frosting. One half the recipe may be baked in two layer cake pans, about 11 by 17 inches. The full recipe makes a very large cake. The cake is of very delicate texture. Decorate the icing with the split halves of almonds and raisins.

SUPERSTITIONS OF THE SEA.

Origin of Most of Them Is Wrapped In Deep Mystery.

While most sailormen will stoutly deny that they hold superstitions and that the occult has no stronger hold on them than on land men, the popular belief is to the contrary. It is likely that the seaman's isolation from outside influences and the weeks and months spent afloat with only his mates for company served to foster superstitious notions in the days of sailing vessels, while the general spread of knowledge works but slowly in these occult matters, concerning which Jack is peculiarly unreasoning.

"The Finn is the most superstitious of all sailors," according to a writer in The London Globe. "There are many of this race who still believe in the ominous portent of the phantom ship, the folly of starting a voyage on a Friday (a notion by no means confined to seafaring men), the low burning blue lights which are ghost spirits hovering near to give warning of approaching disaster, and many other things, all of which,

"Fill the sailor's mind with murmurings,

And speak to him of wrecks.

"A story is told of a brigantine which numbered several extremely superstitious men among her crew. One night when there was no moon and a slight ground swell was running, the watch, who happened to be the most superstitious of them all, heard an unearthly wailing coming apparently from the very surface of the sea. The mate and the helmsman also heard it, but the former lacked imagination and although he was certainly interested, he nearly blew the watch's head off when he ventured to suggests mermaids. The helmsman did not feel quite happy, but he had to stick to the wheel. The watch was pale with terror, but he kept silence owing to the mate's complimentary references to his courage and abilities. Slowly the sound began to move along the ship's side, becoming more and more agonized as it approached. This annoyed the mate, and going to the side of the vessel he waited until he had located the sound and then emptied a bucket of water over the rail. There was a gasp, and then dead silence, and nothing more was heard that night.

"When the watch went off duty he, of course, gave a detailed and lurid account of the incident to his shipmates, who listened, as he thought in awed silence, and then called on one of the audience for his version of the matter. This man, a Tynesider, who dearly loved a joke and had no respect at all for hoary superstitions, had conspired with his fellows to play a trick on the watch. On the night in question he had crept over the bows without a sound, carrying with him the ship's cat, secured in a bag. Crouching under the stays, the joker let the cat's head out of the bag, which he tied round the animal's neck so that it could not escape. He then applied his teeth to the unfortunate animal's tail! Everybody knows the fearsome sounds an angry cat is capable of producing, and those to which a cat whose tail is being bitten gives vent are among the most hair-raising. The sound was more or less regulated by squeezing the luckless beast's body. The mate's bucket of water was an unwelcome as unexpected, and caused the Tynesider to beat a hurried retreat.

"Not only is the origin of many sea superstitions 'wrapt in mystery,' but also any logical explanation of cause and effect. It would puzzle any one to say why it should be unlucky for the ship's boy to whistle on the weather bow, except that it is generally unpleasant from a music lover's point of view for a boy to whistle on any bow at all. Nor would it be easy to explain why a sneeze to starboard pressages disaster, and why should the squeaking of a pig at night be considered an evil omen? At the mere sight of an overturned hatch many a seaman will declare that another ship has just gone to the bottom, and he will say the same should the salt box or the cracker barge' (anglice) biscuit box be upset."

Fire From Friction.

The Australian bushman uses a method of his own to procure a light. First he selects two pieces of light wood, each about a foot long, from the cork tree or black fig tree. One, a flat piece, he lays on the ground amid a pile of dry leaves. Upon this strip of wood he kneels in order to hold down the ends. Then he rolls the other pointed stick between the palms of his hands so that it bores a hole into the flat strip of wood. This makes fine wood dust, which catches on fire, sending its sparks among the dry leaves. By blowing upon the tiny light the bushman soon has a fire, which he feeds with more leaves.

Blacks Oppose Change.

Lord Gladstone held his first native Indaba at Gaberones recently when he received several native chiefs. The chiefs said they wished to remain as they were, and did not desire the change that would be involved by the inclusion of Bechunanaland in the Union. The Governor-General intimated that it was his keen desire to safeguard the right granted by Queen Victoria. If any change came, they would have no reason to fear for the continuance of just administration, and he, therefore, counselled them to enjoy their rights without agitation.

A Seditious Poet.

One of the editors of the Nationalist newspaper El Alam has published at Cairo a book of poems said to contain seditious matter, eulogizing the two assassins Dhingra and Wardani, vilifying the murdered Premier Boutros Pasha, denouncing the British occupation, and threatening the Khedive. Ferid Bey, leader of the Nationalist party, wrote a preface recommending the book. The book has been confiscated, and the author of the poems has suddenly disappeared from the ken of the authorities.

South Africa's First Peer.

The first peer to be created since the declaration of the federation of South Africa is Sir John Henry de Villiers, who now becomes Baron de Villiers. He, as Chief Justice of Cape Colony, had the historic task of administering the oath of office of Viscount Gladstone, the first Governor-General of South Africa. Previously he held the post of Attorney-General of Cape Colony for thirty-seven years with satisfaction to Boer and Briton alike. It was largely due to his efforts, as well as to those of General Louis Botha, that South African federation was achieved. He is of Huguenot-Boer descent, and was born at the Cape in 1842. At the age of twenty-three he was called to the Bar, and he became Attorney-General of the colony in 1874. He held the post continuously until his recent elevation to the bench as Chief Justice of the new federation. He has twice visited Canada. In 1894 he took part in the first Intercolonial Conference, which was held in Toronto, as representative of Cape Colony. In 1908 he was present at the Quebec Tercentenary Celebration as representative of South Africa.

Owing to the absence of the pastor, Mr. Westover, local preacher, spoke very nicely from the text, "This one thing I do." The deceased was in his 76th year, and had been ill for a number of years, but bore his sufferings with marked Christian fortitude. He was a Methodist in religion, having been converted some seventeen years ago, and had lived a devout Christian life ever since. The remains were interred at White's Church burial ground.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Spafford, Mrs. F. A. Spafford and Mrs. F. Herman attended the Toronto Exhibition.

Mr. A. S. White also was at Toronto during the Exhibition.

Mr. David McGowan returned home from Belleville Hospital on Sunday. His condition remains unchanged, and there are slight hopes for his recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Judson Kelley were at the Toronto Exhibition.

Mr. Ritchie Ketcheson is attending Albert College.

Mr. J. W. Young leaves to-morrow for Adrian, Mich., to spend a few days with his sister, Mrs. B. Morden.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Yateman took in the Toronto Exhibition.

Mr. and Mrs. Clement French and son Garnet, of Belleville, are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kelley.

Rally day service will be conducted by all the Sunday Schools on Bayside circuit on Sunday, Sept. 17th, the Rev. Mr. Kemp, of Cannifton, officiating.

WHERE THE WHEAT GOES

ELABORATE MACHINERY THT RECEIVES IT AT LONDON.

Strange Barge Interviews the Wheat Laden Vessels on Their Arrival and by Means of Ingenious Devices Relieves Them of Their Burden—All the Old System of Lightening Is Done Away With.

Grain flows in a vast storm from Canada to London.

How is it handled on its arrival there?

Five years ago there was towed across the Thames from Milwall to the Surrey Commercial Docks a curious vessel, rather larger than a Thames sailing-barge; the hull low in the water, a great square iron tank at both ends; above her iron decks were no masts and spars, neither had she at all the appearance of an ordinary steamship. But instead two enormous towers and three funnels or chimneys reared themselves high into the air.

All other craft drew aside, as slowly and making heavy weather of the running tide, this strangest of all vessels passed from bank to bank and made its first and only voyage in safety.

This was the new pneumatic elevator for grain built by the East Ferry Engineering Works. Arrived in the Surrey Docks, she caused a feeling almost of consternation and alarm, so peculiar was her appearance.

Captains of liners, masters of sailing ships, mates who had visited every clime—none in any port had seen a vessel such as this, even the fo'c'stle wit for once was silenced. Foreign sailors were given to understand this was the latest torpedo-boat, for, as the engineer said, "You can see all the tubes!"

But very soon speculations were set at rest, as the leviathan was towed alongside one of the grain steamers in dock. Somewhere from the upper part of each tower four six-inch tubes of metal or armadillo hose-pipe were let down into the grain in the steamer's hold, barges were brought up to each side of the elevator at the base of each tower—some with sacks are standing little groups of men assembled on platforms expectant just under the six shoots projecting overhead—smoke was seen to be issuing from the taller and blacker of the three chimneys; and then, a low, deep, regular sound was heard—"Heujh! heujh! heujh!"—like the panting of some enormous animal. With each breath from the top of the other two chimneys came filmly rings, much as rings of smoke are blown by a cigarette-smoker—the four great air-suction cylinders in the hold of the elevator had been set at work. A few seconds later, through one of the six shoots over the heads of the little group of dockers, swish! came the grain, 248lb., equivalent to a sack of four bushels of wheat, weighed and checked automatically up in the tower. "Swish! swish!" as one shot after another delivered the grain, either to be shot in bulk into the barge below or put into a sack and then tumbled overboard.

The elevator was designed to deal with 150 tons of grain an hour, but, on her trial, 211 tons of grain passed through the weighing-machines in one hour. Yet still another surprise was in store. Two tanks, traveling on rails, had lately been put on a gallery high up on the face of an adjacent warehouse, fifty or sixty feet above the ground. None of the onlookers quite knew what these tanks had been placed there for, or why the little gallery with its railway had been built. These tanks were connected by two stouter tubes to points just under the centres of each tower.

No men clustered on the little platforms and the cornshoots were unhooked. No barges moored themselves against the elevator's sides. The steam in the boilers down in the hold of the elevator was under full pressure, two small wheels on the exhaust-pipe of the air-cylinders were turned and the machine for suction again set in motion. No filmy rings now appeared at the top of the two chimneys—what was happening?

The grain, sucked up out of the ship, was being blown, by the exhaust air from the cylinders, up the two pipes into the receiving tanks and shot into the warehouse—this at the rate of 160 tons an hour. So fast did the elevators blow the grain that it was found impossible to deal with it in any ordinary warehouse.

The cost of such an elevator is about $115,000, and a crew of twelve men is required. The hull, towers, and vessel generally are made of steel plates, and the following are the principal measurements: Length of hull, 122 feet; breadth, 27 feet; depth, 14 feet 6 inches; draught, 11 feet; height above water-line, 62 feet; displacement, 1,000 tons. The suction power is 5lb. to the inch, and the blowing power 10lb.

Below deck are four air-cylinders, worked by a cross compound surface condensing steam-engine, working up to 600 h.p.; 350 h.p. is sufficient for suction only.

The air-cylinders exhaust the air from the canisters. Air then strives to rush up these pipes, whose ends are down in the hold of the vessel—this, in order to fill the vacuum caused in the canisters. But as the ends of the tubes are in the grain, that grain also gets drawn up with the air.

Arrived in the canisters, the grain is shot downwards by means of half-slieves, placed over the entrances of the tubes inside the canisters, while the air, is now free of the grain, rushes out through the pipe at the top of each canister, down through the cylinder and out at the exhausts. The grain meanwhile passes through the air-locks, which are simply air-tight turnstiles revolving at a maximum rate of twenty-two revolutions per minute.

A wood graining machine invented by two Pennsylvanians consists of an endless rubber band, on which is a raised design, held in contact with a roller fed from a paint or varnish fountain.

"ROBIN ADAIR."

Famous Love Song Had Its Original In Eighteenth Century.

"Robin Adair" is one of those old-fashioned love songs which has lived for more than a century, and has retained its popularity probably more by reason of its pretty and plaintive melody than the words written by Lady Caroline Keppell. It is old-fashioned, for it must be confessed that a lady of to-day would scarcely lay aside her modesty to the extent that did Lady Keppell, to tell Robin how much she was enamored of him. In spite of what may be the feeling of a young woman in love at present, she would hardly dare to address the object of her affection in such endearing terms and then publish that confession to the world. She affirms that the "town was dull without him," the "assembly stupid," and that she can "ne'er forget him"; she prayed for him, tried to make him jealous by confessing that "many had made love to her," and ended by begging him to "come to her heart again."

It was nearly a century and a half ago since there lived in Dublin a young Irishman named Robin Adair. At the time he was studying for the medical profession in that city, and, getting into some sort of trouble, the exact nature of which is not clear, he was compelled to leave the city. He started for London, but on arriving at Holyhead he found that his purse would not pay for the journey by coach, and so he set off on foot. He had not gone far when he came upon an overturned carriage, the owner of which happened to be a well-known lady of fashion.

The lady had received some slight injury, and our medical student proceeded to exercise his art in having her set right. Presently the journey was resumed. Robin having a place in the carriage bound for London as that happened to be the lady's destination as well as that of Adair. Arriving at the metropolis, Robin found himself in the possession of a check for a hundred guineas and an invitation to visit his fellow-traveler as often as he pleased. With the money placed at his disposal, he completed his medical studies, and soon acquired an excellent practice.

One night Robin was at a dance given by his benefactress, where he met Lady Caroline Keppell, second daughter of the Earl of Albemarle. On both sides it was a case of love at first sight; but its course was naturally far from smooth. On the part of the lady's family the idea of such a mesalliance was not to be thought of, and every means was taken to disillusionize her. She came home, and a residence at Bath was tried. It was all to no purpose.

What's this dull town to me?
Robin's not near.

At last the union was reluctantly consented to, and in The Grand Magazine of Universal Intelligence those who are interested may to-day read the following chronicle of the event:—

"February 22nd, 1758.

"Robin Adair, Esq., to the Right Hon. the Lady Caroline Keppell."

Shortly after the marriage Adair was made Inspector-General of Military Hospitals, and later on, the King having taken a fancy to him, he was appointed Royal Surgeon-General and Surgeon of Chelsea Hospital. Adair lived until 1790, but Lady Caroline died many years before in giving birth to her third child. A son of the union, the Right Hon. Sir Robert Adair, died in 1855.

The tune to which "Robin Adair" has always been sung is of Irish origin, having been composed by Gerald O'Daly, one of the native harpers, and first associated with a song entitled "Eileen Aroon." Its popularity in England dates from the second half of the eighteeth century, about which time it was much sung by Tenducci, the Italian vocalist.

Origin of the Safety-Pin.

An historian of invention tells us that to the wails of a long-suffering infant we owe the boon of the safety-pin. Here is the story: A little boy, named Harrison, an English blacksmith's son, had to look after his baby brother. The baby often cried, and its tears were usually traced to pin punctures. The boy nurse tried a long time to bend the pins in such a form that they could be used with safety to his brother's flesh. In this he failed; but his father, the blacksmith, perceiving the utility of the idea that the lad had been at work on, took it up on his own account and eventually turned out the safety-pin that is in use to-day all over the world. Whether the safety-pin would have still remained in oblivion but for the tormenting of one little English baby no one knows, of course.

Will Need Forbearance.

Speaking at Cape Town recently, Mr. Malan, South Africa's Minister of Education, said that the smooth-working of the Union required from everyone restraint and toleration. Otherwise they would be laying up for themselves not union, but a hell. The two great principles which must be observed, were—firstly, the equality of the two predominant races, and the equality of their languages; and, secondly, the recognition of the Union as an integral part of the Empire. In that spirit the Government would work.

The Other Half.

A man owes 4 cents. He pays 2 cents one day, 1 cent the next, one-half cent the next, and so on, one-half each day of the debt. Now although on the fourth day he only owes owes one-quarter of a cent, if he should be endued with the gift of immortality and he should continue to pay the debt at the same ratio, he could never pay all of it. There would always remain that half of the former day's payment, provided he had counters small enough to make the payments.

The official estimate of the population of New South Wales at the end of March was 1,655,830.

ELDORADO.

The anniversary services held last Sabbath in connection with Eldorado Methodist Church resulted in unqualified success. By special request of the Trustee Board, the pastor, Rev. G. E. Ross, took charge of the services and asked the people for $125, which was responded to by a thank offering of $165. The church was crowded at all the meetings. The Sunday School rally, held in the afternoon, was ably addressed by Mr. Sherwin, of Crookston, and Mr. Sharpe, of West Huntingdon, while Mrs. Ross conducted a splendid musical program. The song service, conducted by the pastor, and most heartily seconded by the choir, drew a very large congregation in the evening.

The churches on this circuit are filled to their utmost capacity each Sabbath, while ordinary congregations are found in the mid-week prayer meetings. The Board has increased their pastors salary by $150, and are furnishing and beautifying the already large and splendid parsonage. God is surely with us here.

The Manifestations Of Eye-Strain

of peripheral irritation. Headache is by far the commonest symptom of eye-strain. So common is it, indeed, that no physician should attempt to treat a patient for constantly recurring headaches unless the existence of eye-strain has been eliminated by a proper correction.

The position and character of the headache form no guide to the cause, for ocular headache may be of any possible variety. It may simply amount to a slight aching over the eyes or at the back of the orbit. It may be a frontal headache. Sometimes it originates and remains limited as a vertical or occipital pain, or it may originate in the brow and pass to the vertex and occiput and pass down the spine. It may be unilateral, as a typical hemicrania, and may be indistinguishable from a true megrim attack.

At The Belleville Fair.

TRENTON HORSE WINS IN CLASS B.—G. T. R. VICTORIOUS IN THE BASEBALL MATCH—AN INTERESTING DISPLAY IN THE MAIN BUILDING.

The promoters of the Belleville Fair have certainly one thing, and that most important, in their favor, namely, ideal weather. Yesterday afternoon the weather was all that could have been desired, and in consequence the attendance was good. During the forenoon exhibits were being placed in position and finishing touches being given to the spaces occupied in the main building by merchants and others. By noon everything was in apple pie order. In the afternoon the judges were busy making their awards in several classes, and in some cases their task was by no means an enviable one owing to the number of entries and quality of the articles exhibited. The concensus of opinion is that the Fair is one of the best ever held in the city. A visit to the several departments during the afternoon showed the same to be all well filled up.

In horses there is a decided improvement over previous years, both in numbers and breed. At the cattle sheds Holsteins hold the fort, and Aryshires next. There is also shown a fine class of grade cattle. Oxford Downs head the list in sheep. In swine the exhibit is good. Berkshires, Hampshires and Yorkshires are about evenly divided. Grains and roots remain the same fruits and flowers are larger, and vegetables are well up, considering that the Fair is earlier than ever before. The dairy display, consisting of cheese and butter, is fine, presenting a tempting appearance. A number of samples of home-made bread is to be seen. The exhibit of poultry is exceptionally large.

In the main building, the display made by the ladies of fine art and domestic manufactures fills a large space being of exceptional quality and far in excess of former years.

The events yesterday afternoon were carried out with neatness and despatch, and the entertainment provided was one that held the close attention of the spectators. Naturally the greatest interest was centered in the speed events, of which there were two, namely, Class B., or a 2.25 trot or pace of mile heats, and double roadsters. The former was the more interesting.

At a few minutes after two o'clock Mr. Carnew, starter of the speeding events, called out the horses for the Class B. event, and no less than seven responded, being as follows: Jimmy Direct, owned by J. Teal, Trenton; Helmore, owned by W. J. Orr, Belleville; Edward the King, owned by Geo. Powell, Belleville; Guy M., owned by J. Brintnell, Belleville; Ned Wilkes, owned by W. Fanning, Lindsay; Windsor Belle, owned by L. C. Ketcheson, Belleville, and Brino V., owned by J. A. Vassaw, Trenton. The event was mile heats, best 3 in 5.

In the first heat Jimmy Direct finished seventh owing to a rather bad start, but in the next three succeeding heats he was the first horse to pass under the wire, winning the race. After the second heat Windsor Belle was withdrawn, and after the third heat Guy M. and Brino V. dropped out. The summary in this event was as follows:

1. Jimmy Direct, J. Teal, Trenton	7	1	1	1
2. Helmore, W. J. Orr, Belleville	1	4	5	4
3. Edward the King, G. Powell, Belleville	2	2	2	2
4. Ned Wilkes, W. Fanning, Lindsay	4	3	3	3
Windsor Belle, L. C. Ketcheson, Belleville	5	5	*
Guy M., J. Brintnell, Belleville	3	6	4	*
Brino V., J. A. Vassaw, Trenton	6	7	6	*

—*Withdrawn.

As announced by the starter before the event was started, no time was given out. The judges were Messrs. S. Curry, J. Caldwell and J. A. Mackie.

TEAM ROADSTERS.

Four teams were entered for this event, and two half mile heats were given. Mr. W. Carter, of Sidney, captured first money; Mr. A. C. Dafoe, of Foxboro, second; Ald. Sills, of Belleville, third, and W. Collins, of Thurlow, fourth.

Between the heats, on an elevated platform in front of the grand stand, special attractions of an entertaining nature were given, consisting of acrobatic feats by the Malvern troupe of five people, and juggling, balancing, etc., by a troupe of seven Japanese. These were exceptionally clever in their various feats, winning loud applause from the spectators.

The I.O.O.F. Band was upon the grounds and rendered during the afternoon a programme which was highly appreciated. Mr. Bert Daniels, a member of the famous Kilties Band, who toured the world, was present and gave two cornet solos, which were of a high order. The I.O.O.F. Band played the accompaniments. His selections were much appreciated, judging by the loud applause he received.

BASEBALL MATCH.

An attractive feature during the afternoon was a baseball match between the G. T. R. and Park Nine teams, of the city, for a valuable silver cup. This proved to be the drawing card of the afternoon. The diamond had been especially prepared, and was in fine shape. By many it was thought the Park Nine team, which captured the city championship, would carry away the cup, but such was not the case. The G. T. R. team won by a score of 12 to 9, and it was certainly a good game. During the progress of the game some good plays were made by members of both teams. Sullivan pitched the entire game for the winners and had good control of the ball. Smith, for the Park Nine, pitched seven innings, and was relieved by Gerow for the last two. Mr. Cochrane was umpire and, as usual, performed his duties in a most satisfactory manner. The line-up of the teams was as follows:

G.T.R.	Park Nine
Campbell r.f.	McQuire, c.f.
W. Brown, s.s.	Thomas, r.f.
G. Brown, c.	Connell, 3b.
O'Neil, 1b.	Gerow, 1b.
Farrell, 2b.	Connolly, c.
Hagerman, 3b.	Reeves, 2b.
LeFleur, l.f.	Jones, l.f.
Johnson, c.f.	Brennon, s.s.
Sullivan, p.	Smith, p.

EVENING PERFORMANCE.

Despite the chilling atmosphere there was a good attendance upon the grounds in the evening. The buildings and grounds, by the aid of electric lights, were well lit up. The specialties presented pleased the spectators judging from the applause which greeted the various performers at the conclusion of their acts. The troupe of Japanese and the Malvern troupe of acrobats gave a good performance. The famous Clan Johnstone troupe, consisting of the celebrated Pipe-Major Albert Johnstone, Willie Grant and James Clarke, rendered selections on the bagpipes which pleased all. The latter two also gave a sword dance, Highland flings, Irish jig, Irish reel and the sailor's hornpipe. The I.O.O.F. Band was also in attendance, rendering a number of selections, which were well executed. Mr. Bert Daniels also gave two cornet solos, which were certainly of a high order.

WEDDING OF POPULAR YOUNG COUPLE IN ST. THOMAS' CHURCH THIS MORNING.

An event which had been looked forward to with considerable interest by many was culminated at St. Thomas' Church at 10 o'clock this morning. It was the marriage of Miss Anna Mabel Ackerill, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. D. H. Ackerill, of this city, and Mr. Eugene V. Illsey, of McTaggart, Sask., a former popular teller in the Standard Bank in this city. When the hour for the ceremony arrived the church was filled, principally with the fair sex. The interior of the sacred edifice looked very pretty, the decorations used for the occasion being palms, golden glow and asters. The ceremony was performed by the Rector, Rev. Rural Dean Beamish. The bride, who was conducted to the altar by her father, looked very pretty in a gown of ivory Duchess satin. She wore the traditional veil, trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaids were Misses Flossie Graham, of this city, and Jessie Newberry, of St. Louis. Their gowns were yellow crepe-de-chene, and they wore large black picture hats. Each carried a bouquet of red roses. Mrs. Rev. G. R. Beamish, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and was gowned in pink crepe-de-chene and carried a bouquet of pink asters. Mrs. Ackerill, mother of the bride, wore a gown of black silk. As the bridal party entered the church Miss Lavoié, who presided at the organ, played an appropriate wedding march. The groomsman was Mr. Eddie O'Flynn, of this city. At the conclusion of the ceremony Mrs. Chas. Wilmot sang very sweetly and with much effect, "O Fair, O Pure, O Holy." After the ceremony, the wedding party and invited guests repaired to the residence of the bride's parents on John street, where a most tempting repast was partaken of, the caterer being Mr. E. F. Dickens, of this city. This afternoon the young couple left on the International Limited westward, and, after visiting several places of interest, will proceed to their future home in the western Province. The popularity of the bride was evidenced by the numerous beautiful gifts which she was the recipient of. Among the gifts was a handsome china clock, which was presented to the groom by the men of John Street Presbyterian Church. The host of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Illsey will wish for them a long, happy and prosperous journey through life, and in this The Intelligencer heartily joins.

Some Tomatoes.

Mr. Isaac Vanmeer of Yerexville, brought to our office, on Saturday, a cluster of tomatoes that beats anything we have yet seen in this line. The small stem on which the nine large red beauties hang is only an inch and a quarter long. The small tomato of nine measures nine inches in circumference and three inches across, and the nine weigh five and a quarter pounds. Mr. Vanmeer set out 2,000 plants from which he has already picked 425 bushels, and the plants are still loaded.—Picton Gazette.

Because the practice of conducting the exhaust steam from locomotive air pumps through the stack creates a draft that burns an unnecessary amount of coal when locomotives are not running several railroads are providing a separate exhaust for it.
